Commission on the General Conference

Greetings to General Conference delegates and subscribers to the Daily Christian Advocate! We are glad that you are reading this Advance edition of the Daily Christian Advocate as you prepare for our gathering as the General Conference in Portland, Oregon, next May.

The Advance Daily Christian Advocate (ADCA) is published in three volumes. Additional daily versions will be published at General Conference in Portland, Oregon. In Volume 1, there are delegate lists (clergy names in the delegate lists are in italics), seating assignments, legislative committee assignments, agenda and program, and the report of the Commission on the General Conference.

Volume 2 contains printed reports of the general agencies and study commissions, proposed changes in the Book of Discipline, proposed new resolutions, amendments to existing resolutions, and non-Disciplinary proposals. When the same petition is submitted multiple times, it is printed only once and the number of similar petitions is noted in the petition header. Only 50 words of rationale are printed. The material is organized according to the legislative committee to which it is assigned.

The final section of the Advance Edition, Volume 3, is the quadrennial report of the General Council on Finance and Administration. This volume will be placed on the desk of the delegates, or delivered electronically, on the opening day of General Conference. This volume must contain financial reports that cannot be prepared until the 2015 books are closed, and thus requires the later production date.

When you arrive in Portland, a binder will be provided to keep your daily editions if you receive them in paper form. It is helpful to keep this handbook (Volume 1) with the daily editions because it contains valuable information about the agenda, registration, delegate lists, legislative committees, and the proposed "Plan of Organization and Rules of Order" that will be presented for adoption at the first plenary session.

Delegates and first reserves will be issued free copies of the daily editions. If other reserve delegates are seated, they may use the material provided for the person they replace, or they may purchase copies at the DCA sales booth.

All issues of the Daily Christian Advocate are issued by authority of the Commission on the General Conference, with the intention that they will help all delegates be prepared and informed prior to and during General Conference 2016.

Blessings,

Judi M. Kenaston
Chairperson

Final Adjournment

Note:

For the purposes of the General Conference, the Commission on the General Conference offers the following definitions:

Orientation—The act or process of acquainting delegates and other official participants with the processes and procedures of how the General Conference functions and the role of participants within the work of the General Conference.

Briefing—The act or instance of giving instruction or preparatory information to delegates and other official participants relating to legislative matters coming before the General Conference.

The Secretary of the General Conference and the Commission on the General Conference have the primary responsibility of offering orientations to prepare delegates and other official participants for full participation in the work of the General Conference. A variety of other organizations, both official bodies of The United Methodist Church and unofficial groups, may also provide orientations and briefings. If such an event intends to talk about actual legislation under consideration by the General Conference, then the Commission on the General Conference encourages the sponsors to use the title of “Briefing” rather than “Orientation” to communicate more effectively the nature of the event.

The Commission on the General Conference has granted authority to the Business Manager to make space available at the Convention Center for briefings provided by any of the general agencies of The United Methodist Church to the extent that space is available. The General Conference agenda and registration processes may include briefing provided that they are clearly differentiated that these are events sponsored by specific general agencies and not an official activity of the General Conference under the auspices of the Commission on the General Conference.

The following briefings are offered by general agencies and are not an official activity of the General Conference under the auspices of the Commission on the General Conference.

Briefings for Central Conference Women Delegates and all Women Delegates—sponsored by the General Commission on the Status and Role of Women and the United Methodist Women

Briefing for Youth and Young Adult Delegates—sponsored by the Division on Ministries with Young People of the General Board of Discipleship

A Briefing for Delegates of Color and Allies—sponsored by the General Commission on Religion and Race

A Few Sentences on Christian Conferencing

Are we convinced how important and how difficult it is to order our conversation right?

Is it always in grace?

Seasoned with salt?

Meet to minister grace to the hearers?

Do we not converse too long at a time? Is not an hour at a time commonly enough?

Would it not be well to plan our conversation before hand?

To pray before and after it?

(Wesley, Works, 10:856-857)

1. Christian Conferencing is according to John Wesley a means of grace—which implies that God is always present in this practice and conveys His grace to us as we engage in it.
2. The purpose of Christian Conferencing is to grow together in holiness as disciples.
3. Through Christian Conferencing we seek to discern God's voice through sharing insights with each other.
4. Christian Conferencing is not polite disagreement or mere civility in the midst of controversy—we are to speak honestly, openly, and respectfully with each other.
5. Christian Conferencing should be carefully planned.
6. Christian Conferencing is a process and a spiritual practice that does not have to lead to a conclusion. A matter can be put aside and rest until we pick it up at an appointed time.

7. Christian Conferencing should always be in a spirit of prayer.
8. Christian Conferencing as a means of grace is part of our Methodist heritage and a practice we should celebrate and promote.

They who 'walk after the Spirit' are also led by him into all holiness of conversation. Their speech is 'always in grace, seasoned with salt', with the love and fear of God. 'No corrupt communication comes out of their mouth, but (only) that which is good'; that which is 'to the use of edifying', which is 'meet to minister grace to the hearers'. And herein likewise do they exercise themselves day and night to do only the things which please God; in all their outward behavior to follow him who 'left us an example that we might tread in his steps'; in all their intercourse with their neighbor to walk in justice, mercy, and truth; and 'whatsoever they do', in every circumstance of life, to 'do all to the glory of God.'

How to be an Interculturally Competent Delegate at the 2016 General Conference

Featuring tips from GCSRW, YPM, and more!
Let's get started!

Dear Sisters and Brothers:

Bienvenue à Portland!

Bem-vindo a Portland!

!Bienvenido a Portland!

포틀랜드에 오신 것을 환영합니다!

Karibu katika Portland!

Welcome to Portland!

Greetings from the General Commission on Religion and Race! As we prepare to gather together for General Conference 2016, I am reminded that General Conference is probably one of the few times when we have the opportunity to experience our diverse global connection at its fullest. This presents a wonderful opportunity to share, to learn, and to live into what it means to be a worldwide connection, tasked with the role of, "making disciples of Jesus Christ for the transformation of the world." While this is a wonderful opportunity, it is not an easy one. We are still on the journey of moving from the paradigm of being a U.S.-centered church to a global one and from being a primarily white church to a truly multiracial one. While we celebrate the diversity that exists within the Church in every country and on every continent, utilizing that diversity as a pathway for deeper relationships, evangelization, and transformation in the world is a goal that can only be achieved through intentional effort.

This handbook is intended to support each delegate's ability to build relationships across our diverse cultures. At GOCORR, we call that "intercultural competency." Intercultural competency, as well as institutional equity (building systems, policies, and processes that level the playing field for all) and vital conversations (developing authentic relationships where lives, churches, and communities are transformed), make up GOCORR's Ministry Model, which guides our work in providing practical resources and support to Church leaders. We want to help you engage and embrace the cultural diversity present in your congregation as well as your community, your nation, and our shared world.

We hope that General Conference presents you with many opportunities to expand your knowledge and understanding of God's diversity. This guide can provide you with tools and resources as you greet others, engage them in conversation, and decide important issues.

GOCORR is a practical resourcing agency of the Church, so we hope that our website (www.gocorr.org) becomes a site that you visit for timely information as well as relevant tools. In addition, our social media sites, Facebook and Twitter, offer you daily opportunities to engage with other United Methodists from around the world. Blessings for a very joyful and productive General Conference!

Building Beloved Community

The world around us is more diverse than ever.

However, the majority of U.S. congregations are largely mono-racial and divided by economic class. The U.S. church is 90-95 percent white, even though the nation's population is, by some estimates, only 65 percent white.

The seven central conferences of The United Methodist Church are: Africa, Congo, West Africa, Central & Southern Europe, Germany, Northern Europe, and the Philippines.

While the global population is increasingly younger, more female, bilingual, and poor, the face of The United Methodist Church and its key decision-makers continues to be white, male, English-speaking, and over 55, with household incomes far above the majority of the people living in the world.

In 1970, the number of U.S. residents born in other nations was about 1 in 21; by the year 2020, according to the Pew Foundation, 1 in 7 people living in the United States will have been born elsewhere.

Cultural Humility

“You must try to truthfully understand what makes you do things or feel things. Until you have been able to face the truth about yourself you cannot be really sympathetic or understanding in regard to what happens to other people.”

- Eleanor Roosevelt

What Is Culture?

Culture is the behavioral interpretation of how a group lives out its values in order to survive and thrive.

It is defined by attitudes and beliefs and what a person from each culture believes is normal for that group. Often cultural identity includes shared language, history, and geography. However, cultural identity is a broader term, beyond racial and ethnic identity and formation. People from multiple ethnic backgrounds may identify as belonging to the same culture.

Cultural Diversity Wheel

The center of the wheel represents internal dimensions that are usually most permanent or visible. The outside of the wheel represents dimensions that are acquired and change over the course of a lifetime. The combinations of all of these dimensions influence our values, beliefs, behaviors, experiences, and expectations, and make us all unique as individuals.

Four Layers of Diversity in the UMC

Adapted from Diverse Teams at Work, Gardenzwartz & Rowe (SHRM, 2003)
*Internal Dimensions and External Dimensions are adapted from Marilyn Loden and Judy Rosener, Workforce America (Business One Irwin, 1991)

Cultural Orientation

Individuals demonstrate a wide range of values and preferences across a variety of cultural dimensions. Map your own cultural orientation by placing an X at the spot that most accurately reflects your values on each continuum below. Remember that a continuum represents an infinite number of possibilities between the two opposing ends. There are no right or wrong answers.

Monochronic..... I like to be on time and expect the same of others.	Polychronic..... What happens is more important than when it starts and ends.
Low Context..... When rules are presented, I prefer that every detail is spelled out clearly.	High Context..... Some rules are understood by everyone so it's not necessary to spell everything out.
Individualistic..... I prefer to work independently and be recognized individually.	Collectivistic..... I prefer to work as part of a group and think it's better when individuals are not singled out.
Egalitarian..... All people should be treated the same, no matter what their position is.	Hierarchical..... People should be treated differently depending on their title, position, rank.
Task Focused..... When working on a project, I prefer to focus on getting the job done and become impatient with socializing.	Relationship Focused..... When working on a project, I value time spent in building relationships and work better with people when I get to know them.
Surfacing Differences..... I directly address differences when there is an issue so the problem can be solved quickly.	Maintaining Harmony..... I prefer to deal with differences indirectly, behind the scenes, to avoid causing upset.
Being..... I derive more of my identity from who I am and who my family is	Doing..... I derive more of my identity from what I do: schoolwork, activities, etc.

Reflection

- How does your cultural orientation map help you in your life?
- How does your cultural orientation map hold you back in your life?
- How could differences in cultural orientation show up at General Conference?
- What can you do to be a bridge between different cultural orientations?

Definitions to Know

Racial Equity

Racial equity is the condition that we achieve when our ethnic identity is not the primary predictor (statistically) of our merit, worth, opportunity, or success (adapted from The Aspen Institute, September 2009). United Methodists affirm the sacred worth and value of all people and affirm that we are all created in God's image.

Culture/Cultural Identity

Culture is defined as the attitudes and beliefs that a person from each culture believes is "normal" for that group, such as shared language, history, and geography. Cultural identity extends beyond racial and ethnic identity and formation. People from multiple ethnic backgrounds may identify as belonging to the same culture.

Intercultural Competency

Having the skills and awareness to build relationships across cultures.

Inclusion

Inclusion is an action taken to welcome/include everyone within a group or structure. When using this term we must move beyond assumptions or the expectation that those being "included" must assimilate or take on the characteristics, values, language, and norms of the dominant group or culture.

Justice and Diversity

The quest to seek justice for all forces us to address the causes of inequality and then work toward solutions that produce equity. Justice produces equitable power, opportunities, treatment, impacts, and outcomes for all (adapted from Rinku Sen, in "Fund Racial Justice Strategies, Not Just Diversity"). Justice is distinct from diversity. A diversity focus primarily addresses the symptoms of racism—with the goal of minimizing racial tensions and maximizing people's ability to tolerate difference and get along. A focus on justice gets at the systemic issues of inequality and seeks to re-frame the work and move people to equality.

Racial Ethnic(s)

Every person has an ethnicity and a race. The term "racial ethnic" is an abbreviation of the term racial-ethnic minority, which is seen by many as more pejorative and inaccurate than descriptive, since people who are not of North European ancestry actually make up the majority of the world's citizens.

Intersectionality

Intersectionality refers to the interconnected nature of social categorizations such as race, class, and gender as they apply to a given individual or group, regarded as creating overlapping and interdependent systems of discrimination or disadvantage. Oppressive institutions within a society, such as racism, ageism, sexism, and homophobia, do not act independently, but are instead interrelated and continuously shaped by one another.

Ground Rules for Authentic Dialogue

Suggested Ground Rules

Do No Harm

- ✓ Think before you speak.
- ✓ Beware of judging yourself and others harshly and unfairly.

Do Good

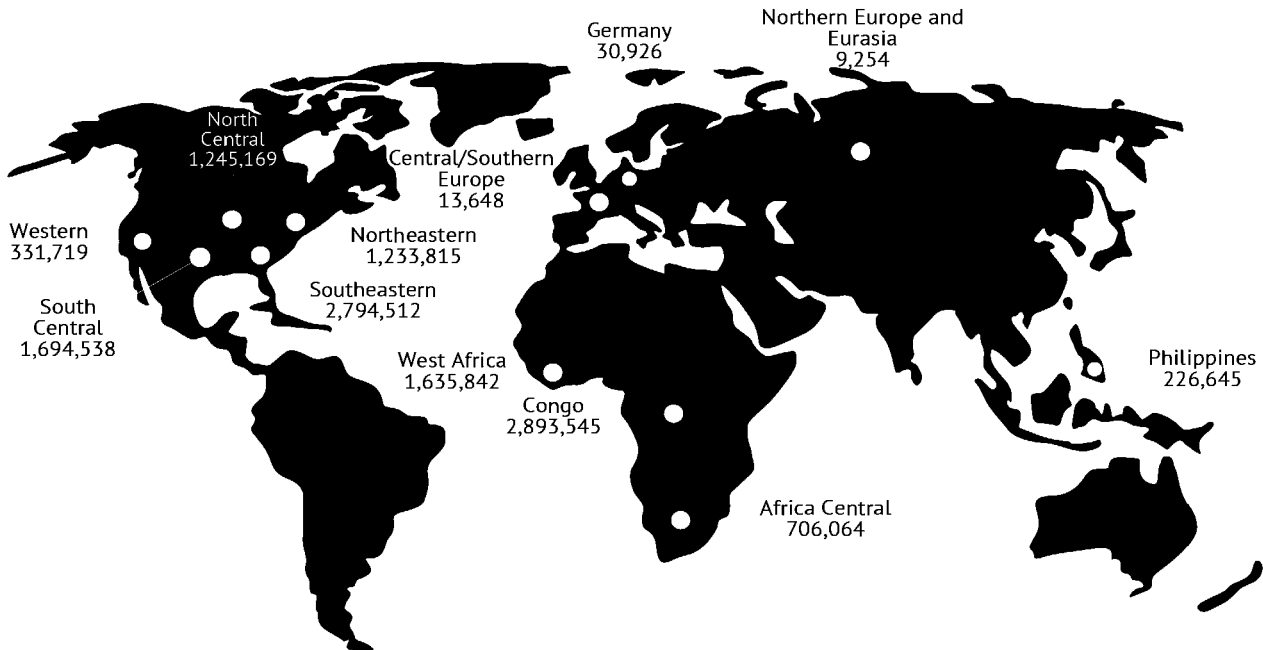

- ✓ Own your thoughts and beliefs by using “I” statements.
- ✓ Listen with a compassionate and curious heart to others especially when their experience and views are different.

Stay in Love with God

- ✓ Pray for one another and this gathering.
- ✓ Be faithful in word and deed to your commitment to be a disciple of Jesus Christ.

General Commission on the Status and Role of Women

THE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

“There is neither Jew nor Greek; there is neither slave nor free; nor is there male and females, for you are ALL one in Christ Jesus.” Galatians 3:28, emphasis added

A variety of cultures are represented at General Conference. Each of our behaviors and values comes from these cultures. Because we are all United Methodists, we can agree to the principles and values that bind us together. “We affirm our unity in Jesus Christ while acknowledging differences in applying our faith in different cultural contexts as we live out the gospel” (Book of Discipline [BOD], pg. 104).

Likewise, as United Methodists, we are required to respect women’s voices and experiences.

United Methodists “affirm women and men to be equal in every aspect of their common life” and “affirm the importance of women in decision-making positions at all levels of Church and society” (BOD, ¶ 162f).

The United Methodist Church has a “commitment to the full and equal responsibility and participation of women in the total life and mission of the Church, sharing fully in the power and in the policy-making at all levels of the Church’s life” (BOD, ¶ 2102).

“A demonstration of the Spirit is given to each person for the common good.” 1 Corinthians 12:7

As delegates to General Conference, it is expected that each person represents one’s context and is respectful of the contexts of others. While we live together during the two-week assembly, as an expression of and commitment to our faith and unity as United Methodists, we must remember:

- All women (regardless of their hair color, hair style, personal appearance, weight, accent, clothing attire, country of origin, marital status, parental status, professional status, age, color of skin, sexual orientation, or socio-economic level) have a right to voice their own opinions during all meetings (small groups, sub-committee, committee, plenary, etc.) without fear of retaliation.

During debate and dialogue please remember:

- No one voice is better, more important, or has more value than another voice. Everyone has a perspective to share.
- Please listen respectfully to others without making negative comments, as each person has his or her own viewpoints.
- If making a remark about someone’s comments, please refrain from using derogatory language in describing the person’s comments.
- Address women respectfully. For example, if you address a man by his surname, address a woman by her surname. Calling a woman “honey” or “sweetie” is not appropriate.
- Please wait until a person has finished speaking before starting to speak. Interrupting someone or talking over someone is not polite.

In areas of appearance please remember:

- Attire is different for people in every culture. Women's clothing does not invite any comments or suggestions.
- Please do not touch anyone unless invited.
- Comments or jokes about women or the physical bodies of women are not appropriate.

Personal life:

- There are women who work full-time outside the home and there are women who work full-time within the home. Both are important. Personal comments about which may be "better" or "worse" do not need to be spoken.
- The marital status of women should not be used for judgment.
- Whether or not women have children does not have any bearing as to who she is as a person.

Please treat one another with respect, as we are all Children of God, made in God's image, and of sacred worth.

"Treat people in the same way that you want them to treat you." Luke 6:31 and Matthew 7:12

Tips from Young People's Ministries

DISCIPLESHIP MINISTRIES

General Board of Discipleship

Young people come to gatherings with their own unique experiences of faith and church just like anyone else. With intentionality, we can help each other understand the broad range of experiences and cultural expectations that contributes to wholeness. Sharing information with simplicity and clarity, and taking time to insure that information is clear provides openness where all can be heard. Together we can minimize barriers caused by differences and maximize our effectiveness as discerning decision-makers.

The following guidelines can positively impact the ability to engage with young people effectively during General Conference and beyond.

- Accept them as God's children.
- Be open to the spirit working and living in them.
- Affirm their presence. Recognize them as full members of the church who are participating in General Conference because of their love for the Church just like other participants.
- Don't make assumptions about young people. Like all participants at General Conference, their experiences are unique to them. Engage them in conversation as individuals to learn about them.
- Listen. (Don't enter conversations and interactions with preconceived notions about the person based upon race, gender, class, age or geographical location.)
- Discover commonalities. (Our shared values and love for the Church creates wonderful and rich experiences.)
- Recognize young people as your peers in this setting. (Treat them with the respect you desire.)
- Avoid terms of endearment such as "honey," "sweetie," and "baby." They marginalize and dis-empower. (While they maybe young enough to be your child or grandchild, they are your equals in this setting.)
- Invite a young person (or several) to share a meal.
- Ask meaningful and thought-provoking questions about the broad nature of the Church. (Do not limit your questions to youth or young adult issues. Don't expect them to be the voice and expert for youth and young adult matters. Like most groups, there is a variety of thought among youth and young adults.)
- Learn from them. (And, tell them when they have served as a teacher.)
- Challenge them to understand you. (Developing healthy and respectful relationships take two parties. Let them know that they have a role in this process.)
- Work with them.
- Share expectations. Those elected to General Conference each come wanting to make a difference. Talk with young people about their expectations of what their presence at General Conference will mean.
- Include translators. Not everyone will speak English. Translation is important to allow young people to express themselves clearly utilizing the fullness of their native vocabulary.
- Young people from different cultures express themselves differently.
- They may wear formal or informal clothing; have dyed or unique hair, piercings; or have other ways of personally/culturally expressing themselves.
- They may address you formally or informally.
- Directly addressing a young person of a different gender is not appropriate in some cultures.
- Recognize that the use of devices, when allowed, does not mean a lack of engagement in a particular conversation. In fact, it could be the exact opposite, being used to look something up, write down a note, or ask social media contacts for ideas.

Some creative conversation starters:

- If you could start with a blank canvas, how would you answer or re-imagine the issue before us?
- How have other communities outside the Church solved this problem, and what tools have they used to do so?
- When was the last time you felt truly inspired? What General Conference actions could enable The United Methodist Church to offer that kind of inspiration in the future?
- What is your deepest missional passion?

Affirm a young person's presence and contribution in the Church. There will be relatively few young people present at General Conference. Your acceptance and openness to the young people who are present will create openness to understanding and respect that allows all to work together for the future of a church with more connections than barriers.

Sensitivity on Holding Conversations Around Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity

As United Methodists we believe “that all persons are of sacred worth” (§ 4. Article IV. Inclusiveness of the Church). Additionally we believe that “Certain basic human rights and civil liberties are due all persons. We are committed to supporting those rights and liberties for all persons, regardless of sexual orientation. . . . Moreover, we support efforts to stop violence and other forms of coercion against all persons, regardless of sexual orientation” (UM Social Principles).

The following are guidelines for conversations around sexual orientation and gender identity:

1. Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, and/or Queer (LGBTQ) persons are our siblings in Christ and should be treated with kindness, dignity, and respect.
2. Be mindful of the diverse representations of sexual orientation present with us. Many may identify as bisexual, queer, lesbian, gay, or other identities. Avoid assuming anyone’s sexual orientation.
3. Do not assume anyone’s gender identity, even if you have met them in the past. Asking someone their pronouns before using gendered words to describe them ensures we are creating a safer space for all of our gender neutral, transgender, and gender nonconforming friends. This is as simple as asking everyone you meet, “what pronouns do you use?” You can model this practice by introducing your name and your pronouns when you meet someone new. The following are some examples of gender pronouns:
 - a. Feminine pronouns (she, her, hers)
 - b. Masculine pronouns (he, him, his)
 - c. Gender neutral (they, them, theirs)
4. Referring to LGBTQ persons as prostitutes, adulterers, pedophiles, murderers, confused, unchristian, an issue, etc. does great harm to our fellow LGBTQ delegates and observers. This language is unacceptable.
5. Comparing LGBTQ marriages, covenants, and relationships to bestiality and spouses/partners to animals is harmful and unacceptable.
6. The person responsible for facilitating the meeting (presiding bishop, chair of committee, head of delegation, etc.) should be knowledgeable of harmful language and behaviors and be attentive to the conversation at hand. If harmful language is used, the facilitator should be prepared and committed to immediately speak out and rule this behavior as out of order.
7. If the facilitator does not call this behavior out of order, it is your responsibility as a delegate to call a “point of order” to challenge a misrepresentation of another person and interrupt the harmful language (allowed by rule #8 of the General Conference Rules of Order).

The first of John Wesley’s three general rules is “Do no harm.” By adhering to these guidelines we as United Methodists can reduce the harm we inflict on our LGBTQ delegates, guests, and friends.

Tips from the Disability Ministries Committee of The United Methodist Church

As United Methodists, “We recognize that God made all creation and saw that it was good. As a diverse people of God who bring special gifts and evidences of God’s grace to the unity of the Church and to society, we are called to be faithful to the example of Jesus’ ministry to [and with] all persons.” (§140, The Book of Discipline of The United Methodist Church, 2012). We recognize that the church is not complete until everyone is present and included.

Nearly 20 percent of the U.S. population live with some type of disability, and many more are affected as family members. Yet fewer persons with disabilities attend church at least once a month than persons without disabilities, for reasons that may include buildings that are not accessible and past experiences of not being welcomed.

We ought to love our neighbor as we love ourselves, and any one of us who does not already have a disability may, at any moment, acquire a disability through an illness or accident.

Some basic tips to use when meeting a person with a disability:

- A handshake is not for everyone. If you are in doubt, ASK the person with a disability what they would prefer.
- Speak directly to the person with a disability unless instructed not to.
- Don’t patronize or talk down to people with disabilities. Treat adults as adults.
- If you don’t understand what the person is saying, don’t pretend to. Ask for clarification.
- Do not push, lean on, or hold on to a person’s wheelchair unless the person asks you to. The wheelchair is a part of his or her personal space.
- Rearrange your classroom furniture or objects if needed for a person with a disability before the person arrives.
- Know how to direct someone to accessible restrooms, exits, and water fountains in the building.
- When meeting a person who is blind, identify yourself and introduce others who may be present. Also, don’t leave without excusing yourself first.
- When asked to guide someone, never push or pull the person. Offer your arm and allow him or her to reach for you, then walk slightly ahead. Point out doors, stairs, and curbs as you approach them.
- Don’t pet or distract a service animal. The dog is responsible for its owner’s safety and is working.
- When meeting a person who is deaf, let the person take the lead in establishing the communication mode and talk directly to the person even when a sign language interpreter is present. He or she may also choose to lip-read or write notes.
- Use the reference “person with a disability” instead of “disabled person.” Individuals with disabilities are people first and should not be defined by their disability.
- Ask before you help. Don’t assume that people with disabilities always need assistance.
- If a person with Tourette makes vocalizations during a conversation, simply wait for him or her to finish, then, calmly continue.

People with disabilities are individuals with families, jobs, hobbies, likes and dislikes, and problems and joys. While the disability is an integral part of who they are, it alone does not define them. Treat all people as individuals.

Report of the Commission on the General Conference

Judi M. Kenaston, Chair

Introduction

The world and the Church have changed significantly since the Christmas Conference in Baltimore, Maryland, in 1784. In fact, we are a long way from the 1968 uniting of The Methodist Church and The Evangelical United Brethren Church to create The United Methodist Church. We can think of the changes that have taken place in our local churches and communities. It is not a surprise to see how General Conference has transitioned from a small meeting of preachers in early days to a global gathering of clergy and laity from a multitude of countries, cultures, languages, and traditions. Consequently, the context and practice of conferencing has been transformed by the reality that we are a worldwide Church.

The commission reflects the reality of the worldwide nature of the Church. It is a diverse group of individuals with representatives from each central conference and jurisdiction. Our meetings are interpreted into several languages and our diversity in thought and theological perspective is broader than our language differences. Together, as a picture of the worldwide Church, we have strived to be faithful to our charge from the 2012 General Conference as we have prepared for our meeting in Portland, Oregon.

In addition to the dedicated individuals who make up the commission, we have been blessed with the assistance of staff, many of them serving as volunteers. General Conference Business Manager, Ms. Sara Hotchkiss; Secretary of the General Conference, Rev. Gere Reist; Coordinator of the Calendar, Dr. Susan Brumbaugh; and Petitions Secretary, Rev. Gary Graves, have provided the commission with invaluable leadership and experience and deserve special thanks. As you arrive in Portland, you will see evidence of the efforts of the Host Committee, ably headed by Mr. Bill Haden and assisted by Rev. Steve Sprecher. Bishop Grant Hagiya, the Greater Northwest Episcopal Area, and the entire Western Jurisdiction are working to prepare for our welcome.

The role of the Council of Bishops at General Conference is coordinated by the commission in several areas, including their leadership in worship, the COB address, and the assistance given by our Rules to the Committee on Presiding Officers, which selects those persons who preside at each plenary session. The commission has a member of the Council of Bishops as part of its composition and we have been grateful for the contributions of Bishop Minerva Carcaño and the bridge that she has made to the Council of Bishops. To encourage our coordination with the council, this commission has welcomed a second bishop from a central conference as a permanent guest at our meetings. Bishop Christian Alsted has been a helpful contributor to our work, especially in the areas of Rules and Christian Conferencing.

During this quadrennium, we have mourned the death of two of our members. Both Gloria Holt, of the North Alabama Conference, and Greg Lara, of the Philippines Annual Conference, had served on the commission since 2008. The loss of their leadership was significant. In addition, the commission suffered the loss of Maleigh Dunaway-Sherrod, who assisted the commission in meeting planning and arrangements.

The Function of the Commission

The Commission on the General Conference is tasked with the design and plan for the 2016 General Conference. The 2012 Book of Discipline (§ 511) establishes the parameters and responsibilities of the commission. This includes selecting the site, setting the dates of General Conference, creating the daily schedule, providing the Daily Christian Advocate, accommodating needs of delegates, fixing the per diem allowance, assigning the number and content of legislative committees, and setting the number of delegates when the designated formula produces a number outside the constitutional range.

The Charge to the Commission

In addition to the traditional tasks, the 2012 General Conference requested that the commission “consult with 2012 delegates and recommend to GC2016 petitions and constitutional amendments that will reduce cost, improve the effectiveness and increase the value of our General Conference meetings.” It further requested “greater use of technology before General Conference to inform on questions and begin delegate dialogue and to prioritize petitions, moving General Conference debate from issues of governance and towards building consensus on ministry and treat the $12 million investment in the General Conference as a means for advancing the mission of The UMC and our global effort to transform the world.”

The commission developed a survey instrument to be sent to all delegates of the 2012 General Conference. Unfortunately, by the time the instrument was developed and distributed, e-mail addresses had changed and the number of returned responses was not as high as we had hoped. While the responses were collected and shared and provided some insight to the commission, the greatest benefit will be that the survey instrument is now ready to go and can be sent immediately after the upcoming General Conference. This will give the next commission a valuable starting point when it meets for the first time.

Our Guiding Principles

In reflecting on our many tasks and the charge from General Conference, the commission developed guiding principles early in the quadrennium that provided a focus as we did our work. Those guiding principles are:

For the greater glory of God and in faithful response to the sacred trust placed upon us, we are committed, with help of the Holy Spirit, to create and nurture a General Conference environment where—

- the grace of God may be experienced in mutual hospitality;
- all may engage in Christian Conferencing to discern God’s call to The UMC for such a time as this;
- all voices are heard and honored as a shared United Methodist identity is shaped and experienced in response to God’s vision for us;
- the people, time, and financial resources God has brought together are wisely and effectively engaged;
- decisions made are aligned with the worldwide nature of The UMC connection;
- legislative work and all other tasks are connected to making disciples of Jesus Christ for the transformation of the world.

The Purpose of General Conference

As the commission examined our charge and our guiding principles, it became clear that the Constitution of The United Methodist Church defines the purpose of General Conference as solely for preparation and approval of legislation. We are committed to expanding the purpose to reflect the move from governance toward consensus on ministry and the advancement of the mission of The United Methodist Church. For this reason, we are proposing a constitutional amendment that will set the purpose of General Conference as follows: “The General Conference shall gather the delegates, as representatives of the church, for worship, prayer, and fellowship in a spirit of Christian Conferencing.” The commission has developed “Guidelines for Christian Conferencing” that will help the delegates prepare and work with such a spirit.

When the purpose of General Conference includes fellowship and Christian Conferencing, then the size of General Conference is an issue. For several quadrennia, the commission has asked the General Conference to reexamine the number of delegates that attend General Conference. The number has increased over time and has generally been at the higher end of the constitutionally allowed number of delegates. When the number was outside of the range this quadrennium, the commission voted to set a lower number of delegates, with the hope that a smaller number would allow for an opportunity for better conferencing. The smaller number could make General Conference more flexible, with a view toward holding General Conference outside of the United States. While the number of delegates at the 2016 General Conference may not be the best indicator of these goals, delegates are encouraged to be open to a new look to General Conferencing in the future.

Increasing the Fruitfulness of General Conference

Our theme “Therefore, Go . . .” reflects the mission of the church: To Make Disciples of Jesus Christ for the Transformation of the World. The theme of the General Conference is more than a slogan for a T-shirt, but reminds the conference of the biblical mandate from Christ in Matthew 28:18-20. The mission of the church is personal, communal, and global. The four key words, Proclaim, Lead, Nurture, and Send, empower us to see the holistic nature of the theme and our commission as the body of Christ.

The commission selected the Rev. Laura Jaquith Bartlett as the worship leader. Her gentle spirit and commitment to worship representing the entire Church is inspiring. While worship is planned separately from the commission, there has been a joint effort to shape the schedule of worship and business that will reflect the diverse worshiping nature of United Methodism. The collaboration between the commission and the worship designers allows us to be intentional in creating a conference experience that is cohesive and reflects our theme in conversation and worship.

Building on the schedule changes for the 2012 General Conference, which successfully created some Sabbath time in a grueling schedule, the commission has planned an agenda that allows for legislative work to be completed while allowing for a reasonable daily adjournment. The daily schedule, with the exception of Saturday, will end at 6:30 p.m. This is accomplished by working a bit later each day but not scheduling a dinner break. There will be more time for evening meals, delegation meetings, or other activities without requiring delegates to return for evening plenary. This was done without decreasing the time allotted for legislation, worship, and plenary.

In our effort to make our time efficient and fruitful, we wanted to provide a mechanism that might help us avoid the painful experience from 2012 of having significant legislation overturned on the last day by the Judicial Council. Consequently, we are proposing a rule change that will allow for a group of informed individuals, such as former Judicial Council members, to review all petitions for potential issues regarding the constitutionality of the legislation. Their input would inform the legislative committees by signaling potential constitutional conflicts, but not otherwise influence the legislative process. It is a resource that the conference, legislative committees, and individuals can utilize as legislation is crafted. This review of the constitutionality of proposed legislation will be available at General Conference 2016 if the proposed rules are approved in the opening session.

Greater Use of Technology

The charge to the commission included an acknowledgment that we should take advantage of technology to improve our functioning and effectiveness. Technology has the potential to make communication possible in the multilingual environment of General Conference. During our meetings all members and attendees have used headsets for simultaneous interpretation. This has been a helpful experience for the commission and we explored ways to make it available to the entire General Conference. We believe we have found workable and cost-effective ways to allow for simultaneous interpretation and are excited that presiding officers and worship leaders, as well as delegates, will be able to use their native tongues when addressing the General Conference. A mobile app will also allow visitors to General Conference to listen to the interpreted proceedings on a smart phone.

The commission has experimented with the use of tablets, which have been distributed along with training among the central conference members of the commission. Working with United Methodist Communications (UMCom), we plan to distribute tablets to central conference delegates who attend the Pre-General Conference Orientations. The tablets will be pre-loaded with the Advance Daily Christian Advocate (ADCA) and The Book of Discipline and will be able to be updated while we are in Portland. The remainder of central conference delegates will receive their tablets on-site at General Conference.

The commission has investigated the use of a speaker queuing system that will allow delegates to enter a queue to be called on to speak. The planned system will require delegates to enter an access code and their purpose for speaking. This will then allow the presiding officer to select speakers according to our rules for speaking. The name and information of the speaker will be displayed on the screen as he or she is speaking.

Initiating Christian Conferencing

In fulfillment of our charge to begin dialogue before we arrive in Portland, technology may also be a part of the solution. During registration each delegate has been given a code to participate in a delegates-only forum for discussing legislation, asking questions, and familiarizing themselves with General Conference. The commission is also giving delegates the option of having a prayer partner prior to General Conference.

The Advance Daily Christian Advocate continues to be a vital instrument to help the delegates be informed for conversation in delegation meetings as well as possible conversations with other delegates from across the globe.

By action of the 2012 General Conference, the work of General Conference will now be translated into KiSwahili. This task has been accomplished by the work of Mr. Don Reasoner of the General Board of Global Ministries, who has diligently overseen preparations of a glossary that will allow for translations that accurately project our United Methodist conversations.

Moving from Governance and Toward Building Consensus on Ministry

The commission and its Rules Committee looked seriously at the task of moving debate from issues of governance to consensus on ministry. Throughout the quadrennium, the commission looked for ways to have discussion that would not be encumbered by Robert's Rules, which is not familiar to all delegates attending General Conference. A task force of the commission was convened specifically to look at alternative legislative procedures. They set the following guidelines to direct our search. Whatever process used would encourage the conference to: (1) Love the Lord our God and love our neighbor; (2) emphasize the centrality of relationship and call to deeper relationship; and (3) expect the imitation of Christ in all we do. The result of this search is an alternative procedure that can be adopted by the General Conference at any point to use with a topic that might span different paragraphs of the Discipline, or a topic that would benefit by the input of as many voices as possible. This rule change would allow this alternative legislative procedure to be available for the General Conference to use when it is needed. Approving the rule change gives the General Conference a tool to use in specific circumstances. The rule would allow for monitored group conversations that would produce a response sheet that would then be looked at by a group of delegates, elected by the General Conference, who would bring back legislative recommendations to the full plenary. The General Conference would then vote on the legislation presented according to the current rules. This is an important and significant opportunity for the General Conference to address difficult topics in a thorough and efficient way—particularly as we look to future recommendations regarding the General Book of Discipline and proposed structural changes. The commission urges you to support this proposal.

At the 2012 General Conference, legislation proposed by the commission to limit petition submissions to petitions first approved by church councils, charge/church conferences, or annual conferences, was not supported by the legislative committee. However, an amendment using the same language was approved by the General Conference as a part of the GCFA report. While this amendment received significant support and many thought that it had changed the submission process, this was not the case because no change was made to the Discipline. Thus, the commission is once again submitting legislation that would strengthen the deliberative process regarding individual petitions and possibly result in a reduction in the overall volume of petitions submitted to the General Conference.

Advancing the Mission of The United Methodist Church

The commission is committed to having General Conference advance the mission of the Church. Consequently, we created a messaging group, led by commission member Bishop Minerva Carcaño and comprised of representatives of groups presenting key addresses at General Conference, the worship team from the Council of Bishops, and representatives from the commission. The goal of the messaging group has been to bring clarity, consistency, and comprehensiveness in the formal expressions of our work at General Conference.

In today's world, collaboration is key for advancing the mission of the church. There are numerous groups throughout the general Church that are working on how the Church will live out its mission as a worldwide body. The discussions these groups are having overlap the commission's responsibilities and its charge from the General Conference. The commission sought collaboration with groups throughout the connection. Membership of the commission naturally overlapped in some areas with commission members who were part of the Connectional Table, Standing Committee on Central Conference Matters, and the Council of Bishops. In addition, we welcomed representatives from the Connectional Table to our meetings and the chairperson of the commission attended the Connectional Table meetings. There is a proposal from the Connectional Table to include the chairperson of the commission as a member of the Connectional Table in the future, and this would ensure that the General Conference and the commission are intentionally in conversation with various connectional leaders over plans, issues, and core values. This will allow our worldwide connection and conference to collaborate in a way that reflects our Wesleyan heritage, theology, and praxis.

Looking Into the Future

The site of the 2020 General Conference will be Minneapolis, Minnesota, in the U.S.A. An enthusiastic invitation, facilities that will enhance our conferencing, and good international air travel should make for an effective conference.

With the growth of The UMC outside of the United States, the possibility of holding General Conference outside of the United States has been discussed in various settings. The commission conducted a feasibility study on this possibility during the 2008–2012 quadrennium with the result being that there would need to be a change in size, structure, duration, or delegate breakdown to make it economically feasible. With a variety of proposals coming before the next two General Conferences that could make such changes, the commission investigated possible sites and is recommending that the General Conference hold two consecutive conferences outside of the United States before returning.

The commission felt that holding two conferences outside of the United States would allow us to seriously consider what a worldwide conference would look like. With this in mind, the commission approved that the General Conference be held in the Philippines in 2024 and Zimbabwe in 2028. Each of these areas has offered an invitation as well as a commitment of significant human and financial resources to welcome the General Conference. These sites were visited by the business manager, secretary of the General Conference, and local commission members. Each location has facilities that could house the General Conference in its current configuration and current legislative breakout space needs. They also have adequate housing for delegates and required support staff and visitors. While no contracts have been negotiated with any of these areas, and situations may change in the next eight to twelve years that would create different possibilities, the commission wants to affirm its commitment to our worldwide connection.

Conclusion

Our 2016 worldwide gathering of clergy and laity in Portland, Oregon, has the potential to be an experience that celebrates and expands the ministry and mission that God is accomplishing through The United Methodist Church. The Commission on the General Conference has attempted to fulfill its roles and responsibilities and the 2012 General Conference charge that our conference be a place where God's grace is shared, Christian Conferencing is encouraged, all voices are heard, resources are used wisely, and God's people can carry out the mission of Christ throughout the world. As we come together, may we welcome each one as if he or she were Christ and move boldly forward for the transformation of the world.

Respectfully submitted,

Chair, Commission on the General Conference

General Conference of The United Methodist Church Proposed Budget for the 2017-2020 Quadrennium

General Conference (§§ 501-511). The apportionments for General Conference fund delegate expenses, meeting operation costs (convention center and equipment rental, publishing, petition tracking software, worship, labor), language services (printed translation of advance materials and spoken interpretation on-site), expenses of the offices of the secretary, business manager, and treasurer of the General Conference, and expenses of the several commissions and committees in support of the event.

The changing global nature of the Church is due in part to the rapidly growing membership in central conferences. The percentage of delegates from central conferences has increased significantly since the start of this millennium. Central conference growth was 16 percent in 2000 and will be 42 percent in 2016. This change in representation has resulted in significant increases to two of the four major General Conference cost drivers:

1. The cost of language services (written translation and interpretation at General Conference) has increased from $380,000 in 2000 to an estimated $1.7 million in 2020.

2. In 2012, the average travel costs for delegates from within the United States was approximately $493 for each delegate, while the average travel cost for delegates from central conferences was approximately $3,000 each. As representation from central conferences grows, so likewise does the total cost of travel for delegates.

The Commission on the General Conference launched a sponsorship program for the 2012 General Conference with the intent of creating an income stream that may permit the repayment of some of the accumulated deficit. This program will continue for the 2016 General Conference. Sponsorship gross income provided in 2012 was approximately $210,000, while the projected gross income for 2016 is $600,000.

Plan of Organization and Rules of Order for the General Conference

PREAMBLE

From the days of John Wesley, the “People called Methodist” have gathered and continue to gather for holy Christian conferencing as a means of grace. The early Methodists, even as they attended to practical needs of the movement, focused primarily on spiritual matters. The spiritual affairs of the Church and its mission are always before the body whether or not they are apparent in the passions of debate on temporal concerns. Through Christian conferencing the Church comes together, seeking unity in the midst of diversity, always desiring to know the mind of Christ. The General Conference is the representative, deliberative body for The United Methodist Church. It has developed an orderly, rational, and fair process for making majority decisions in the practical affairs of the Church; yet, it also protects the rights of minority positions. The delegates come together in firm conviction that the unity of United Methodism is God’s will and the best way to “spread scriptural holiness” in this global movement of the Church.

The purpose of the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order is to help the General Conference be a means of grace, discerning God’s will and striving for Christ-like wisdom in all of our decisions. In the midst of deliberation, we may pause, listen in silence, pray together, and refocus our vision on where the Spirit is leading the Church. These times of silence, prayer, and discernment may be varied and surprising. While they are not substitutes for respectful and orderly debate, they do serve to hold our temporal affairs up to the light of the larger, common mission of The United Methodist Church to make disciples of Jesus Christ for the transformation of the world. Trusting that God is at work throughout all of life, the General Conference invites the Church and others to observe our deliberations by conducting our business in open meetings (consistent with ¶ 724~~2~~ of the Book of Discipline).

PLAN OF ORGANIZATION

I. Opening Session and Organization

The General Conference will assemble at the set time and place beginning with worship.

The opening business session of the Conference shall be called to order by the bishop designated, as provided in the Book of Discipline ¶ 16.11.

The following order of business shall be observed:

- A. Roll Call. The record of attendance shall be made in writing to the Secretary of the General Conference by:
 - 1) The Secretary of the Council of Bishops for the bishops,
 - 2) The Secretary of the Judicial Council for that body,
 - 3) The Executive Secretary of the Connectional Table for all general secretaries,
 - 4) The chairperson of each annual conference delegation for its membership (See Rule 5), and
 - 5) The chairperson of each delegation for Concordat, Affiliated Autonomous Methodist and United Churches.
- B. Establish the bar of the conference.
- C. Report of the Commission on the General Conference.
 - 1) Adoption of the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order
- D. Elections
 - 1) Coordinator of Calendar (See IV.C)
- E. Report of Committee on Agenda.
- F. Miscellaneous Business.
- G. Adjournment.

52

II. Episcopal, Laity, and Young People Addresses

53

The Quadrennial Addresses shall be delivered early in the Conference, at such hour as determined by the Commission on the General Conference. The Council of Bishops shall coordinate the preparation and presentation of the Quadrennial Episcopal Address. The 56

54

55

Association of Annual Conference Lay Leaders shall coordinate the preparation and presentation of the Quadrennial Lay Address. This opportunity shall be open to all annual conference lay leaders. The United Methodist Division of Ministries with Young People shall coordinate the preparation and presentation of the Quadrennial Young People Address. This opportunity shall be open to all young people.

57

58

59

III. Presiding Officers

63

The presiding officers for the plenaries of the Conference, the opening plenary excepted (See

64

Section I), shall be chosen from among the effective bishops by the Committee on Presiding

65

67

IV. Secretary of the General Conference

68

A. The Secretary of the General Conference shall be responsible for all functions of the office

69 assigned by ¶ 504.3 in preparation for the session of the General Conference, and shall be accountable to the Commission on the General Conference.

70

71

B. The Secretary of the General Conference shall select persons from the clergy and lay membership of The United Methodist Church to serve on the secretarial support staff.

72

73

C. The Conference shall elect, upon nomination by the Secretary of the General Conference, a

74

Coordinator of Calendar, who shall assist the Committee on Agenda and Calendar in presenting reports in such order as to expedite the business of the Conference, and in other responsibilities

76

77

D. The Secretary of the General Conference shall appoint a Petitions Secretary who shall prepare the petitions, resolutions, and reports that meet the requirements of Book of Discipline

79 ¶ 507 for reference to the appropriate legislative committee, subject to review by the Committee
80 on Reference (See Section VII.A.7).

81 E. A budget for the work of the Secretary of the General Conference shall be presented by the 82 Commission on the General Conference to the General Council on Finance and Administration.
83 Such budget shall be paid out of the General Administration Fund.

84 F. If in the interim of the quadrennial sessions of the General Conference the office of the 85 Secretary of the General Conference shall be vacated for any reason, the Council of Bishops 86 shall elect a successor to serve until the next session.

V. Nominations and Elections

89 The Secretary of the General Conference shall develop a timeline for the submission of 90 nominations, elections and appointments by the Council of Bishops. In making these 91 nominations, elections and appointments, attention shall be given to ensuring continuity of 92 membership from the previous quadrennium. It shall be the responsibility of the Council of 93 Bishops to present nominations for the Commission on the General Conference, Standing 94 Committee on Central Conference Matters, General Conference administrative committees, and 95 secretary-designate of the General Conference. These nominations shall be presented to the 96 General Conference for election.

98 Disciplinary provisions shall govern the nomination and election procedures for:

99 General Council on Finance and Administration (¶ 805.1)

100 General Board of Pension and Health Benefits (¶ 1502.1)

101 General Commission on Archives and History (¶ 1704.2)

102 The University Senate (¶ 1414.2)

103 The Judicial Council (¶¶ 2602, 2603, 2604.1)

104 and Episcopal membership on:

- 105 General Board of Church and Society (§ 705.54d)
- 106 General Board of Discipleship (§ 705.54d)
- 107 General Board of Global Ministries (§§ 705.54d, 1311.6)
- 108 General Board of Higher Education and Ministry (§§ 705.54d)

110 The Daily Christian Advocate shall publish the list of nominees for election to the Judicial 111 Council and the University Senate. Biographical sketches not to exceed 100 words in 112 length shall be submitted by each nominee and shall be published as submitted.

114 VI. Commission on the General Conference

115 A. There shall be a Commission on the General Conference comprised of lay and clergy 116 membership as defined by § 511 of the Book of Discipline. They shall have oversight
117 responsibility for all arrangements necessary for the meeting of the General Conference.

118 1. Languages of the General Conference: ~~The Advance Daily Christian Advocate will be~~ 119 ~~published in English, French, and Portuguese.~~ The Daily Christian Advocate will be 120 published in English. Simultaneous and/or one-on-one interpretation of plenary and 121 legislative committee sessions will be offered in French, Portuguese, Spanish, KiSwahili, 122 German, Russian, Korean, and American Sign Language and/or others as determined by 123 the Commission on the General Conference in consultation with the Multilingual Resources 124 of the General Board of Global Ministries.

125 2. Duly credentialed interpreters or other personal assistants for persons with special needs 126 may be seated when necessary with voting delegates in all committee and plenary sessions.

128 VII. Committees

129 The General Conference shall have standing committees and special committees as it may order, 130 with such functions, responsibilities, and limitations as assigned.

A. Administrative Committees

133

The members of the following committees shall be appointed by the Council of Bishops

134 at its fall meeting preceding the General Conference. All except the Committee on Correlation and Editorial Revision shall be from the elected delegates to the General Conference (See Section V). Members of administrative committees that meet prior to the day on which 137 the General Conference convenes shall receive the delegate per diem for each additional 138 day on which their attendance is required. Delegates who are appointed to such committees less than 60 days prior to the opening session of General Conference shall be entitled to reimbursement for any additional transportation costs.

135

136

139

141

1) Agenda and Calendar

143

(a) ~~There shall be a Committee on Agenda and Calendar composed of eleven members,~~

144

~~at least five of whom shall be laypersons, to be constituted as follows: one from each~~

145

~~jurisdiction, one from the central conferences of each of the continents of Africa, Asia, and~~

146

147

~~Commission on the General Conference or designee, and the Chairperson of the Commission~~

148

~~on General Conference or designee. Beginning in 2016, †~~ There shall be a Committee on

149

Agenda and Calendar composed of fifteen members, one from each central conference and 150 jurisdiction, at least six of whom shall be laypersons; the Coordinator of the Calendar; the

151

Chairperson of the Program Committee of the Commission on the General Conference or designee; and the Chairperson of the Commission on the General Conference or designee.

152

153

No member of the committee shall be chairperson of a legislative committee or a staff person

154 of any general agency. The committee shall be convened, for the purpose of organization, by the Secretary of the General Conference, or designee, at least the day before the opening of the General Conference. Following the presentation and adoption of the report of the 157 Commission on the General Conference at the opening session of the General Conference, the 158 Committee on Agenda and Calendar shall immediately become responsible for guiding 159 the order of business of the Conference.

155

156

160 (b) The Committee on Agenda and Calendar shall:

161 (1) Present calendar reports in such an order as to expedite the business of the Conference,

162 (2) Inform the bishop presiding as soon as possible of the agenda items,

163 including order of priority, to be considered,

164 (3) Keep an overview of calendar progress;

165 (4) Report recommendations to each session of the General Conference

166 concerning business agenda, including time allocation and order in which

167 legislative committee reports shall be presented;

168 (5) Give priority in plenary for legislative consideration as calendar items become 169 available: first to items affecting the global church, second to items with financial

170 implications, and third to items with minority reports;

171 (6) Announce, at the last plenary session of each day, a tentative agenda for the next day;

172 (7) Consult daily with the legislative committee chairpersons to expedite

173 the business of the General Conference; and

174 (8) Receive all requests for special orders of the day, except those in the report of the 175 Commission on the General Conference on the first day of the Conference.

176 (c) Proposals, questions, communications, resolutions, and other matters not included in the 177 regular business of the General Conference shall be referred to the Committee on Agenda and

178 Calendar without motion or debate. This committee shall determine whether the matter

179 presented shall be considered by the General Conference. A decision of this committee may 180 be appealed by submitting to the Conference the signatures of ten delegates. The item shall 181 be presented to the Conference if the appeal is supported by a one-third vote.

183 2) Correlation and Editorial Revision

184 There shall be a Committee on Correlation and Editorial Revision of ~~four~~ eight 185 persons and two alternates not delegates to the General Conference, and the 186 Book Editor or designee, who shall be an ex-officio member. They shall be 187 entitled to reimbursement of expenses for attendance at meetings of the 188 committee. The Book Editor or designee shall convene the committee for the 189 purpose of organization. During the session of General Conference and following its 190 adjournment, ~~t~~The function of this committee shall be:

- 191 (a) To review all proposed legislation reported in the Daily Christian Advocate or 192 presented in special reports to the General Conference. The committee shall report to 193 the committees concerned, or to the General Conference as the situation may warrant, 194 all contradictions, duplications, and inconsistencies discovered.
- 195 (b) To assure that, when a calendar item approved on the Consent Calendar or under an 196 omnibus vote is found to be in conflict with parts of another calendar item discussed 197 and voted upon at a plenary session, the item discussed and voted shall prevail.
- 198 (c) To edit the Book of Discipline in accordance with Section X.B.

200 3) Courtesies and Privileges

201 ~~There shall be a Committee on Courtesies and Privileges of eight members composed of one~~
202 ~~delegate from each jurisdiction and one delegate from a central conference from each of the~~
203 ~~continents of Africa, Asia, and Europe. Beginning in 2016, t~~ There shall be a Committee on 204 Courtesies and Privileges composed of twelve members, one from each central 205 conference and jurisdiction, at least six of whom shall be laypersons. The 206 committee shall be convened by a bishop for the purpose of organization. The 207 committee has the following duties and responsibilities:

- 208 (a) To consider all matters of privilege and, if they are such, to recommend to 209 the Conference that they be heard.

210 (b) To consider resolutions of commendation, courtesy, appreciation, etc., submitted in 211 writing by delegates. The committee may initiate similar resolutions and may edit and 212 amend those submitted to it. Resolutions approved by the committee shall be published in 213 the Daily Christian Advocate and brought to the floor if the committee considers them of 214 unusual importance or urgency.

215 (c) To arrange for extending appropriate courtesies of the Conference.

216 (d) To limit its report, including the statement of the chairperson and the hearing of 217 such persons as may be presented, to a maximum of ten minutes in any one 218 business day. No person or persons shall be presented whose request has been 219 denied by the Commission on the General Conference, nor after the sixth day unless 220 approved by a two-thirds vote of the Conference (See Rule ~~29.5~~31.6).

222 4) Credentials

223 ~~There shall be a Committee on Credentials of eight members, composed of one delegate~~ 224 ~~from each jurisdiction and one delegate selected from a central conference from each of the~~ 225 ~~continents of Africa, Asia, and Europe. Beginning in 2016, t~~ There shall be a Committee on 226 Credentials composed of twelve members, one from each central conference and jurisdiction, 227 at least six of whom shall be laypersons. The committee shall be convened by a bishop for the 228 purpose of organization. The committee shall provide guidance to the Secretary of the 229 General Conference regarding the approval of credentials of delegates, and may review decisions 230 regarding the seating of delegates, including reserve delegates. The committee shall 231 report to the General Conference its decisions and recommendations regarding challenges 232 to the seating of any delegates.

234 5) Journal

235 There shall be a Committee on the Journal of three delegates to approve daily the record of 236 Proceedings of the General Conference prepared by the Secretary of the General Conference 237 and assistant(s). The committee shall be convened by a bishop for the purpose of organization.

239 6) Presiding Officers

240 ~~There shall be a Committee on Presiding Officers of sixteen members, composed of one~~
241 ~~clergy and one lay delegate from each jurisdiction, and one clergy and one lay delegate~~
242 ~~from central conferences from each of the continents of Africa, Asia, and Europe.~~
243 Beginning in 2016, † There shall be a Committee on Presiding Officers composed 244 of twelve members, one from each central conference and jurisdiction, six of whom shall be 245 clergy and six of whom shall be laypersons. The committee shall be convened by a bishop 246 for the purpose of organization. The committee shall select and notify the presiding officer(s) 247 of each plenary session at least 24 hours in advance, insofar as possible. The committee shall be 248 free to select a bishop for more than one session and to change the presiding officer 249 during the session, whenever it seems advisable (See Section III).

251 7) Reference

252 ~~There shall be a Committee on Reference of sixteen members, composed of one clergy~~
253 ~~and one lay delegate from each jurisdiction, and one clergy and one lay delegate from a~~
254 ~~central conference from each of the continents of Africa, Asia, and Europe. Beginning~~
255 in 2016, † There shall be a Committee on Reference composed of twenty-four members, one 256 clergy and one lay person from each central conference and jurisdiction. The membership of 257 this committee shall include at least one member from each legislative committee who will be 258 designated as petition coordinator for their legislative committee. If possible, petition coordinators 259 should have served previously on a General Conference legislative committee. These petition 260 coordinators shall serve as advisors to the officers of the legislative committee of which

261 they are members. Additional members from the Committee on Reference shall assist the petition 262 coordinator in the legislative committee of which they are members. This committee shall be 263 convened, for the purpose of organization, by the Secretary of the General Conference, or 264 designee, the day prior to the opening of the General Conference.

266 (a) After reviewing the proposed assignments by the Secretary of the General Conference of the 267 petitions, resolutions, and similar communications dealing with the regular business of the 268 Conference to legislative committees, this committee shall refer the same to the appropriate 269 legislative committees (See Section IV.D). This committee shall also be responsible for reviewing 270 the assignment, by the Secretary of the General Conference, of all reports, recommendations, 271 and resolutions from general agencies, standing or special commissions and committees, and all 272 other communications which are submitted to the Secretary of the General Conference after the 273 convening of the General Conference, all of which shall be referred directly to appropriate 274 legislative committees without presentation to a plenary session of the General Conference.

275 (b) The Committee on Reference may withdraw an item that has been assigned to a committee, 276 either upon a request or upon its own motion. It may also withhold from reference or 277 publication any document it shall deem improper.

278 (c) The Secretary of the General Conference, or the Petitions Secretary, may withhold from 279 publication any petitions deemed defamatory to a private individual or obscene.

280 The Committee on Reference shall review all such decisions.

281 (d) Where the committee finds two or more substantially identical petitions, it may group 282 them under one title and number, indicating the total number of petitions.

283 (e) No petitions shall be assigned by the Committee on Reference to any General 284 Conference committee unless they meet the requirements of the Book of Discipline.

285 B. Advance Legislative Research Panel

286 (a) There shall be an Advance Legislative Research Panel chosen by the 287 Executive Committee of the Commission on the General Conference, 288 composed of a number of members equal to the number of legislative 289 committees.

290 (b) Panel members shall be chosen based on their comprehensive 291 knowledge of the Book of Discipline as evidenced by their previous 292 participation in the life of the general church through service on the 293 Judicial Council, the Committee on Correlation and Editorial 294 Revision, or as a conference chancellor. Panel members must be 295 willing to volunteer significant hours prior to General Conference.

296 (c) All petitions received, after being compiled by Disciplinary 297 paragraphs, shall be assigned by legislative committee among the 298 panel members. The panel members, in turn, will review all the 299 petitions they have been assigned and locate any other paragraphs of 300 the Book of Discipline, including the Constitution, which are closely 301 related to the subject matter of the petition, as well as closely related 302 Judicial Council decisions and memoranda. The panel member shall 303 then record the related paragraph, decision, or memoranda with each 304 petition.

305 (d) No judgment or editorial comment about any petition shall be 306 included.

307 (e) The notation of related paragraphs shall become a permanent 308 attachment to the petition as it goes through the General Conference 309 legislative committee process.

310 (f) The legislative committees will consider how related paragraphs 311 would impact or be impacted by adopting such a petition.

312 (g) The Advance Legislative Research Panel's work shall be coordinated 313 by the Petitions Secretary.

314 (h) A panel member is not precluded from being a delegate to General 315 Conference.

317 BC. Committee on Ethics

318 There shall be a Committee on Ethics, comprised of the members of the Committee of the Plan of 319 Organization and Rules of Order of the General Conference. Individual delegates may report their 320 concerns about alleged violations of the rules to the Secretary of the General Conference who 321 shall investigate, ~~and~~ attempt to resolve all such claims, and report the resolution to the 322 Committee on Ethics and to the delegate(s) who raised the concern. ~~or, b~~ Based on their severity 323 of the concerns, the Secretary of the General Conference may refer them ~~matter~~ matter to the 324 Committee on Ethics. Alleged violations of the rules may also be referred directly to the 325 Committee on Ethics by a one-fifth vote of the Plenary. The Committee on Ethics shall review 326 all matters referred to it and report its findings to the Plenary with recommended action.

328 CD. Standing Committee on Central Conference Matters

329 (For membership, see Book of Discipline ¶ 2201.)

330 To this committee shall be referred all petitions, resolutions, etc., relating to the Central 331 Conferences, Autonomous Methodist Churches, Affiliated Autonomous Methodist Churches, 332 Affiliated United Churches and Concordat relationships.

333 Book of Discipline paragraphs

334 28-31 Constitution: Central Conferences

335 4283 Conference of Methodist Bishops

336 540-548 Central Conferences

337 560-567 Provisional Central Conferences

338 570-575 Autonomous Methodist, Affiliated Autonomous Methodist, Affiliated

339 United, Covenanting, and Concordat Churches

340 2201 Standing Committee on Central Conference Matters

342 The Standing Committee on Central Conference Matters shall submit its report and any 343 legislative proposals related to the paragraphs assigned to it directly to the General
344 Conference. If the Standing Committee on Central Conference Matters has a concern
345 for any paragraphs assigned to one of the legislative committees, the Committee
346 shall offer its recommendation to the appropriate legislative committee 347 for consideration and recommendation to the General Conference.

349 DE. Legislative Committees

350 There shall be legislative committees to whom all properly submitted petitions 351 and reports shall be assigned. The Commission on the General Conference shall 352 set the number of legislative committees and the assignment of Disciplinary 353 paragraphs and topics to those committees in consultation with the Secretary of 354 the General Conference and the Business Manager of the General Conference 355 (§ 511.4.f). Any legislative committee considering legislation affecting the 356 responsibilities assigned to the Standing Committee on Central Conference 357 Matters shall consult with the committee before submitting its proposed 358 legislation to the Conference.

360 EF. Membership of Legislative Committees

- 361 1) Within the annual conference delegation, each delegate shall choose one legislative 362 committee on which to serve, the choice being made in order of election.

364 In ~~2012~~ 2016, the ~~clergy~~ laity first elected, shall be entitled to the first choice, the ~~lay~~ clergy 365 delegate first elected, the second choice, and thus the right of choice shall continue to alternate 366 between ~~clergy and lay~~ and clergy delegates in the order of their election. For 367 subsequent General Conferences, first choice shall alternate between the ~~lay and~~ 368 clergy and lay delegates according to the following schedule:

369 2020 clergy

370 2024 laity

371 2028 clergy

372 2032 laity

374 2040 laity

375 ~~provided~~ Two members of a delegation may not serve on the same legislative 376 committee unless the said delegation is represented on all of them. Whenever a delegation 377 has more than one delegate on a legislative committee, its delegates shall be divided 378 as equally as possible between lay and clergy. Thus, if there are three delegates on 379 a committee, they shall be two clergy and one lay or vice versa. The Secretary of the 380 General Conference shall provide these instructions and examples with the election of 381 delegate instructions sent to each annual conference secretary.

383 2) If a matter is under consideration in any legislative committee which in the 384 judgment of any annual conference delegation vitally affects the interests of its 385 constituency, and if the said annual conference is not represented in the membership of said 386 committee, then the delegation may choose one of its delegates to represent its annual 387 conference in the committee when the aforementioned matter is under consideration.
 388 This delegate shall be entitled to sit with the committee while this particular 389 matter is being considered and shall have voice, but not vote (See Section VII.FG.3.(e)).

391 3) Each person seated in the General Conference with voice but not vote may submit

392 to the Secretary of the General Conference a choice of a legislative committee 393 and shall have the same right in that committee to voice but not vote.

395 FG. Meetings of Committees

396 1) Organization and Quorum of Committees. All legislative and administrative 397 committees shall meet for organization at a time determined by the Commission on the 398 General Conference. A majority of the members shall constitute a quorum for the 399 transaction of business in all committees.

401 Consistent with the spirit of ¶ 72+2 in the Book of Discipline, meetings of General 402 Conference committees and subcommittees shall be open.

404 2) Administrative Committees

405 (a) A bishop appointed by the Council of Bishops and an organizing secretary appointed 406 by the Secretary of the General Conference shall serve, respectively as chairperson and 407 secretary, to organize the committees, except where other provision is specified.

408 (b) The election of chairperson, vice-chairperson and secretary of each administrative 409 committee shall be by separate sequential written ballot for each position.

410 Due consideration shall be given for inclusiveness that reflects the global nature 411 of the church, including gender, age, ethnicity, geography, young people, clergy, and lay.

412 3) Legislative Committees

413 All legislative committees shall meet for organization at such time as the Commission on the 414 General Conference shall determine. A bishop appointed by the Council of Bishops and an 415 organizing secretary appointed by the Secretary of the General Conference shall serve, 416 respectively, as chairperson and secretary, to organize each of the several committees. The first 417 meeting of the legislative committees shall be held as soon as possible following the first plenary

- 418 session of the General Conference. The orientation of the committee, followed by the 419 election of officers, shall be the order of business of the first meeting of the committee.
- 420 (a) Election of Officers. The chairperson, vice-chairperson, secretary, and sub-committee 421 chairpersons of each committee shall be elected by separate sequential written ballot 422 for each position. Due consideration shall be given for inclusiveness that reflects the global 423 nature of the church, including gender, age, ethnicity, geography, young people, clergy, 424 and lay. If no election by simple majority vote of those voting has occurred 425 after three (3) consecutive ballots, the floor will be reopened for nominations.
- 426 (b) Training. The Secretary of the General Conference shall be responsible for training all 427 chairpersons, vice-chairpersons, secretaries, and sub-committee chairpersons of legislative 428 committees. The training shall include instruction in their duties, all procedures in the handling of 429 petitions, the times of the daily deadline for publishing reports, and other information to expedite 430 the work of the committees. The Commission on the General Conference shall arrange for a time 431 and place for such a training session. No officer shall serve without completing this training.
- 432 (c) Parliamentarians. Each legislative committee shall be assigned a parliamentarian by the 433 Secretary of the General Conference. Retired bishops nominated by the Council of 434 Bishops shall be included in the pool of parliamentarians. It shall be the responsibility 435 of the Business Manager of the General Conference to develop a pool of other people not 436 currently delegates to serve as parliamentarians. It is preferred that these persons 437 be members of The United Methodist Church, have knowledge of the Rules of 438 the General Conference, and have training in parliamentary procedure. The retired bishops 439 shall be given priority in being assigned to legislative committees. At the invitation 440 of the presiding officer, the parliamentarian advises on matters of parliamentary procedure.
- 441 (d) Regular Meetings. The legislative committees shall meet for business as scheduled 442 by the Agenda and Calendar Committee unless otherwise ordered by the Conference, 443 and at such other times as the committees may determine provided that no legislative

- 444 committee shall meet at times that conflict with plenary sessions. Any 445 legislation not completed by the legislative committee at the time of the Saturday
446 evening adjournment of the first week of General Conference shall remain 447 unfinished and legislative committees shall be adjourned (See Rule ~~35~~37).
- 448 (e) Voting Area. Each legislative committee and sub-committee shall establish an area in which 449 only voting committee members and their properly credentialed assistant or translator will be 450 seated. The Business Manager of the General Conference shall provide four designated seats in 451 each legislative committee for the monitors from the General Commission on Religion and Race 452 and the General Commission on the Status and Role of Women. An area shall also be 453 established for those present with voice but not vote (See Section VII.~~EE~~E). Staff members of the 454 Secretary of General Conference and Business Manager of General Conference may speak in 455 the performance of their duties. General agency staff, other resource persons, and visitors may 456 speak only when authorized, in each instance by ~~specific committee action~~ vote of 1/3 of the 457 committee or sub-committee or by invitation of the chair (See Rule 31.3).
- 458 (f) Minority Reports. Minority reports allow for the expression of differing views held by a 459 significant portion of a legislative committee and may be offered in accordance with 460 Rules ~~27~~29, ~~36~~38, and ~~37~~39.
- 461 (g) Reports. Legislative Committee Reports should be submitted as soon as possible 462 following the action of the committee. All Legislative Committee Reports 463 shall be submitted prior to 5 p.m. on Monday of the second week.

465 GH. Function and Authority of Committees

- 466 1) The administrative committees, without specific instruction or direction from 467 the Conference, shall assume responsibility for considering and reporting to the 468 Conference upon all matters that fall within their respective responsibilities (See 469 Section VII.A).

470 2) The legislative committees shall consider and report upon that which is 471 referred to them by the Committee on Reference or which has been referred to 472 them directly by the Conference (See Rule ~~3436~~).

474 VIII. Proposal Involving Expenditure of Unbudgeted Funds

475 A. Any action proposed to the General Conference plenary to establish an interim or 476 continuing board, commission, committee, or task force shall be referred to the General 477 Council on Finance and Administration and the Connectional Table or their executive 478 committees or their expenditure review group for a report and recommendation before 479 final action is taken. The General Council on Finance and Administration and 480 the Connectional Table or their executive committees or their expenditure review group 481 shall provide the General Conference with the following before action is taken:

482 1) an estimated budget for the proposed board, commission, committee or task force 483 for the next quadrennium; and 484 2) a statement explaining how the creation of the proposed board, commission, committee, 485 or task force will affect the budget or budgets for existing boards, commissions, committees

486 and task forces already presented by the General Council on Finance and Administration.

488 B. Any action proposed to the General Conference plenary that involves the expenditure of 489 funds shall be referred to the General Council on Finance and Administration and the 490 Connectional Table or their executive committees or their expenditure review group
491 for advice and recommendation before final action is taken. Any general agency requests 492 for supplemental funds shall be identified as such; otherwise, they shall be considered as 493 having been included within the agency budget.

495 C. Any proposal falling under the provisions of this section shall be referred to the 496 General Council on Finance and Administration and the Connectional Table or their 497 executive committees or their expenditure review group at least seventy-two hours 498 prior to the scheduled adjournment of the General Conference.

500 IX. Delegates Expenses

501 A. Full travel expenses and per diem shall be paid for the number of allotted voting 502 delegates from each conference according to the report of the chairperson of each 503 annual conference delegation. If during the conference, a reserve delegate is seated 504 for a principal delegate for one or more full days, the principal delegate shall adjust 505 the per diem with such reserve based on the time served by each.

507 B. Air travel shall be by the most economical round-trip coach airfare directly to and 508 from the site of the General Conference. Special excursion and promotional fares shall be 509 utilized whenever possible. Additional expenses may be allowed delegates from conferences
510 outside the United States for arrival and departure not to exceed two days before or after General
511 Conference. The per diem expense allowance for all such days before and after General Conference 512 shall be at the same rate as granted delegates during General Conference. Exceptions to 513 these limitations must be approved by the Business Manager of the General Conference.

515 C. When one or more delegates come in the same automobile, the owner will be 516 reimbursed for the actual cost of travel (parking, en route mileage and tolls, en route meals and 517 lodging). Mileage shall be reimbursed at the business rate established by the IRS and will be 518 measured from point of origin to the site of General Conference and return. Meals and lodging shall 519 be reimbursed up to the established General Conference per diem. When the round trip exceeds 520 1,000 miles for any one round trip, the cost of transportation shall be paid either on the actual 521 costs as defined above or at the most economical airfare available plus airport-related ground

522 transportation cost, whichever is less. Passengers who are the principal 523 voting delegates to the General Conference shall submit only the cost of room 524 and meals en route up to the established General Conference per diem rate.

526 D. For the dates General Conference is in session, no General Conference delegate shall 527 receive expense money from the general Church or any of its boards and agencies other 528 than approved per diem and travel expenses available to all delegates. This provision is 529 not to restrict official assistance to delegates from their own annual conferences.

531 X. Material to Be Included in the *Book of Discipline

532 A. Non-legislative material (Pages 1-202, 200812 Book of Discipline) shall be referred to the 533 Committee on Correlation and Editorial Revision for consideration and possible consultation with 534 the General Commission on Archives and History or referral to the Committee on Reference.

536 B. The Book Editor, the Secretary of the General Conference, the Publisher of The United 537 Methodist Church, and the Committee on Correlation and Editorial Revision shall be 538 charged with editing the Book of Discipline. Any Disciplinary amendments that are not 539 dependent on constitutional amendments for their effective date will be incorporated in 540 the appropriate paragraphs of the Book of Discipline in the order of their adoption.

542 The editors, in the exercise of their judgment, shall have the authority to make 543 changes in wording as may be necessary to harmonize legislation without changing its 544 substance. The editors, in consultation with the Judicial Council, shall also have authority to 545 delete provisions of the Book of Discipline that have been ruled unconstitutional by the Judicial 546 Council. Any challenge of a decision made by the Committee on Correlation and Editorial 547 Revision shall be in writing. If the matter should go to the Judicial Council, the appealing party

548 shall give notice thereof to the committee. Any established errata in the Book of Discipline
549 shall be forwarded by The United Methodist Publishing House to the Council of 550 Bishops, the Secretary of the General Conference, Annual Conference Secretaries, and 551 Annual Conference Directors of Connectional Ministries, and shall be published 552 by the Book Editor on The United Methodist Publishing House website.

554 Constitutional amendments certified in accordance with ¶ 59 and enabling legislation 555 adopted in anticipation of the Constitutional amendments shall be published by the Book Editor on 556 the United Methodist Publishing House website following certification. They shall be published 557 in the subsequent Book of Discipline. The Constitutional amendments take effect at the 558 time of certification. The enabling legislation will be effective on January 1, of the year
559 following the certification of the constitutional amendments and will be given effect as if it 560 had been adopted after all other Disciplinary changes affecting a particular paragraph.

562 XI. Distribution of Materials within the Bar of the Conference

563 After the first day, only the Daily Christian Advocate and materials related to General
564 Conference presentations and produced by official bodies of The United Methodist 565 Church approved by the Secretary of the General Conference shall be distributed by 566 the pages. Pages will distribute communications to individual delegates provided 567 the communication bears the name and location of both the recipient and the sender.

569 XII. Distribution of Materials Outside of the Plenary or Committee Room

570 Newsletters or any special interest material from United Methodist boards, agencies, and related 571 United Methodist groups may be distributed under the following conditions:

573 A. One copy of each item shall be submitted to the office of the Commission on the General 574 Conference in advance of distribution.

576 B. Material distributed shall be relevant to the General Conference and not for soliciting 577 membership in an organization.

579 C. No distributor shall be allowed to distribute within the convention center unless 580 they have obtained written approval from the Business Manager of the General
581 Conference. Each group shall have one contact person who shall register all group 582 members and receive identification for each member.

584 D. Distribution shall be at least 30 feet outside any entrance door to the plenary 585 or committee meeting room.

587 E. Distribution shall be done by representatives of the above named groups. It is the 588 responsibility of the distributors not to impede or interfere with the entrance or 589 exit of persons or to hamper the general flow of pedestrian traffic.

591 F. Distributors are responsible for the disposal of unused or unclaimed materials.

592

593 G. Distributors violating these regulations will be prohibited from future distributions.

594

595 XIII. Reports to Be Mailed Before General Conference

596 The reports, recommendations, and resolutions requiring action by the General Conference, 597 as well as petitions submitted in accordance with the Book of Discipline ¶ 507.7, shall 598 first be assigned a Petition Number by the Secretary of the General Conference or the 599 Petitions Secretary and then shall be published in an Advance Edition of the Daily Christian

600 Advocate and distributed to all delegates and to the first clergy and first lay reserve delegates
 601 at least ninety days prior to the opening of the General Conference. Reports shall be published 602 in the same style as the Daily Christian Advocate. In order to accomplish this, the finished 603 copy of all such reports and recommendations shall be submitted to the editor of the Daily 604 Christian Advocate at least 210 days prior to the opening of the General Conference. Reports and 605 recommendations not published in an Advance Edition of the Daily Christian Advocate
 606 may be received by the General Conference only upon three-fourths vote of the General Conference.
 607 The General Council on Finance and Administration shall be exempt from this requirement
 608 to the extent necessary to allow inclusion of general funds receipts information for the first 609 three years of the quadrennium. The General Council on Finance and Administration 610 will provide data including the third year of the quadrennium and other appropriate 611 information to delegates prior to the convening of the General Conference.

612 RULES OF ORDER

613 I. Daily Schedule

614 Rule 1. Hours of Meetings

615 The following shall be the daily order for the General Conference, Sundays excepted:

- 616 (1) 8:00 a.m. Morning Praise and Prayer
- 617 (2) 8:20 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. ~~Conference business~~ Christian conferencing through plenary or 618 committee meetings
- 619 (3) 1:30 or 2:30 p.m. (as specified by the daily schedule) to 5:00 p.m. ~~Conference business~~
 620 Christian conferencing through plenary or committee meetings
- 621 (4) ~~7:30 p.m. Conference business, Evening programs as planned by the Commission on the~~ 622 ~~General Conference, and worship under the direction of the Council of Bishops. During a~~

626 Memorial Service, the names of the bishops, bishops' spouses, and delegates-elect 627 who have died since the adjournment of the previous General Conference shall be called.

628 (5) Recess may be called during any plenary session at a time deemed appropriate by the 629 presiding officer.

630 (6) Daily adjournment shall be called by ~~9:30~~ 6:30 p.m. each evening, except for 631 the day when leader training is scheduled and Saturday when adjournment shall be 632 called by 9:30 p.m. Adjournment shall be an order of the day.

634 Rule 2. Order of ~~Business~~ Christian Conferencing

635 The daily sessions of the Conference shall be conducted as follows:

636 (1) Reports of administrative and special committees

637 (2) Agenda and calendar items

638 (3) Consent calendar (See Rule ~~3+3~~.5)

639 (4) Miscellaneous business

640

641 II. Presiding Officers

642

643 Rule 3. Authority of the Presiding Officer

644 (1) The presiding officer (plenary, administrative committees, legislative committees, and 645 sub-committees) shall decide and rule on points of order. A delegate may appeal the ruling
646 to the body without debate, except that the presiding officer and the appellant, in the order here 647 named, shall each have three minutes for a statement in support of their respective positions.
648 A tie vote in the case of appeal shall sustain the presiding officer (See Rule ~~29.4~~31.5).

649 Any delegate who raises a point of order shall cite the rule believed to have been violated.

650 (2) At the discretion of the presiding officer, a time for prayerful discernment may be taken

651 during deliberation. Such a time should be for group meditation and prayer and shall end at 652 the call of the presiding officer, at which time deliberation shall be resumed.

653 (3) The presiding officer shall have the right to recess a session of the body at any time at the

654 presiding officer's discretion and to reconvene at such time as the presiding officer shall

655 propose. Consistent with the spirit of ¶ 72+2 of the Book of Discipline, in rare circumstances

656 the presiding officer shall also have the right to stipulate that the session shall reconvene in

657 closed session with only delegates, authorized personnel, and authorized guests permitted

660 Rule 4. Calling the Conference to Order

661 When the presiding officer calls the body to order, no delegate shall speak, address

662 the chair, or stand.

664 III. Rights and Duties of Delegates

665

666 Rule 5. Attendance and Seating Reserves

667 The chairperson of each delegation shall be provided with a form on which to report daily the 668 attendance of its delegates. Any reserve seated in the place of a regular delegate shall have

669 been duly elected as a reserve delegate by the annual conference and shall meet the

670 requirements set forth in the Book of Discipline ¶¶ 34-36. Delegates, including reserves

671 when the latter are substituted for a delegate or delegates, shall be seated in the order of their 672 election, except when a reserve is seated temporarily or in case of special need as

673 determined by the delegation chairperson. The reserve shall occupy the seat of the delegate 674 for whom the substitution is made. Reserves shall not be seated for delegates presenting 675 on the platform. All delegates arriving after the opening roll call shall be reported by the 676 chairperson of the delegation to the Secretary of the General Conference or designee. No delegate

677 who is duly registered, unless hindered by sickness or other emergency, shall be absent from 678 the sessions of the Conference without permission of the Conference. All absences shall be 679 reported by the chairpersons of the delegations to the Secretary of the General

680 Conference or designee on a form provided for this purpose. Reserve delegates are to function
681 within the Rules of Procedure of the General Conference (See Rules 279 and 343). A reserve 682 delegate may be seated upon authority of the chairperson of the delegation who shall report the 683 substitution in writing to the Secretary of the General Conference or designee on a form 684 provided for this purpose. Reserves are chosen to be seated:

- 685 (1) by reason of being of the same order as the absent delegate,
- 686 (2) in order of their election as reserve delegates.

687 If the substitution is challenged, the Committee on Credentials after consultation with the 688 chairperson of the delegation may report its recommendation to the General Conference.

690 Rule 6. Directions for Securing the Plenary Floor

691 A delegate desiring to speak to the Conference shall use the tablet at the table to register and 692 make a request to speak. The presiding bishop shall choose from the requests and direct the 693 speaker to the appropriate microphone. ~~hold up the appropriate placard to be recognized by the~~ 694 ~~bishop presiding.~~ Unless raising a point of order or parliamentary inquiry, the delegate shall not 695 speak until given the floor. The bishop presiding shall consider the various sections of the 696 auditorium in rotation. The delegate recognized ~~shall proceed to the nearest microphone and~~ 697 shall first announce her or his name and the name of the conference represented and their 698 reason for speaking. A delegate recognized by the presiding bishop may not yield the floor to 699 another delegate. In the event of tablet failure, a delegate desiring to speak to the Conference 700 shall hold up the appropriate placard to be recognized by the bishop presiding.

702 Rule 7. Plenary Speakers For and Against

- 703 (1) When the report of a committee is under consideration, it shall be the duty of the bishop

704 presiding to ascertain, when recognizing a delegate to the Conference, on which side 705 the delegate proposes to speak; the bishop presiding shall not assign the floor to any 706 delegate proposing to speak on the same side of the pending question as the speaker
707 immediately preceding if any delegate desires to speak on the other side.

708 (2) Except for non-debatable motions (Rule 243), no report shall be adopted or question relating 709 to the same decided, without opportunity having been given for at least two speeches for 710 and two against the said proposal.

711 (3) The motion to call for the previous question, which is itself non-debatable, is not in order
712 without opportunity having been given for at least two speeches for and two against the proposal.
713 Any delegate who moves the previous question (that is, that the vote be now taken on the 714 motion or motions pending) shall also indicate to what it is intended to apply, if any secondary 715 motion or motions are also pending. If said delegate does not so indicate, it shall be regarded 716 as applying only to the immediately pending question. This motion shall be taken without 717 debate and shall require a two-thirds vote of those present and voting for its adoption. If it 718 is adopted, the vote shall be taken on the motion or motions to which it applies without 719 further debate (See Rule 243). After three speeches for and three against and provided no 720 secondary motions come before the floor, the questions shall be put automatically. However, 721 the chairperson and/or duly authorized delegate or delegates presenting the committee's 722 report, and if there is a minority report, the presenter shall be entitled to speak before the 723 vote is taken (See Rule 279). These speeches shall be limited to three (3) minutes (See Rule 9).

725 Rule 8. Interrupting the Speaker

726 No delegate who has the floor may be interrupted except for a point of order, a parliamentary 727 inquiry, a point of information, to challenge a misrepresentation, or to call attention that the time 728 has arrived for an order of the day.

730 Rule 9. Speaking More Than Once; Length of Speech

- 731 (1) No delegate shall speak a second time on the same question if any delegate who 732 has not previously spoken on the question desires the floor.
- 733 (2) No delegate shall speak more than twice on the same subject under the same motion, 734 except as provided in Rule 7.2
- 735 (3) No delegate shall speak longer than three minutes unless that time is extended by the 736 body (See Rule 7.3). Time of translation shall not count against the three-minute limit.
- 737 (4) The three-minute limit on delegate speeches may be amended by a majority vote of 738 the body at any time and for any period of duration.

740 Rule 10. Point of Order

741 A delegate wishing to raise a point of order shall use the tablet at the table to register and 742 make a request to speak. The presiding bishop shall choose from the requests, interrupt the 743 proceedings, and direct the speaker to the appropriate microphone. In the event of tablet failure, 744 a delegate wishing to raise a point of order shall address the presiding officer and say, "I rise to 745 a point of order." The presiding officer shall interrupt the proceeding. If a delegate is speaking, 746 that one shall immediately yield the floor. The presiding officer shall then direct the 747 delegate raising the point of order to first cite the rule involved and then state the point 748 as briefly and concisely as possible, ~~citing the rule invoked in the point of order~~. The 749 delegate shall not presume to decide the question or argue the point. A point of order
750 is decided by the presiding officer without debate unless in doubtful cases 751 the presiding officer submits the question to the body for advice or decision. When the presiding 752 officer rules on a point, debate is closed, but the decision may be appealed (See Rule 3).

754 Rule 11. Bar of the Conference

755 The bar of the conference shall provide for the integrity of the General Conference. It is for

756 delegates, pages, and others who have been granted access to the area for General Conference 757 business as provided through the Rules or through the suspension of the Rules.

759 Rule 12. Distracting Behavior

760 A spirit of Christian conferencing is expected. Delegates are not to distract others ~~near them~~
761 ~~by engaging in activities unrelated to the matters at hand.~~ Audible cell-phone use is not 762 permitted in the plenary hall or the legislative committee rooms ~~by delegates or observers while~~
763 ~~in session.~~ All electronic devices shall be muted or turned off. In addition, the use of ~~laptop computers,~~
764 ~~personal digital assistants, pagers and other~~ electronic devices should be in a manner that 765 ~~furtherance of General Conference business and done in such a manner that it does not~~ 766 disturb other participants. Respect should be shown in the use of social media at all times.
767 Verbal and non-verbal distractions are prohibited. The presiding officer or members of the 768 General Conference staff may ask individuals to leave the plenary hall or the legislative 769 committee room if they persist in behavior that interferes with the participation of other delegates.

771 Rule 13. Electronic Recording

772 No electronic recording by either video or ~~voice~~ audio may be made of any portion of 773 the General Conference unless specifically authorized by the Business Manager of the 774 General Conference in order to maintain the integrity of all performance licenses.

776 Rule 14. Right to Make Motions

777 Only voting delegates have the right to make or second motions in accordance with the rules 778 and upon recognition by the presiding officer.

780 Rule 15. Plenary Voting Procedure

781 (1) Voting shall be by electronic means unless otherwise ordered by the Conference, provided,

782 however, that in elections, voting may be by written ballot. Electronic voting devices shall be 783 available on the platform for delegates making a presentation to the Conference.

784 (2) When electronic voting is not in use or operating, a standing count vote or vote
785 by written ballot may be ordered on call of any delegate, supported by one-third 786 of the delegates present and voting, with pages serving as tellers.

787 (3) Only delegates within the bar of the Conference when the vote is taken shall be entitled 788 to vote. No delegate shall cast a vote in place of any other delegate.

789 (4) No other business shall be in order when a vote is being taken or when the previous 790 question has been called until the process is completed, except such as relates 791 to the vote itself or such business as the presiding officer may deem appropriate.

793 Rule 16. Elections

794 For any election requiring balloting by the plenary, an election shall occur when the 795 number of ballots cast for a nominee meets or exceeds the required percentage 796 of the total valid ballots cast.

797 A ballot is valid if it meets the following standards:

798 (1) It is cast by a voting delegate or properly seated reserve delegate.

799 (2) It contains votes for the same number of nominees, as there are vacancies to be filled.

800 (3) Every name receiving a vote has been properly nominated according to the provisions.

801 (4) No more than one vote is cast for the same nominee.

802 (5) No vote is cast for a person who has already been elected.

803

804 Rule 17. Division of Question

805 Before a vote is taken, any delegate shall have the right to call for a division of 806 any question, if it is subject to such division as the delegate indicates. If no delegate
807 objects, the division shall be made; but if there is objection, the presiding officer

808 shall put the question of division to vote, not waiting for a second.

810 IV. Behavior of Guests and Observers

811 Rule 18. Distracting Behavior

812 A spirit of Christian conferencing is expected. Guests and observers are not to distract

813 others. Audible cell-phone use is not permitted in the plenary hall or the legislative committee

814 rooms. All electronic devices shall be muted or turned off. In addition, the use of electronic 815 devices should be in a manner that does not disturb other participants. Respect should be 816 shown in the use of social media at all times. Verbal and non-verbal distractions are prohibited.

817 The presiding officer or members of the General Conference staff may ask individuals

818 to leave the plenary hall or the legislative committee room if they persist in behavior that 819 interferes with the participation of delegates. Guests and observers are not to enter the 820 bar of the conference except as provided in Rule 11.

822 Rule 19. Electronic Recording

823 No electronic recording by either video or audio may be made of any portion of the

824 General Conference unless specifically authorized by the Business Manager of the 825 General Conference in order to maintain the integrity of all performance licenses.

828 IV. Business Procedure

829

830 Rule ~~18~~20. Motion for Adoption of Legislative and Administrative Committee Reports

831 Whenever a report of a legislative committee or an administrative committee is presented to the

832 Conference for action, it shall be deemed in proper order for consideration by the Conference 833 without the formality of a second.

835 Rule 219. Required Forms for Reports, Resolutions, Motions, Amendments

836 All resolutions and committee reports shall be prepared in accordance with instructions
837 from the Secretary of the General Conference; and all motions, including amendments, 838 shall be presented in writing (See Rules ~~313~~.2, ~~324~~.3, ~~346~~.2, ~~368~~).

840 Rule 220. Alterations of Motions

841 When a motion is made and seconded, a resolution is introduced and seconded, 842 or a committee report is read or published in the Daily Christian Advocate, it shall be 843 deemed to be in the possession of the Conference and may not be altered except 844 by action of the Conference (See Rule ~~379~~).

846 Rule 237. Non-Debatable Motions

847 The following motions shall be acted upon without debate:

848 (1) To adjourn, when unqualified, except for final adjournment.

849 (2) To suspend the rules.

850 (3) To lay on the table.

851 No motion, which adheres to another motion or has another motion adhering to it, 852 can be laid on the table by itself. Such motions, if laid on the table, carry with them 853 the motions to which they adhere or which adhere to them.

854 (4) To take from the table.

855 (5) To call for the previous questions, when in order (See Rules 7 and ~~224~~).

856 (6) To reconsider a non-debatable motion (See Rule ~~302~~).

857 (7) To limit or extend the limits of debate.

858 (8) To take time for prayerful discernment at the immediate moment.

860 Rule 242. Rights of the Main Question

861 The main question may be opened to debate under the following motions: to adopt, to refer, to 862 substitute, to postpone, or to reconsider. No new motion, resolution, or subject shall be 863 entertained until the one under consideration shall have been disposed of except as provided in 864 Rule 15.4. This rule does not apply to secondary motions if otherwise allowable.

866 Rule 253. Precedence of Secondary Motions

867 If any one or more of the following motions shall be made when one or more other motions are 868 pending, the order of their precedence in relation to one another shall be the same as the order of 869 their listing below:

- 870 (1) To fix the time the conference shall adjourn (This motion is subject to amendment, or it may 871 be laid on the table.);
- 872 (2) To adjourn;
- 873 (3) To take a recess;
- 874 (4) To lay on the table;
- 875 (5) To order the previous question (See Rules ~~243.5~~, ~~268~~);
- 876 (6) To limit or extend the limits of debate;
- 877 (7) To postpone to a given time;
- 878 (8) To refer;
- 879 (9) To amend or to amend by substitution (one amendment being allowed to an amendment);
- 880 (10) To postpone indefinitely.

882 Rule ~~24~~26. Motion to Adjourn

883 The motion to adjourn, when unqualified, shall be taken without debate and shall always be in 884 order, except:

- 885 (1) When a delegate has the floor;

- 886 (2) When a question is actually put or a vote is being taken and before it is finally decided;
887 (3) When the previous question has been ordered and action is pending;
888 (4) When a motion to adjourn has been lost and no business or debate has intervened;
889 (5) When the motion to fix the time to which the Conference shall adjourn is pending.

890 This rule does not apply to a motion for final adjournment of the Conference.

892 Rule 275. Final Adjournment

893 At final adjournment all unfinished business shall remain unfinished.

895 Rule 286. Procedure for Amending by Substitution

- 896 (1) When a resolution or committee report is properly before the Conference 897 for consideration and action, even if amendments are pending, a substitute may 898 be offered by any delegate moving that the same be substituted for the report, 899 resolution, or amendment under consideration. The substitute shall be an alternative to 900 what is before the body and not simply a negation of the main motion.
- 901 (2) Debate on the motion to substitute will be limited to the question of substitution only.
902 No amendments to the main motion or the substitute will be considered during 903 this period of initial consideration.
- 904 (3) Following the debate on the motion to substitute, a vote on substitution will occur.
905 If the motion to substitute prevails by majority vote, the substitute motion 906 becomes the main motion. If the motion to substitute fails to receive a majority vote, the original 907 main motion remains on the floor for consideration. Debate including the offering of 908 amendments moves forward on the main motion as per the rules of procedure.
- 909 (4) The motion for the previous questions shall not be in order on the motion to substitute until 910 opportunity has been given for at least two speakers on each side of the question.

912 Rule 297. Minority Report

913 A minority report may be attached to a report from a legislative committee in 914 the following manner:

915 (1) Delegates intending to offer a minority report must notify the chair of the committee within 916 two hours (excluding breaks) of final committee action on the relative petition.

917 (2) The chair of the legislative committee shall receive the minority report signed by 10 persons 918 or 10% of the legislative committee membership (whichever is less) who voted against the 919 proposal, whose names shall be attached to the request. A reserve delegate may sign the 920 minority report only while seated as a voting delegate in the legislative committee or if seated 921 at the time the committee acted upon the relevant petition. The committee and minority reports 922 shall be submitted and presented together in the Daily Christian Advocate.

923 (3) A minority report shall be presented as a substitute for the report of the committee, 924 in conformity with Rule 268 and Rule 346 respectively, and it shall be managed 925 in the plenary according to Rule 268 for substitute motions. The signers of the minority 926 report shall select one of their signers to present the report as a substitute motion. In 927 closing debate on the motion to substitute, the delegate presenting the minority report 928 shall speak first and the presenter of the committee report shall be last.

929 (4) If the motion to substitute the minority report for the majority report prevails by majority 930 vote of the plenary, the minority report becomes the main motion. If the motion to substitute
931 fails to prevail by a majority vote of the plenary, the majority report of the committee 932 remains on the floor as the main motion for consideration. Debate including the offering of 933 amendments moves forward on the main motion as per the rules of procedure.

935 Rule 28 30. Unlawful Motion After Speech

936 After making a speech on a pending question, a delegate may not make a motion that 937 would limit or stop debate without first relinquishing the floor.

939 Rule ~~29~~ 31. Exceptions to Majority Vote

940 A majority of those voting, a quorum being present (Book of Discipline ¶ 506), 941 shall decide all questions, with the following exceptions:

942 (1) A one-fifth vote of the Conference shall be required to request a Judicial Council 943 decision (Book of Discipline ¶¶ 56.1, 2609.1).

944 (2) A one-fifth vote of the Conference shall refer a matter to the Committee on Ethics.

945 (3) A non-delegate may be invited to a full legislative committee or sub-committee

946 either by invitation of the chair or by one-third (1/3) vote of either body to speak 947 for no more than three (3) minutes on any one matter.

948 ~~(34)~~ One-third of those present and voting shall suffice to sustain a call for a recorded vote

949 in case the decision of the presiding officer is challenged (See Rule 15.2).

950 ~~(45)~~ A tie vote sustains the presiding officer (Rule 3.1).

951 ~~(56)~~ A two-thirds vote shall be required to sustain a motion to suspend (Rule ~~39~~41)

952 or amend (Rule ~~40~~2) the rules; to set aside a special order (Rule ~~3+3~~3.1); to consider

953 a special order before the time set therefore; to sustain the request of the Committee

954 on Courtesies and Privileges for the presentation of any person after the sixth day of 955 the General Conference (See Section VII.A.3).

956 ~~(67)~~ A two-thirds vote shall be required to sustain a call for the previous question.

957 ~~(78)~~ A two-thirds vote shall be required to approve a proposal for a constitutional 958 amendment (Book of Discipline ¶¶ 59-61).

960 Rule 32~~0~~. Reconsideration

961 A motion to reconsider an action of the body shall be in order at any time if offered by 962 a delegate who voted with the prevailing side. If the motion proposed for reconsideration was 963 non-debatable, the motion to reconsider shall be non-debatable (See Rule ~~2+3~~3).

966

(1) The Secretary of the General Conference shall keep the Calendar which includes the orders of the day and the reports of committees (See Rule 379). Business placed on the calendar shall be considered in the order recommended by the Committee on Agenda and Calendar, unless by two-thirds vote of the Conference, an item is taken up out of order (See Rule ~~29.531.6~~).

967

970

(2) Whenever possible, a legislative committee shall recommend for adoption only one calendar item for each paragraph or sub-paragraph in the Book of Discipline. All other related petitions shall be combined for rejection or referral.

971

973

(3) Action from a legislative committee shall be placed on the Consent Calendar if:

974

(a) No more than ten votes were cast against the prevailing position in the committee;

975

(b) The item has been previously published in the Daily Christian Advocate;

976

(c) The item has been in the hands of delegates for at least 24 hours;

977

(d) The item is neither a constitutional amendment nor one having financial implications; and

978

(e) No minority report is attached (See Rule 279).

979

(4) The Daily Christian Advocate shall clearly identify the Consent Calendar, which will list items in three sections sub-headed as follows:

980

(a) Disciplinary Items Recommended for Adoption.

982

(b) Non-Disciplinary Items Recommended for Adoption.

983

(c) Items Recommended for Referral.

984

985

987

(6) If an error in assignment of a Consent Calendar item is discovered and reported by the

988 legislative chair to the Coordinator of the Calendar, the Coordinator of the Calendar shall have the authority to report the error to the plenary session for reconsideration.

- 990 (7) Any 20 delegates may have a Consent Calendar item removed by having such 991 a request on file with the Secretary of the General Conference by 3:00 p.m. of the day 992 the calendar item first appears in the Daily Christian Advocate. Reserve delegates may sign 993 requests to remove item from the Consent Calendar only while seated as voting delegates.
994 Such items shall be called up in the regular order of business.
- 995 (8) Items lifted from the Consent Calendar may not be returned to the Consent Calendar.

997 Rule 342. Report of Non-Calendar Items

- 998 (1) In addition to calendar items to be presented to the plenary, each legislative 999 committee shall report all items not presented in the following categories:
- 1000 (a) Petitions not acted upon because another petition dealing with the same subject 1001 was acted upon.
- 1002 (b) Petitions not supported by the legislative committee. The committee shall report 1003 the vote of the committee.
- 1004 (c) Petitions assigned to but not considered by the legislative committee.
- 1005 (2) These reports shall be printed in the Daily Christian Advocate.
- 1006 (3) Any 20 delegates may have an item in (1)(b) or (1)(c) above presented to the plenary by 1007 having such a request on file with the Secretary of the General Conference by 3:00 p.m.
1008 of the day the item first appears in the Daily Christian Advocate. Reserve delegates 1009 may sign requests to present an item in (1)(b) or (1)(c) above only while seated as 1010 voting delegates. Such items shall be called up in the regular order of business while the 1011 chair of the relevant committee is on the platform. Those supporting consideration of said 1012 items shall select one of their number to present the item to the plenary.

1014 Rule 353. Rules of Order of Legislative Committees

1015 The rules of order of the General Conference, except for Rule 7, shall be observed 1016 in meetings of standing legislative committees insofar as they apply.

1018 Rule 364. Duties and Prerogatives of Legislative Committees

1019 (1) Following orientation of officers, committee leadership, utilizing the resources of 1020 its petitions coordinator, shall evaluate the petitions assigned to the committee,

1021 establish priorities, and outline the committee's work on the basis of those priorities unless 1022 it is given special instructions by the General Conference (See Section VII.A.(7)(a)).

1023 (2) A legislative sub-committee chair shall ensure that all votes taken within a

1024 sub-committee are recorded and reported to the legislative committee plenary 1025 on the forms provided by the Secretary of the General Conference.

1026 (3) When a petition or resolution or any similar item is referred to one of the 1027 legislative committees, it shall be understood that the whole question with 1028 which the item has to do is referred to that committee for such action as it may

1029 deem wise. Every matter supported by the legislative committee shall be reported

1030 to the plenary with a motion to adopt or a motion to refer to a board, council, 1031 commission, or committee either for action or for report to the next General Conference.

1032 (4) Committees shall report to the Conference upon all matters referred to them by the 1033 Conference, directly or through the Committee on Reference. Committee reports on resolutions, 1034 petitions, etc., shall cite the same, identifying them by numbers they bear respectively in the 1035 published reports of the Committee on Reference or in some other suitable manner.

1036 (5) When a committee ascertains that another committee is, or in its judgment should be,

1037 considering a subject that the former is considering, it shall report the matter to 1038 the Committee on Reference for such adjustment as the situation may require.

1039 (6) The chairperson of each legislative committee shall coordinate the report of 1040 the committee to the plenary.

1041 (7) When the chairperson of a committee is not in agreement with a report adopted

1042 by the committee, it shall be the chairperson's duty to state the fact to the committee. The 1043 committee shall elect one of its members for the presentation and discussion of the report in the 1044 plenary. If, in such a case, the committee shall fail to select a representative, the chairperson 1045 shall designate a member to represent the committee, and said representative shall have 1046 all the rights and privileges of the chairperson in relation to such a report.

1048 Rule 375. Unfinished Business in Legislative Committee

1049 Any legislation not acted upon by the legislative committee at the time of the 1050 Saturday evening adjournment of the first week of General Conference shall remain 1051 unfinished (See Rule 1.6 & See Section VII.7-FG-3(d)).

1053 Rule 386. Legislative Committee Report to the Daily Christian Advocate

1054 (1) As quickly as material can be prepared, each secretary of a legislative committee shall 1055 present each of the committee's reports to a recorder assigned to the committee.

1056 The recorder will prepare the report and the report will be approved and signed by 1057 the chair, vice-chair and secretary. After the report has been approved, it will be 1058 electronically transmitted to the Coordinator of the Calendar. A calendar number 1059 will be assigned and it will be published as approved.

1060 (2) Committee and minority reports that propose changes in the Book of Discipline shall give 1061 the paragraph number to be affected and shall be prepared in the following manner: Existing 1062 words used as reference points shall be in quotation marks; words to be deleted shall be 1063 in strike through; words to be added shall be bolded. In the publication of these reports, 1064 the Daily Christian Advocate will use the same convention (See Rule 3840).

1066 Rule 397. Published Reports in Possession of Conference

1067 Reports submitted by the committee according to the deadline, as announced by the Secretary

1068 of the General Conference, shall appear in the next day's Daily Christian Advocate. The 1069 report as published in the Daily Christian Advocate is the official copy, subject only to grammatical 1070 or other obvious editorial changes and shall be regarded as in the possession of the Conference.
1071 On the day following its first appearance in the Daily Christian Advocate or any time 1072 thereafter, a report is in order for consideration at the pleasure of the conference. The same 1073 rule shall apply to a minority report from any committee (See Rules ~~202~~, ~~279~~).

1075 Rule ~~4038~~. Preparation and Publishing of Reports

- 1076 (1) All committee reports shall be prepared using the approved General Conference Legislative 1077 System.
- 1078 (2) The report to the Coordinator of the Calendar for items voted in committee shall include the 1079 name of the committee, its total membership, the number present at the time the item was 1080 adopted, and the number voting for and against the item.
- 1081 (3) Reports of the legislative committees shall be published in the Daily Christian Advocate at 1082 least one day before being presented for consideration by the Conference. Committee reports 1083 with minority reports shall be published in sequence, and so numbered.
- 1084 (4) Every effort should be made by the secretary of the legislative committee to report 1085 consecutively all petitions that address the same issue.

1087 VI. Suspending, Amending, and Supplementing

1088

1089 Rule ~~4139~~. Suspension of the Rules

1090 The operation of any of the provisions of the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order may be 1091 suspended at any time by a two-thirds vote of the Conference (See Rule ~~29-531.6~~).

1093 Rule 42~~θ~~. Amending Rules

1094 The Plan of Organization and Rules of Order may be amended or changed by a two-thirds 1095 vote of the Conference; provided the proposed change or amendment has originated in 1096 the Committee on Plan of Organization and Rules of Order or has been presented to 1097 the Conference in writing and referred to this committee, which committee shall report 1098 thereon not later than the following day (See Rule ~~29-531.6~~).

1100 The Plan of Organization and Rules of Order as adopted at the opening session shall be 1101 published in the next Daily Christian Advocate.

1103 Rule 43~~f~~. Robert's Rules of Order, Supplemental Authority

1104 In any parliamentary situation not covered by the Plan of Organization and Rules
1105 of Order, the General Conference shall be governed in its action by the current edition 1106 of Robert's Rules of Order.

1108 Rule 44. Group Discernment Process

1109 The Commission on General Conference may identify a particular subject to be addressed 1110 through a group discernment process leading to a plenary decision. In such case, the 1111 Commission will make a recommendation to the Plenary and a simple majority would be 1112 necessary for this alternative process to be utilized on the chosen subject.

1113 (1) All petitions identified as a group—The Petitions Secretary shall identify all petitions 1114 relating to the identified subject. These petitions will not be processed by the Legislative 1115 Committees, but will be addressed through this group process. These petitions shall be 1116 presented to the Secretary of the General Conference and the Committee on Reference 1117 for confirmation.

1118 (2) Assignment of delegates to Small Groups—The Secretary of the General

1119 Conference and Business Manager will assign all delegates to small groups of 1120 no more than 15 members. Attention shall be given to geographic, language, ethnic, 1121 gender, age, and clergy/laity diversity.

1122 (3) Choice and Training of Small Group Leaders and Scribes—Each delegation, 1123 in the Fall preceding General Conference, may nominate no more than three 1124 delegates to serve as small group leaders. The nominations will be gathered by the 1125 Executive Committee of the Commission on the General Conference who will 1126 select and appoint leaders from this pool. Scribes will be selected at the first 1127 meeting of each small group from within its membership.

1128 (4) Process of discernment and discussion—The small group leader will engage 1129 the group in conversation addressing the chosen petitions in light of the values
1130 of the centrality of mission, unity for the sake of mission, and our identity as Christians 1131 and United Methodists. Small groups are asked to make recommendations to the 1132 Facilitation Group as to how the petitions should be processed. These recommendations 1133 are recorded on the Small Group Reporting Sheet and all members are given the 1134 opportunity to review the sheet and sign it.

1135 (5) Monitors—During this group process, monitors from the Commission on the Status and 1136 Role of Women (COSROW), General Commission on Religion and Race (GCRR), and 1137 JustPeace are empowered to observe the process and signal the group leader if they observe 1138 harmful behavior as determined according to the Guidelines for Conversation.

1139 (6) Selection and Training of Facilitation Group and Leader—One male and 1140 one female from each central conference and US jurisdiction will be nominated by 1141 the Leadership Discernment Committee of the Council of Bishops. This pool of twenty-four 1142 names of elected delegates will be given to the Executive Committee of the Commission 1143 on the General Conference who will then create a slate of six (6) who are presented for 1144 election by the General Conference. Members of the General Conference may nominate 1145 additional persons from the original pool of twenty-four delegates. The slate of six and the 1146 additional eighteen (18) names are to be printed in the first edition of the DCA.

1147 This election of six persons shall be by plurality. The Secretary of the General 1148 Conference will serve as an ex-officio member of this group. The Secretary of the 1149 General Conference will convene this group and lead the election of Facilitation Group 1150 Leader from within the membership. This group is selected for a particular skill set, 1151 including the capacity to discern trends in the response sheets, writing, and knowledge of 1152 legislative process and language. Impartiality is important for membership in this group.
1153 (7) Reporting from Facilitation Group—The Facilitation Group, compiling 1154 information from the small group reporting sheets, will craft a comprehensive petition or 1155 group of petitions which will be assigned a new petition number(s) and printed in the DCA
1156 for processing by the plenary at a time at least 24 hours later. The chair of the Facilitation
1157 Group will present the new petition(s) and group report to the plenary at a time
1158 determined by the Committee on Agenda and Calendar.
1159 (8) Plenary Discussion and Decision—The presiding bishop shall lead the discussion on the 1160 petition(s) utilizing the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order of the General Conference.

Guidelines for Conversation

Introduction

Don't let any foul words come out of your mouth. Only say what is helpful when it is needed for building up the community.

Ephesians 4:29a (CEB)

There is great power in our words. Our words and gestures have the power to create, empower, shape, and guide. They also have the power to suppress, diminish, destroy, and mislead.

It is no wonder that the Bible dedicates considerable attention to how persons of faith are to communicate. James, in his epistle, dedicates a full chapter to this concern. Other biblical verses focus on teaching about appropriate ways to communicate.

Your speech should always be gracious and sprinkled with insight so that you may know how to respond to every person.—Colossians 4:6 (CEB)

Those who answer before they listen are foolish and disgraceful.

—Proverbs 18:13 (CEB)

If those who claim devotion to God don't control what they say, they mislead themselves. Their devotion is worthless.—James 1:26 (CEB)

I tell you that people will have to answer on Judgment Day for every useless word they speak. By your words you will be either judged innocent or condemned as guilty.—Matthew 12:36-37 (CEB)

What we say, and the way we say it, matters. Even more, it is crucial to God's ultimate purpose for the church. In the words of the apostle Paul,

. . . we aren't supposed to be infants any longer who can be tossed and blown around by every wind that comes from teaching with deceitful scheming and the tricks people play to deliberately mislead others. Instead, by speaking the truth with love, let's grow in every way into Christ, who is the head.

—Ephesians 4:14-16 (CEB)

Speaking the truth with love is the heart of Christian conferencing in the Wesleyan tradition. According to Paul, it is also one of the principal ways we grow to be like Christ.

As we commit to speaking the truth with love through words and actions throughout the 2016 General Conference of The United Methodist Church, the following three questions may help us as a regular communications checkup in the days ahead. As we speak, are our words . . .

Shared in a spirit of love?

“‘Love is the fulfilling of the law, the end of the commandment.’ It is not only ‘the first and great’ command, but all the commandments in one.”

—John Wesley, A Plain Account Of Christian Perfection

Love is the measure of all things and thus the beginning and the end of our journey.

If at any time the true intention of our heart is unclear, reading 1 Corinthians 13 can provide us guidance. Reaching out to a friend or a spiritual mentor for prayerful conversation can also be a great help.

Genuinely true?

Each of you must tell the truth to your neighbor because we are parts of each other in the same body.

Ephesians 4:25 (CEB)

Speaking what is genuinely true in a particular moment is not only a matter of personal honesty, but a crucial spiritual discipline as well. Partial “truths” can distort the truth and cause brokenness in the body of Christ.

Speaking truth often requires being willing to be vulnerable. Though truth telling isn't always easy, if it is done in love and with transparency, it can build trust.

Tension and discomfort may be part of this process. However, violence, hurt, and abuse should never be a part of Christian conferencing.

Helping to build up the body of Christ?

As for whoever causes these little ones who believe in me to trip and fall into sin, it would be better for them to have a huge stone hung around their necks and be drowned in the bottom of the lake.

—Matthew 18:6 (CEB)

“Do No Harm, Do Good, Stay in Love with God.”—John Wesley's Three Simple Rules, paraphrased by Bishop Reuben Job.

Our words have the power to build up or tear down the body of Christ.

We are accountable not only for what we say, but how we treat each other in the conversation. While those in leadership have a primary responsibility for setting the tone of the body’s conversations, Christ holds each one of us accountable for how we treat each other.

General Conference is a time when deeply held understandings about faith and the nature and mission of the Church are shared within a legislative context. The political nature of a legislative process can pit us against one another and even interfere with our ability to hear God’s voice among us.

The Guidelines that follow are intended to serve as an aid to our efforts to discern the will of God as we make decisions for the life and sacred work of The United Methodist Church. May the psalmist’s prayer guide our way:

*Let the words of my mouth and the meditations of my heart be pleasing to you,
LORD, my rock and my redeemer.*
—Psalm 19:14 (CEB)

GUIDELINES

- 1. Always strive to be respectful in your language.
- 2. Listen respectfully. Do not interrupt. Be aware of your non-verbal responses.
- 3. Avoid stereotyping others or speaking in generalities.
- 4. Respect the integrity of those whose understandings or opinions may differ from your own.
- 5. Be fully engaged, open, and gracious. Avoid language that demeans others who hold views different from your own.
- 6. If the person you are in conversation with expresses being hurt by the conversation, take time to acknowledge this pain in appropriate ways. Avoid minimizing someone else’s pain. Don’t offer superficial solutions or compare the other’s pain to your own pain.
- 7. If you hurt someone either intentionally or unintentionally, apologize clearly and without qualification. If you are offered an apology, accept it as a first step toward reconciliation and allow the conversation to move on.
- 8. Be aware of how different levels of power held by individuals impact the dynamics of the conversation. Don’t use any power you may have over another person to pressure that person to agree with you.
- 9. Trust that God is present and at work in your conversation.

1. Always strive to be respectful in your language.

God created humanity in God’s own image, in the divine image God created them, male and female God created them.
—Genesis 1:27 (CEB)

*Love each other like the members of your family.
Be the best at showing honor to each other.*
—Romans 12:10 (CEB)

The image of God is present in every human being and should accordingly compel us to treat all with honor and respect whether those persons are present or not. The names we use to refer to one another carry with them powerful and not always obvious meanings. These meanings are subject to change and depend on the particular context in which they are used. When speaking about groups of people, use the terms preferred by that group. When in doubt, ask.

Likewise, even while we should clearly speak the truth as we understand it, to do so in love means that we will refrain from using disparaging, belittling, denigrating, or maligning comments or by minimizing the humanity of others by reducing them to a category or an “issue.”

Becoming aware of the ways our language can diminish or even negate the humanity of others is a life-long journey. Fortunately, every misstep we make and correct as soon as we are able to do so has the possibility of bringing us closer to one another.

Examples:

In a meeting with colleagues, one of them would never use my name but kept calling me “honey” or “sweetie,” while he called males in the meeting by their names or titles. I felt disempowered, diminished, and patronized. I could not wait to get out of the meeting.

Membership in Native tribes is very different from place to place. Often there are persons who identify as Native Americans and they may not have any experience with their tribes, but they often still speak for Native persons who have much more involvement with their tribes. That creates challenges as well.

2. Listen respectfully. Do not interrupt. Be aware of your non-verbal responses.

Therefore, you should treat people in the same way that you want people to treat you; this is the Law and the Prophets.—Matthew 7:12 (CEB)

*You'll receive the same judgment you give. Whatever you deal out will be dealt out to you.
—Matthew 7:2 (CEB)*

Gracious listening as the first step of love's journey is crucial to communication. Gracious listening requires focusing on the person who is speaking. It demands patience.

Communication—speaking and listening—is always contextual. The home contexts of the speaker and listener, as well as the context of General Conference, all shape our communication. Like the nations at Pentecost, we must be prepared for miracles of both listening and speaking across contexts and cultures.

Refrain from formulating your response while listening to others. Physical gestures or body language should be signals of openness and respect.

Full and equal participation of all delegates to General Conference requires that we work in multiple languages both in writing and speaking. This process of translation and interpretation fosters patience and provides the opportunity to discern the movement of the Spirit across cultures.

Examples:

Often when I speak in meetings I have the feeling that some are saying: "Here she goes again." Some even roll their eyes. It's like I've been dismissed even before I started.

I stopped going to meetings in a Committee of my Annual Conference because every time I spoke one of the clergy would respond with something that implied that as a young person I did not know what I was talking about.

At first, I didn't understand why my colleague would never engage in group discussions. It wasn't until she told me that it just takes her longer to process what's been said and how she could contribute. I had to learn to be intentional about stepping back and allowing her time and space so that I didn't monopolize conversation and her voice could be heard.

3. Avoid stereotyping others or speaking in generalities.

*But now, says the Lord—
the one who created you, Jacob,
the one who formed you, Israel:
Don't fear, for I have redeemed you;
I have called you by name; you are mine.
—Isaiah 43:1 (CEB)*

Aren't five sparrows sold for two small coins? Yet not one of them is overlooked by God. Even the hairs on your head are all counted. Don't be afraid. You are worth more than many sparrows.—Luke 12:6-7 (CEB)

God sees and treats every creature with special and distinctive love. We are called to do the same. We are called to be aware of cultural differences while avoiding assumptions, stereotypes, or judgments. Do not presume that you know what a person is going to say. As much as possible, avoid using generalized statements. Instead, speak clearly from your own experience

Examples:

At the last General Conference a delegate from a neighboring country in Africa spoke in the Plenary claiming that he was speaking for all Africans. I let him know during the break that he did not speak for me, but the damage was done—many in the room now believed that I agreed with him.

Often when we speak about HIV-AIDS there is an unspoken assumption that people who have HIV-AIDS are sexually promiscuous. As a woman who became HIV positive in what I thought was a monogamous marriage, this pains me to no end.

Whenever people hear my southern accent (Texas, USA), I can feel all kinds of stereotypes bubbling up. They may not be spoken aloud, but I know they are present by the different way I am treated after I speak.

4. Respect the integrity of those whose understandings or opinions may differ from your own.

If I have the gift of prophecy and I know all the mysteries and everything else, and if I have such complete faith that I can move mountains but I don't have love, I'm nothing.—1 Corinthians 13:2 (CEB)

Don't be conformed to the patterns of this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your minds so that you can figure out what God's will is—what is good and pleasing and mature.—Romans 12:2 (CEB)

Brothers and sisters, I myself don't think I've reached it, but I do this one thing: I forget about the things behind me and reach out for the things ahead of me. The goal I pursue is the prize of God's upward call in Christ Jesus.—Philippians 3:13-14 (CEB)

The Wesleyan understanding of sanctification reminds us that we are all still on a journey of faith, “going on to perfection,” but not yet fully arrived there.

In conversations with others, be careful to respect the integrity of the views of others with respect to how one reads the scriptural witness and interprets it. Different people, approaching Scripture with a genuine faith, may come to different understandings of a particular biblical text.

The historic Wesleyan Quadrilateral allows that Scripture is to be interpreted through the lens of the church's tradition (or the witness of the body of Christ through the centuries), our own personal experiences (how we have seen God work in our own lives and in the lives of others), and reason (what makes not only sense to us, but is congruent with the entire biblical record and not just a small portion of it). However, Scripture is never to be used as a weapon.

Example:

I was approached and asked about what the Bible says on salvation. When I responded to the person, they said to me, “let me tell you what the Bible really says.” What was the point of asking me if you were going to tell me what you believe is the right answer regardless of my theological grounding?

5. Be fully engaged, open, and gracious. Avoid language that demeans others who hold views different from your own.

Conduct yourselves with all humility, gentleness, and patience. Accept each other with love, and make an effort to preserve the unity of the Spirit with the peace that ties you together.—Ephesians 4:2-3 (CEB)

*What of the wisdom from above? First, it is pure, and then peaceful, gentle, obedient, filled with mercy and good actions, fair, and genuine. Those who make peace sow the seeds of justice by their peaceful acts.
—James 3:17-18 (CEB)*

The goal of Christian conferencing is to enter into a dialogue, not a debate. The goal is not “to win the argument” but to witness to our own understanding of God's truth while openly listening to the understandings of others. Recognize that God may wish to speak to us through unexpected sources.

Christian conferencing requires the full involvement of all voices. Staying in the margins, remaining silent out of fear, or choosing to remain neutral or to falsely agree in order to avoid conflict are not options if we are to genuinely be the body of Christ.

Examples:

The confrontational nature of some of the conversations in my Legislative Committee at the last General Conference left me wounded and discouraged. I even considered leaving this Church I love. Sometimes it feels that instead of a time of searching together for God's will, General Conference is a blood sport where there will always be winners and losers.

I was at a meeting where someone said something that I knew for sure to be untrue. I kept waiting for others to speak up but no one did, and, I am sad to say, neither did I. I felt like a coward. I was a coward, but that moment taught me that I need to speak up.

6. If the person you are in conversation with expresses being hurt by the conversation, take time to acknowledge this pain in appropriate ways. Avoid minimizing someone else's pain. Don't offer superficial solutions or compare the other's pain to your own pain.

Be happy with those who are happy, and cry with those who are crying.—Romans 12:15 (CEB)

If one part suffers, all the parts suffer with it; if one part gets the glory, all the parts celebrate with it. You are the body of Christ and parts of each other.

—1 Corinthians 12:26-27 (CEB)

Compassion is at the heart of the gospel. In Jesus Christ, God entered and shared the whole of human existence, sharing in our joys and pains. In John's Gospel, God's Spirit is named as the Helper, Comforter, and Advocate sent by God in Christ's name to accompany God's people.

Witnessing pain in others can be uncomfortable. Our first instincts may be to try to fix the situation or to ignore it or run away from it. We are called, instead, to be fully present.

Avoid minimizing someone else's pain by providing superficial solutions or comparing it to your own pain or that of others.

Some of the ways we avoid being fully present to the pain of others include:

- Thoughtless sympathy. ("I know exactly how you feel...")
- Offering superficial solutions or quick fixes. ("You just need to pray more...")
- Bringing to the conversation pains experienced by others. ("We are all in pain...")

Examples:

After I shared about the discrimination experienced by black persons like myself in our community, a long, uncomfortable silence was broken by someone saying: "I know how you feel. We are all hurting." The person speaking was white and affluent.

The typical responses when I speak of the pain of being a gay person in The United Methodist Church usually go this way: "You just need to be patient," "Things will change," "We just need more dialogue." Never has anyone asked me: "Tell me more . . ."

7. If you hurt someone either intentionally or unintentionally, apologize clearly and without qualification. If you are offered an apology, accept it as a first step toward reconciliation and allow the conversation to move on.

Therefore, if you bring your gift to the altar and there remember that your brother or sister has something against you, leave your gift at the altar and go. First make things right with your brother or sister and then come back and offer your gift.

—Matthew 5:23-24 (CEB)

Forgive us for the ways we have wronged you, just as we also forgive those who have wronged us.

—Matthew 6:12 (CEB)

Forgiveness is an integral part of the journey of love. It has the healing capacity of deepening our ties and building trust. Offering or accepting an apology should not be confused with the deeper, longer journey of forgiveness and reconciliation but it can serve as an entry point into that blessing.

The art of offering an apology demands humility and the willingness to understand that the journey toward forgiveness may have only begun.

Keep your apology simple by owning your responsibility without assigning the potential responsibility of others. Avoid using qualifiers such as "I apologize if I hurt you in any way . . ." or "but . . . please understand . . ." when you offer an apology.

Accepting an apology as an invitation to the journey of reconciliation can be difficult at times. The nature of the offense and our perception of the apology's sincerity can increase this difficulty. Trusting that the work of reconciliation is the work of God's Spirit, within and beyond our actions, can help us dare the journey toward forgiveness.

Examples:

I was giving a presentation and one of the attendees was asking questions in an accusatory manner. The next day the same person approached me, apologizing for his behavior and affirmed the work I was doing.

Sometimes when I know I was wrong, I still want to explain my side and why I did what I did. I have to remind myself that a sincere apology doesn't come with qualifications.

8. Be aware of how different levels of power held by individuals impact the dynamics of the conversation. Don't use any power you may have over another person to pressure that person to agree with you.

Don't mistreat or oppress an immigrant, because you were once immigrants in the land of Egypt. Don't treat any widow or orphan badly. If you do treat them badly and they cry out to me, you can be sure that I'll hear their cry.—Exodus 22:21-23 (CEB)

So those who are last will be first. And those who are first will be last.—Matthew 20:16 (CEB)

*Then the king will reply to them, "I assure you that when you have done it for one of the least of these brothers and sisters of mine, you have done it for me."
—Matthew 25:40 (CEB)*

In every human interaction different power levels are involved, whether they are recognized or not. Gender and gender identity, age, race, sexual orientation, ethnicity, socioeconomic and citizenship status, education and occupational status, physical and mental abilities, and place within hierarchical structures are some of the factors at work in every conversation, placing individuals at unequal levels of power.

The different levels of power impact the experience of people within the same conversation. What for some may be experienced as a simple dialogue may be experienced by others as a painful ordeal.

The values of the gospel of Jesus Christ call us to live counterculturally, in a manner where the first are called to be last and the greatest honor is given to those whom others consider to be "the least" among us.

As you interact, consider the power differentials at work and make certain that the voices and experiences of those who are at the margins are being heard and honored. Take special care to think about your own position of power. If you hold power, acknowledge and share it. If you feel disempowered, speak up and claim the power that is yours in God's upside-down kingdom.

Examples:

I have been in situations when persons will say,

"I have been to the last four General Conferences and I have much experience with this." This indicates that this person believes she or he knows much more than new persons and persons are often willing to let him or her lead the discussion.

Although I speak six other languages fluently, communicating in English takes a lot of effort. Still, I try my best; but often I feel like others are desperate for me to finish while I am still struggling to find the right words.

9. Trust that God is at work in the conversation.

*Trust in the LORD with all your heart;
don't rely on your own intelligence.
—Proverbs 3:5 (CEB)*

*He answered me:
"This is the LORD's word to Zerubbabel:
Neither by power, nor by strength, but by my spirit, says the LORD of heavenly forces."—Zechariah 4:6 (CEB)*

The work of General Conference is holy work. It is about aligning ourselves with what God is doing and intends to do.

Staying focused on this principle helps us live out our calling as delegates from a place of freedom, hope, and trust. It also keeps us from trying to control outcomes with sinful behaviors such as manipulation of the process, intimidation, badgering, or misinforming. Instead, the fruit of God's Spirit becomes the bountiful harvest of our work.

But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, and self-control. There is no law against things like this.—Galatians 5:22-23 (CEB)

Legislative Process

Petitions are sent by agencies, conferences, churches, and individuals.

The Petitions Secretary assigns petition numbers. The numbers indicate the legislative committee, the chronological order, if it affects the Constitution, if there are any financial implications, if there is global significance, and whether the petition applies to The Book of Discipline, The Book of Resolutions, or other.

The Committee on Reference reviews the assignments by the Petitions Secretary. It has authority to combine petitions and make new assignments to legislative committees as deemed necessary.

Requested changes in The Book of Discipline and The Book of Resolutions and other petitions are printed in the ADCA.

Legislative committees act upon petitions and make recommendations to plenary session.

Recommendations are reported as approved by legislative committee officers to the Coordinator of the Calendar, assigned a calendar number, and printed in the DCA.

Plenary (the whole assembly) session acts upon calendar items.

The actions are used to update The Book of Discipline or The Book of Resolutions. The DCA becomes the official journal of the General Conference.

Abbreviations and Codes

Petition Packets

During General Conference, petition packets, including copies of each multiple submission, will be issued to the Committee on Reference and the legislative committees to which they are assigned. Any delegate desiring to see a petition packet may contact the petitions secretary.

Petition Text

Proposed deletions to existing material are indicated by ~~strike through~~.
 Proposed additions to existing material are indicated by single underline.

Each petition is numbered using the following code:

Petition Coding:

- First series of numbers Chronological listing of petitions (begins with 60001)
- First two letters Legislative committee
- Petition Number Positions 1-5
- Separator 1 Position 6 Value “-”
- Legislative Committee Code Positions 7-8
- Separator 2 Position 9 Value “-”
- The type of petition determines the next several positions.*
- Discipline* paragraph number with Paragraph Symbol ¶XXXX.XXXX
 Petitions with an even one hundred number (200, 400, 1200, etc.) indicate that the petition requests a new paragraph.
- Or resolution number RXXXX R9999 indicates that a petition requests a new resolution.
- Or the word, “NonDis” for a petition that does not deal with Discipline paragraphs or resolutions
- Separator 3 Next Available Position Value “-”
- The type of petition determines the next position.*
- “C” if a petition impacts the Constitution, all other petition types are not signified in the Petition Identification Code.
The financial indicator code occupies the next available position.
- Blank if petition does not impact budget.
- Or “$” if petition has Financial Implications for an existing budget line item.
- Or “!” if petition has Financial Implications for a new budget line item.
- The global indicator code occupies the next available position.*
- Blank if petition does not impact the global church.
- Or “G” if petition impacts the global church.

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Volume 2

Nashville, Tennessee

Report of the General Board of Church and Society 2013-2016

“Living Faith, Seeking Justice”

Executive Summary

The General Board of Church and Society (GBCS) is one of four international general program boards of The United Methodist Church. GBCS works to facilitate and resource conversations and actions so that United Methodists might faithfully live out the social teachings of the denomination to make disciples of Jesus Christ for the transformation of the world. GBCS partners across the United Methodist connection and with ecumenical, interfaith, and community-based coalitions to foster forthright witness and action on social concerns.

The continued growth and mobilization of United Methodists around the globe forges a future of hope. It is a future of creative social change lived out of the convictions of the Social Principles and other social teachings of the denomination. Educating for transformation promotes social holiness, moral witness, and ethical action through the teachings of the Social Principles.

With more than 40 partnerships, United Methodist connections and relationships in the United States, Africa, Europe, Russia, and the Philippines, GBCS is continuing to hear the call to mobilize for forthright witness and action for the transformation of the world. This quadrennium we have proudly stood in solidarity with many United Methodists and other people of faith to promote the dignity of human beings, economic and environmental justice, health and wholeness, and peace and justice.

We have built networks of United Methodist advocates that mobilize on important issues and have seen real change happen through local and global struggles for justice and peace. GBCS has joined United Methodists and other partners at all levels of governance to organize and advocate for a just, peaceful world.

Introduction

The General Board of Church and Society (GBCS) is one of four international general program boards of The United Methodist Church. GBCS works to facilitate and resource conversations and actions so that United Methodists might faithfully live out the social teachings of the denomination to make disciples of Jesus Christ for the transformation of the world. It partners across the United Methodist connection and with ecumenical, interfaith, and community-based coalitions to foster forthright witness and action on social concerns.

The General Conference entrusts to GBCS responsibility to implement the Social Principles and other policy statements on Christian social concerns (§ 1004, Book of

The United Methodist Building on Capitol Hill was designated a United Methodist Historic Site by the Baltimore-Washington Conference in 2015.

Discipline). The implementation of the Social Principles promotes greater understanding of the identity and history of Methodism.

Christ's call of reconciliation requires the Church to commit itself to addressing issues of poverty, violence, injustice, pandemic disease, mass incarceration, climate and economic exploitation, immigration and the particular needs of women, youths, and children around the world. To this end the vision of the General Conference and the mission of the gospel come to fruition.

The election of the Rev. Dr. Susan Henry-Crowe in February 2014 as General Secretary succeeding James E. Winkler, who led the agency for more than a dozen years, marks an important transition for GBCS. Since 2014, she has continued to deepen and strengthen relationships by making 44 visits to annual conferences. In addition, she participated in GBCS-coordinated community listening tours in the Philippines, Mozambique, and regions of the United States such as Texas/Mexico border and Appalachia.

In June 2015, the United Methodist Building in Washington, D.C., was designated a United Methodist Historic Site by the Baltimore-Washington Conference on the recommendation of the denomination's General Commission on Archives and History. Built in 1923, it is the only non-governmental building on Capitol Hill and continues as a vibrant presence for social-justice advocacy. The conference further recommended that General Conference approve designating the building as a Heritage Landmark of The United Methodist Church

Educating for Transformation

GBCS's Education and Leadership Formation ministry (ELF) promotes social holiness, moral witness, and ethical action through the teachings of the Social Principles. ELF accomplishes this through experiential and participatory education custom-designed to meet the specific needs of constituents across the connection. In recent years, for example, this has involved hosting or engaging hundreds of youths and young adults at the Global Young People's Convocation and Legislative Assembly in Tagaytay, Philippines, training Church and Society leaders and young clergy and expanding residential internships to year-round programs that welcome students, clergy on sabbaticals, and faculty researchers.

Per the General Conference charge of 2012, GBCS led eight Social Principles consultations around the world to open discussions on their global relevance and applicability. (See appendix for further information on these consultations.)

A. The United Methodist Seminar Program

With more than 1,800 participants in the first three years of this quadrennium, The United Methodist Seminar Program facilitated in-depth biblically based studies of current social issues. Topics of the seminars are tailored for each group's interests. Experiential learning modules, in-depth discussions, and presentations from nationally recognized advocacy organizations such as Men Can Stop Rape and the National Coalition for the Homeless draw out the links between real lives affected by social policies and the Christian work of justice and peace. As one young person wrote, “Being able to get a better understanding of these issues and seeing both sides has strengthened my commitment with Jesus.”

Youth groups, college ministries, seminary participants, United Methodist Women's groups, and annual conference delegations are recent participants. Participants have said they find United Methodist seminars help build group unity through biblical and theological insights on social justice.

B. Internships

For more than 35 years, GBCS has been committed to developing the next generation of leaders through its internships and Ethnic Young Adult Summer (EYA) program. The EYA program places young people with social-justice agencies throughout Washington, D.C. The program provides young people a unique opportunity to gain valuable professional advocacy experience, increase commitment to principled leadership, and deepen their Christian walk and witness. One of the more than 50 EYA interns this quadrennium wrote of her experience:

“Working with the National Religious Campaign against Torture was an excellent learning experience. I came into the internship with expectations of paper pushing and running for coffee. I got an extended family.”

Through living in intentional community, weekly Bible studies, and their internship placement, the EYA interns are exposed to and trained in diverse settings of advocacy for justice. This enables the connections of faith and justice while simultaneously transforming understanding of social context.

C. $1.5 million grant making for justice and peace

In the past four years, GBCS administered $1.5 million to annual conferences and ecumenical ministries through the Ethnic Local Church, Human Relations Day, and Peace with Justice grants. These assist recipients across the worldwide connection to live out a commitment to social holiness.

Living Our Principles: Organizing and Advocacy

Human well-being, justice, peace, and the integrity of creation have been at the heart of GBCS's advocacy efforts. At the start of this quadrennium, GBCS launched a grassroots-organizing initiative to enhance the agency's support of annual conferences and communities in implementing justice ministries. GBCS provides assistance at the grassroots level to build networks of leaders, conduct organizing trainings, and develop strategies for justice ministries. Through advocacy and organizing working hand in hand, The United Methodist Church lives out its social teachings for the transformation of the world.

Advocacy and organizing affirms the unity of the message of Christ's commitment to the poor, the immigrant, those in prison, those living in violent situations, persons with addictions, and women and children denied the fullness of life. Addressing oppression and pursuing restoration to wholeness of life by eradicating causes of poverty and injustice, and seeking hope and transformation is GBCS's ministry. Accomplishing this requires engaging in witness, partnerships, and forthright action.

In consultation with other work areas of GBCS, the organizing team has led more than 100 trainings throughout the United States, Nigeria, Liberia, Cote d'Ivoire, Zimbabwe, Mozambique, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, and the Philippines.

GBCS also developed leaders to build up local and regional ministries of justice and peace across the connection. Seven grassroots-organizing field consultants—three in the United States (Mississippi, Tennessee, and California) and four in Africa (Nigeria, Mozambique, Zimbabwe, and Democratic Republic of Congo)—conduct trainings and build networks of churches to mobilize on pressing issues in their region.

A church and society organizer working across Africa said:

“All Episcopal Areas in Africa have received and shared the presence of the General Board of Church and Society. More grassroots organizers are being trained, and a number of critical social-justice issues are being identified and discussed, and teams are coming up with some comprehensive plans to address these issues.”

A. Getting to the Heart of Health Care

Building on GBCS's “John 10:10 Challenge,” a grassroots-organizing initiative has begun to build a faithful movement for health-care justice by engaging United Methodists to promote, preserve, and implement affordable health care for all people.

As part of this initiative, 11 teams with seed grants gathered in Washington, D.C., in October 2012 for a training on how to build health-care teams in local communities and annual conferences. With more than 70 participants, the training developed a network of committed United Methodists to promote health and wholeness in their respective areas.

In 2013, eleven organizing teams received seed grants to develop local teams to raise awareness and participation for health and well-being ministries. From creating a Health Care Sabbath in Florida, to speaking with state legislatures in South Carolina, to sponsoring health-care fairs in Texas, local advocacy teams have been promoting the importance of health and wellness throughout this quadrennium.

Our historic commitment to alcohol and addiction prevention and recovery was also a focus for the health-care organizing teams. Raising awareness by engaging young people and youths on these issues has been an important effort. Advocating for addiction education and providing prevention resources are just a couple of the ways these teams are working to build safer, healthier individuals, families, and communities.

In Mississippi, a state with some of the poorest health indicators among its populace in the United States, United Methodists are making a difference through the Greenwood John 10:10 Health Alliance, whose focus for the quadrennium was creation of John Wesley Health Centers across the annual conference. These centers provide a model whereby local churches can promote a healthy lifestyle in their communities. In one location, for example, local community members meet every Tuesday and Thursday for cooking and exercise classes.

The John Wesley Health Center model has spread across the region. Beyond the promotion and creation of the centers, the organizing team and conference leaders are lobbying their state legislators about health-related issues and presenting at Mississippi and national health conferences.

United Methodists are working toward health-care justice in Tennessee. They are conducting faith-based workshops, visiting state legislators, writing op-eds, and getting key church leaders involved to build momentum for expanding health coverage for the state.

B. Abundant Life of Women and Girls

GBCS strives for a world in which the sacred worth of every woman and girl is valued, every pregnancy is a cause for joy and not fear, and every family experiences abundant life.

In Liberia, GBCS organizing and advocacy staff conducted two trainings on domestic violence and sexual violence. Through the lens of Tamar (2 Samuel) and the woman who is accused of adultery (John 8), the training examined violence perpetrated against women, silence that often accompanies the violence, and the role of men as allies.

In 2011, GBCS launched the project Healthy Families, Healthy Planet in partnership with the United Nations Foundation. The program now boasts more than 120 Ambassadors and its annual conference support is growing.

C. Infectious Diseases: Ebola, HIV/AIDS, Malaria

The Ebola crisis in West Africa that has killed more than 10,000 people is a tragedy that mobilized a collaborative response among United Methodists in the region and around the world. GBCS provided resources and called on faith leaders to address the root causes that enabled Ebola to move from a regional to a worldwide crisis. In partnership with our sister agencies, GBCS encouraged United Methodists to support sustainable development, debt relief, and resources for critical health infrastructures and robust funding for global health.

The fight against HIV/AIDS also continued this quadrennium. The interagency initiative United Methodist Global AIDS Fund (UMGAF) raised money by educating on HIV/AIDS. GBCS supported the UMGAF Committee's efforts, and its emphasis on stopping mother-to-child transmission.

For example, GBCS in partnership with UMGAF provided resources to aid in training AIDS Ambassadors in each annual conference. GBCS also assisted in organizing and facilitating the 2015 Lighten the Burden conference. GBCS assisted AIDS Ambassadors to engage other United Methodists in their annual conferences to raise funding for AIDS ministry and to advocate for stronger policy to eradicate HIV.

Imagine No Malaria works to broaden and deepen support among United Methodists to expand the U.S. government's expenditures for the fight against malaria. GBCS works hand in hand with the Imagine No Malaria campaign by adding an advocacy dimension.

In December of 2013, GBCS hosted a "Conference Leaders Days on the Hill" in Washington, D.C., to voice support for U.S. global-health assistance, including robust funding for the fight against malaria. The event included 110 Capitol Hill visits representing 31 states, 55 senate offices, and 55 offices of representatives.

A participant from North Carolina said afterward,

"My grandfather is a UM pastor, my husband is a UM pastor, I've been a United Methodist all my life, and I never have been as proud to be United Methodist as I am today."

D. Economic Justice

The General Board of Church and Society continues to provide leadership for the churchwide focus on "Ministry With the Poor" engaging agencies, conferences, and communities in conversations and actions that re-imagine how our church responds to the realities of poverty in our world. As John Wesley understood,

"One great reason why the rich in general have so little sympathy for the poor is because they so seldom visit them. Hence it is that . . . one part of the world does not know what the other suffers."

So, too, in our day, the Church often is engaged in ministries to and for poor communities rather than with, alongside, and by them. To help shift this narrative and focus, GBCS co-hosted roundtable conversations with the General Board of Global Ministries (GBGM) in Dallas, Texas, and Chicago, Illinois. The roundtable conversations allowed practitioners from across the United States to highlight and connect model ministries that are relational and mutually transformative, rather than simply transactional mercy ministries. Bringing together established and emerging practitioners, these conversations and strategy sessions served as the launching point for a series of trainings to help United Methodists rethink and revitalize their ministries with individuals and communities struggling with poverty.

Grounded in these local realities, in the stories of people affected by broken systems, GBCS continues its ministry of advocacy for policies that embody God's economy of abundance where all God's children have access to the resources to live fully into their potential.

GBCS also worked with two annual conferences, Northern Illinois and West Ohio, to engage local churches including children and youths on issues including restorative justice, community safety, literacy, food security, and immigration, to name a few. Both annual conferences have hired organizers to coordinate local churches as they develop strategies to address these social issues.

In Nigeria, GBCS worked with several leaders in the rural area of Yorgorobi to lead an organizing training that resulted in community members working to advocate for access to education for children through talking with others in the community, raising funds, and speaking with government leaders.

E. Global Climate Justice

In 2014, GBCS, in partnership with the United Methodist Committee on Relief, United Methodist Women, the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry, GBGM, and local partners including the Philippines Central Conference Board of Church and Society, Board of Women's Work, and National United Methodist Youth Fellowship in the Philippines, organized a Summer Climate Institute. Understanding that the Philippines contributes only .3 percent of global carbon emissions but is among the most at-risk countries for climate-related disasters, teams from all three Philippines episcopal areas prayed, studied, and developed action plans to respond.

A young adult participant working to rebuild a community devastated by super-typhoon Haiyan, served as a member of the Church and Society delegation to the United Nations climate negotiations. As a result, he was able to use his voice and experience to inform and shape decisions of the international community.

The Summer Climate Institute generated the idea of a solidarity visit by United Methodists from across the Philippines to explore the intersection of climate, development, and structural violence in Mindanao with a particular focus on its impact on women, children, and indigenous communities.

F. Criminal Justice Reform

Mass incarceration and prison reform are critical areas of GBCS action. Knowing that nearly 2 million families are impacted by mass incarceration in the United States, GBCS has worked diligently this quadrennium to equip and mobilize United Methodists on this issue.

In July 2014, in partnership with the West Ohio Conference and Horizons Ministries, a United Methodist ministry working in several prisons in Ohio, GBCS led a training entitled "All In." Attendees included persons from six annual conferences who were passionate about prison ministry. With multiple consultations and relationship building, the training heard from those affected by mass incarceration. Seventy-five percent of the training was led by incarcerated persons.

More than 50 United Methodist congregations have identified with the national, ecumenical movement "Healing Communities" that utilizes existing resources to meet the needs of returning citizens and their families.

G. Global Migration Justice

Major focus was given to the effects of forced and global migration. The United Nations and International Affairs (UNIA) ministry, based at the Church Center for the United Nations in New York City, collaborated with Churches Witnessing with Migrants (CWWM) in meetings in New York (2013), Stockholm (2014), and Istanbul (2015). UNIA also attended the Consultation on Global Migration in Freundstadt, Germany, organized by GBGM.

Following the 2012 General Conference in Tampa, Florida, where the Interagency Immigration Task Force held a rally urging United Methodist divestment from U.S. private prisons, Immigration and Customs Enforcement decided it would no longer pursue such a facility in Southwest Ranches, Florida.

Currently, 46 local churches declare themselves "Immigrant Welcoming Communities," a four-step process to establish communities of welcome. GBCS works diligently for immigration reform through mobilizing Rapid Response Teams, writing letters, meeting with White House staff, and direct actions of civil disobedience. President Obama's executive order to grant deferred action for as many as five million undocumented immigrants through Immigration Accountability Executive Actions in November 2014 was applauded by GBCS.

Peace with Justice and International Affairs

A. Peace with Justice Program

GBCS's Peace with Justice Program, supported by the Peace Justice Special Sunday offering of The United Methodist Church, promotes peace and justice at home and around the world. Peace with Justice Coordinators, along with the United Nations and International Affairs ministry network of advocates, issued a call for peace with justice that sits at the heart of the gospel message and continues to be fostered and spread like leaven throughout the connection.

B. Peace Building and International Affairs

- Advocated for the release of Nigerian girls kidnapped by Boko Haram, denounced their abduction and captivity, and prayed for their safe return.
- Continued longstanding advocacy for a nuclear-weapons-free world, along with the Council of Bishops.
- Promoted grassroots efforts to achieve lasting peace in Nigeria by conducting a Peacebuilding and Conflict Transformation training in Jalingo attended by 84 young persons between the ages of 14 and 35. These young advocates worked to educate their churches and communities on peaceful election practices. They were proud that despite the violence during previous elections, the most recent had no recorded incidents of post-general election violence in Taraba State.

- Promoted peace in East Congo through cooperating with GBGM in a roundtable discussion in Kindu of United Methodist agencies and other partners. The discussion focused on mission partnership awareness, operation, and productivity. The United Methodist Building also hosted members of a DRC delegation to the U.S.-Africa Leaders Summit. GBCS assisted in gaining delegation meetings at both the State Department and the White House.
- Encouraged United Methodists to support diplomacy and multilateral action at the national (U.S. government) and international levels (U.N., including Human Rights Council) in many areas of conflict, especially with Iran regarding its nuclear program and with the civil conflict in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC).
- Advocated through the United Nations and International Affairs ministry against the increased militarization of the Asia Pacific region and supported a peace agreement between South and North Korea. GBCS hosted a South Korean delegation to encourage the State Department and the White House to negotiate for a peace treaty between North and South Korea. GBCS organized and led a delegation from Mississippi and South Carolina conferences to South Korea in the summer of 2015.

Ecumenical and Interfaith Partnerships

As GBCS continues to engage United Methodists in transformative justice ministries, we also understand the importance of ecumenical and interfaith partnerships. Supporting these collaborative ministries allows us to leverage time and resources for greater impact in the world. Through partnerships with other faith groups, GBCS has been involved in forging interfaith coalitions to advocate for justice for God's people and creation.

Each year, GBCS collaborates with ecumenical partners for the annual four-day Ecumenical Advocacy Days that attracts more than 1,000 Christians to Washington, D.C., to learn from social-justice experts and make lobbying visits on members of Congress.

The National Farm Worker Ministry, Interfaith Worker Justice, and Creation Justice Ministries are all evidence of other successful partnerships. These enable GBCS through ecumenism and interfaith collaboration to accomplish far more justice ministry than by working as United Methodists alone.

GBCS convenes the Interfaith Criminal Justice Coalition (ICJC), which brings together a large and diverse group of faith organizations uniquely positioned in Washington, D.C., to engage in federal advocacy campaigns. ICJC is the only faith-based coalition on Capitol Hill working on criminal-justice reform. It has grown from a handful of organizations in 2006 to more than 40 organizations today, doubling in size during 2014 alone. Successful campaigns include advocating for December 2014 passage of the Deaths in Custody Act that requires law enforcement agencies to record the deaths of any inmates while in their custody.

Real Change

With more than 40 partnerships, United Methodist connections and relationships in the United States, Africa, Europe, Russia, and the Philippines, GBCS is continuing to hear the call to mobilize for forthright witness and action for the transformation of the world. This quadrennium, we have proudly stood in solidarity with many United Methodists and people of faith to promote the dignity of human beings, economic and environmental justice, health and wholeness, and peace and justice.

We have built networks of United Methodist advocates that mobilize on important issues and have seen real change happen through the local and global struggles for justice and peace. GBCS has joined United Methodists and other partners at all levels of governance to organize and advocate for a just, peaceful world including:

- Negotiated at the United Nations for peace and global climate justice in Asia Pacific.
- Conducted meetings with key representatives of the White House for promoting peace in East Congo.
- Stood on the steps of the Tennessee capitol for supporting broader access to health care.
- Journeyed with low-wage workers as they struggled for a living wage and voice on the job.
- Engaged United Methodists in understanding that budgets are moral documents and as such elected officials must prioritize the needs of the most vulnerable and marginalized.
- Stood with persons in the state of Washington to pass universal background checks on all gun purchases by voter referendum in 2014.
- Advocated for Smarter Sentencing reform in federal prisons.
- Advocated for the Deaths in Custody Act that requires law enforcement agencies to record the deaths of any inmates while in their custody.

- Promoted the U.S. government's foreign-assistance budget to promote the sacred worth of women and girls through universal access to family planning and maternal health, funds to fight malaria, and Ebola.
- Engaged in a communications effort to increase the denomination's connection between congregations, communities, annual conferences, youths, young adults, and people living in poverty.

Looking Forward

This coming quadrennium, GBCS looks forward to continuing to seek justice and to live a faithful life of social holiness that promotes the United Methodist Social Principles. GBCS will continue to strive for abundant life for all of God's people and creation.

New emphases include work on labor trafficking. GBCS's Women and Children's Advocacy ministry, in partnership with other agencies, is working to build an interfaith coalition to eliminate sex and labor trafficking. Health and Wholeness ministry, in partnership with US-AgainstAlzheimer's, has launched Faiths United Against Alzheimer's to mobilize in the fight against this mental illness and other dementia diseases.

These and other initiatives will help connect and mobilize United Methodists to live into the personal, social, and civic righteousness to which God calls us.

The continued growth and mobilization of United Methodists around the globe forges a future of hope. It is a future of creative social change lived out of the convictions of the Social Principles and other social-concerns teachings of the denomination.

As a former intern from Liberia Conference wrote:

"I have been blessed by the many ministries sponsored by the board to accomplish public advocacy, service to the local churches, and communicate as ambassadors of Christ. This has particularly kindled in me a desire for the establishment of such for the Church in Liberia. How could such a board be established in the small West African country to awaken the Church to the call of being effective advocates for the poor and marginalized ultimately making disciples for Christ?"

GBCS is grateful to be a part of this exciting ministry in fulfilling our Disciplinary mission and mandates to build networks of United Methodists to make disciples of Jesus Christ for the transformation of the world. With prayerful thanksgiving, GBCS looks forward to continuing to engage in partnership with the work of promoting the well-being, peace, justice, and integrity of God's people and God's creation.

Appendix: "Revise the Social Principles" Consultations

The 2012 General Conference approved legislation to carry out consultations to update The United Methodist Social Principles. Petition 20986-CA-Non-Dis, titled "Revise the Social Principles," called us to engage in a process for considering and revising the Social Principles with the goal of making them more succinct and theologically relevant globally. The petition called for convening hearings and other appropriate measures in jurisdictions and central conferences, and appointing a committee of adequate size to provide assistance for further work on the revision of the Social Principles.

The Executive Committee of the General Board of Church and Society, acting upon a request by the Connectional Table, began work on revising the Social Principles. The Executive Committee established a Task Force that included board members, the Secretary of the General Conference, and GBCS staff.

A two-part process to update the Social Principles was approved:

1. Phase One, June 2014-February 2015, convened listening sessions on the Social Principles by region.

2. Phase Two is to consider a process for the revision of the Social Principles 2016-2020 based on the findings.

For the first phase, six consultations were held in the central conferences of Africa, Philippines, and Europe. Two consultations were held in Washington, D.C., for the jurisdictional conferences of the United States.

The purpose of the consultation process was to review how the Social Principles are implemented in various contexts and to document if there is a need for revision of the Social Principles in light of the increasing worldwide nature of The United Methodist Church.

Groups of diverse participants were recruited based on nominations by their resident bishops, recommendations by conference Church and Society leaders, and through an open application. A final list of participants was selected from each region based on context and experience. Criteria for participation included lay and clergy persons with competencies in theology and ethics, and practices that shape the mission and ministry of the Social Principles in a geographical region of The United Methodist Church.

A total of 193 persons participated in the eight consultations held in Czech Republic, Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC), Mozambique, Nigeria, Philippines, and the United States.

Representatives from the Division on Ministries with Young People and from the Connectional Table attended each consultation. The General Conference was present as a listening partner in DRC, Prague, Washington, D.C., and Nigeria. GBCS staff and directors of its board facilitated and participated in each consultation. There was cross-over of regional representative participation to broaden dialogue.

Each consultation lasted two days and focused on the following questions:

1. What role do the current Social Principles play in enhancing the mission and ministry of The United Methodist Church?
2. How much and/or how well have the current Social Principles served to empower mission and ministry in your geographical area (conference)?
3. What might globally relevant Social Principles look like?

Each consultation included a brief plenary overview of the General Conference legislation and resulting actions taken by the General Board of Church and Society. This was followed by an introduction to each of the six sections of the Social Principles led by a consultation participant. Participants were then divided into small groups to create space for authentic conversation guided by the three focus questions.

Each small group made a report of its findings to the plenary. Board member observations, plenary presentations, and small group reports are available for archival purposes and for reference as next steps are taken in the process to revise the Social Principles.

The reception of the Social Principles included these insights from Task Force members:

- A deep appreciation for the Social Principles as a resource for mission and ministry;
- Participants illustrated specific ways the Social Principles empower United Methodists to bear witness to the gospel in their communities.

Key insights from the consultations included:

- A tension between acknowledging the practices of United Methodists in specific geographic areas and the application of the language in the Social Principles in those areas and on local and global relevance;
- A desire for further work and reflection to further clarify and reaffirm both the contextual and worldwide relevance of the Social Principles;
- A strong desire for a more precise and concise articulation of the Social Principles that speaks across cultural distinctions and historical particularities;
- A desire for more explicit theological and ethical foundations to ground each social principle;
- A hope that the Social Principles will continue to demonstrate our best theological and ethical thinking as a denomination on those positions, values, interests, and needs that are true to our prophetic witness to the gospel of Jesus Christ for the transformation of the world.

Recommendations by GBCS for succinct, theologically and ethically grounded, and relevant Social Principles will be forthcoming.

¶159.

Petition Number: 60227-CA-¶159-G; Kenaston, Judi M. - Charleston, WV, USA for West Virginia Annual Conference.

Preamble to Social Principles

Amend the preamble to the Social Principles as follows;

After the first paragraph of the Preamble, insert the following to become the second paragraph of the Preamble:

As we have declared in our Confession of Faith, the Bible “is to be received through the Holy Spirit as the true rule and guide for faith and practice.” We understand that the Bible is our foremost authority not only for doctrine but also for our moral standards and for the ways in which we relate to other people.

At the end of the Preamble add the following:

We have genuine respect for those who take the Holy Scriptures seriously and reach different conclusions regarding moral and social issues than we have. The New Testament makes it clear that our differences over such issues with other believers and even with nonbelievers do not justify either hatred or indifference toward anyone.

Rationale:

The Preamble doesn't state the Bible is the authoritative standard in determining our positions on social questions. John Wesley was “a man of one book.” Our Confession of Faith declares the Bible “is to be received through the Holy Spirit as the true rule and guide for faith and practice.”

Petition Number: 60679-CA-¶160-G; Amerson, Philip A. - La Porte, IN, USA.

Environmental Stewardship

Amend ¶ 160 as follows:

¶ 160. I. The Natural World

All creation is the Lord's . . . This continued course of action jeopardizes the natural heritage that God has entrusted to all generations. Therefore, we join with other Christians in a call to a conversion in our behaviors and attitudes so that we might better act as faithful stewards of God's creation. (See Pope Francis' Laudato Si: On Care for our Common Home, May 24, 2015.) † Let us recognize the responsibility . . .

Rationale:

Laudato Si: On Care for our Common Home was published by Pope Francis May 24, 2015. Adding United Methodist support to this ecumenical witness indicates we too seek conversion to lives as stewards of God's creation. How appropriate it was offered on Aldersgate Day!

Petition Number: 60702-CA-¶160.D-G; Tooley, Mark - Alexandria, VA, USA.

Global Good Stewardship

Delete ¶160.D: ~~Ð) Global Climate Stewardship—We acknowledge the global impact of humanity's disregard for God's creation. Rampant industrialization and the corresponding increase in the use of fossil fuels have led to a buildup of pollutants in the earth's atmosphere. These “greenhouse gas” emissions threaten to alter dramatically the earth's climate for generations to come with severe environmental, economic, and social implications. The adverse impacts of global climate change disproportionately affect individuals and nations least responsible for the emissions. We therefore support efforts of all governments to require mandatory reductions in greenhouse gas emissions and call on individuals, congregations, businesses, industries, and communities to reduce their emissions.~~

And replace as ¶160.D) Global Good Stewardship—We affirm policies that promote clean air, water, and land. Clean water is especially an urgent need throughout much of the Global South. The control of pests that spread disease, such as malaria-laden mosquitoes, is an equally pressing need affecting millions of lives. Christian stewardship requires careful husbandry of all natural resources while safeguarding sacred human life. Thoughtful economic development is necessary to increase the standard of living for hundreds of millions who live in poverty. We encourage cooperation among governments, industries, philanthropies, relief groups, religious institutions, and individuals for the protection of land, water, and air while also protecting human health and promoting global prosperity.

Petition Number: 60710-CA-¶160.D-G; Phillips, Jenny - Bellevue, WA, USA.

Global Climate Stewardship

Amend the Book of Discipline ¶ 160.D) Global Climate Stewardship, as follows:

We acknowledge the global impact of humanity's disregard for God's creation. Rampant industrialization and the corresponding increase in the use of fossil fuels have led to a buildup of pollutants in the earth's atmosphere. These "greenhouse gas" emissions ~~threaten to alter~~ are dramatically altering the earth's climate for generations to come with severe environmental, economic, and social implications. The adverse impacts of global climate change disproportionately affect individuals and nations least responsible for the emissions. Knowing the grave damage that fossil fuels are causing to God's most vulnerable people and places, we acknowledge that it is wrong to profit from fossil fuel companies, and call all general boards and agencies, all administrative agencies and institutions, including hospitals, homes, educational institutions, annual conferences, foundations and local churches, and all individuals to exclude coal, petroleum, and natural gas companies from their financial investments, and to reinvest in sustainable energy. We ~~therefore~~ also support efforts of all governments to require mandatory reductions in greenhouse gas emissions and call on individuals, congregations, businesses, industries, and communities to reduce their emissions.

Rationale:

To limit climate change, most fossil fuel reserves must stay underground, and we must transition to sustainable energy. Yet fossil fuel industry leaders fund climate change denial and actively resist a sustainable energy transition. Investment in fossil fuels creates a financial incentive to continue an unjust energy system.

Petition Number: 60677-CA-¶160.F-G; Sherman, Gary B. - Silver Spring, MD, USA.

Science and Technology

Amend ¶ 160. I. THE NATURAL WORLD F) Science and Technology as follows:

¶ 160. I. THE NATURAL WORLD F) Science and Technology

F) Science and Technology—Concerning relationships between the realms of religion and science/technology: 1) We recognize science as a legitimate interpretation the most rigorous method for humans to increase their understanding of objective realities in God's natural world. 2) We affirm the validity of the claims of science in describing the natural world. and 3) We accept the role of scientists to determine in determining what is scientific. 4) We preclude science from making authoritative claims about theological issues and likewise, theology from making authoritative claims about scientific issues. We find that science's descriptions of cosmological, geological, and biological evolution are not in conflict with theology. 5) We recognize that responsibly and ethically applied biomedical, agricultural, technical, and other scientific knowledge and technologies are as legitimate uses in God's natural world when such use enhances uses help sustain and enhance human life, reduce suffering, and enable and enables all of God's children to develop their God-given creative potential without violating our ethical convictions about the relationship of humanity to the natural world. 6) We reexamine our ethical convictions as our understanding of the natural world increases. 7) We find that as science expands our human understanding of the natural world, our understanding of the grandeur and mysteries of God's creation and word are enhanced.

In accepting science as the best process to reveal objective truths about the natural world: 1) We find that science's descriptions of biological evolution and cosmological, geological, and other creative processes are not in conflict with theology, 2) We implore immediate and judicious use of scientific knowledge about climate change in order to avert or minimize weather-induced hardships imposed upon God's children and other life on our planet, and 3) We recognize the immense moral obligation to sustainably feed, beyond our planet's current 7 billion people, the 10 billion souls projected to cohabitate Earth within the lifetimes of those being born today.

We are fully cognizant of the dire consequences of inaction on these issues for all of humankind. Therefore, in keeping with our long-standing denominational commitment to minimize suffering, feed the hungry and promote a dignified and hopeful future for humanity, we strongly encourage continuation of scientific endeavors that: i) support discovery of improved medicines and medical technologies, ii) counteract harms to humanity attributable to climate change, and iii) develop new methods for sustainable production of abundant and wholesome food for all God's children.

In acknowledging the important roles of science and technology, however, we also believe that theological understandings of human experience are crucial to a full understanding of the place of humanity in the universe. Science and theology are complementary rather than mutually incompatible. We therefore encourage dialogue between the scientific and theological communities and seek the kind of participation that will enable humanity to sustain life on earth and, by God's grace, increase the quality of our common lives together.

Rationale:

The structure of this section is rearranged (keeping the existing concepts) so that the generalized defining relationships between science and religion are in the first paragraph with the second and third paragraphs highlighting three of the most pressing and sometimes misunderstood findings of science. The fourth paragraph is unchanged.

Petition Number: 60678-CA-¶160.F-G; Moneyham, John - Panama City, FL, USA.

Science and Technology

Amend ¶ 160.F) Science and Technology as follows:

We recognize science as a legitimate interpretation of God's natural world. We affirm the validity of the claims of science in describing the natural world and in determining what is scientific. We preclude science from making authoritative claims about theological issues and theology from making authoritative claims about scientific issues. ~~We find that science's descriptions of cosmological, geological, and biological evolution are not in conflict with theology.~~ We recognize medical . . .

Rationale:

We should always acknowledge God as Creator, and by accepting "science's descriptions" of evolution, we fail to do this because such descriptions do not recognize God as being responsible for any part of Creation let alone the entirety of Creation.

Petition Number: 60286-CA-¶163-G; Hall, Russell - Tomball, TX, USA for Texas Annual Conference.

Economic Community

Delete Existing Introductory Paragraph of ¶ 163:

~~We claim all economic systems to be under the judgment of God no less than other facets of the created order. Therefore, we recognize the responsibility of governments to develop and implement sound fiscal and monetary policies that provide for the economic life of individuals and~~

~~corporate entities and that ensure full employment and adequate incomes with a minimum of inflation. We believe private and public economic enterprises are responsible for the social costs of doing business, such as employment and environmental pollution, and that they should be held accountable for these costs. We support measures that would reduce the concentration of wealth in the hands of a few. We further support efforts to revise tax structures and to eliminate governmental support programs that now benefit the wealthy at the expense of other persons.~~

Substitute the following paragraph:

We understand the social benefits from economic growth in eliminating poverty, reducing disease, and improving the economic conditions of people. We believe private and public economic enterprises are responsible for the social costs of doing business, such as employment and environmental pollution, and that they should be held accountable for these costs. To enhance economic growth, we believe that governments must protect the rights of individuals while enforcing the rule of law. We also understand the importance of the generosity of individuals in contributing to the common good. We understand the importance of good character, consisting of honesty and integrity, and that the Church must strive to develop good character among those within the economic community.

Rationale:

The existing language narrows the introductory paragraph to a focus upon government policies while the remainder of ¶ 163 considers poverty, work, consumption, family farms, corporate responsibility, and foreign trade. The introductory paragraph is not an explanation of the how economic systems benefit society. It fails to note any direct . . .

¶163.E.

Petition Number: 60705-CA-¶163.E-G; Tooley, Mark - Alexandria, VA, USA.

Uplifting the Poor

Delete first paragraph of ¶ 163.E:

~~E) Poverty—In spite of general affluence in the industrialized nations, the majority of persons in the food, clothing, shelter, education, health care, and other necessities, ways must be found to share more equitably the resources of the world. Increasing technology, when accompanied by exploitative economic practices, impoverishes many persons and makes poverty self-perpetuating. Poverty due to natural catastrophes and environmental changes is growing and needs attention and support. Con-~~ licts and war impoverish the population on all sides, and an important way to support the poor will be to work for peaceful solutions.

And replace with:

We give thanks for the increasing prosperity of many previously impoverished societies and for the uplift of hundreds of millions from poverty into the middle class, especially in China, India, Indonesia, Brazil, and elsewhere. Protections for private property, economic development, and transparent government upholding the rule of law are vital for increasing global standards of living. The assurance of clean water, electricity, reliable heating and refrigeration remain urgent needs for rescuing countless other hundreds of millions from chronic poverty. The Church must not view the poor only as victims but as inherent persons of dignity and talent who can, in stable and lawful societies, create new wealth and greater justice.

¶164.A.

Petition Number: 60395-CA-¶164.A-G; Henry-Crowe, Susan - Washington, DC, USA for General Board of Church and Society.

Basic Freedoms and Human Rights

Insert after the first sentence:

Blockades and embargoes that seek to impede the flow or free commerce of food and medicines are practices that cause pain and suffering, malnutrition, or starvation with all its detrimental consequences to innocent and non-combatant civilian populations, especially children. We reject these as instruments of domestic and foreign policy regardless of political or ideological views.

Rationale:

This amendment inserts into this Social Principle a 25-year position of the General Conference on opposition to food and medicine blockades or embargoes as contained in Resolution 6042. This resolution is recommended for deletion in favor of this amendment.

¶164.A.

Petition Number: 60697-CA-¶164.A-G; Tooley, Mark - Alexandria, VA, USA.

Basic Freedom for All People

Add to end of ¶ 164.A:

Freedom for all people requires lawful limitations on the power of governments and legal protections for independent sectors of society including religious institutions, private business, the media, trade guilds and unions, charities, philanthropies, fraternal societies, and political parties, among others. Human flourishing requires a healthy and free civil society.

Petition Number: 60701-CA-¶164.A-G; Sherman, Gary B. - Silver Spring, MD, USA.

Basic Freedoms and Human Rights

Amend The Book of Discipline ¶ 164. A) Basic Freedoms and Human Rights, as follows:

We hold governments responsible for the protection of the rights of the people to free and fair elections and to the freedoms of speech, religion, assembly, communications media, and petition for redress of grievances without fear of reprisal; to the right to privacy; and to the guarantee of the rights to adequate food, clothing, shelter, education, and health care. The form and the leaders of all governments should be determined by exercise of the right to vote guaranteed to adult citizens favored by God. We also strongly reject domestic surveillance and intimidation of political opponents by governments in power and all other misuses of elective or appointive offices. The use of detention and imprisonment for the harassment and elimination of political opponents or other dissidents violates fundamental human rights.

Furthermore, the mistreatment or torture, and other cruel, inhumane, and degrading treatment or punishment of persons by governments for any purpose violates Christian teaching and must be condemned and/or opposed by Christians and churches wherever and whenever it occurs. The Church regards the institution of slavery, the practice and commission of genocide, war crimes, crimes against humanity, and aggression as infamous and atrocious evils. Such evils are destructive of humanity, promote impunity, and therefore must be unconditionally prohibited by all governments and shall never be tolerated by the Church.

Even as we emphatically declare in our Discipline these core moral principles defining human rights to be absolute, timeless, and immutable, we humbly recognize, as spiritually and intellectually honest Christians, that many biblical verses and stories, read in context and interpreted according to the plain sense of each passage as written, belie these principles. On numerous occasions in Scripture, God commands men to commit precisely the forms of never-tolerable evil that our Discipline wholly and unreservedly condemns. Indeed, even the most heinous evils (slavery, aggression, and genocide) are at times obediently committed by his chosen people against all men, women, and children of entire nations and ethnicities; God even commands that no mercy be shown in certain slaughters he orders. But “never-tolerable” simply cannot mean “sometimes tolerable” to a morally competent person—never means never. Knowing that we must not in good conscience proclaim as never-tolerable evils, acts that our greatest prophets committed at God’s command, and knowing that we must never claim our religion to be the remedy for moral relativism when our doctrines boldly embrace moral relativism when read for their plain meaning, and knowing that we make no distinction in degree of authorization and assumed righteousness of Old versus New Testament teachings and law, and knowing that God and Jesus are eternally one and so what the Old Testament God did and said, Jesus also did and said, and finally, knowing that Jesus affirmed in his Sermon on the Mount the obligation to “teach and practice” even the least Old Testament command, unchanged by a word or letter, we United Methodists renounce the use of Scripture as a reliable plain-sense guide to righteous daily life and instead endorse a view of God consonant with a Creator who genuinely and timelessly endows all persons with equal and inalienable rights to life, liberty, security, and happiness. Despite our rejection of literal reading of Scripture, however, we challenge ourselves to find within the hyperbole, duplicity, and violence of canon important messages from or about God, even including his expectation that we learn to distinguish in our holy texts what is truly from him and what never was, is, or can be within the scope of his perfect grace.

Rationale:

The Discipline ¶ 164 condemns impunity fostered by slavery as never-tolerable evil. However, God’s word explicitly commands impunity for slave brutalization, because slaves are property (Exodus 21:20-21). Moreover, Jesus unambiguously directs us to “teach and practice” even the “least” Old Testament . . .

Petition Number: 60689-CA-¶164.C-G; Sherman, Gary B. - Silver Spring, MD, USA.

Church and State Relations

Amend ¶ 164.C as follows:

C) Church and State Relations—The United Methodist Church has for many years supported the separation of church and state. In some parts of the world this separation has guaranteed the diversity of religious expressions and the freedom to worship God according to each person’s conscience. Separation of church and state means no organic union of the two, but it does permit interaction. The state should not use its authority to promote particular religious beliefs (including but not limited to atheism, deism, or creationism), nor should it require prayer or worship in the public schools, but it should leave students free to practice their own religious convictions. We believe that the state should not attempt to control the church, nor should the church seek to dominate the state. The rightful and vital separation of church and state, which has served the cause of religious liberty, should not be misconstrued as the abolition of all religious expression from public life.

The United Methodist Church opposes the legislation of any faith-based accounts, such as creationism, intelligent design, or theistic evolution into the science curricula and/or science textbooks of our public schools. We oppose efforts to call into question scientifically derived models of the natural world’s origins based on literal interpretations of stories in scriptures or oral traditions from any of the world’s many religions. We reject misrepresentation of science as a means to further the goals of specific religions, denominations, or secular ideologies.

We encourage science teachers to teach only concepts of the natural world and its origins that are consistent with objective evidence gathered and analyzed using rigorous, unbiased, scientific principles and methods. We protect the right and obligations of our Church’s Christian educators and families to teach non-scientific “spiritual perspectives” revealed through scriptural parables and metaphors. We encourage teachers in the science classroom and our clergy to highlight the many significant contributions to humanity that have been made through judicious application of practical knowledge derived from the study of evolutionary processes. Such contributions include new medicines to prevent disease and heal the sick, and new technologies to ensure progressive and sustainable increases in agricultural yields necessary to feed the hungry even as climate change unfolds and our planet’s arable land and fresh water resources continue to diminish. Through these actions we prayerfully and intentionally recommit to our most cherished missions, especially protection of, and compassion for, the least among God’s children.

Rationale:

Some, by misrepresenting science, continue efforts to legislate religious beliefs about creationism into public school biology and earth science classrooms—as they have for over a century. Science, several major courts, and many in religion have rejected these actions that jeopardize freedom of religion. This petition strengthens an expiring resolution.

¶164.G.

Petition Number: 60712-CA-¶164.G-G; Tooley, Mark - Alexandria, VA, USA.

Solidarity with Crime Victims

Delete ¶ 164.G): G) The Death Penalty—We believe the death penalty denies the power of Christ to redeem, restore and transform all human beings.

The United Methodist Church is deeply concerned about crime throughout the world and the value of any life taken by a murder or homicide. We believe all human life is sacred and created by God and therefore, we must see all human life as significant and valuable.

When governments implement the death penalty (capital punishment), then the life of the convicted person is devalued and all possibility of change in that person's life ends. We believe in the resurrection of Jesus Christ and that the possibility of reconciliation with Christ comes through repentance. This gift of reconciliation is offered to all individuals without exception and gives all life new dignity and sacredness. For this reason, we oppose the death penalty (capital punishment) and urge its elimination from all criminal codes.

And replace with: ¶ 164.G) Solidarity with Crime Victims—Every year crimes of murder, rape, robbery, and assault affects millions globally. The Church must stand in compassionate solidarity with all crime victims offering ministries of healing and reconciliation. Policies that deter violent crimes must be vigorously and fairly enforced by just governments. Some nations in recent years, including the United States, have enjoyed falling crime rates thanks partly to more effective law enforcement, for which we give thanks. Many great cities are experiencing a rebirth thanks to falling crime rates. Millions of persons around the world are imprisoned for violent crimes. The Church also extends its compassion to them, knowing it is for such people that Christ died. Governments can achieve only so much in the fight against violent crime. Only the gospel can fully transform human hearts. We urgently affirm jail and prison ministry while also encouraging ministries in the cities and among youth that provide hope and morals against the temptations of crime and despair.

Petition Number: 60703-CA-¶165.C-G; Tooley, Mark - Alexandria, VA, USA.

War and Peace

Delete Paragraph 165.C E) War and Peace—We believe war is incompatible with the teachings and example of Christ. We therefore reject war as an instrument of national foreign policy. We oppose unilateral first/preemptive strike actions and strategies on the part of any government. As disciples of Christ, we are called to love our enemies, seek justice, and serve as reconcilers of conflict. We insist that the first moral duty of all nations is to work together to resolve by peaceful means every dispute that arises between or among them. We advocate the extension and strengthening of international treaties and institutions that provide a framework within the rule of law for responding to aggression, terrorism, and genocide. We believe that human values must outweigh military claims as governments determine their priorities; that the militarization of society must be challenged and stopped; that the manufacture, sale, and deployment of armaments must be reduced and controlled; and that the production, possession, or use of nuclear weapons be condemned. Consequently, we endorse general and complete disarmament under strict and effective international control.

and replace as: 165.C) War and Peace—War is incompatible with God's original plan. In a fallen world, most Christian teaching has recognized legitimate governments' duty sometimes to use force in defense of justice and the innocent. As disciples of Christ, we are called to love our enemies, seek justice, and serve as reconcilers of conflict. All nations are called to work together to resolve by peaceful means every dispute that arises between or among them. We advocate international treaties and institutions that provide a framework within the rule of law for responding to aggression, terrorism, and genocide. We oppose the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and urge limitations on armaments when possible.

Justice and Law

Insert sub-paragraph in ¶165.D "Justice and Law" after the first sub-paragraph and before the sub-paragraph beginning "Believing that international justice requires . . .":

As lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender people have worked for civil liberties around the world, awareness of persecution is growing. In more than 70 countries, homosexuality is punishable by prison or execution. Murders of transgender people in the United States are at an all-time high. All United Methodist general board and agencies, central conferences, annual conferences, and local churches are urged to speak out to stop violence against lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender people, and to work against laws that would silence, imprison, or execute people based on sexual orientation or gender identity, or based on their support of the rights and human dignity of sexual minorities.

Rationale:

In Acts 8:26-40, the Ethiopian eunuch was first to convert to Christianity. In Matthew 19:12, Jesus includes eunuchs in the kingdom. Today, in 70 countries, the Ethiopian eunuch could be jailed based on perceived sexual orientation or gender identity. Churches must defend the lives of LGBT persons like they are . . .

Permissiveness in AC Structure - CBCS

For the purpose of empowering the annual conferences to determine their own agenda and structure amend ¶ 629 as follows:

¶ 629. Conference Board of Church and Society—1. The annual conference ~~shall~~ may organize a board of church and society or other structure to provide for the functions of this ministry and maintain the connectional relationship between the General Board of Church and Society and the conference, district, and local church, as well as for church and society responsibilities related to the objectives and scope of work of the General Board of Church and Society as set forth in ¶¶ 1002-1004.

2. The conference board of church and society or equivalent structure, should such be organized, shall be composed of those persons as determined by the annual conference, including, by virtue of their offices, the mission coordinator for social action of the conference United Methodist Women and members of the General Board of Church and Society from the annual conference who shall serve within limits set by ¶¶ 610.6 and 710.5. The conference board of church and society or equivalent structure ~~shall~~ may also name a conference Peace with Justice Coordinator who will be responsible for administering the conference Peace with Justice Special Sunday Offering receipts and for coordinating peace and justice ministries. Guidelines for inclusiveness in the membership shall be followed (¶ 610.5).

3. The conference board, in cooperation with the General Board of Church and Society and the principal programming body of the annual conference council on ministries, shall may develop and promote programs on church and society within the bounds of the conference that include prison ministry and reform concerns. To this end, it may divide its membership into committees of approximately equal size patterned after the organization of the General Board of Church and Society. Committees of the board shall have responsibility to cooperate with one another to advance the respective and mutual concerns of their respective areas in social education, service, witness, and action.

GBCS Advocacy for Persecuted Church

Amend Book of Discipline ¶ 1004 as follows:

¶ 1004. Responsibilities—The prime responsibility

Through conferences, districts, coalitions, and networks, it will assist Church members as they identify and respond to critical social issues at community, regional, national, and international levels. The board shall devote at least one full-time staff position to promoting education, prayer, and advocacy on behalf of our brothers and sisters in Christ around the world who suffer persecution for their faith. All the above . . .

Rationale:

Open Doors USA reports that roughly 100 million are persecuted for their Christian faith. With about two dozen staffers, surely the GBCS can afford to refocus its efforts to make such a common-ground cause more of a priority. Jesus told Saul that to persecute His followers was to persecute Him.

shall devote at least one full-time staff position to promoting, within our Church as well as society, the Social Principles of The United Methodist Church related to family, marriage, and sexuality (§161 A, B, C, D, E, and F), especially by promoting strong, stable, and loving marriages between one man and one woman, combating family breakdown, and promoting the sexual ethic of celibacy in singleness or faithfulness in monogamous, heterosexual marriage as best for all people.

All the above shall be consistent . . .

Rationale:

Family breakdown, devaluing of marriage, and widespread rejection of our sexual ethics have caused great personal devastation in societies surrounding our churches. It is proper for General Conference to ensure that at least one of the GBCS's roughly two dozen staffers compassionately focuses on these important Christian social values.

GBCS Priorities

Amend Book of Discipline ¶ 1004 as follows:

¶ 1004. Responsibilities—The prime responsibility of the board is to seek the implementation of the Social Principles and other policy statements of the General Conference on Christian social concerns. . . .

The board shall develop, promote, and distribute resources and conduct programs to inform, motivate, train, organize, and build networks for action toward social justice throughout society, particularly on the specific issues prioritized by ~~the board~~ General Conference. . . .

Rationale:

It is needlessly redundant to say that the GBCS shall prioritize what it decides to prioritize. It is healthy for the General Conference, as the single-most authoritative and representative body for all United Methodists, to have ultimate responsibility for shaping the agency's priorities on behalf of our whole Church.

The board shall recognize that there are special crises in Africa and shall devote leadership and material resources to help in African reconstruction and development, recognizing that the most poor and needy members of our denomination and in the world are located there in significant numbers. The board shall develop, promote, and distribute resources and conduct programs that address agricultural training, educational development, road development, tribal peace, civil order, good governance, financial transparency and accountability, migrations due to social unrest and war, and family stability. The board shall report to each General Conference on the funds spent for staff and programs that address various crises in Africa and explain how that funding compares to its total expenditures.

Rationale:

This legislation seeks full, enthusiastic and generous implementation of Resolution 6081, adopted in 2000 and 2004 and readopted in 2008, and adds transparent reporting of GBCS actions and priority for Africa. Attention is focused on the poorest, most needy, of our members and of the world.

Release Puerto Rican Political Prisoner: Oscar Lopez-Rivera

Jesus read from the book of the prophet Isaiah who said: “The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has anointed me to bring good news to the poor. He has sent me to proclaim release to the captives” (Luke 4:18 NRSV).

WHEREAS, The United Methodist Church and The Methodist Church of Puerto Rico have advocated for the liberation of Puerto Rican women and men sentenced to excessive punishment due to alleged crimes related to their struggle for the independence of Puerto Rico (2012 Book of Resolutions #5087); and

WHEREAS, since 1996 The United Methodist Church has approved resolutions requesting the liberation of the Puerto Rican political prisoners, (1996 Book of Resolutions, pp. 533-534); and The United Methodist Church has advocated for the release of Mr. Oscar López-Rivera, taking into consideration the ample support for his release stated by several religious bodies, political leaders from different nations, and persons of all political parties in Puerto Rico;

WHEREAS, Mr. Oscar López-Rivera “is said to be among the longest-held political prisoners” (Report prepared by the Rapporteur of the United Nations Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples, March 20, 2015) and is the last remaining Puerto Rican political prisoner in a federal prison of the group of political prisoners incarcerated between 1980 and 1983 in related cases. The majority of the group was released by President William J. Clinton in 1999; and

WHEREAS, the United Nations Special Committee has established several resolutions on the situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and People calling “upon the President of the United States of America to release, on humanitarian grounds, Puerto Rican political prisoner Oscar López-Rivera”; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Oscar López-Rivera, was not accused of killing, or causing personal harm to anyone, or stealing anything, and still languishes in prison for 35 of his 73 years of age, having being found guilty of seditious conspiracy related to his belief and struggle for the independence of Puerto Rico;

Therefore, be it resolved, that the 2016 General Conference of The United Methodist Church, seeking to be faithful to Jesus' mission, continues to advocate for political prisoners who should be released from their captivity; and

Be it also resolved, that the 2016 General Conference, on religious, moral and humanitarian grounds, approves this resolution requesting the immediate release of Mr. Oscar López-Rivera from federal prison; and

Be it further resolved, that this 2016 General Conference of The United Methodist Church, through the President of the Council of Bishops and the Secretary of the General Conference, will send a communication to the President of the United States and to the Secretary of Justice requesting the immediate release of Mr. Oscar López-Rivera that includes copy of this resolution.

Petition Number: 60396-CA-R1001-G; Henry-Crowe, Susan - Washington, DC, USA for General Board of Church and Society.

Energy Policy Statement

Amend Resolution 1001 as follows:

Amend first paragraph:

Humankind enjoys a unique place in God's universe. ~~On the one hand, w~~We are created in the very image of God, with the divine Spirit breathed into us, and entrusted to "take charge of" God's creation (Genesis 2:7; 1:26, 28; see Psalm 8:6). ~~On the one other hand, Yet,~~ we are simply one of God's many finite creatures, made from the "topsoil of the fertile land," bounded in time and space, fallible in judgment, limited in control, dependent upon our Creator, and interdependent with all other creatures. ~~On the other hand, we are created in the very image of God, with the divine Spirit breathed into us, and entrusted to "take charge of" God's creation (Genesis 2:7; 1:26, 28; see Psalm 8:6).~~ We are simultaneously caretakers with all creation and, because of the divine summons, caretakers with God of the world in which we live. ~~This hybrid human condition produces both the opportunity and the twin dangers for humans on this planet.~~

Delete second paragraph:

~~The first danger is arrogance: that we may overestimate the extent of human control over our environment and the soundness of human judgments concerning it; that we may underestimate the limits of the planet where we live; and that we may misunderstand "take charge" to mean exploitation instead of stewardship.~~

Delete third paragraph:

~~The second danger is irresponsibility: that we may fail to be the responsible stewards of the earth. As stewards entrusted with dominion, then, we will demonstrate our faith in God by shaping the new human society that will emerge in the twenty-first century. We cannot, therefore, neglect the task of seeking to embody in the world the values that we hold in covenant with God. Nor can we forget the forgiving grace in Jesus Christ, which alone makes us bold enough, or the hope in Christ, which alone keeps us from despair.~~

Amend fourth paragraph:

The decisions that humans ~~are now making~~ will either enhance or degrade the quality of life on the planet. We have entered ~~live~~ in an era of greater energy interdependence. ~~As the world confronts~~ Confronting global issues such as climate change, energy inequity, and pollution; ~~energy-related problems~~ will require international solutions based upon the values of justice and sustainability.

Amend fifth paragraph, first sentence:

~~The Scripture that provides the motive~~an imperative for our action ~~in the present energy crisis also~~and lays the foundation for the values that we seek to realize.

Amend paragraph six:

1. Justice. ~~Ever since the first covenant between God and Israel, and especially since the eighth-century prophets, the people of God~~As God's covenant people, with Noah, Abraham, Jacob and the prophets, we have understood ~~understand~~ that ~~they~~ bear a special ~~concern~~ responsibility for justice.

Amend third sentence in Justice paragraph ~~Energy policies that Christians can support, then, will~~As people of the Christian covenant we support energy policies that seek to actualize the multifaceted biblical vision of justice. Just energy policies:

~~They will be policies that close rather than widen~~ the gap dividing wealth and poverty, rich nations and poor;

~~They will be measures that liberate rather than~~and do not oppress;

~~They will be programs that~~fairly distribute fairly the benefits, burdens, and hazards of energy production and consumption, taking into consideration the living and those not yet born as well as the living; and

~~They will thus be strategies that give priority to meeting basic human needs such as air, water, food, clothing, and shelter.~~

Amend paragraph seven (Sustainability):

2. Sustainability. ~~Only recently have Wwe humans come to~~ recognize that creation entails limits to the resources entrusted to us as stewards of the earth. While God has created an economy of abundance with sufficient resources to meet all human need, our inclinations toward greed and overuse too often have transformed sufficiency into scarcity. In addition, we recognize In particular, we have come up against limits to the nonrenewable fuel sources available for our consumption and limits to our environment's capacity to absorb poisonous wastes. These double limits mean that humans can betray their stewardship either by using up resources faster than they can be replaced or by releasing wastes in excess of the planet's capacity to absorb them. We now know that humans have the capacity to destroy human life and perhaps even life itself on this planet, and to do so in a very short period of time. Energy policy decisions, ~~therefore,~~ must be measured by sustainability as a criterion in addition to justice. In terms of energy policy, sustainability means energy use that will not:

(a) ensure adequate resources and opportunity for present and future generations to enjoy a healthy quality of life; and deplete the earth's resources in such a way that our descendants will not be able to continue human society at the level that is adequate for a good quality of life, and

(b) enhance local environmental and economic vitality while minimizing impacts on the health of both human and non-human creation; and promote social and intergenerational equity pollute the environment to such an extent that human life cannot be sustained in the future.

Delete last sentence of Sustainability paragraph:

~~These guidelines for sustainability must include considerations of quality of life as well as mere biological continuance.~~

Amend paragraph 11, insert two new sentences after second sentence, amend following sentence:

Hydraulic fracturing, commonly called "fracking," has opened vast new deposits of oil and gas for exploration but with serious consequences for communities' water quality and geological stability. Deep sea extraction presents consequences and risks we do not yet fully understand, including destruction of aquatic ecosystems and pollution from leaks and spills. The burning of coal fossil fuels causes large-scale pollution and seriously alters the environment by increasing the carbon dioxide content of the atmosphere, contributing to global warming and climate change.

Amend paragraph 16 (subparagraph 2):

2. We will be models for energy conservation. ~~All~~ United Methodists, including churches, annual conferences, general boards and agencies ~~are to be will~~ models for energy conservation by doing such things as: installing dampers in furnaces, insulating adequately all church properties, ...

Amend paragraph 17 (subparagraph 3):

3. We will model sustainable and just energy values. ~~All~~ United Methodist Church programs and mission projects must model our sustainable and just energy values.

Amend paragraph 18 (subparagraph 4):

4. We support increased government funding for research and development of renewable energy sources and elimination of fossil fuel subsidies. We encourage the development and deployment of renewable energy technologies, especially solar energy, and government incentives to speed the application of the resulting technologies to our energy needs, wherever appropriate.

Insert new paragraph 19 (subparagraph 5):

5. We support local, regional and national efforts to provide transition assistance for communities currently dependent on old energy fossil fuel economies. Honoring the contributions and sacrifices these communities and workers have made, often for generations,

The United Methodist Church commits to being in ministry with and supporting these individuals, families and communities as we seek a healthier and more equitable energy future.

Amend paragraph 21 (previously subparagraph 6):

~~The despoiling of indigenous peoples' lands and the increased health and social-economic problems that have resulted because of Oil exploration, hydroelectric projects, and the mining of coal, and the milling of uranium must cease.~~ despoil indigenous peoples' lands and increase health and socioeconomic problems.

Amend paragraph 22 (previously subparagraph 7):

7.8. We support national energy programs that will do not increase the financial burden on the poor, the elderly, and those with fixed incomes. Energy policies must guarantee universal service to all consumers, protecting low-income and rural residents.

Insert new paragraph (after previous subparagraph 8):

9.10. We urge transparency in global energy market transactions. Market manipulation can disrupt pricing and access causing harm, particularly to poor and marginalized countries and communities.

Amend subparagraph (previously subparagraph 10):

11. ~~We strongly encourage~~ exhort The United Methodist Church at all levels to engage in a serious study of these energy issues in the context of Christian faith, especially the values of justice and sustainability.

Rationale:

Shaped by a global conversation, this resolution updates the denomination's long-standing energy policy statement to address emerging energy extraction methods, support a transition to renewable energy sources, and include new language highlighting the importance of ministry in and with communities impacted by a shift away from fossil fuels.

Cease Mountaintop Removal Coal Mining in the United States

Amend Resolution 1021, including new title: Cease Mountaintop Removal Coal Mining in the United States

Amend the third paragraph:

The blast rock and dust created by the removal of mountaintops has caused human death and severe damage to homes and wells in the nearby communities. The millions and millions of tons of earth and rock removed from the tops of mountains are dumped into the valleys next to these mountains, totally destroying the springs and headwaters of streams in these valleys, along with all plant and animal life in them. More than ~~500,000~~ 1.2 million acres of land have been destroyed and ~~1000~~ 2,000 miles of biologically crucial streams have been buried under the debris. ~~1. Ohio Valley Environmental Coalition~~ More than 1.2 million acres of land have been destroyed and 2000 miles of biologically crucial streams have been buried under the debris (US Environmental Protection Agency). Environmental replenishment reclamation efforts at former mountaintop removal mining sites do not replicate the sites' God-created biodiversity. In addition, coal slurry, a waste byproduct of coal processing, poses a serious health hazard to communities nearby the open storage impoundments that have all too often failed to contain the wastewaters polluted with toxic materials including arsenic, mercury, lead and chromium.

Amend the fourth paragraph:

Mountaintop removal mining, by destroying home places, is also destroying ancestral ground, sacred ground where generations after generations have lived, gone to church, married, ~~made and birthed babies~~ and raised children, taken family meals, slept in peace, died, and been buried.

Rationale:

This resolution, first adopted at the 2000 General Conference, continues to be a key statement of solidarity with the communities impacted by mountaintop removal coal mining. The revised petition updates statistics and makes minor editorial changes to the resolution.

Environmental Racism in the US

Amend and Readopt Resolution 1025 Environmental Racism in the U.S.

Theological Background

~~In Isaiah we are given divine insight into our relations with one another~~

~~"If you do away with the yoke from among you, of oppression, / with the pointing finger pointing, and the malicious talk / speech, and if you spend open yourselves your heart to the on behalf of the hungry / and provide abundantly for those who are afflicted satisfy the needs of the oppressed, / then your light will shine rise in the darkness, / and your night gloom will become like the noonday be like the noonday.~~

— Isaiah 58:9-10 (NIV)

We are further called both in Leviticus and by our Lord Jesus Christ to love our neighbors as ourselves. When we turn from this divine will, we as a broken people promote systems that are unjust and inequitable. One manifestation of these injustices is the persistent problem of environmental racism, defined as the disproportionate toxic and industrial contamination in neighborhoods where people of color live, work, worship and play.

The United Methodist Church (UMC) is committed to understanding and eliminating environmental racism. In for example, in the United States, people are disproportionately affected by toxic contamination due to the extraction, production, storage, treatment, and disposal process-processes of hazardous materials and wastes are too often zoned within close proximity to where people of color live. Yet, African Americans, Hispanic, Latino North Americans, Asian Americans, Native Americans, and non-citizens in the U.S. of developing nations are usually the least able—politically and economically—to affect oppose the sitings of these facilities. the political institutions that make the decisions that allow this to happen. People of color also disproportionately suffer from the lack of public health protections in the current economy. From the founding of the United States, people of color were seen as less entitled to healthy work and environment than those of European descent. European culture, with its domesticated animals, exploitative resource extraction, mono-cropping, and mass production, was perceived as the only way America could advance. And the rich tradition of Native Americans' stewardship of their environment was demolished in the quest for land ownership.

U.S. cities grew during a time of extreme racial inequity, zoning policies were put into place where waste dumps, rail yards, industrial centers, ports, and sewer systems developed out of proportion around communities of color. As a result, their communities have become dumping grounds for waste with devastating economic and health consequences.

The pervasive problem of environmental racism within the United States first came to light in the early 1980's. The birth of the environmental justice movement can be traced to the 1982 historic protest in Warren County, North Carolina. More than ~~where over~~ 500 people were arrested for blocking a the shipment of toxic waste (PCBs) to a landfill located in the predominantly African-American county. ~~That same year, a General Accounting Office (GAO, now Government Accountability Office) study concluded “blacks make up the majority of the population in three out of four communities where landfills are located.”~~ This action was followed in 1987 by the United Church of Christ, Commission for Racial Justice’s Justice landmark report, Toxic Wastes and Race in the United States. This report expanding on the GAO findings, established that race—rather than poverty, land value, or home ownership—is the most reliable predictor of proximity to hazardous waste sites in the United States. ~~And~~ In 1992, the National Law Journal published study “Unequal Protection,” a study that uncovered racial disparities in the enforcement of environmental protection laws. ~~The report~~ It highlighted a “racial divide in the way the U.S. ~~US~~ government cleans up toxic waste sites and punishes polluters.” According to the report, “white communities see faster action, better results and stiffer penalties than communities where blacks, Hispanics and other minorities live. This unequal protection often occurs whether the community is wealthy or poor.”

~~These and other reports provided strong empirical evidence of environmental racism. In 2007, Toxic Wastes and Race at Twenty: 1987-2007 was published by the United Church of Christ, Justice and Witness Ministries. This report recognized that significant racial and socio-economic disparities persisted in the distribution of the nation’s commercial hazardous waste facilities. In fact, people of color are found to be more concentrated around hazardous waste facilities than previously shown in the 1987 report.~~

Among the findings:

1. ~~“The current and future health status of African American, Hispanic and Native American children in particular continues to fare poorly compared to the rest of the population. Due to the fact that children are so vulnerable to harm, without political voice and not large players within the world economy, they have historically been swept under the rug and almost forgotten about when it comes to true public health protection.~~

2. ~~“National disparities: More than nine million people (9,222,000) are estimated to live in circular host neighborhoods within 3 kilometers of the nation’s 413 commercial hazardous waste facilities. More than 5.1 million people of color, including 2.5 million Hispanics or Latinos, 1.8 million African Americans, 616,000 Asians/Pacific Islanders and 62,000 Native Americans live in neighborhoods with one or more commercial hazardous waste facilities.~~

3. ~~EPA: Regional Disparities: Racial disparities for people of color as a whole exist in nine out of 10 US EPA regions (all except Region 3). Disparities in people of color percentages between host neighborhoods and non-host Areas are greatest in: Region 1, the Northeast (36 percent vs. 15 percent); Region 4, the southeast (54 percent vs. 30 percent); Region 5, the Midwest (53 percent vs. 19 percent); Region 6, the South (63 percent vs. 42 percent); and region 9, the south west (80 percent vs. 49 percent). For Hispanics, African Americans and Asian/Pacific Islanders, statistically significant disparities exist in the majority or vast majority of EPA regions. The pattern of people of color being especially concentrated in areas where facilities are clustered is also geographically widespread throughout the country.”~~

4. ~~“African Americans are three times more likely to die from asthma. African American women have the highest asthma mortality rate of all groups, more than 2.5 times higher than Caucasian women. Ethnic differences in asthma prevalence, morbidity, and mortality are highly correlated with poverty, urban air quality, indoor allergens and lack of patient education and inadequate medical care.”~~

5. ~~Lead poisoning continues to be the number one environmental health threat to children in the United States; especially poor children, children of color and children living in inner cities. Black children are five times more likely than white children to have lead poisoning. One in seven black children living in older housing has elevated blood lead levels. About 22 percent of African American children and 13 percent of Mexican American children living in pre-1946 housing are lead poisoned, compared with 6 percent of white children living in comparable types of housing. Recent studies suggest that a young person’s lead burden is linked to lower IQ, lower high school graduation rates and increased delinquency. Lead poisoning causes about 2-3 points of IQ lost for each 10 ug/dl lead level.”~~

6. ~~Toxic Wastes and Race describe the extent of environmental racism and the consequence of people of color and indigenous communities disproportionately affected by polluted environments. Collectively, the two coal plants on the Navajo reservation release over 365 million pounds of cancer and lung disease causing pollutants every year. The groundwater is also contaminated as the pollutants leach in the water banks.~~

~~The 2007 “Toxic Waste at Twenty 1987-2007 Report of the United Church of Christ Justice and witness Ministries Conclusions most recent report:~~

~~“Twenty years after the release of Toxic Wastes and Race, significant racial and socioeconomic disparities persist in the distribution of the nation’s commercial haz-~~ ardous waste facilities. Although the current assessment uses newer methods that better match where people and hazardous waste facilities are located, the conclusions are very much the same as they were in 1987. In fact, people of color are found to be more concentrated around hazardous waste facilities than previous shown.”

Here are some of the 2007 report’s statistics:

- “20.2 percent of those living within one kilometer of a hazardous waste facility are African American while only 11.5 percent of those who live beyond five kilometers (3.1 miles) of a hazardous waste facility are African American.”

- “23.1 percent of those who live within one kilometer of a hazardous waste facility are Latino; yet, only 7.8 percent of those who live beyond those five kilometers are Hispanic.”

- “When facilities are clustered together, as in urban areas, African Americans comprise 29 percent of the surrounding population, and 16 percent of the population when there is a single facility.”

- “Hispanics make up 33 percent of the population where there are multiple hazardous waste facilities and 25 percent of the population where there is a single facility.”

- “Host neighborhoods of commercial hazardous waste facilities are 56 percent people of color whereas non-host areas are 30 percent people of color. Percentages of African Americans, Hispanics/Latinos and Asians/Pacific Islanders in host neighborhoods (vs. non-host areas) are 1.7, 2.3, and 1.8 times greater (20 percent versus 12 percent; 27 percent versus 12 percent; and 6.7 percent versus 3.6 percent), respectively. Poverty rates in the host neighborhoods are 1.5 times greater than non-host areas. (18 percent versus 12 percent)” (Statistics are from Toxic Wastes and Race at Twenty: 1987-2007). Toxic Race and Waste at 20, 1987-2007 can be found at: http://d3n8a8pro7vhmx.cloudfront.net/unitedchurchofchrist/legacy_url/491/toxic-wastes-and-race-at-twenty-1987-2007.pdf?1418423933

Since then, more reports have come to emphasize that race matters when it comes to a community’s environmental health.

Race matters. People of color and persons of low socioeconomic status are still disproportionately impacted and are particularly concentrated in neighborhoods and communities with the greatest number of toxic and hazardous facilities. A growing body of research suggests that maternal exposure to environmental toxicants poses a risk not only to the mother’s health but to fetal and child health and development, too. These same persons often have substandard health care. Without adequate health-care, communities of color are at even more risk. Facilities. Race continues to be an independent predictor of where hazardous wastes are located, and it is a stronger predictor than income, education and other socioeconomic indicators. Indeed, a watershed moment has occurred in the last decade. People of color now comprise a majority in neighborhoods with commercial hazardous waste facilities, and much larger (more than two-thirds) majorities can be found in neighborhoods with clustered facilities. People of color in 2007 are more concentrated in areas with commercial hazardous sites than in 1987. African Americans, Hispanics/Latinos and Asian Americans/Pacific Islanders alike are disproportionately burdened by hazardous wastes in the US.

“Unequal protection places communities of color at special risk. Not only are people of color differentially impacted by toxic wastes and contamination, they can expect different responses from the government when it comes to building resilience after an environmental disaster or remediation. This can be as clearly seen in the two case studies in Post-Katrina New Orleans, and in Dickson County, Tennessee, or Hurricane Sandy. People of color and communities of color receive sluggish attention to their concerns. It appears that Thus it does not appear neither existing environmental, health, and civil rights laws, nor local land use controls have been adequately applied or adapted towards the reduction of to reducing health risks or the mitigation of mitigating various adverse impacts to families living in or near toxic “hot spots” which disproportionately house people of color.

“The current environmental protection apparatus is ‘broken’ and needs to be ‘fixed’. The current environmental protection system fails to provide equal protection to people of color and low income communities. Various levels of government have been slow to respond to environmental health threats from toxic waste in communities of color”

Despite the clear evidence and growing awareness of the consequence to everyone’s health from toxic dumping, our society’s attitude toward the production and disposal of hazardous products is one of “out of sight, out of mind.” But “out of sight, out of mind” is most often where the poor and those rendered powerless live and work. These communities have thus become toxic “sacrifice zones.” In short, environmental protection systems are broken, extraordinarily slow to respond and/or fail to provide equal protection to people of color and low-income communities.

While the focus here is on communities of color in the United States, we are aware that environmental racism is a global phenomenon. The displacement of native peoples—be it in Canada, Peru, or Ecuador—in the drive for oil and minerals has destroyed their land, water, and livelihoods; it also threatens to undermine their culture.

Communities, regions and entire nations are all impacted by climate changes that have led to typhoons, hurricanes, drought, or rising waters. Nations of the Global South are already more impacted and less prepared to respond to these climate changes. One positive development is an expanding climate justice movement that links the concerns of U.S. communities of color with leaders of international communities of color in resistance to environmental racism.

Therefore,

~~The continued pattern of environmental racism represents a serious challenge to the conscience of all Christians. We therefore ask our local churches, conferences and general agencies to join with other religious bodies and groups in actions to end this form of racism.~~

We urge the UMC to make sure that those who have historically experienced environmental racism are at the center of decision making and employment for a just, sustainable, healthy prosperity, and we request that:

• The Council of Bishops and all Boards and Agencies, conferences, local churches, and United Methodist (UM) faith communities to address environmental racism in any formal communication to the denomination concerning racism or the environment as a key dimension when addressing either racism or environmental concerns.

• The General Board of Pension and Health Benefits increase their shareholder activism to hold companies accountable for environmental abuse and unsustainable production practices particularly in those instances where people of color face are disproportionately impacted.

~~We urge Annual conferences, districts, local churches, UM faith communities, and general agencies to become more involved with community groups working to end environmental racism, particularly those organizations led by and for those who are directly impacted by the injustices. We urge UM faith communities to increase their support of actions and social movements led by those most impacted by pollutants to end environmental racism.~~

3. We urge all general program agencies and the General Commission on Religion and Race to:

~~a. Disseminate the 'stories' of people and communities affected by environmental racism and;~~

~~b. Find expertise, build leadership and develop networks that can help empower people within communities in crisis.~~

• The UMC through its Act of Repentance in Annual Conferences and in the Church with native peoples develop respectful, honoring relationships with native peoples and ask the Church to repent of the ways its well-intentioned followers devalued and disrespected native peoples' deep spirituality and care for the land that sustains us all. It was this deep disrespect that justified the genocide of hundreds of thousands of native peoples in the name of Christianity. We ask that when native peoples' lands are hurt today by power plants, mining (including coal, gold, copper, coltan, uranium), and garbage dumps (including nuclear waste) or access to clean water that the Church diligently work to reverse the damage and work to ensure that the right of indigenous populations to free, prior and informed consent (FPIC) are transparently honored.

• The UMC create sustainable practices throughout all Boards, Agency offices, and events in order to minimize waste and energy use as a response to injustice in neighborhoods which are in close proximity to incineration plants, garbage dumps, toxic chemical plants, industrial manufacturing, and power plants.

• The UMC advocate for jobs in low income areas that are good for the environment and that help eliminate pollutants, toxins, untested chemicals, and greenhouse gasses. Jobs should also maximize energy efficiency and renewable forms of energy. We call on the UMC to ensure that communities currently suffering from economic deprivation be among the first that are hired and trained for these jobs.

• The GBCS, GBOD, GBGM, and UMW develop educational resource programs that help annual conferences, districts and local churches respond to these concerns.

~~4. We urge the people called United Methodists to We call upon the General Board of Church and Society to:~~

~~• Advocate comprehensive legislation that remedies these injustices and adequately protects all citizens and the environment.~~

~~• Develop educational resource programs that help annual conferences, districts and local churches respond to these concerns; and~~

• Stand in solidarity with environmental justice movements led by people of color and native peoples who have been adversely impacted by environmental toxins in their neighborhoods.

• Develop a program of sustainability such as United Methodist Women's "13 Steps to Sustainability" which measures our adherence to both social justice and environmental justice principles.

• Urge industry the U.S. government to further develop and close loopholes on mandatory industry-wide standards for environmental accounting and auditing procedures which are publicly shared. Urge governments to hold industry officials responsible—legally, criminally, and financially—for toxic disasters when they erupt from negligence.

II. United Methodist Historical Concerns . . .

III. Our Shared Ecumenical Environmental Witness

The care for all creation is increasingly a shared commitment United Methodists share with other faith traditions. Most notably, we see the provision of the papal encyclical Laudato Si: On Care for our Common Home as a kairos moment for Christians. The encyclical calls for "a conversion which includes everyone, since the environmental challenge we are undergoing, and its human roots, concern and affect us all." We celebrate the theological and spiritual insights that come from this papal encyclical and the statements of other faith partners regarding the care of creation.

IV. Involvement

We urge all United Methodists, their local churches, boards, and agencies to examine their roles as stewards of God's earth and to study, discuss, and work to implement this resolution. As part of this exploration and implementation we strongly encourage study, dialogue, and cooperative initiatives with our ecumenical partners. We particularly recognize the importance to the whole church of the papal encyclical Laudato Si: On Care for our Com-

Rationale:

Laudato Si: On Care for our Common Home was published by Pope Francis May 24, 2015. Asking United Methodist to study this ecumenical witness indicates that we too seek conversion to lives as stewards of God's creation. How appropriate it was offered on Aldersgate Day!

Protection of Water

AMEND and READOPT Resolution 1029 - Protection of Water

In the Bible, water; in both its physical and spiritual dimensions; is a gift. God covenants with God's people and ~~extends invitations~~ invites to them to experience fullness of life. A measure of this abundant life is God's offer of water as a free gift without cost or price (Isaiah 55:1). ~~Both Water as an element and water of life as a healing agent (Revelation 22:17) are a gift of God~~ God's gifts to everyone who thirsts. “The Spirit and the bride say, ‘Come!’ Let everyone who hears this also say, ‘Come!’ Let the thirsty man come, and let everyone who wishes take the water of life as a gift” (Revelation 22:17 Phillips). Further, the Bible offers examples of God and humans intervening in people's water crises and providing water (Genesis 21:19; Genesis 24:15-21; Numbers 20:9-11). Water is an integral part of God's radical expression of God's love to all humanity. Water cannot be monopolized or privatized. It is to be shared like air, light, and earth. It is God's elemental provision for the survival ~~for~~ of all God's children ~~together~~ on this planet.

The problem is:

- Clean and plentiful water is the cornerstone of a prosperous community. But as we make our way through the twenty-first century, industrial and population demands are increasing as well as changing climate patterns are draining rivers and aquifers. Pollution threatens the quality of what remains. (National Resource Council, found at <http://www.nrdc.org/water/>)

- Despite strong overall progress in worldwide access to clean drinking water, 748 million people still did not have access to improved drinking water in 2012. Wealth is the key factor as to whether or not one can access an improved water supply. (World Health Organization and UNICEF, “Progress on Drinking Water and Sanitation: 2014 Update,” May 2014, available: www.who.int/water_sanitation_health/publications/2014/jmp-report/en)

- The progress or lack of progress towards just and affordable distribution of clean water for all starts with a principled acknowledgement of water as a human right. This right to water needs to be coupled with strong political accountability which adequately monitors the just implementation of the right to water. This requires political will from communities and governments.

- The world uses approximately 70 percent of its water for irrigation, 20 percent for industry, and 10 percent for domestic use. Roughly 75 percent of all industrial water usage is for energy production. It is estimated that by 2030, humanity's demand for water could outstrip sustainable supply by as much as 40 percent due to rising energy needs and continued population growth. Water policy that takes into consideration the water used in energy production and industrial agriculture must be implemented. (from <http://www.unwater.org/statistics/statistics-detail/en/c/211818/>; and <http://www.unwater.org/statistics/statistics-detail/en/c/211820/>)

• Current global water shortages are due to a multiplicity of reasons. Fossil fuel extraction and energy production account for over half of the water use in the United States. (http://www.ucsusa.org/clean_energy/our-energy-choices/energy-and-water-use/energy-and-water.html#.VdRw1HyFM9U). Industrial practices pollute water sources through chemical and toxic leaks, drainage, (http://www.ucsusa.org/clean_energy/our-energy-choices/energy-and-water-use/energy-and-water.html#.VdRw1HyFM9U) dumping, and runoff into rivers, lakes, and aquifers which then require more sophisticated water sanitation facilities. The result is the privatization of water sanitation and distribution, as well as higher water prices. Ultimately, water becomes inaccessible to those who are impoverished.

• In addition, climate change is exacerbating drought and flooding. Flooding further pollutes water sources. When water availability and sanitation practices are compromised, community safety and security are threatened.

• Many persons who are able to afford it have turned to bottled water, and bottled water is often shipped into communities that are suffering from industrialized pollution of their water sources. And yet, bottled water takes water from one community, packages it in petroleum-based plastic (a product that uses water in every part of its extraction, production, and waste cycles) and then sells it for a profit to those who can afford it elsewhere.

The complications of the lack of clean, fresh water for communities result in the following:

• Water use is increasing everywhere. The world's six billion inhabitants appropriate 54 percent of all accessible water.

• Globally, 69 percent of all water used on a yearly basis is used by agriculture; industry accounts for 23 percent, and domestic households account for 8 percent.

• Excess withdrawals, withdrawal at a rate greater than can be charged naturally is occurring in parts of the Arabian Peninsula, China, India, Mexico, the former Soviet Union, and the United States.

• One toilet flush uses as much water as an average person in a developing country uses in a whole day, to drink, cook, wash, and clean.

Food Security:

• Many of the 840 million people individuals in the world who go hungry lack adequate food live in water-scarce regions.

Health:

• 2.3 billion people suffer from diseases linked to dirty water.

• Diarrhea is the world's leading form of death affecting 2.5 million persons; 88 percent of those deaths are due to poor water quality. (Found at: <http://www.who.int>

/water_sanitation_health/publications/factsfigures04/en/ Without clean water and adequate sanitation, hygiene is compromised and overall health is affected.

Safety and Security:

• When water and sanitation are threatened, community safety and security are threatened. Many countries are already experiencing violent conflict because of water shortage.

Quality of Life:

• The world's ~~Around the world, there is a~~ cumulative pollution of aquifers, rivers, lakes and the oceans disturb the quality of all life. Biodiversity of fresh water ecosystems has been more degraded than any other ecosystem, and water sources by agriculture, industry, and mining waste. (Found at <https://www.cbd.int/waters/problem>)

• "If water usage continues in its present form the results will be devastating to the earth and its inhabitants. Each generation must ensure that the abundance and quality of water is not diminished as a result of its activities... water must be protected at any cost" (Maude Barlow: Blue Gold: The Global Water Crisis and the Commodification of the World's Water Supply).

Therefore be it resolved, the people called United Methodists

• Shall affirm, and educate and advocate for clean, accessible, affordable ~~that~~ water is as a basic human right. It is to be shared and enjoyed by all God's people; policy cannot favor the rich over the poor when it comes to accessing clean water.

• Shall work to ensure that the access to fresh water by human communities preempts industrial, energy, or industrial agriculture usage of the water supply.

• Shall work to ensure that water sheds be protected for their essential role in human survival, and recognize the transboundary nature of water sheds (between communities, states and nations) and work to cooperate across those boundaries for everyone's benefit.

• Shall work to require transnational trade agreements mandate corporations protect water supplies and governments develop and maintain mechanisms of regulation and accountability.

• Shall encourage and develop strategies for guiding principles protecting our water supplies;

• shall support the United Nations World Summit on Sustainable Developments commitment to reduce by half the number of people without sustainable access to safe drinking water by 2015;

• shall affirm and teach methods to support the International Year of Freshwaters commitment to protect and respect our water resources as individuals, communities, countries, a global family of concerned citizens;

~~• shall encourage and commit to good water management by all entities, corporations and communities encourage and commit to good water management by all entities, corporations and communities;~~

~~• Shall push advocate that companies and corporate entities that pollute water supplies, to provide funds and services to clean the polluted waters that they pollute; and~~

~~• Shall urge all governments to make transparent, community-centered decisions about water use.~~

~~• Shall implement practices that minimize and make sustainable their own use of water in the church and at events.~~

~~• Shall advocate that all countries take responsibility for the federal subsidies for both the development and implementation of renewable wind and sun and geothermal energy. way they use water.~~

~~• Shall develop practices that reduce the use of individual bottled water.~~

~~• Shall observe World Water Day (March 22)~~

R3126.

Petition Number: 60241-CA-R3126-G; McKinney, Sarah E.H. - Summerfield, NC, USA for Office of Christian Unity and Interreligious Relationships - Council of Bishops.

Prejudice Against Muslims and Arabs

Delete current Resolution 3126 and replace with: 3126. Prejudice Against Muslims and Arabs

Today across the world there are increased incidents of violence and prejudice against Muslims, and against non-Muslim Arabs. Arab organization offices, mosques, and Islamic centers have been bombed and torched. Muslims and persons whose garb appears Islamic (particularly Sikhs) are being detained in airports and other places without justification. They are continually subjected to harassment and discrimination. Though discriminatory acts against Arabs and Muslims do not stand in isolation from similar acts perpetrated against other racial and ethnic persons around the world, their existence and effects upon Arabs and Muslims have been little acknowledged in society, with concomitant deleterious effect on perceptions in primarily non-Muslim parts of the world, as they touch upon relations with predominantly Arab and Muslim nations and organizations.

Therefore, The United Methodist Church, in the knowledge that Jesus calls us to the blessings of peace-making and reminds us that the highest law is to love God and neighbor, calls its members and its leaders:

1. To oppose demagoguery, manipulation, and image making that seeks to label Arabs and Muslims in a negative way;

2. To counter stereotypical and bigoted statements made against Muslims and Islam, Arabs and Arabic culture;

3. To increase knowledge of neighbor by study and personal contact that yield a greater appreciation of the Muslim and Arabic contributions to society;

4. To act decisively to include Arabs and Muslims in interfaith and community organizations;

5. To pray for the perfection of community among us and to participate fully in the process of bringing it into being; and

6. To publicly denounce through statements from the Council of Bishops and the General Board of Church and Society current practices that discriminate against this community.

In order to aid United Methodists to respond to this call, all boards, agencies, and institutions of The United Methodist Church are requested to provide resources and programs and, where appropriate, to act in advocacy.

Gambling

Amend #4041. Gambling

Amend paragraph 1, sentence 1:

The Social Principles state that, “Gambling is a menace to society, deadly to the best interests of moral, social, economic, and spiritual life, [and] destructive of good government . . . and good stewardship.”

Amend paragraph 1, sentence 4:

∴ The Church’s ~~prophetic call is to~~ should promote standards of justice and personal lifestyles advocacy that would make it unnecessary and undesirable to the resort to commercial gambling—including public lotteries, ~~easinos, raffles, Internet gambling, gambling with an emerging wireless technology, and other games of chance~~—as a recreation, as an escape, or as a means of producing public revenue or funds for support of charities or government” (Social Principles, ¶1 63G).

Amend paragraph 2, sentence 1:

When asked which commandment is first of all, Jesus answered, “~~Israel, listen! Our God is the one LORD, and you must Hear, O Israel: the LORD our God, the LORD is one; you shall love the LORD your God with all your heart, with all your beingsoul, and with all your mind, and with all your strength~~” (Mark 12:29-30, NRSV).

Amend paragraph 2, sentence 4:

Jesus said: “You ~~will~~shall love your neighbor as yourself” (Mark 12:31b, NRSV). In relating with compassion and love to our sisters and brothers, we are called to resist those practices and systems that exploit them and leave them impoverished and demeaned. The apostle Paul wrote in 1 Timothy 6:9-10a: People “who ~~are trying~~want to get rich fall into temptation and a trap and into many foolish and harmful desires. They are trapped by many stupid and harmful passions that plunge peoplemen into ruin and destruction. For ~~¶~~the love of money is thea root of all kinds of evil” (NIV).

Amend paragraph 9, multiple deletions, insertions:

We especially express our deep concern at the rapid growth of two forms of gambling: Internet/Digital Gambling: Internet/Digital gambling—encompassing online, mobile, and digital TV based gambling services—is available in the privacy of one’s home and even in churches. Because computer usage is available in the privacy of one’s home and even in churches, the potential for Easy access to Internet/Digital gambling websites greatly increases and the potential for addiction and abuse to Internet gambling is great. Internet/Digital gambling is an international problem and it is virtually unregulated, which ~~has led~~ leads to corruption, money laundering, and funding of terrorist organizations. Individuals and local churches should seek to educate themselves on the easy access to Internet/Digital gambling ~~websites~~. The social cost of addiction to Internet/Digital gambling is great and leads to bankruptcy, suicide, and family discord. Young adults and senior citizens are among the most vulnerable populations at risk to gambling addiction. Parents and caregivers should take steps to ensure that children and the elderly with access to ~~computers~~ electronic devices and digital media not be exposed to Internet/Digital gambling ~~websites~~. Local churches and annual conferences should provide educational resources for parents and caregivers on the dangers of Internet/Digital gambling and enact strict oversight of church-owned electronic devices and digital media, including computers.

The UMC, Food Justice, and World Hunger

Amend and Readopt Resolution 4051 as follows:

4051. The United Methodist Church, Food Justice, and World Hunger

Isn’t this . . .

I. The Scope and Causes of World Hunger and Food Insecurity Introduction

Delete first ¶ and accompanying footnote

Although globally enough food is produced to feed everyone, ~~840-805~~ million people are undernourished, ~~799~~ 791 million (98%) of them in the developing world (State of Food Insecurity in the World 2014, FAO). Children and elderly are particularly at risk. Nearly half of all deaths in children under five are attributable to under-nutrition. This translates into the unnecessary loss of about 3 million young lives a year: (<http://www.data.unicef.org/nutrition/malnutrition#sthash.9k0zPUqe.dpuf>) Each year, six million children die as a result of hunger. Although hunger is also a problem in cities, 75 percent of the world's hungry people live in rural areas.

It is estimated that 80% of the world's hungry live in rural areas and are largely dependent on agriculture for their livelihoods; approximately 50% are smallholder farmers cultivating marginal lands prone to natural disasters like drought or flood, 20% are landless families working on other people's land and 10% depend on herding, fishing or forest resources. (World Food Program: <<http://www.wfp.org/hunger/who-are>>).

Over 2 billion people suffer from micronutrient deficiencies or "hidden hunger." Micronutrient deficiencies occur when diets fail to provide sufficient amounts of micronutrients such as iodine, iron, zinc, and vitamin A. Micronutrient deficiencies increase morbidity and mortality, impair cognitive development, reduce learning ability and productivity, and reduce work capacity in populations as a result of higher rates of illness and disability—resulting in a tragic loss of human potential. For example, around 50% of pregnant women in developing countries are iron deficient. Lack of iron means 315,000 women die annually from hemorrhage at childbirth (World Food Program: <<http://www.wfp.org/hunger/who-are>>).

The reasons for this continuing tragedy are complex and interrelated. Some causes of world hunger are:

- drought and other weather-related problems;
- poverty, and greed, drought and other weather-related problems, dwindling water sources, and environmental degradation;
- inequitable distribution of wealth and unjust economic systems;
- insufficient food production in developing nations;
- lack of access to basic means of production (seeds, tools, land, water) or the credit to obtain them;
- insecure tenure or title to productive land;
- high incidence of waterborne diseases due to lack of access to and use of safe water sources and adequate hygiene and sanitation facilities;
- food loss and waste—globally, roughly one-third of the food produced for human consumption, about 1.3 billion tons per year, are lost or wasted;
- use of arable land for nonfood and cash crops such as tobacco;
- increasing emphasis on export-oriented agriculture from poorer countries;

- overfishing of the oceans;
- population growth;
- internal displacement of people;
- production of unnecessary goods and services that waste resources, and;
- wasteful consumerism in richer countries;

- wasteful consumerism in richer countries;
- militarism, war, and civil unrest;
- HIV/AIDS pandemic;
- corruption in governments;
- lending policies of the World Bank (IBRD) and the International Monetary Fund (IMF);
- environmental degradation;
- use of farm subsidies in richer nations that export to poor countries, causing poorer countries ~~them~~ to reject their own products;
- lack of participation in decision-making processes and access to land, training and agricultural inputs by women; and
- poor regulations of multinational corporations; and
- dwindling water resources.

II. Theological Bases for Action

The Bible reveals . . .

As Christians, a key question . . .

In the incarnation, life, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ, the promise and the first fruits of redemption were brought to sinful and selfish humanity. Jesus' own concern for human need in his ministry is a model for the church's concern. His opposition to those who would ignore the needs of the neighbor makes clear that we grossly misunderstand and fail to grasp God's grace if we imagine that God overlooks, condones, or easily tolerates our indifference to the plight of our neighbors, our greed and selfishness, or our systems of injustice and oppression.

We believe that God's Holy Spirit . . .

III. A Call for United Methodists

Change is not easy. Movement toward the abolishment of hunger, injustice, and poverty requires commitment and stamina. All nations, particularly the developed nations, must examine and modify those values, attitudes, and institutions that are the basic causes of poverty and underdevelopment, the primary sources of world and economic hunger and disease. United Methodists must act corporately and individually.

e. participate in projects such as “The Souper Bowl of Caring” and Bread for the World’s annual “Offering of Letters.”

5. We urge the General Board of Church and Society and the General Board of Global Ministries to:

a. work with the Food and Agriculture Organization, the International Fund for Agricultural Development, international development organizations, and grassroots small farmer and peasant organizations for the right of everyone to have access to adequate safe and nutritious food acceptable within their culture. This would require many countries to implement genuine agrarian reforms that allow for the fair distribution of incomes, new management models which place human needs before profits, and access for the poor to land, natural resources, capital, and markets. Many developed countries would have to reform their agricultural subsidies programs.

b. work with other churches and agencies in the United States and internationally:

1) for the achievement of the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals that will succeed the United Nations Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) which set targets for 2015 and will set targets for developing nations to contribute to substantial improvements in the developing world in areas of basic education, infant and maternal mortality, clean water supplies and sanitation, gender equity, food and nutrition security, poverty reduction, environmental sustainability and climate change adaptation; and throughout the developing nations; and, because progress is currently not fast enough to meet those targets by 2015;

2) to continue urge governments to support the creation of any proposals for an International Finance Facility (IFF) (beyond the smaller IFF that already exists to support immunizations) that would facilitate transfer of private sector investment funds from industrialized nations to developing nations as a catalyst for quicker progress in achieving United Nations Sustainable Development Goals.

The concept is that, in addition to regular aid flows, these private investments flowing from industrialized countries would be treated as a liability of the countries from which the investment flowed, rather than a liability of the recipient country, and would be repaid eventually from the aid budget of the country from which the investment flowed. This approach will avoid increasing the debt burden of the poorer recipient nations and facilitate sustainable development (see, e.g., <<http://www.leadinggroup.org/rubrique179.html>>). The concept is that, in addition to regular aid flows, donor governments in rich countries should guarantee additional flows of funds from the private sector to the developing world. These would allow investments by developing economies to enable ~~them to converge more closely onto the MDGs. This private sector finance would be a liability of the rich country governments and therefore not increase the debt burden of the poorer nations. It would eventually be repaid out of the rich country aid budgets but mostly after 2015. The IFF is therefore a means of bringing forward potential investment money to enable much earlier progress toward the MDGs.~~

Global Debt Crisis A Call for Jubilee

Delete current text and replace with the following:

I. Introduction

Since the inception of the global Jubilee Campaign in 2000, we can celebrate important strides. The debt of 36 nations to the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank has been wiped out, with the proceeds going to fight poverty in these nations. Despite this important step, the global debt crisis continues to cripple poor countries. Countries in Africa, Asia, the Pacific, Latin America, and the Caribbean owe over $6 trillion with debt in the poorest countries that received debt relief growing rapidly again. The global financial crisis of 2008-09 and the ensuing policy responses had and continue to have negative spillovers for the debt of developing countries. For many countries left behind by world leaders, the burden of repaying the debt continues to prevent them from providing adequate health care, education, and food for their people. This debt burden—often incurred illegitimately by dictators—inhibits the social and economic change that is needed to lift people out of poverty. Throughout the world there is a call for Jubilee, a call for debt cancellation in a Sabbath Year.

II. Biblical Foundation

Scriptures mandate periodically overcoming structural injustice and poverty and for restoring right relationships by forgiving debt and reforming land holding. In the earliest Sabbath traditions, consumption and exploitation of the land were limited by the Sabbath and the Sabbath year. People and animals were to rest every seventh day (Exodus 23:10-12). In the Sabbath year, there was to be release from debts and slavery and during the jubilee year, every fiftieth year, a restoration of all family lands (Leviticus 25). Fulfilling these commandments proclaims “the year of the LORD’s favor” (Isaiah 61:1-2), and anticipates “a new heaven and a new earth” (Isaiah 65:17-25).

Jesus emphasized this jubilee vision of proclaiming good news to the poor, release of the captives, sight to the blind, and liberation of the oppressed (Luke 4:16-19). He taught his disciples to pray for the forgiveness of debts (as we forgive our debtors) (Matthew 6:12 NRSV). Pentecost results in the voluntary sharing of possessions, so that “there were no needy persons among them” (Acts 4:34 CEB; Deuteronomy 15:4).

The Sabbath tradition of the jubilee vision is as relevant today as it was thousands of years ago. Debt bondage by the poorest countries to rich nations and financial institutions is today’s new slavery. The accelerating concentration of wealth for a few in the richest countries and the devastating decline in living standards in the poorest countries call for correction along the lines of the ancient Sabbath and Jubilee cycles. The social, political, and ecological costs of the debt crisis are intolerable and must be challenged and stopped. Only when we have implemented the Sabbath-Jubilee mandate can we “turn to God” and “rejoice in hope.”

III. Causes of the Debt Crisis

The causes of the debt crisis are complex. Colonialism tied the developing world’s economies to the export of agricultural, mineral, and other raw materials while creating a dependence on manufactured imported goods with higher and more stable prices than raw materials. When prices of raw materials are down, countries whose economies depend heavily on them for exports build debts to pay for basic imports. When they are up—as it has been the case recently—their apparently improved prospects lead them to contract large borrowing that cannot be paid back by relying on commodity exports alone and expose them to more debt when commodity prices swing back down again.

Another cause of the debt is the lack of transparency, accountability, and democratic processes in lending and borrowing practices. A growing number of governments is undertaking official audits to assess the legitimacy of debts. Odious debts can also result. When debts result from loans contracted without the knowledge or consent of the population, government officials used the money for personal purposes or to oppress their people, and these are facts that creditors knew or should have known, the resulting debts may be considered odious and creditors cannot legitimately expect their repayment. Examples of odious debt are money from loans stolen by the ruling elite of the then-Indonesian dictator Suharto; debts contracted by the apartheid regime of South Africa; and debts accrued during the dictatorial rule of Mobutu Sese Seko in the Democratic Republic of Congo, Ferdinand Marcos in the Philippines, and the military junta in Argentina.

IV. Consequences of the Global Crisis—Everyone Loses

The World Bank and International Monetary Fund (IMF), the two main international financial institutions, lend money and reschedule the debt of poor countries. These loans to highly indebted poor countries come with conditions previously known as Structural Adjustment Programs (SAPs), however, and today most commonly referred as austerity. SAPs consisted of measures designed to help a country repay its debts by earning more hard currency, i.e., increasing exports and decreasing imports, and cutting budget deficits. While a few countries appear to have been helped by SAPs, poverty and inequality have increased in most countries due to the externally imposed programs. This is because, in order to obtain more foreign currency and cut budget deficits, governments implementing such policies usually must:

- reduce government spending, resulting in cuts in health care, education, and social services, forcing many people to go without;
- reduce inflation by limiting the money supply, oftentimes with contractionary effects on employment, credit and growth

- reduce or eliminate transportation and food subsidies — because of this, prices of essentials soar out of the financial reach of many citizens;

- reduce jobs and wages for workers in government industries and services;

- encourage privatization of public industries, which benefits the country's business elite and foreign investors;

- broaden the tax base often by introducing regressive tax reforms, such as sales taxes or taxes on the poorest informal sector; and

- shift agricultural and industrial production from food staples and basic goods for domestic use to commodities for export, which results in a transfer of land holdings from small subsistence farmers to large-scale agribusiness, leaving many farmers with no land to grow their own food and few are employed on these new cash-crop farms.

Children and women bear the full costs of debt repayment. In addition, by concentrating on exports in order to repay their debts, poor countries strip forests and overexploit land and nonrenewable resources, further aggravating serious environmental problems. Reports on the impact of debt repayment show that many indebted governments spend two to four times as much money “servicing,” that is, making timely interest and principal payments, their international debt as they spend on health care, such as basic medicines and clean water, and education combined.

These IMF and World Bank policies, by taking away indebted country's sovereignty, undermine accountability by debtor governments, which in turn erodes local democratic institutions.

Today, a growing part of the debt is owed to private, commercial lenders, which adds to the debt burden and its impoverishing impacts on people. Crises in countries like Argentina, several Caribbean and European nations, notably Greece, show that the world lacks adequate tools to properly restructure these types of debts. The consequences of private-led debt crises are no different from the crises that were driven by credits provided by public international financial institutions.

The debt burden carried by impoverished nations hurts everyone, including citizens of rich nations such as the United States. The environmental damage magnified by indebtedness, such as destruction of forests, has global repercussions. Growing poverty worsened by the debt is linked to the spread of disease. Indebted countries are forced to use scarce dollars for debt payments instead of importing goods and services. This directly affects jobs and incomes in the rich countries. Indebtedness creates the climate that fosters the production and trafficking of illicit drugs. Debt also causes an increase of economic migration. It should trouble the conscience of citizens of rich nations that people living in misery have to spend their money for debt servicing that they need for their own survival.

V. Principles to Guide Debt-Crisis Solutions

As Christians, our love of God and neighbor must be reflected by our actions within the global family. Thus, we affirm the following policies and principles as necessary to ensure a just resolution to the debt crisis:

We need to examine patterns of greed that may cause us as individuals and nations to become debtors and lenders. Debt cancellation and relief should be fashioned in a way that benefits the poor and helps move debtor nations to sustainable human development.

The poor should not bear the burden of repayment and structural adjustment. Living standards of those least responsible and most vulnerable should not be sacrificed in order to meet external obligations. As put by the Guiding Principles on Foreign Debt and Human Rights, adopted by the Human Rights Council in 2012, “Debtor States should ensure that their level of debt servicing is not so excessive or disproportionate relative to their financial capacity and other resources as to amount to a diversion of their resources away from the provision of social services to all persons living in their territory and under their jurisdiction, including those pertaining to economic, social and cultural rights” (Principle 48).

Developing countries have the right to choose their own development paths without military or economic interference from outside. They should not be forced to surrender their right to political or economic self-determination in exchange for relief.

The debt burden should be shared equitably among credit institutions and the debtor governments, corporations, banks, and elites that incurred the debt. Factors adding to and perpetuating the debt problem but beyond the control of debtor countries, such as previous U.S. budget deficits, high interest rates, unfair commodity prices, and trade barriers, should be alleviated.

Long-term solutions should promote a more just international economic system and the restoration of revenues for poor populations through curbing illicit financial flows and corporate tax avoidance, in order to prevent such crises from recurring. New structures and mechanisms, involving participation and dialogue between creditors and debtors, including civil society groups such as community and faith-based organizations are critically needed.

There is a need for a new just process of arbitration for international debt cancellation, such as the introduction of an international sovereign insolvency law that ensures creditors share in the burden of responsibility for losses and debtors can get sufficient debt relief.

New mechanisms involving civil society must produce ethical, mutually responsible and transparent solutions that not only satisfy requirements for economic efficiency, but also for the protection of basic human needs and rights as well as protecting of the environment.

Where funds are released through debt cancellation or other relief measures, civil-society organizations must be enabled to take part in determining how monies are reallocated for social priorities.

VI. Recommended Actions for The United Methodist Church

The United Methodist Church, as a covenant community committed to Christian discipleship and advocacy with the poor, must work toward “measures that would reduce the concentration of wealth in the hands of a few” (§ 163, 2008 Book of Discipline). Thus, the General Conference of The United Methodist Church:

1. celebrates the worldwide movement to cancel the crushing debt of the world’s poorest countries and the participation of the General Board of Church and Society and the General Board of Global Ministries in the campaign;

2. recognizes even with the progress made to cancel the debt of impoverished countries, much more remains to be done: as debts are accumulating faster than they are being cancelled;

3. calls for the United States, governments of other leading industrial nations, private commercial lending institutions, and international financial institutions such as the World Bank and IMF to:

a. cancel the debts of the poorest countries to enable them to meet human development goals, beginning with the Sustainable Development Goals;

b. audit their lending portfolios, including loans made to middle-income countries, in order to assess the legitimacy of these loans;

c. support measures to promote accountability of debtor countries when debts are relieved; these measures must be determined and monitored by local community organizations, including churches, and other communities of faith, and representative organizations of civil society, to ensure that debt cancellation leads to a more just distribution of wealth;

d. promote the orderly resolution of debtor-creditor disputes in cases of crises, through mechanisms similar to a bankruptcy process;

e. use their powers to ensure that funds illegitimately transferred to secret foreign bank accounts are returned to debtor nations; and

f. engage, in consultation with civil society, in a process of global economic reform toward the development of responsible financing standards for a more just distribution of wealth and prevention of new cycles of debt;

g. promote progressive, transparent and accountable tax systems backed by fully supportive international-tax cooperation.

4. urges the General Board of Church and Society and the General Board of Global Ministries to:

a. work with annual and central conferences to become advocates for the above actions; and

b. develop and distribute resources to annual conferences and local congregations.

5. urges United Methodist theological seminaries to include Christian responsibility for economic justice, including the global debt crisis, as a necessary part of education for ministry; and

6. urges the General Board of Church and Society and the General Board of Global Ministries to continue public policy work for major reforms of the International Monetary Fund, the World Bank, the World Trade Organization, and other international financial institutions to promote equitable development through poverty alleviation, protection of the environment, openness, democracy, and human rights.

Greed

Amend and Readopt Resolution 4056 - Greed God’s vision of abundant living is a world where we live out of a theology of “enough,” a theology based in the knowledge that we are grounded in Christ, that our sense of personal value and esteem grows from our Christ-centered life. (Book of Resolutions, 2000, #188)

Scripture calls us to be compassionate and just stewards of our wealth and warns us of the sin of greed and its devastating effects. The Law ensured that the basic needs and rights of the poor were protected from the greedy (Exodus 23:6-11; Leviticus 25:35-55). The prophets warned that an economic system based on greed is contrary to God’s will and leads to society’s ruin of the society (Amos 8:4-7; Jeremiah 22:13-17). Echoing the Law and the prophets, Jesus condemned the rich for the hypocrisy of greed and the barriers greed creates to attaining salvation (Luke 6:24; 16:1-15; Matthew 18:16-22). He taught that in the God’s economy that Reign of God everyone would have enough (Matthew 13:31-32; 20:1-16). The early church rejected greed by sharing their wealth among their members (Acts 2:44-45). When their salvation was jeopardized by greed, Paul warned them that “the love of money is the root of all kinds of evil” (1 Timothy 6:6-10).

In our Wesleyan tradition, greed is an impediment to holiness. John Wesley taught and practiced that excessive wealth, absent of effective stewardship and radical charity, prevents a believer from growing in grace and cultivates sinful actions and attitudes. Wesley said that greed is “destructive of that faith which is of the operation of God; of that hope which is full of immortality; of love of God and of our neighbor, and of every good word and work.” (“The Danger of Riches” I.11) Wesley also believed that stewardship that centers on care for the poor is a means of Grace. “O let your heart be whole with God. Sit as loose to all things here below as if you was a poor beggar. Be a good steward of the manifold gifts of God.” (“On Riches” H.12)

Furthermore, John Wesley encouraged government leaders to develop public policies that provided for the well-being of the poor and the just distribution of wealth through taxation. For example, he praised the mayor of Cork for public policies which curbed the negative effects of greed on the poor. In his tract, “Thoughts on the Present Scarcity of Provisions” he described the widespread suffering of the poor due to changes in the English economy. Among his solutions was a call for the wealthy to pay taxes on their carriages and for the government to regulate the amount the poor could be charged for land rent.

Therefore, we follow in this Methodist tradition and oppose public policies that we support measures that have encouraged speculation; and tax policies that have concentrated wealth. would reduce the concentration of wealth in the hands of the few. We encourage personal lifestyles that embody good stewardship of wealth on behalf of the poor. We oppose “free trade agreements that strengthen the movement of money and goods but do not permit the free movement of labor across borders. International trade agreements without strong, just systems for corporate accountability have often decimated local cultures and their social support systems and have deeply affected environmental and economic sustainability. The proposed Trans-Pacific Partnership also has weak environmental, community and labor protections. We also further support efforts to revise tax structures so that the wealthiest pay enough for all to have guaranteed social protections and to eliminate governmental support programs that now benefit the wealthy at the expense of other persons (Social Principles, ¶ 163 <<https://www.umofficialresources.com/reader/9781426766213/>>; see also 2008 the 2012 Book of Resolutions, #4052, “Economic Justice for a New Millennium”). Gandhi predicted: “There is enough in the world for everyone’s need; there is not enough for everyone’s greed.”

Call to Action:

At the General Church Level:

1. That the General Board of Global Ministries, the General Board of Church and Society and United Methodist Women study and support national and international measures which in the US Congress that would reject new trade agreements that encourage allow continuing subsidies to the free flow richest nations and multinational corporations of capital across national lines without environmental, economic and social regulations or provisions for labor migration. That we support policies that promote the social, economic world and political self-determinations restrict the possibilities of all nations and peoples. advancement of the poorest nations and individuals including family farmers everywhere.

2. That ~~F~~The United Methodist Church oppose tax reduction measures that would increase the concentration of wealth in the hands of the few and support progressive taxation to more equitably distribute income taxes and wealth across all income brackets. This includes a focus on taxing income and property rather than taxes on items of daily consumption. Taxes on daily consumption disproportionately impact people with low incomes.

3. That ~~F~~The United Methodist Church increase its advocate for revisions of tax structures to reduce the regressive taxes paid by the poor worldwide and redouble our efforts toward debt cancellation for nations of the Global South and challenge usurious loan practices in the United States that push interest on those unable to pay, intensifying poverty. the poorest nations.

4. That the General Board of Global Ministries and the General Board of Church and Society, and United Methodist Women work with partners to support research public policy ~~that regulates the solutions to practices in global financial industry's markets which create currency speculation that destroys the ability of countries to protect their currency from~~ which has had a devastating impact on both developed and developing nations. ~~ruin~~

At the Local Church Level:

1. That local congregations challenge "overconsumption" in a culture which does not take into consideration the consequences of such consumption including disproportionate resource use and waste. ~~organize "simple living" seminars in our churches and UMW units.~~

2. That local congregations examine their investments and endowment funds to determine how they can be better invested in underserved and impoverished communities with regards to community development, coops, credit unions, and projects concerning the affordability and accessibility of housing, healthy foods and energy. ~~utilized for the poor.~~

3. That local congregations ~~expand their stewardship programs to include education about the effects of materialism on discipleship.~~ That local congregations advocate for just tax structures fairness in local taxes that ensure the well-being of the poor. That all people have adequate resources for housing, affordable healthy food, clean water, energy, healthcare and public transportation.

4. That the people called United Methodists search the ~~S~~Scriptures concerning systemic greed, understand the current inequities built into our economic system and pray for forgiveness where appropriate, and develop relationships of mutuality and reconciliation across class, status, race, gender, ability, sexual orientation, and age while advocating for a system which, like the early Christians and John Wesley, values a just distribution of our common resources.

Protecting Health Care, Labor, and Environment

Amend Resolution 4057:

Add new first paragraph before current text

Since the time of the prophet Ezekiel (34:4), Scripture has clearly affirmed nations' obligation to heal the sick and bind up the injured. In addition, Scripture has condemned the exploitation of the poor and those who use judicial systems to crush the needy (Proverbs 22:22-23).

Amend Paragraph 1, fourth and fifth sentences

~~In the future, GATS rules under discussion could prevent member countries, including the United States, from considering a full range of solutions to problems in their health-care systems or from protecting standards for working conditions. Countries could be challenged under GATS for subsidizing hospitals that disproportionately serve the poor or that seek to extend current "monopolies" such as the US Medicare program to include additional services, such as prescription drugs. Proposed GATS rules could allow foreign corporations and governments to challenge laws requiring reasonable staffing ratios, use of safe needles, and professional licensing as "more burdensome than necessary." In negotiations for the Trans-Pacific Partnership in 2014, the United States continued to promote provisions permitting tobacco companies to sue countries that legislate against tobacco marketing in the interest of public health. Under existing trade agreements, tobacco companies have sued Australia's plain packaging law and Uruguay's tobacco health warnings.~~

Privatization

Amend and Readopt Resolution 4058 - Privatization

“The earth and its fullness are ~~all that is in it belong to the Lord Lord’s~~” (1 Corinthians 10:26 NRSV). The Lord’s people have been given enough—an abundance of all of the things we need for life.

“We believe [that] governments have the responsibility, in the pursuit of justice and order under law, to provide procedures that protect the rights of the whole society as well as those of private ownership” (Social Principles, ¶ 163.A <<https://www.umofficialresources.com/reader/9781426766213/>>).

One of our values as Christians is to provide an economy that serves God’s vision of abundance to all. (Ecclesiastes 3:22 (NRSV) states “So I ~~perceived~~ saw that there ~~was is~~ nothing better than that all should for human beings but to enjoy their work, for that is their lot” what they do because that’s what they’re allotted in life,” Luke 10:7 and 1 Timothy 5:18 state “the laborer deserves to be paid” (NRSV), workers deserve their pay.” And it is written in Matthew 20:8 “Call the ~~workers~~ laborers and give them their ~~wages pay~~” NRSV).

Jesus singled out the poor, and the sick and the imprisoned for special care and made them the special responsibility of the faithful. Under many privatization schemes, responsibility by the public has been abandoned to private enterprise. Our responsibility to the sick and poor and imprisoned has been left to the devices of private profit. Privatized prisons, nursing homes, hospitals, welfare programs and other social services have sometimes been less dedicated to service and rehabilitation than to cutting service and increasing profits (Resolution 4052, “Economic Justice for a New Millennium,” The Book of Resolutions of The United Methodist Church, 2008 Book of Resolutions, #4052, “Economic Justice for a New Millennium”).

(Social Principles ¶ 162 <<https://www.umofficialresources.com/reader/9781426766213/>>) “~~We support the basic rights of all persons to equal access to housing, ... employment, ... medical care, ... and physical protection.~~”

(2008 Resolution #3201, “Health Care for All in the United States”) “~~private health insurance in all its forms, continues to increase its premium cost while limiting care and /or increasing deductibles and co-payments for care.~~” Just 20 years ago, only about 18 percent of HMOs (Health Maintenance Organizations) were for profit. By 1995, the market share was 70 percent. HMOs charge up to 25 percent out of every premium dollar for CEO salaries, profits and bureaucracy; Medicare has administrative costs of only 1.2 percent.

(2008 Resolution #1026) “We are called to see that all life has a sufficient share of the resources of nature.” Resolution 1026, “Environmental Stewardship”: Right to Abundant and Clean Water, Book of Resolutions, 2008).

Introduction

Corporate interests are rushing to privatize many of the resources of the earth—water, energy, education, natural plants, human and animal genes, cultures and public services such as social security, health care and public safety. Everything from prescription drugs to prisons to welfare programs is considered fair game for corporate profit-making. Wall Street, according to the Economic Policy Institute, is fighting hard for a privatized Social Security system because it would reap an estimated $240 billion dollars in fees for managing these funds during the first ~~12~~ twelve years of such a system.

Private Control

Supporters of privatization accuse government of inefficiency and claim that, if allowed to make a profit, these same corporations could control resources more effectively and efficiently, saving public money and delivering better services better. The expectation of privatization is that government would continue to collect taxes from the citizens and then provide that tax money to ~~the~~ corporate CEOs who would manage salaries, resources, and functions better. Those who favor privatization argue that they would earn a profit, benefit the economy, and be less encumbered by inefficient bureaucracy and public controls.

The World Bank is actively subsidizing the privatization of public resources worldwide. The World Trade Organization (WTO) has been quietly renegotiating and expanding the General Agreement on Trade in Services (GATS). The range of services on the negotiating table is vast, covering such vital areas as water and energy, banking, communications and retail services. Eighty additional countries have been targeted by the European Union for this invasion by foreign corporations. If governments refuse to cooperate, they may be faced with world trade disputes claiming “barriers to free trade.”

Public Control

Opponents of privatization point to corporate abuses and criminality in the management of pensions, energy and communications systems.

Those who favor continued public control and regulation of these common resources and services argue that, when private forces take control, there is less accountability to the citizens. They claim that ever-growing profits are the primary interest of the corporations ~~doing the pri-~~ vatizing. They also note that worker salaries and working conditions are usually forfeited in the name of efficiency and in order to increase private profits. Loss of well-paid public sector jobs is a burden to society in many ways, including reduced tax revenues and increasing the need for social welfare programs.

People worldwide are challenging the privatization of commonly held resources such as native seeds and plants under intellectual property rules established under international financial institutions such as the ~~World Trade Organization~~ WTO. Many are calling for public control of resources such as water and the drugs necessary for eradicating some of stamping out the world's most devastating diseases of our world and the water that is essential to life on earth.

Discernment

There may be instances where privatization is appropriate. However, the role of Christians requires us to honor the earth's resources and to protect our God-given common heritage. The public must be vigilant to regulate and control ~~any~~ the privatization and the profiteering of public resources.

New Laws to Protect Our Common Property

We have rules that protect our private property and our personal property, individual property. We also need strong, ethical governments and new laws to protect our common property—the ~~common~~ resources that God has asked us belong to be stewards all of us and the common services that constitute the basis of human dignity, protected by universal human rights. Responsive governments must be strengthened and supported to provide protection for all, particularly in the most exploited and impoverished vulnerable nations, but also those marginalized communities in wealthy nations. These and particularly in support of the elements that are necessary as pre-conditions for all persons to experience to the abundant life provided by God.

There are efforts by the international financial institutions to impose new rules that increase the private invasion of common property. The sovereignty of underdeveloped countries has been would be undermined by Rule 11 of NAFTA and will be further undermined by and other free trade agreements such as the proposed Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP) trade agreement. Free Trade Area of the Americas. These trade rules strengthen the ability of private interests to force local communities to allow their free trade operations and privatization of common resources without effective regulation. Under Rule 11, if the governments move to regulate the activities of the corporations on behalf of their own workers or their own environment, they face multimillion dollar penalties in private trade courts unattended and unregulated by the public. These rules, called “takings,” are increasing the poverty and devastation of communities worldwide.

The Need for Effective Governments

Effective and democratic governments worldwide must be strengthened in order to function on behalf of the interest of their citizens. Our common resources do not belong to government or market, but responsible and effective government is essential for protecting those public properties. Privatization of common property rights should be viewed as a “form of taking” from the people. For decades a body of international rules has been developing led by corporations that would challenge the rights of governments to protect their workers and their natural resources from corporate exploitation.

Call to Action

The United Methodist Church and its predecessors have always had a history of public witness on matters of economic justice. Faced with protecting and securing the common resources and services needed by all humanity, the General Conference calls upon:

1. The General Board of Global Ministries to develop an educational program on the issues posed by privatization worldwide and join in challenging privatization where it endangers public interest;
2. The boards and agencies of The United Methodist Church to create and disseminate materials explaining proposed trade agreements and oppose them when they violate United Methodist ideals supporting a just economy;
3. The General Board of Global Ministries and the General Board of Church and Society continue to invigorate efforts to acquire national publicly-provided health care for everyone in the United States and that the issue of worldwide health care be put on the agenda for increased support;
4. Members of The United Methodist Church to urge our governments to challenge and change the International Monetary Fund (IMF), World Bank and ~~World Trade Organization~~ WTO rules supporting massive privatization;
5. The United Methodist Church to question the IMF investment of billions of public dollars into support for the efforts of private corporations to take over public services and public resources in poor countries which are impoverished;
6. The General Board of Global Ministries and the General Board of Church and Society to study ways of supporting world trade rules that would protect our commons resources from the growing trend toward of “takings” by private entrepreneurs;
7. The General Board of Global Ministries and the General Board of Church and Society to lead an effort to discern the societal effects of privatized services and resources on marginalized communities and nations, with special attention paid to both the beneficiaries of such privatization and those individuals and groups whose quality of life is dramatically diminished. Focusing on the violence in the Democratic Republic of the Congo over resource management or the water crisis in Detroit, Michigan would provide important case studies. effects to society of privatization of services in the United States and globally and join in opposing detrimental privatization.

8. ~~the~~ General Board of Church and Society to provide studies and actions on the importance of responsible government and ways to enact good governance; ~~And~~

9. United Methodists to study and act in support of our local governments by insisting that the Federal budget provide for adequate tax money for running public services and regulating private service initiatives for the benefit of all.

Global Living Wage Model

Amend Resolution 4101 by combining with Resolution 4060 and, upon adoption, deleting Resolution 4060:

Amend second paragraph:

A century ago, the Methodist Episcopal Church, in adopting the first social creed, responded to this call for worker justice by proclaiming support for “a living wage in every industry” (1908 Social Creed). In the global community of the twenty-first century, the church has no choice but to be concerned about and involved in issues of globalization including the impact of changing global economic structures on workers. A living wage in a safe and healthy workplace with reasonable hours of work is a universal right not restricted by national borders. Today Therefore, The United Methodist Church reaffirms its historic support for the living wage movement and calls upon businesses and governments to adopt policies to ensure employees are paid sufficient wages to afford shelter, food, clothing, health care, and other basic expenses, according to local costs of living. United Methodists will work in partnership with persons, communities, and governments everywhere around the world to bring about the creation of conditions that encompass fundamental workers’ rights, fair wages, a safe and healthy workplace, reasonable hours of work, decent living standards, support for community infrastructure, and commitment to community economic development.

Amend third paragraph, second sentence:

To this end, The United Methodist Church adopts the living wage as a model for justice in the world and in the household of faith, holding all levels of the Church accountable—~~local United Methodist congregations, annual conferences, and their agencies, the general church and its agencies~~—to adjust compensation for all employees, including support staff, to effect the following:

Insert after first subparagraph:

- reduce disparity between top and bottom wage earners;

Rationale:

This petition combines two existing resolutions (4101 Living Wage Model and 4060 Global Living Wage) into one global statement of support for a locally appropriate living wage and a commitment by the church to model fair and faithful compensation.

Rights of Farm Workers in the U.S.

Amend Resolution 4134

Insert before first paragraph:

The cries of the ~~harvesters~~ harvesters have reached the ears of the Lord of heavenly forces.

—James 5:4b CEB ~~[emphasis added]~~

Amend second sentence, second paragraph:

The overwhelming majority ~~Eighty-five percent~~ of fruits and vegetables in the United States are handpicked by some of the nation's most vital workers, essential to the economic well-being of the United States.

Amend first sentence, third paragraph:

The average ~~wage income~~ of the ~~more than~~ nearly two million farm workers in the United States is ~~$11,000~~ between $10,000 and $12,499 (Source: National Farm Worker Ministry and National Agricultural Worker Survey).

Amend third sentence, fourth paragraph:

Children in the fields are particularly susceptible to the hazards of pesticides, and w~~Women~~ who work in the fields have given birth to babies with severe birth defects, attributed by many to pesticide exposure.

Amend first and second sentence, fifth paragraph:

Farm workers face numerous obstacles to receiving health care including lack of transportation, lack of paid sick leave and risk of job loss if they miss work. Only a small number of farm workers are covered by health insurance. only 10 percent of farm workers report having employer-provided health insurance.

Amend fifth paragraph, fourth sentence:

The majority of farm workers are undocumented and with strict enforcement of the southern US border, many have not seen their families for years.

Amend fifth paragraph, fifth sentence:

An increasing number of farm workers arrive through the H2-A agricultural guest worker program, some from as far away as Thailand.

Insert after sixth paragraph:

When asked what farm workers expected from churches, Cesar Chavez responded, "We wanted the church to be present with us, beside us, willing to sacrifice for justice, ready to be Christ among us."

Amend seventh paragraph, second and third sentences:

As Christians, we cannot sit silently as our brothers and sisters are exploited and abused. ~~We proclaim our outrage at their living and working conditions. but rather~~ Following the teachings of Christ we must ensure that the men and women who harvest our food are invited to share fully in the fruits of their labor.

Insert new subparagraph after second subparagraph:

- advocates for policies that ensure the workers who harvest food for U.S. families are not separated from their own families.

Amend current third subparagraph:

calls on the General Board of Church and Society, the General Board of Global Ministries, annual conferences, and local churches to support state and federal legislation particularly initiatives developed by farm-worker organizations, that would strengthen the laws protecting farm workers' rights and provide the funding necessary for adequate enforcement of laws protecting farm workers' rights, health, and safety;

Amend current eighth subparagraph:

• urges local ~~churches to hold a yearly service~~ faith communities, through worship, education and calls to action to remember and honor farm workers, ~~including worship, education and a call to action; and for the work they do, and the hope they offer us through their courage persistence and faith; and,~~

Rationale:

This petition updates the resolution that serves as the basis for organizing and advocacy with farm workers who are seeking to improve their living and working conditions in the United States.

Petition Number: 60410-CA-R4135-G; Henry-Crowe, Susan - Washington, DC, USA for General Board of Church and Society.

Rights of Workers

Amend Resolution 4135

Amend first paragraph:

~~Scripture teaches that H~~human beings, created in the image of God, have an innate dignity (Genesis 1:27). ~~God grants dignity to work by C~~ommanding human beings to ~~be stewards of the land and to farm and take care of the earth, God granted dignity to the work of human hands~~ (Genesis 1:28; 2:15). ~~Work is one way through which human beings exercise their God-given creativity~~ remains a means of stewardship and God-given creativity.

Replace the second paragraph:

Throughout Scripture, God orders life together based on right relationships, shared resources, and economic justice. In the very act of creation, God demonstrates time for work and rest. The Hebrew prophets decry the growing disparities of wealth and poverty. The Book of Acts describes an early Christian community that shared its goods with one another. The basic principles are clear: All human beings should be treated with respect and dignity. Thus, those who work should earn wages that sustain themselves and their families. Employers have a particular responsibility to treat workers fairly and empower them to organize to improve conditions.

Amend fifth paragraph, sixth sentence:

Workers, governments and the Cchurch ~~have had little ability to must~~ challenge the negative aspects of rapid globalization and improve working conditions around the world.

Amend sixth paragraph, subparagraph four:

4. urges ~~the United States~~ governments to protect the rights of migrant workers through the ratification of the International Convention on the Rights of Migrant Workers and Their Families;

Amend paragraph seven, subparagraph one:

1. encourages all employers—and especially ~~United Methodist~~ employers who are United Methodist—to share prosperity with workers and seek ways to reduce disparity between top and bottom wage earners;

Amend paragraph seven, subparagraph two:

2. supports efforts ~~in the US Congress to raise the minimum wage by governments~~ to ensure living wages and indexed it to inflation, expand health care benefits to workers, expand and protect worker pension programs, set core national standards for workers for paid sick days and paid vacation days, and limit mandatory overtime;

Amend paragraph seven subparagraph three:

3. calls upon ~~the US Department of Labor~~ government agencies to expand its targeted investigations of industries that routinely violate wage and hour laws, partner with workers' centers and congregations that are in ministry with low-wage and immigrant workers, and develop new print and online resources for educating workers about their rights in the workplace;

Amend paragraph eight subparagraph three, second and third sentences:

This power over workers' livelihoods means that employers must be especially careful not to bully or threaten employees, if workers are indeed to experience a "freedom of association." In particular, employers are encouraged to clearly communicate to their employees that they are neutral on their employees' choice and will deal fairly with any union they select; abide by their employees' decision when a majority has ~~signed union authorization cards or otherwise~~ indicated their desire to be represented by a union, and refrain from using hearings, elections, and appeals as a means for delaying or avoiding representation for their employees.

Amend paragraph eight, subparagraph four:

4. expresses additional concern about the erosion of worker rights and supports policies to strengthen the power of workers to challenge unjust working conditions and guarantee their right to organize, guaranteed in the United States since 1935 by the National Labor Relations Act and ~~urges adoption of legislation to reclaim these rights. This legislation should allow workers to choose union representation by signing cards, require mediation and binding arbitration if a first contract agreement is not reached in a reasonable period of time, and expand penalties for employers violating workers' right to organize;~~

Delete paragraph eight, subparagraphs five and six:

~~5. calls on all governments to take strong measures to prevent violent attacks against labor organizers and to engage in prompt and full prosecutions whenever such attacks occur; and~~

~~6. calls upon all workers and labor unions to refrain from violence, be truthful about employers, and bargain in good faith. We also call upon United Methodists who are union members and leaders to express their Christian witness by promoting a prophetic witness, democratic process, and financial integrity in their unions.~~

Rationale:

This petition tightens the biblical and theological foundation for the resolution and adapts the language to be globally relevant. The resolution remains an important education and advocacy tool in an era when workers' rights are being challenged.

Public Education and the Church

Amend and Readopt Resolution 5051

United States Public Education and the Church

I. Historic Church Support for Public Education

In the past, The United Methodist Church has issued statements supportive of public education, ~~and now~~ At at a time when public education has become a political battleground, the church is called to remember, first and foremost, the well-being of all God’s children. Education is a right of all children and is affirmed by Scripture which calls us to “train children in the way they should go” (Proverbs 22:6). Furthermore, the Social Principles affirm that education “can best be fulfilled through public policies that ensure access for all persons to free public elementary and secondary schools and to post-secondary schools of their choice” (§ 164.E <https://www.umofficialresources.com/reader/9781426766213/>>).

The public school is the primary route ~~for~~ through which most children enter into full participation in our economic, political, and community life. As a consequence of inequities in our society, we have a moral responsibility to support, strengthen, and reform public schools. They have been, and continue to be, both an avenue of opportunity and a major cohesive force in our society, especially as a society ~~becoming daily~~ becomes more diverse—racially, culturally, and religiously—almost daily.

Historically, education has been held to contribute to the development of religious faith. To that end, the great figures of the Reformation called for the establishment of schools. Our founder, John Wesley, was dedicated to the education of poor and underprivileged children. The Sunday School Movement of the latter 18th century was an outgrowth of this ministry and largely established a model for access to public education, regardless of social or economic status. Our heritage should lead us to defend the public schools, ~~and to rejoice that they~~ now more nearly reflect ~~the our country’s~~ racial, ethnic, and religious diversity ~~of our country than they have~~ now more than ever done before.

II. The Larger Social Context

We welcome the fact that many public schools now teach about diversity and the role of religion in human life and history; and we applaud the schools' efforts to promote those virtues necessary for good citizenship in a pluralistic democracy. These reforms help to accommodate the constitutional rights of all students and their parents. Just as we encourage schools to ensure that all religions are treated with fairness and respect, so we urge parents and others to refrain from the temptation to use public schools to advance the cause of any one religion or ethnic tradition, whether through curriculum or through efforts to attach religious personnel to the public schools. We believe that parents have the right to select home schooling or private or parochial schools for their children. But with that personal right comes an obligation to support quality public education for all children. The long-range solution is to improve all schools so that families will not be forced to seek other educational alternatives.

At a moment when childhood poverty is shamefully widespread, when many families are under constant stress, and when schools are limited by the lack of funds ~~or~~ and resources, criticism of the public schools often ignores an essential truth: we cannot improve public schools by concentrating on the schools alone. In this context, we must address with prayerful determination the issues of race and class that threaten both public education and democracy in America.

III. Disparities in High School Graduation Rates

The Social Principles support "the development of school systems and innovative methods of education designed to assist every child toward complete fulfillment as an individual person of worth" (§ 162C). Unfortunately, many schools in the United States are far from achieving this goal. According to the National Center for Education Statistics, in 2012, some 3.1 million public high school students—only 81 percent, graduated on time with a regular diploma. Failure to finish high school with a diploma, with the devastating consequences this has for an individual's future prospects, is a bitter reality that disproportionately impacts minority youth. Nationally, the highest graduation rates are among Asian/Pacific Islanders (93 percent) followed by Caucasians (85 percent). Graduation rates are substantially lower for other students of all backgrounds: among Hispanics, only 76 percent of student entering the Ninth grade graduate four years later, while just 68 percent of African Americans do so, with similar figures for indigenous youth. These high attrition rates have been attributed to both "drop out" and "push out"—students dropping out of school because they find no help or encouragement to overcome challenges, and to low-achieving students being pushed out into alternative programs such as GED to improve a school's test scores.

These sobering figures clearly indicate that, despite some progress in recent years, schools in the United States are largely failing to equip a large number of students, and a high percentage of minority youth, with the knowledge, understanding, and skills needed for entering college or gainful employment, as well as the exercise of citizenship responsibilities necessary for the survival of a democratic society. These failings are indicative of a crisis that is marginalizing millions of American youth (especially minority youth), consigning them to second-class citizenship, contributing to an erosion of American democracy, and leaving many members of faith communities less equipped to bear witness to issues of justice and peace.

IV. ~~III~~. Public Funding Issues

By almost any standard of judgment, the schools our children attend can be described in contradictory terms. Some are academically excellent; others are a virtual disgrace. Some are oases of safety for their students; others are dangerous to student and teacher alike. Some teachers are exceptionally well qualified; others are assigned to areas in which they have little or no expertise. Some school facilities are a fantasy land of modern technology; others are so dilapidated that they impede learning.

The wide disparities among public schools exist largely because schools reflect the affluence and/or the political power of the communities in which they are found. Within virtually every state, there are school districts that lavish on their students three or four times the amount of money spent on other children in the same state. A new phenomenon in our society is "re-segregating of communities" which further diminishes the effectiveness of public schools. Most tellingly, the schools that offer the least to their students are those serving poor children, among which children of color figure disproportionately, as they do in all the shortfalls of our common life. Indeed, the coexistence of neglect of schools and neglect of other aspects of the life of people who are poor makes it clear that no effort to improve education in the United States can ignore the realities of racial and class discrimination in our society as a whole.

We acknowledge the debate over whether public funds might appropriately be used to remedy the lingering effects of racial injustice in our nation's educational system. We do not purport to resolve our differences over this issue, but we do affirm our conviction that public funds should be used for public purposes. We also caution that government aid to primary and secondary religious schools raises constitutional problems and could undermine ~~the~~ private schools' independence and/or compromise their religious message.

V. A Call to Action IV. What the Church Can Do

In view of this crisis and the urgent need to hold our educational system accountable in providing equity in access to a high school education for all students from all social backgrounds, we call upon local, state, and federal education agencies to do the following:

1. Publicly report annual graduation and retention rates by sex, race and ethnicity;

2. Make increasing retention and graduation rates a major focus of educational reform along with equitable distribution of financial and educational resources to all school districts so that they may provide a quality education to all students.

Local churches and all communities of faith must become better informed about the needs of the public schools in their communities and in the country as a whole. Only through adequate information can we defend public education and the democratic heritage which it supports. Full knowledge of our religious and democratic traditions helps us ensure that those elected to school boards are strongly committed to both public education and religious liberty.

Therefore, we call upon local churches, annual conferences, and the general agencies of The United Methodist Church to support public education by in the following ways:

1. Establish and nurture ~~establishing~~ partnerships with local public schools such as providing after-school and vacation enrichment programs, adopt-a-school programs, and literacy and reading emphases; teacher appreciation programs, updated library materials, and parenting enrichment classes.

2. Monitor ~~monitoring~~ reform efforts in public schools, including the creation of charter and magnet schools, of schools-within-schools, of full inclusion or appropriate placement of children who are differently-abled, and of classes sized to best serve all children.;

3. Prompt local and state authorities to offer students curricula and textbooks that are rich, inviting, and include the following ideas:

- religion as an essential dimension in the development of civilization;

- basic character and civic virtues such as honesty, truthfulness, and respect for life and property;

- the role of the many ethnic, racial, and religious groups in the history and culture of the United States; and

- quality, age-appropriate comprehensive health education.

3. honoring teachers for the crucial work they do with young people; and advocating for appropriate salaries commensurate with their vital role in society;

4. encouraging young people of our congregations to enter the teaching profession;

5. encouraging school libraries to provide quality materials, including those of religious perspectives, that will broaden students' understanding of human life all over the world;

6. insisting that all curricula present the best textbooks and teaching at all levels, acknowledging that we encourage children to read, to imagine, and to understand the many wonders of God's creation;

7. encouraging teaching about religion as an essential dimension in the development of civilization;

8. encouraging teaching basic character and civic virtues such as honesty, truthfulness, and respect for life and property;

9. providing parenting classes to emphasize the special responsibilities of families to schools and school-aged children;

10. encouraging the use of curricula in all schools that reflect the role of the many racial, ethnic, and religious groups in the history and culture of the United States;

4. Reject ~~11. rejecting~~ racial- and gender-biased curricula and testing which limit career options for of children and youth.;

12. advocating for quality, age-appropriate, comprehensive health education in the public schools;

13. advocating for the inclusion of differently-abled students in our classrooms, and ensuring that teachers have the special training needed to meet these children's needs;

14. supporting thoughtful reform and innovation in local schools to improve teaching and learning at all levels;

5. Advocate ~~15. advocating~~ at the state and local levels for adequate public school funding and equitable distribution of state funds; and supporting efforts to end unjust educational disparities between rich and poor communities.;

16. learning about public school issues, offering candidate forums during school board elections, and educating church members about local funding ballot issues and about the historical role of churches in creating and supporting public schools;

6. Champion ~~17. advocating~~ for strengthened teacher training, for and enhanced professional development for teachers and administrators.; Encourage young people in the church to consider careers in education, and for policies that assign teachers only to disciplines in which they are fully prepared, to classes whose size encourages individualized assistance, and to schedules that give teachers time to prepare or consult with other teachers, students, and parents;

18. supporting standards-based school reforms and working in districts and states until the country as a whole has reasonable and challenging standards by which to assess students and schools;

19. encouraging the development of smaller schools (including "schools-within-schools") to provide a caring environment;

~~20. calling upon the United States Congress to pass and fully fund legislation to repair and modernize school facilities and to create new facilities as needed;~~

~~7. Push ~~21.~~ advocating for universal, early, and quality preschool education for all children; and~~

~~8. Champion ~~22.~~ advocating for public education as a basic human right; and curb school districts' reliance not relying solely on school fund-raising and state-alternative revenues, such as gambling, for financial support.~~

Readopt Resolution 5052 - Evolution and Intelligent Design - with no changes.

Rationale:

If we are serious about reaching new and younger people with the good news of Jesus Christ, we need to find ways to thoughtfully relate faith and science, giving science its due while also acknowledging its limits. This resolution embodies the Wesleyan ideal to unite “knowledge and vital piety.”

Military Service Regardless of Sexual Orientation

Readopt Resolution 5062 with the following deletions:

...

~~The United States of America, a nation built on equal rights, presently denies the right of professing homosexuals to actively serve their country, forcing men and women who are gay, lesbian, bisexual, or transgender to assume a “don’t ask, don’t tell” position when enlisting into military service. This situation is discriminatory, unethical, and regrettable; therefore, we We affirm the stance that the US military service should not exclude persons from service solely on the basis of sexual orientation or gender identity.~~

Rationale:

In light of the end of “Don’t Ask, Don’t Tell” in the U.S. armed forces, reaffirming Resolution 5062 with these changes directs our prayerful instruction beyond the United States to all countries.

We strongly oppose, however, in the United States the provisions of the USA Patriot Act that permit warrantless intrusion into private communications by telephone, mail, and e-mail, and the secret searching of bank records and other records. Revelations that intelligence agencies, local police, the Internal Revenue Service, and the United States military have, over a number of years, developed a domestic espionage apparatus involving the gathering of information about the lawful political activities of millions of citizens is a continuing cause for concern. We support laws in all nations similar to the Freedom of Information Act in the United States and the extension of the protection of habeas data such as exist in Latin American nations and the Philippines. We support “sunshine laws,” which require that the business of government not be conducted in secret. We recognize that agencies charged with public and national security need information in order to discharge their duties. We believe that when government needs private information, there must be clear communication between the government and the people and the agreement of all parties involved that the public need for this information outweighs the private right of the individual to privacy. Additionally, governments should have in place legal protections to ensure proper oversight of these programs.~~

In addition to providing some respite for Moses, this ensures that every person has equal access to those who rule over them. Similarly, in Acts 6:1-7, at the birth of the New Testament Church, a dispute arose over the distribution of food between Hellenist widows and Hebraic widows. To settle the dispute and to ensure both equal access and distribution, seven servants were appointed over the food distributed. Globalization and Its Impact on Human Dignity and Human Rights

Delete current text and replace with the following:

What are human beings / that you think about them; / what are human beings / that you pay attention to them? / You’ve made them only slightly less than divine, / crowning them with glory and grandeur (Psalm 8:4-5 CEB).

Human rights are what make us human. They are the principles by which we create the sacred home for human dignity. Human rights are what reason requires and conscience commands.—Kofi Annan, United Nations Secretary-General

Our Globalized World

In an age of globalization, the recognition of human dignity and the struggle to protect human rights has become even more complex and challenging. While protections for human rights are increasingly enacted by governments and international bodies like the United Nations, grave threats to and gross violations of human rights are also on the rise.

The world’s financial capital is ever more integrated, and wealth is ever more centralized in the hands of financial elites and corporate institutions. Realizing social and economic rights, especially eradicating hunger and reducing unemployment, is becoming increasingly difficult. Bringing conflicts to a just and durable resolution is more daunting with the increased capacity of individuals, governments and their military forces, and other entities, including paramilitary and extremist groups, to organize and unleash violence. These groups have access to more sophisticated communications technology and more deadly instruments of war than ever before.

Ending violence and wars, and checking impunity and disregard for international human rights and humanitarian laws will require more than political will and moral courage. Concrete programs and mechanisms are needed to realize the totality of human rights: civil, political, social, economic, and cultural. We must offer peace by advocating for its concrete manifestations in the availability of nutritious food to eat and clean water to drink, for decent work and living wage for everyone, and health, housing and education for all.

Our Christian tradition shows us an alternative to globalization. It is a “counter-globalization” that empowers God’s people to “do justice, embrace faithful love, and walk humbly with your God” (Micah 6:8b CEB). What must be globalized is a culture of peace that institutes peace with justice in ways that are visible and tangible in the lives of peoples and communities. We are challenged to globalize an ethos that respects and protects human life with human rights so that all “could have life—indeed, . . . live life to the fullest” (John 10:10b) as God intends.

Biblical and Theological Grounding

The psalmist exclaims: “What are human beings / that you think about them; / what are human beings / that you pay attention to them? / You’ve made them only slightly less than divine [divine beings, or angels], / crowning them with glory and grandeur” (Psalm 8:4-5 CEB). Every human being bears the likeness of our just, gracious, and loving God: “God created human beings, in the image of God they were created; male and female were created” (Genesis 1:27, adapted).

Human dignity is the foundation of all human rights. It is inherent and inborn. We do not legislate human dignity; we only need to recognize and affirm each human being who bears it. Human dignity is the image of God in each human being. Human dignity is the sum total of all human rights.

We protect human dignity with human rights. Human rights are the building blocks of human dignity. They are indivisible and interdependent. It is God’s gift of love for everyone. Human rights, being the expression of the wholeness and fullness of human dignity, are indivisible and interdependent.

Human rights, expressed in affirmations and declarations, treaties and conventions, laws and statutes, are products of struggles to affirm and fulfill the wholeness and fullness of life. As peoples and governments increase the catalogue of rights that are recognized and protected, protections not only increase, but so do our approximation of and striving for human dignity. To be engaged in the human rights struggle is to accept God’s gift of love in Jesus Christ who has come to affirm all God’s people as they are: as individuals and people in community together.

But human rights do not affect humanity alone. The integrity of God’s creation is possible only with the affirmation of both the dignity of all persons and the integrity of the whole ecological order. Human rights cannot be enjoyed in an environment of pillage and decay. The health of human beings is intricately connected to the health of the planet and the entire cosmos.

Human dignity is the common bond that affirms the individuality of each human being while celebrating the plurality and variety of communities to which each belongs, including the diverse social economic, civic, political, religious, ideological, racial, class, gender, and ethnic identities each represents.

The United Methodist Church and Human Rights

The United Methodist Church’s Social Principles provide foundational understanding of rights and freedoms. These principles affirm both the sovereignty of God over all of creation and the duties and responsibilities of each person for the natural and nurturing world, and the social, economic, political, and world communities. At their spring 1998 meeting, and on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the Council of Bishops called on “United Methodists across the connection worldwide [to] join in . . . safeguarding the worth and dignity of peoples and the integrity and sacredness of all of God’s creation.”

“As Christians,” the bishops said, “loving our God and loving our neighbor together advance the imperatives of human rights. Human rights enable us to express in concrete ways our love for one another by assuring that each person’s value is recognized, maintained, and strengthened.” Human rights are safeguards of peoples and communities against violations of their rights and infringements on their freedoms. To this end, the General Conference called on all governments to accept their obligation to uphold human rights by refraining from repression, torture, and violence against any person and to ratify and implement international conventions, covenants, and protocols addressing human rights in the context of justice and peace.

Arenas for Human Rights Work

Today’s global context is ever more complex, not in the least through the institutions and agents that mark an unprecedented globalization that we are experiencing, if not, participating in. At the same time that we witness the rapid change in local and global processes, we also see the rise and increasing participation of peoples’ and citizens’ organizations in leading the establishment of just, participatory, and sustainable communities. These are communities that will prosper a culture of peace and human rights as a way of life. Through the work and presence of non-governmental organizations and other civic community formations, in all levels of governance—local, national, regional, global—globalization is challenged in multiple ways. Human-rights monitors, themselves a threatened group of defenders, have increased in the ranks of civil society. Their work must be protected and safeguarded.

We lift the following arenas for human-rights work to all United Methodists worldwide, and to the attention of all general agencies, particularly the General Board of Church and Society and the General Board of Global Ministries of The United Methodist Church.

A. Children's Rights and Well-Being: Receiving the Reign of God as a Little Child

“‘Allow the children to come to me,’ Jesus said. ‘Don’t forbid them, because the kingdom of heaven belongs to people like these children’” (Matthew 19:14 CEB).

The Social Principles strongly support children and children’s rights. It says: “Once considered the property of their parents, children are now acknowledged to be full human beings in their own right, but beings to whom adults and society in general have special obligations. ... All children have the right to quality education. ...

Moreover, children have the rights to food, shelter, clothing, health care, and emotional well-being as do adults, and these rights we affirm as theirs regardless of actions or inactions of their parents or guardians. In particular, children must be protected from economic, physical, and sexual exploitation and abuse” (§ 162C).

The United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child expresses this same concern for all the children of the world. United Methodists celebrate the ratification of this convention by 195 nations even as it urges the United States to ratify it soonest. The convention extends the basic concept of protection to the level of human rights. The convention affirms that the rights described in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights are rights that belong also to children. Children’s rights are human rights. United Methodists worldwide must continue to urge their governments to implement the convention, and its related protocols.

The proliferation of and easy access to small arms have a devastating effect on our children. Children must never have access to or opportunity to use guns. Both the children killed and those wounded by small arms are victims of a culture of violence that denies human rights, snuffs out precious human life, and debases human dignity.

The United Methodist Church is called to join the international campaign to prevent the proliferation and unlawful use of small arms. The campaign raises our awareness of the need for emergency measures to save the lives of children, in our schools, in inner cities, and in many parts of the world, particularly those countries and communities that are highly militarized and governed by national security laws.

Children in situations of conflict and war test our commitment to the future. There is something wrong in our sense of the moral when children are put in harm’s way. No boy or girl must be sent to the front lines of war, battles, and conflict. The field of play must not be replaced with the field of combat. War games are not child games. Playgrounds are for children; battlegrounds are not.

The United Methodist Church must oppose the recruitment and use of child soldiers. We must support the call of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights (Resolution 1999/80) to raise the current minimum age limit set by Article 38 of the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the recruitment into the armed forces or participation of any person in armed conflicts from 15 to 18. The General Conference of the International Labor Organization (ILO), through Convention 182 (1999), prohibits forced or compulsory recruitment of children under the age of 18 for use in armed conflict. ILO also recommends (Recommendation 190) that governments prohibit the use, procuring or offering of a child for activities that involve the unlawful carrying or use of firearms or other weapons.

Human trafficking involves the illegal trade in human beings for purposes that include commercial sexual exploitation, forced labor, or a modern-day form of slavery. Children must be especially protected from the ills that a growing global sex industry peddles. The recruitment and trafficking of girls and boys for child labor, prostitution, sexual slavery, forced marriage, as child soldiers, and even for organ trading are predatory and must be condemned. We must actively seek the ratification by all countries of the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime, which includes the Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, especially Women and Children (also referred to as the Trafficking Protocol).

B. Migrant Workers: Entertaining Angels Unawares

“Do not deprive the foreigner or the fatherless of justice, or take the cloak of the widow as a pledge” (Deuteronomy 24:17 NIV).

“Keep loving each other like family. Don’t neglect to open up your homes to guests, because by doing this some have been hosts to angels without knowing it” (Hebrews 13:1-2 CEB).

A complex of factors—civil conflicts, human rights abuse, extreme poverty, environmental degradation, militarization, political persecution and misguided development schemes—have produced in many countries around the world an unprecedented number of people in situations of forced and enforced movement, including migrants and migrant workers looking for jobs and security beyond their national borders.

While globalization heralded the swift movement of capital across national borders, the movement of laborers seeking work in richer countries of the world while steadily growing has been increasingly restricted, securitized, racialized, gendered and sexualized. Transnational corporations have moved to poor countries where labor is much cheaper and workers' organizing is either weak, suppressed, or altogether banned.

Regional and international collaborators of Churches Witnessing With Migrants (CWWM), including the General Board of Church and Society, assert in their Advocacy Paper (dated October 1 and 2, 2013, and referred to below) that "the well-being, safety and sustainability of migrants becomes as urgent as their fight for justice." CWWM asserts that "(b)ilateral and multilateral negotiations all too often focus on the management of migration for the maintenance of economic prosperity and security of destination countries. These conditions have resulted in restrictive migration and immigration legislations, including job and wage conditions that are far from decent and sustainable, thus violating migrants' rights."

"Managing migration for development perpetuates global and structural inequalities and obscures the unjust international trade, investment and financial regime set by the advanced countries. This regime leads to the destruction of livelihoods and forms the basis for unsustainable development in poor countries, forcing millions of working people to seek economic opportunities in foreign lands. The negotiations largely ignore centuries of colonial and neo-colonial exploitation and plunder that have consigned countries to perpetual bouts of extreme poverty internally and economic dependence externally."

Migrant workers continue to be discriminated against and abused, especially those who are undocumented in their host countries. Women migrants are particularly vulnerable to exploitation especially when they work in gender-specific jobs that consign them to various forms of sexual, domestic, and menial work. Studies show that the majority of migrants are uprooted because of the lack of jobs at home, or because jobs pay extremely low wages. While globalization has spawned more capital and spurred greater production, workers' wages have been kept low and below a livable wage even in those countries whose governments have a prescribed minimum wage.

Migrants' rights are human rights. It is tragic when migrants, whose rights have already been violated in their home countries, find their human rights also violated in their foreign host countries. Invoking host-country laws rarely works in their favor. United Methodists should urge their governments to ratify and implement the United Nations International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families (also called International Migration Convention). This Convention is designed to protect, secure, and ensure the human rights of migrant workers and their families.

As a worldwide presence and structure, The United Methodist Church plays an important and influential role in prospering the human rights of migrants and migrant workers among whom are its members and many who collaborate in its global mission work. The worldwide church has a special opportunity in its work with and among migrants to make visible a theology, mission and church structure that is migrant-inclusive and sensitive.

The church must advocate in all economic, social and political arenas for justice, human rights and hospitality. Such advocacy is about the abundance of life and of God's grace: lived in plenitude, never in scarcity. In this regard, our advocacy may take these into consideration (These considerations are adopted from the Advocacy Paper and Stockholm Affirmations of Churches Witnessing With Migrants (CWWM), an international platform for common advocacy of migrants, migrant advocates, churches and ecumenical bodies. The General Board of Church and Society participates actively in CWWM. CWWM believes that migrants are human beings who cannot be reduced to mere commodities to be traded and exchanged in the global market. It affirms that freedom of movement of peoples is a human right and that forced migration is a violation of that right. It works for development justice as a general framework for advocacy. The pillars of development justice—redistributive justice, economic justice, social justice, environmental justice and accountability to the people—are co-constitutive and indivisible and form part of CWWM advocacy work. These pillars are simultaneously global and local in character.):

- the development of a protocol of how migrants, migrant organizations, and church and ecumenical institutions, respond to urgent situations of life and death facing migrant communities today;

- the facilitation with like-minded groups of a collective shadow report to be submitted to the United Nations Human Rights Council's Universal Periodic Review and to the Committee on Migrant Workers monitoring implementation of the International Migration Convention;

- the continuation of collective analysis of the root causes of forced migration, and the churches' role in seeking development justice; and the articulation and advancement of an alternative narrative informed by faith-based perspectives based on the understanding that "migrants are truly the ones who speak best about their hopes and aspirations and about how to advance and protect their rights and interests."

C. Indigenous Peoples: Toward Self-Determination

“All will sit underneath their own grapevines, / under their own fig trees. / There will be no one to terrify them; / for the mouth of the LORD of heavenly forces has spoken” (Micah 4:4 CEB).

Globalization threatens the human rights of indigenous peoples, including their aspirations for self-determination. Exploration and colonization have led to rapid appropriation of indigenous peoples’ lands and natural resources, and the destruction of their sciences, ideas, arts, and cultures.

Indigenous peoples struggle against the industries encroaching on their sacred lands. They are fighting for sovereignty over their ancestral lands in the face of systematic campaigns of extermination. They face population transfers, forced relocation, and assimilation, often because of the aggressive development interests of big business.

Indigenous peoples demand respect of their right to their culture, spirituality, language, tradition, forms of organization, ways of knowing and doing, and their intellectual properties. Indeed, it will be hard for indigenous peoples all over the world to exercise their fundamental human rights as distinct nations, societies, and peoples without the ability to control the knowledge and resources they have inherited from their ancestors and reside in their ancestral domains.

The 1992 General Conference urged The United Methodist Church to “place itself at the vanguard of the efforts to undo and correct the injustices and the misunderstandings of the last 500 years” of colonialism. It raised the church’s awareness of “the shameful stealing of the Native’s land and other goods and the cruel destruction of their culture, arts, religion, the environment, and other living things on which their lives depended.”

In the 2012 General Conference, our worldwide church demonstrated its commitment to indigenous peoples through an Act of Repentance Toward Healing Relationships with Indigenous Peoples. Its significance for the church is described in this manner: “The Act of Repentance not only addresses the communities and tribal nations of Native Americans in the United States. It encompasses the indigenous communities and tribal/nation entities of the various countries around the world where The United Methodist Church has spread its blanket. Taken together, the similarities are real and palpable. They reflect issues of self-determination, sovereignty, cultural integrity and how Native and indigenous peoples embrace The United Methodist Church as truth carriers of the Good News, declaring the Gospel of Jesus Christ with no other allegiances.” (The Rev. Dr. Thom White Wolf Fassett on the Act of Repentance of The United Methodist Church, published by the Office of Christian Unity and Interreligious Relationships of the Council of Bishops)

Religious intolerance is one form of human-rights violation perpetrated on indigenous peoples around the world. The experience of forced relocation by the Dineh (Navajo) of Black Mesa in Arizona is an example of religious intolerance. The Dineh consider their ancestral lands as sacred. For them, to be uprooted is to be exterminated as a people. In this light, we must continue support for the work and mandate of the U.N. Special Rapporteur on Religious Intolerance as well as the U.N. Special Rapporteur on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples.

Big mining companies have been responsible in the destruction of livelihood, sacred sites, and ancestral homelands of indigenous peoples. Indigenous peoples’ rights are human rights. Extractive mining, a form of development aggression, is opposed by indigenous peoples for destroying their lands and resources and wreaks havoc on the unity and health of their peoples and communities. United Methodists are urged to support the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples. UNDRIP, as it is commonly called, was adopted on September 7, 2007, by the General Assembly of the United Nations, with the overwhelming support of 143 countries. Troubling, however, were the abstentions by Australia, Canada, New Zealand and the United States, homes of many indigenous peoples.

We must call as a worldwide church for the universal adoption of this important instrument that the United Nations Human Rights Council hails as “a universal framework of minimum standards for the survival, dignity, well-being and rights of the world’s indigenous peoples.” The Council asserts: “The Declaration addresses both individual and collective rights; cultural rights and identity; rights to education, health, employment, language, and others. It outlaws discrimination against indigenous peoples and promotes their full and effective participation in all matters that concern them. It also ensures their right to remain distinct and to pursue their own priorities in economic, social and cultural development. The Declaration explicitly encourages harmonious and cooperative relations between States and indigenous peoples.”

United Methodists must support the Permanent Forum of Indigenous Issues. This Forum, established by the United Nations Economic and Social Council in July 2000, formally integrated indigenous peoples into the U.N. system and was mandated to “address indigenous issues related to economic and social development, culture, the environment, education, health and human rights.” We remain in support of the appointment of a Special Rapporteur on Indigenous Populations within the aegis of the United Nations.

Indigenous peoples’ self-determination, sovereignty, and spirituality are at the core of our support for their historic claim to their cultures, histories and spiritual traditions, and to their historic rights to specific lands, territories and resources. Colonialism eroded these claims and extinguished their rights. The process of decolonization is an unfinished business at the United Nations and in many social institutions. The role of religion and the church in the colonization of peoples and nations, including Native nations and indigenous peoples, is part of this hard and painful process of decolonization. It is part of an act of repentance that truly honors what indigenous people feel about how they have been wronged and where the restitution and forgiveness might come from, and what it will look like and entail.

D. Impunity: The Case for an International Criminal Court

“You must not act unjustly in a legal case. Do not show favoritism to the poor or deference to the great; you must judge your fellow Israelites fairly” (Leviticus 19:15 CEB).

A culture of peace must be globalized today. The prevailing culture of repression, oppression, and exploitation has no place in this culture of peace. Only the pursuit of a just peace, which includes the search for truth and justice for victims, will bring about forgiveness, reconciliation, and healing in many rural villages, towns, cities, nations, and regions of the world that are scarred by conflict and war.

The establishment of an International Criminal Court (ICC), as provided for in a treaty adopted in Rome in June 1998 by the United Nations Diplomatic Conference of Plenipotentiaries on the Establishment of an International Criminal Court, provides an important step in ending impunity. This court, whose charter called the Rome Statute was adopted in July 1998, and entered into force in July 2002 with the 60th country ratification, continues today to hear cases against war crimes, genocide, crimes against humanity, and crimes of aggression.

Faith-based and religious groups, working together with the Coalition for an International Criminal Court (CICC), identified several moral and ethical imperatives for the importance of the ICC. These imperatives remain true and urgent today: “Desirous that the quest for justice includes retributive justice whose purpose is the prosecution and punishment of offenders while insuring the rights of the accused to fair trials, restorative justice whose purpose is that of reparation, restitution and rehabilitation for the victims, and redemptive justice which must be seen as the enablement of communities to deal with the truths of the past in ways which will allow and enable social reconstruction and reconciliation, and the ending of cycles of violence;

“Recognizing that adjudication of crimes of international concerns that have transcended national boundaries are often beyond the scope of national criminal-justice systems, and that crimes whose immediate victims have occurred within national contexts are often beyond the competence or ability of national judicial systems; Noting the basic principles of justice for victims of crime and the abuse of power approved by the United Nations General Assembly; therefore, establish the International Criminal Court.”

United Methodists all over the world must urge all governments to sign and ratify the treaty to establish the court. As of today, there are at least 123 parties to the Rome Statute of the ICC. These parties do not yet include countries like the United States, Israel, Kuwait, Mozambique, Russian Federation, Sudan, Syrian Arab Republic, Ukraine, Yemen, Zimbabwe and a few more which have signed the statute but have not ratified it. The work of the CICC and the Washington Working Group on the International Criminal Court, which focuses on getting the U.S. to ratify the treaty, must be supported. In their support, United Methodists must preserve and strengthen the unprecedented provisions of the Rome Statute calling for an end to impunity for crimes committed against women and children.

E. Religious Liberty: The Case Against Intolerance

“For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus has made me free from the law of sin and death” (Romans 8:2 NKJV).

Religious liberty forms part of the pantheon of human rights. The Universal Declaration of Human Rights provides: “Everyone has the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion: this right includes freedom to change his religion or belief, freedom, either alone or in community with others and in public or private, to manifest his religion or belief in teaching, practice, worship and observance” (Art. 18).

The United Methodist Church maintains that “religious persecution has been common in the history of civilization” and therefore urges for “policies and practices that ensure the right of every religious group to exercise its faith free from legal, political or economic restrictions.” The Church also asserts that “all overt and covert forms of religious intolerance” must be condemned (2012 Social Principles, ¶ 162B).

Religious liberty continues to be denied and violated in many parts of the world. Concerns about religious persecution have been raised by almost every religious group, especially in places where one particular religion or belief is in a minority position. Religious intolerance, of both the established as well as “nontraditional” religions, is growing both in new and established democracies. The rise in religious extremism of all sorts and from all of the established and nontraditional religions has been convenient pretext for the curtailment of the exercise of religious liberty by many governments around the world.

The United Methodist Church must continue to foster further cooperation among spiritual, religious, and ecumenical bodies for the protection of religious freedom and belief. It must enter into healthy dialogues with peoples of differing faiths and ideologies, including Native and indigenous peoples, in the search for shared spiritual, social, and ethical principles that engender peace and justice.

The United Methodist Church is committed to uphold the minimum standards of the right of belief that are contained in the provisions of the United Nations Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Intolerance and of Discrimination Based on Religion or Belief. This declaration enunciates that “freedom of religion and belief should also contribute to the attainment of the goals of world peace, social justice and friendship between peoples and to the elimination of ideologies or practices of colonialism and racial discrimination.”

United Methodists must urge their governments and encourage civil society to enter into dialogues about racism and discrimination and resolve to address especially those concerns that have institutionalized religious bases. The United Methodist Church urges global support for the Durban Declaration and Program of Action Against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance.

F. Peace and Peacebuilding: Support for the United Nations and the Case for a Culture of Peace

“God will judge between the nations / and settle disputes of mighty nations, which are far away. / They will beat their swords into iron plows / and their spears into pruning tools. / Nation will not take up sword against nation; / they will no longer learn how to make war” (Micah 4:3 CEB).

“For he himself is our peace, who has made the two groups one and has destroyed the barrier, the dividing wall of hostility” (Ephesians 2:14 NIV).

In this era of globalization, the icons of war are more prominent and the arsenal of killing machines is more lethal than ever before. Our images of peace and the implements that make for a just peace most often are stymied by these icons and arsenals.

The resolution of conflicts and the establishment of a just and durable peace proceed from a just and liberating practice of governance on all levels of life: local and global. Just governance thrives not on wars and rumors of wars, but in the advancement of a world order that protects human rights, develops sustainable communities, cultivates a culture of peace, empowers people and their associations, and promotes a just and participatory democracy. It is imperative for human rights to be the foundational principle for a just and durable peace. The United Methodist Church must participate in building communities that prioritize the eradication of poverty and the elimination of hunger; the ending of wars and the resolution of conflicts, and the overcoming of ignorance, curing of diseases, and healing of enmities.

The United Nations remains the single most important international institution to achieve these ends. The United Methodist Church must continue to support the United Nations (¶ 165D). Our participation in its many activities allows us to participate in making it a responsible and effective global force in peacekeeping, peacemaking and peacebuilding, and in the recognition of human dignity and the protection of human rights.

The resolve to stem the increasing forms, acts and agents of extremism and terrorism, including rooting out the drivers and causes for such, must be located within the bounds of multilateral mechanisms and transnational institutions, under the leadership of the United Nations. Our Social Principles guides us in this resolve: “We advocate the extension and strengthening of international treaties and institutions that provide a framework within the rule of law for responding to aggression, terrorism and genocide” (¶ 165C).

The United Methodist Church supports The Hague Agenda for Peace and Justice for the 21st Century which it joined in shaping. This agenda, produced by a historic conference in The Hague in May of 1999, encompasses fifty areas of concern highlighting the: 1) root causes of war and the culture of peace; 2) international humanitarian and human rights law and institutions; 3) the prevention, resolution, and transformation of violent conflict; and 4) disarmament and human security.

The United Methodist Church understanding of a culture of peace and the importance of multilateral cooperation in advancing peace, justice and security based on human rights and sustainable development issues stems from its support for the Pillars of Peace for the 21st Century, a policy statement in support of the United Nations for the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the USA. The seven pillars state that peace rooted in justice requires:

1. increased political collaboration and accountability among governments within the United Nations system, among regional bodies, governments, local authorities, people’s organizations, and global economic structures to seek the common good and equality for all;

2. increased moral, ethical, and legal accountability at all levels from governments, financial institutions, multilateral organizations, transnational corporations, and all other economic actors to seek a just, participatory, and sustainable economic order for the welfare and well-being of all people and all creation;

3. a comprehensive international legal system, capable of change as conditions require, in order to prevent and resolve conflicts, to protect rights, to hold accountable those who disturb peace and violate international law, and to provide fair and effective review and enforcement mechanisms;

4. the participation of vulnerable and marginalized groups, seeking to promote justice and peace, in those mechanisms capable of redressing the causes and consequences of injustice and oppression;

5. the nurturing of a culture of peace in homes, communities, religious institutions, and nations across the world, including the use of nonviolent means of resolving conflict, appropriate systems of common security, and the end of the unrestrained production, sale, and use of weapons worldwide;

6. respect for the inherent dignity of all persons and the recognition, protection, and implementation of the principles of the International Bill of Human Rights, so that communities and individuals may claim and enjoy their universal, indivisible, and inalienable rights; and

7. a commitment to the long-term sustainability of the means of life, and profound reorientation of economic systems and individual lifestyles to support ecological justice for human communities in harmony with the whole of creation.

The United Methodist Church must also continue its support for the campaign to ban landmines by urging all governments to ratify and implement the landmine-ban treaty that prohibits the use, production, stockpiling and transfer of antipersonnel land mines. This treaty also calls on parties to increase landmine clearance and victim assistance efforts around the world.

United Methodists must also urge their governments to ratify the Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty. Counter globalization happens when we ban landmines, abolish nuclear weapons, and prevent wars from continuing to fester or being waged.

G. Economic, Social, and Cultural Rights: That the Hungry May Be Filled

“When you give a banquet, invite the poor, crippled, lame, and blind” (Luke 14:13 CEB).

The Lord our God commanded us “to do justice, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly” (Micah 6:8 NRSV).

Justice, kindness, and humility underscore society’s obligations to its people. But even with the indivisibility of civil, political, economic, social, and cultural rights, global hunger and poverty challenge our priorities. It is a challenge that confronts and addresses our concern for lifting the poor and marginalized among us.

In this era of globalization, poverty is defined as the inability of a human being to take advantage of global and market opportunities that are supposed to be booming and soaring. This globalization process deifies the market even as it commodifies the earth and its resources, if not even people themselves, who become pawns to economic production. One’s worth and dignity in this globalization process is measured by one’s ability to contribute to the gains of the market.

But gain or loss, in this era of globalization, it is the poor, the marginalized, and the vulnerable who suffer from price increases, reductions in government support for needed social and environmental programs, business disruptions, higher unemployment levels, and increased human rights violations.

The indivisibility of human rights underscores the understanding that freedom is hollow without food, that justice without jobs is like a clanging cymbal, and that liberty is a sham when people do not have land to inhabit and farm. The right to food and the right to employment are fundamental economic human rights. Societies become peaceful when the demands of justice are met. Justice becomes not only a dream but also a reality when implements of war give way to implements of peace. Food and jobs, also, are implements of peace. Would that indeed, at the end of the day, no child, no woman, and no one, goes to bed with an empty stomach.

United Methodists must continue to urge their governments to ratify the International Covenant on Economic, Social, and Cultural Rights and for these governments to make these rights a reality.

The Millennium Development Goals (MDGs), which we have supported as a church, we now deem to have largely faltered, especially because human rights was abandoned as a core principle. The economic challenges of unbridled globalization, especially widespread economic recession, coupled with indecisive action on climate change, did not help to attain the lofty goals of this millennial initiative. The inadequate attention to inequality, discrimination and exclusion of marginalized groups doomed the MDGs, whose targets were not fully achieved before they expired in 2015.

Another chance at targeting the root causes of development problems, not the least extreme poverty and hunger, is presented to the world community through another listing of sustainable development goals (SDGs) negotiated again under the auspices of the United Nations. Human rights, which affirms sacred and human worth at their core, must be foundational to any development agenda, always and in any timeline, post-2015 and beyond.

Our support for a new set of SDGs is predicated on the recognition of God-given human dignity and the protection of human rights. It recognizes the health and wholeness of human beings as much as that of the planet and the cosmos. It also includes the recognition of the requirements of development justice that addresses historic inequalities brought about by slavery and colonialism, as well as modern forms of pillage and plunder brought about by unbridled globalization and historic degradation of planet earth.

U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon put the sustainable development challenge thus: "Our globalized world is marked by extraordinary progress alongside unacceptable and unsustainable levels of want, fear, discrimination, exploitation, injustice and environmental folly at all levels. We also know, however, that these problems are not accidents of nature or the results of phenomena beyond our control. They result from actions and omissions of people, public institutions, the private sector and others charged with protecting human rights and upholding human dignity."

In this era of globalization, where profit and profit making at the expense of the needs and welfare of the poor and the vulnerable and where unbridled pursuit of wealth and power have trampled upon and denied human rights of peoples, peace rooted in God's justice will bring about the true globalization that will heal the wounds and scars of wars and conflict that peoples and nations have waged against each other. Peace rooted in God's justice will help bring about forgiveness and wholeness for all God's people and the whole of creation. Peace rooted in God's justice will provide sustenance for God's people and sustainability for God's earth. God's reign on earth, as it is in heaven, is, in the end, the true globalization we must long and work for.

RESOLUTION #289, 2000 Book of Resolutions

See Social Principles, ¶ 165.

Rationale:

Rewrite of this 16-year-old resolution gives new emphases on health of human beings and the entire creation. New language is introduced on human trafficking, environmental degradation, forced and global migration, act of repentance addressing native and indigenous peoples' concerns, and religious persecution, including extremism and terrorism.

6030. Guidelines for Responsible Travel

Delete second sentence in first paragraph:

The travel and tourism industry has become one of the fastest-growing and largest sectors in the global economy. ~~The annual revenues are second only to the weapons industry and, according to the United Nations, earnings from tourism are expected to triple in the next 20 years.~~ The impact of travel and tourism on local economies, disadvantaged communities, women and children, indigenous peoples, and the environment has become a serious concern and requires thoughtful reflection by people of faith on our role as participants in these activities.

Amend Seventh Paragraph, Second Sentence:

To travel is not to take a vacation from our faith. Just as we are called to express hospitality by welcoming the stranger, we are also called to abide in love and justice with our neighbors when we visit them, whether near or far away. When traveling in ~~a strange~~ unfamiliar lands, travelers should behave with reverence and respect for the people, their culture, and the land upon which they live.

Amend Ninth Paragraph:

Exploitative travel and tourism also impacts women and children who ~~become victims in sex trade or traffick-~~ ing, child prostitution, and/or pornography. are trafficked for sex within their own communities or deceptively promised economic opportunities in other countries only to be trafficked as domestic workers in hotels or sold for sex.

Amend Twelfth Paragraph, Second Sentence:

Sustainable tourism development in the travel industry should include the following ~~principles~~ guidelines:

Amend Thirteenth Paragraph, Second Bullet Point:

- Are the products/souvenirs purchased on travel locally produced using sustainable materials (~~e.g., no threatened species of plants or animals~~)?

Guidelines for the Imposition of Sanctions

Delete current text and replace with the following:

The parable of the good Samaritan invites us to see the fundamental character of God's love as unconditional and overflowing. In the face of death and in death-dealing situations, aid and succor are the hallmarks of Christian response. In this parable the neighbor in need and the good neighbor were not known for their friendly relations. They were strangers and historical enemies to one another. In the time of need, however, compassion flowed and care was ultimately ensured by the good neighbor's request of an innkeeper: "Look after him, . . . and when I return, I will reimburse you for any extra expense you may have" (Luke 10:35 NIV). This provision of care was unconditioned by tribe, class, kinship, gender, religion, race, and economic or political status. Jesus' command was plain but bold: "Go and do likewise" (Luke 10:37 NIV). And our prayer echoes the prayer of the psalmist, "How long will you defend the unjust / and show partiality to the wicked? / Defend the weak and the fatherless; / uphold the cause of the poor and the oppressed. / Rescue the weak and the needy; / deliver them from the hand of the wicked" (Psalm 82:2-4 NIV).

Sanctions as political and economic tools of pressure and leverage can play a critical role in the mitigation and deterioration of conflicts. It is in this sense that sanctions are sometimes seen as a more tolerable alternative to war, but in no case should they impede the ability of people to have adequate access to food, water, and medicine.

Sanctions, in whatever form, however, lay conditions on the extension of humanitarian aid and succor; thus, they fall short of the gospel imperative for unconditional love. Bearing in mind the limitations of sanctions we must provide guidelines for their imposition and implementation so that we may be reminded of the compassion in which we should always act.

A 2006 Church World Service and Witness (CWSW) study defines sanctions as "a menu of possible diplomatic, communications and economic measures used by governments, intergovernmental bodies, and nongovernmental entities to force changes in policies and behavior (usually but not exclusively on the part of a government)." The study continues: "Sanctions cover a wide variety of measures from moratoria on diplomatic contacts to trade embargoes. Consumer boycotts and disinvestments programs are related measures." (See report: <http://www.nccusa.org/98ga/sanpol.html>, 2006-04-23)

The CWSW study notes that "sanctions can be limited and targeted, such as sports boycotts or restrictions on air travel, or they can be comprehensive, as in the case of trade embargoes. Sanctions can be unilateral (involving a single government) or multilateral (involving more than one)." The term sanction is most frequently associated with economic measures intended to inflict economic damage and thereby force a government or other entity to change its behavior and its policies. The effective use of sanctions lies in the political will of the imposer and is to be measured by the positive effects of the sanctions on the desired outcomes.

At the heart of the conflictive character of sanctions is the concern for possible adverse effects of sanctions on the most vulnerable segments of the population as well as added strain on the already struggling economies of developing countries. Thus, the cautioned use of sanctions arises out of a fundamental ethical and moral dilemma to protect: the innocent, and noncombatants in situations of disaster, conflict, and emergency. Those countries and entities who impose sanctions of any kind must always take care to protect the suffering and the innocents by means of the basic, uncompromised modicum of international human rights and humanitarian laws. We must guarantee the right to protection of human life, human rights, and civil liberties; sanctions should not be imposed at the expense of the vulnerable. Therefore the Christian community must insist that any and all sanctions provide humanitarian exemptions for the provision of care—which includes food, medicine, medical supplies and equipment, basic school supplies, and agricultural inputs and implements—to those in dire need under circumstances of disaster, conflict, and emergency.

Humanitarian exemptions in the case of sanctions are embodied by the concept of the responsibility to protect. Responsibility to protect (R2P) is defined as an international security and humanitarian norm that calls the international community to protect innocent civilians and noncombatants in the face of war crimes, genocide, ethnic cleansing, and other crimes against humanity. We acknowledge that God's mercy happens not when one is suffering, however, but at the point where people are still empowered to act, a prior state in which one is capable of deciding for and producing for their own needs as well as the needs of their children and loved ones.

Thus, the responsibility to protect arises out of a failure of prevention. The responsibility to prevent calls us to address the root causes of internal conflict and other crises that put marginalized populations at risk. We must begin to foster an ethic of prevention—as additional to and foremost of protection—to ensure that people live “in peaceful dwelling places, in secure homes, in undisturbed places of rest,” in assurance that peace is the fruit of justice and righteousness (Isaiah 32:16-18 NIV). (See World Council of Churches publication entitled The Responsibility to Protect: Ethical and Theological Reflections, 2005. See also www.responsibilitytoprotect.org and December 2001 Report of the International Commission on Intervention and State Sovereignty entitled The Responsibility to Protect.)

The CWSW study on the effectiveness of sanctions as an alternative to war concluded with recommendations that include the establishment of decision-making criteria for the imposition of sanctions based on the following guidelines:

- Sanctions must be a part of a broader strategy of peacemaking and an alternative to warfare.
 - Sanctions should be adopted only in circumstances of flagrant and persistent violations of international law.
 - Sanctions should have a clearly defined purpose.
 - Sanctions have their greatest legitimacy and moral authority when authorized by a competent multilateral authority.
 - The good achieved must not be exceeded by anticipated harm.
 - There must be a reasonable prospect that their stated purpose of effecting political change will be achieved.
 - Sanctions are effective only to the extent that they are consistently and thoroughly applied.
 - There must also be operational criteria to sanction impositions:
 - Sanctions should be directed as precisely as possible to those bodies and leaders most responsible for the violation. Humanitarian assistance should be made available to the general population.
 - The progress and effects of sanctions should be continually monitored by an independent and impartial multi-lateral monitoring body.
 - Enforcers should be prepared to address the hurts and needs of victims in the sanctioned country and affected third countries.
 - Open communication should be maintained with government leaders and civic groups in the sanctioned country.
- United Methodists are called to
- request that all governments employ and subscribe to already available indicators to assess potential humanitarian impacts prior to imposing sanctions and for monitoring impacts once sanctions are in place; especially those developed by multilateral institutions such as the United Nations;
 - request that all governments seek to develop a list of humanitarian exceptions in cases in which no previous precedent as developed by the United Nations and other multilateral institutions exists and to incorporate those exemptions in any and all sanctions regimes;
 - call for systematic monitoring of sanctions by independent expert observers;
 - call for consensus to be required on a regular basis, before the United Nations imposes and/or continues Security Council sanctions;
 - ensure in our advocacy efforts that sanctions and embargoes meet the requirements of available international human rights and humanitarian laws, including the provisions of the Statute of the International Criminal Court;
 - commit ourselves and our humanitarian aid efforts as United Methodists, especially through UMCOR, to be carried out with awareness of the limited effectiveness of sanctions and similar enforcement tools in achieving their stated political goals and while also fostering and implementing an ethic of protection and more importantly prevention such that the dignity and human rights of the most vulnerable are preserved; and

- call on the General Board of Church and Society to advocate for policies in national and international arenas that embody the understanding of sanctions and their implications that is contained in this resolution.

Rationale:

This rewrite reminds us of the limitations of sanctions based on the theological assertion that God's love is unconditional and overflowing. The rewrite invites UMs to an ethic of protection and prevention, and introduces the humanitarian concept of responsibility to protect vis-a-vis the ecumenical understanding of responsibility to prevent.

Atomic Testing on the Marshall Islands: A Legacy

Delete current text and replace with the following:

WHEREAS, in the Old Testament the Lord spoke to Moses saying: "Tell the Israelites: When a man or a woman commits any sin against anyone else, thus breaking faith with the LORD, that person becomes guilty. Such persons will confess the sin they have done. Each will make payment for his guilt, add one-fifth more, and give it to the injured party" (Numbers 5:5-7 CEB). And in the New Testament Zacchaeus stood there and said to the Lord, "Look, Lord, I give half of my possessions to the poor. And if I have cheated anyone, I repay them four times as much" (Luke 19:8 CEB).

WHEREAS, evidence from declassified U.S. government reports and studies shows that many more Marshall Islanders were exposed to nuclear fallout from the 67 U.S. atomic and nuclear tests, which were detonated between 1946 and 1962, than American negotiators admitted when the compensation package in the compact was negotiated in the early 1980s; and

WHEREAS, The Marshall Islands government has indicated that information on the health of its people exposed to radiation from atomic and nuclear testing by the United States in the Marshalls requires more just compensation and expansion of medical care than the $150 million trust fund provided in the Compact of Free Association; and

WHEREAS, declassified documents show that the United States knew the anticipated power of the explosion of "Castle Bravo," which at 15 megatons was 1,000 times more powerful than the bomb dropped on Hiroshima, Japan, in 1945 (See Newsweek article "Marshall Islands Nuclear Lawsuit Reopens Old Wounds"); and

WHEREAS, many questions are arising about the accuracy of medical research done by U.S. government labs on Marshall Islanders who were exposed to fallout from atomic and nuclear testing; and

WHEREAS, although the U.S. government provided full compensation to American citizens living in Nevada, Utah, and Arizona, downwind of the Nevada Test Site, not one of the more than 2,000 Marshall Islanders, who received awards from the Nuclear Claims Tribunal were paid 100 percent of their compensation; and

WHEREAS, the U.S. government provided full compensation to American citizens living in a significantly larger area compared to the Marshall Islands, despite the fact that the total tonnage of U.S. tests in the Marshall Islands was almost 100 times greater than the yield of tests at the Nevada test site; and

WHEREAS, more than one-third of the total number of Marshall Islands recipients of nuclear test awards has died without receiving full compensation; and

WHEREAS, documents now show that the people of Ailuk and other nearby atolls and islands were exposed to dangerous amounts of radiation, yet purposely were not evacuated despite information that prevailing wind would blow fallout over a number of inhabited islands; and

WHEREAS, the Marshall Islanders are increasingly becoming aware that islanders were not evacuated because they were likely being used as "guinea pigs" in radiation studies; and

WHEREAS, the March 1, 1954, "Castle Bravo" hydrogen bomb test at Bikini Atoll was detonated despite weather reports the previous day that winds were blowing to the east toward the inhabited atolls of Rongelap, Utrik, Ailuk and others; and

WHEREAS, U.S. government representatives deceived the people of Bikini Atoll by telling them that their island would be used "for the benefit of mankind" and evoking other Christian parables; and

WHEREAS, the atomic testing and nuclear fallout has caused high levels of cancer, genetic defects, radiation burns, and thyroid disorders among the Marshallese peoples and many have not been awarded personal injury compensation; and

WHEREAS, while the negative adverse health impacts of "Castle Bravo" and other nuclear bombs have great significance, the destruction of the cultural, environmental, and emotional well-being of the Marshallese peoples is critical, which includes forced resettlement and uninhabitable land; and

WHEREAS, the U.S. government has not yet apologized to the Marshallese people for the death of Marshallese citizens and for the damage done to their homeland, waters and people; and

WHEREAS, the economic provisions of a Compact of Free Association implemented in 1986 expired in 2001 and prohibited Marshall Islanders from “seeking future redress in U.S. courts” (See Newsweek article cited previously); and

WHEREAS, the $150 million trust fund provided in a Compact of Free Association with the Marshall Islands is woefully inadequate, and not just compensation for the health injuries and deaths caused by U.S. nuclear testing to the population, and the loss of the use of 20 atolls and single islands because of radiation contamination; and

WHEREAS, U.S. funding for medical surveillance and treatment programs is inadequate to meet the needs of the exposed population in the Marshall Islands; and

WHEREAS, the Republic of the Marshall Islands filed a series of lawsuits in the International Court of Justice on April 24, 2014, against the United States, United Kingdom, France, Russia, China, India, Pakistan, Israel, and North Korea with the claim that these nuclear powers have violated their nuclear-disarmament obligations under the Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) and customary international law applying to all states; and (See the Lawyers Committee on Nuclear Policy November 2014 statement, The Marshall Islands’ Nuclear Zero Cases in the World Court: Background and Current Status); and

WHEREAS, only “three of the nine states possessing nuclear arsenals — the U.K., India, and Pakistan — have accepted the compulsory jurisdiction of the Court when the opposing state has done so, as the Marshall Islands has.”

Therefore, be it resolved, that this General Conference call upon The United Methodist Church through the General Board of Church and Society and the General Board of Global Ministries to work closely with the Marshallese people and our ecumenical partners, to bring about an official apology and full redress, including all necessary funding from the U.S. government as well as urge the U.S. government to accept the compulsory jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice and perform their obligations under the Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty to disarm and pursue the cessation of the nuclear arms race; and

Be it further resolved, that copies of this resolution be sent to the U.S. Attorney General, the Secretary of the Department of Energy, the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of State, with copies to the Republic of the Marshall Islands Embassy Office in Washington, D.C., and to the people in the Marshall Islands.

This adverse situation has been exacerbated by domestic and international policies espoused by the US and Mexican governments.

The border region is characterized by:

- ~~political domination by a minority of rich and powerful families;~~
- drastic economic disparity between segments of the population;
- constant deterioration of the health conditions, particularly those affecting the poor;
- high incidence of crime, drug trafficking, and human trafficking for the exploitation of children and adults; ~~and~~
- high rates of unemployment and underemployment; ~~and These detrimental conditions also affect the constant influx of thousands of refugees and undocumented persons coming to the United States seeking safe haven or better economic conditions; This situations of pain and suffering that affects millions of women, children, and men residing on both sides of the border. The impact of these dynamics reaches well into the interiors of both countries.~~

• increased militarization of the border that further alienates the US and Mexico separating families and leading to the tragic deaths of people.

Confronted by this human suffering along the United States–Mexico border region, we recognize that the vision of “a new heaven and a new earth” (Revelation 21) will be only an illusion as long as “one of the least of these” (Matthew 25) continues to suffer.

We are particularly concerned about the following conditions:

1. Environmental:

a. the constant indiscriminate use of pesticides in the growing and harvesting of agricultural products, a problem on both sides of the border; and the export of banned or restricted pesticides across the border;

b. water contamination caused by corporations dumping industrial toxic waste and the flushing of poisonous compounds into the Rio Grande, the Colorado, and other rivers; and

c. growing air pollution on both sides of the border.

2. Health:

a. a high rate of birth defects and other health problems among industrial workers, many of whom have neither been given proper equipment nor been informed of the hazards of the toxic materials they have been exposed to;

b. the high incidence of dysentery, tuberculosis, and hepatitis especially among children in the Colonias (rural unincorporated areas), caused by lack of adequate water treatment facilities and a lack of food and fresh water;

c. the growing number of unsafe, crowded homes and shanty towns without sanitation and other basic facilities due to a lack of adequate, affordable housing for workers; and

d. the lack of access to health, education, and welfare services, already overburdened by the volume of need, perpetuating the cycle of poverty and dehumanization.

3. Economic:

a. wages kept low by repressing workers' bargaining rights, which keeps the border region below the average of Mexican industrial wage levels, despite the fact that the Maquiladoras continue to a large source of income for the Mexican border region;

b. the lack of long-range economic and industrial development strategies, making both the United States and the Mexican economies more dependent on quick economic fixes such as Maquiladoras, quick cash crops, tourism, and services that can help temporarily and superficially, but ignore the needs of most of the present and future generations;

c. the trade agreements (such as the North American Free Trade Agreement), which worsen existing economic dependencies and foster the exploitation of human and natural resources; and

d. the region's low level of educational attainment, high incidence of illiteracy, the high dropout rate, and the availability and influx of drugs, which have a greater impact on the low-income population along the border.

4. Civil and Human Rights:

a. heightened anxieties of Americans who perceive immigrants as unwelcomed foreigners who threaten US social, political, and economic security;

b. strategies devised by US governmental agencies and groups to harass, intimidate, and repress legal and foreign entrants into the US territory; and

c. the poor administration of justice; the cultural insensitivity of border patrol agents; the high incidence of illegal use of force; and the constant violation of the civil and human rights of those detained or deported. These situations create an atmosphere of tension and distrust that adds to the polarization between Mexicans and US residents and transients.

d. the exporting of guns and other armament that ends in the hands of drug cartels, which further escalates the level of violence in the border region.

These detrimental conditions affect the constant influx of thousands of refugees and undocumented persons coming to the United States seeking safe haven or better economic conditions. Also, these situations create pain and suffering among millions of children, women, ~~children~~, and men residing on both sides of the border. The impact of these dynamics reaches well into the interiors of both countries. As Christians and United Methodists, we express our sorrow and indignation about this human suffering and accept the responsibility to use our resources toward the elimination of the root causes creating this tragic human problem. We are urged by God through Christ to love our neighbor and to do what we must to bring healing in the midst of pain, and to restore to wholeness those whose lives are shattered by injustice and oppression.

Therefore, we recommend and urge the Mexican and US governments to:

- develop national and international policies that bring more economic parity between the two countries, as an integral part of any trade agreement;

- develop binational and multilateral agreements that improve the quality of life; safeguard water rights; and prevent the contamination of air, water, and land of both sides of the border;

- develop binding and enforceable mechanisms with respect to: labor and human rights; agriculture, including farm workers; environmental standards; and health and safety standards for both nations and in any agreements to which they are a party;

- develop and support national and international policies, such as the UN Convention on the Protection of the Rights of all Migrant Workers and Members of their Families, that facilitate the migration and immigration of peoples across the border while respecting their rights and aspirations; ~~and~~

- find alternative and creative ways to reduce the foreign debt of Mexico; and

- work toward the demilitarization of the border.

We further recommend that the General Board of Church and Society, with churches in Mexico, the United States, and Canada, seek ways to network on fair trade, labor and human rights, agricultural, and environmental concerns.

Taiwan Security, Stability, and Sovereignty

Taiwan Security, Stability, and ~~Self-Determination~~ Sovereignty

Taiwan has, since 1624 . . .

With its new Anti-Secession Law(2005), the People's Republic of China(PRC) has threatened to destroy the hard-earned democracy and human rights of the people of Taiwan with more than ~~800~~ 1500 short-range ballistic missiles if the Taiwanese exercises self-determination and declares independence;

The PRC also . . .

On February 27, 2006 . . . and vowed to address the threat of military action by the PRC;

On March 2014, half million of people of Taiwan, led by its youth, has expressed their strong concern through a widely publicized "Sunflower Movement" to oppose a KMT proposed service and trade pact with Beijing;

With the leadership of the Taiwanese United Methodists . . .

Therefore, be it resolved, that the ~~2008~~ 2016 General Conference of The United Methodist Church . . .

Be it further resolved, that The United Methodist Church . . . and the United Nations the right of Taiwanese for stability, security, and ~~self-determination~~ sovereignty of Taiwan's own status in the family of nations.

Support of Taiwan

“Support of Taiwan”

The human story is one of migration and struggles for self-determination, but often frustrated by the unsolicited intervention of nations into the affairs of other nations. The United Methodist Church continues to stand unequivocally against such interventions. This too is the story of the people of Taiwan whose struggle for self-determination as an independent state call for our solidarity and action.

Taiwan is an island state of ~~two~~ twenty-three million people, comprised of indigenous Taiwanese, Chinese, and a mix of both.

After 400 plus years of colonial rule by the Dutch, the Chinese, and the Japanese, the people of Taiwan today have a more stable form of democratic government, a thriving economy and a vibrant national identity and culture.

Therefore, we call upon all United Methodists around the world to stand in solidarity with the Taiwanese people as they assert their human rights and their right to self-determination. Self-determination will allow the Taiwanese people to freely determine their political destiny and achieve their democratic aspirations, without influence from, or domination by, foreign powers, including the People's Republic of China.

Further, that United Methodists support the Taiwanese people's effort for a just and durable peace, secure and stable borders, and sustainable development and cooperation among nations and peoples of the world. This requires having Taiwan as a contributing member state of the United Nations.

In light of historic United Methodist understanding of self-determination, and its current understanding of “One China Policy” of our government, which is not accepted by the majority of Taiwanese people, we therefore call upon the leadership of the Council of Bishops, with the assistance of the General Board of Global Ministries and the General Board of Church and Society and their annual conference networks, including the National Federation of Asian American United Methodists, to inform and educate the church about the history, experience, struggles, and hope of the Taiwanese people for an independent state.

Violence Against Children in Latin America and the Caribbean

WHEREAS, millions of children in Latin America and the Caribbean struggle daily to survive in the midst of the violence that forces them to migrate out of their homes, cities, and country in search of safety and better living conditions; and

WHEREAS, the root causes of migration and immigration are:

- ~~the violence of armed conflict~~
- ~~the violence of scarce resources taken from children's health and educational needs to support inordinately large military budgets;~~
- ~~the violence of poverty linked to the massive external debt burdening every nation of the region concentration of wealth in a very small percentage of the population; high unemployment and lack of affordable education opportunities;~~
- ~~the violence of hunger;~~
- ~~the culture of violence permeating television and other mass media;~~
- lack of medical facilities accessible to the general population leading to high child mortality;
- violence created by organized crime engaged in the traffic of illegal drugs en route to the US;
- violence caused by gangs (maras) infiltrated by drug cartels who recruit children as young as eight years of age in Honduras, El Salvador, and other countries.
- widespread domestic violence;
- ecological violence that is destroying and polluting the natural world and all live creatures;
- ~~the violence of impact of HIV-Aids, with the second highest incidence in the world in many Caribbean nations, destroying children's lives from birth;~~
- ~~the violence of very high infant mortality.~~

~~Therefore, be it resolved, that the General Commission on Religion and Race endorses MARCHA's petition to the 2004 2016 General Conference to establish a special program to address; to request the United Methodist Women (UMW), the General Board of Global Ministries (GBGM), the General Board of Church and Society (GBCS), the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry (GBHEM) and the General Board of Discipleship (GBOD) to develop programs, in cooperation with the member churches of CIEMAL, to address the grave crisis of children struggling to survive in the midst of violence and poverty; by communicating this concern to~~

~~Be it further resolved, that the Council of Bishops and be referred to the General Board of Global Ministries (GBGM) and the General Council on Finance and Administration (GCFA) to support for the implementation of a program these programs.~~

Opposition to Israeli Settlements in Palestinian Land

Amend Resolution #6111: Opposition to Israeli settlements in Palestinian land as follows:

~~Be it further resolved, that we urge all governments the U.S. government to end all military aid to the region, and second to redistribute the large amount of aid now given to Israel and Egypt; to support to exercise caution and to consider the welfare of all in making any decisions with regard to military aid. We are concerned about the negative role of Iran in funding militant activity in the region. We recognize and celebrate the role of Israel's "Iron Dome" defense system, supported by U.S. military aid, in saving Jewish, Christian, and Muslim lives from rockets indiscriminately fired by Palestinian militants (Mark Tran, "Iron Dome: Israel's 'Game-Changing' Missile Shield," Guardian, 9 July 2014, available from <http://www.theguardian.com/world/2014/jul/09/iron-dome-gaza-israel-air-defence-missile>; Cf. Dan Rather, "How Israel's Iron Dome Is Also Saving Palestinian Lives," Huffington Post, 22 January 2014, available from http://www.huffingtonpost.com/dan-rather/israel-iron-dome_b_2526720.html). We urge all nations who are able, regardless of their political allegiances, to support economic development efforts of nongovernmental organizations throughout the region,~~ including religious institutions, human rights groups, labor unions, and professional groups within Palestinian communities.

The United Methodist Church requests that all governments, especially that of the United States, to work in cooperation with the United Nations and other nations, to urge the State of Israel to:

1. cease the confiscation of Palestinian lands and water for any reason;
2. cease the building of new, or expansion of existing, settlements and/or bypass roads in the occupied territories including East Jerusalem;
3. lift the closures and curfews on all Palestinian towns by completely withdrawing Israeli military forces to the Green Line (the 1948 ceasefire line between Israel and the West Bank);
4. dismantle that segment of the Wall of Separation constructed since May 2002 that is not being built on the Green Line but on Palestinian land that is separating Palestinian farmers from their fields.

We also urge the Palestinian Authority and all Palestinian religious leaders to ~~continue to~~ publicly condemn violence against Israeli ~~civilians, to affirm Israel's right to exist within secure borders, to protect the equal rights of Jews, Christians, and other minorities who live or travel within their jurisdictions, and to use nonviolent acts of disobedience to resist the occupation and the illegal settlements methods.~~

...

Rationale:

It is simply ignorant, and suggests a callous lack of concern for the lives saved from murderous rockets, to just broadly condemn "all" U.S. military aid to Israel and Egypt. Iron Dome is a defensive weapon system. Moral consistency demands we ask for better from Iran and Palestinian leaders.

Saying No to Violence in Middle East Conflict

Replace Resolution 6113 "Saying No to Violence in the Middle East Conflict" with "Restorative Justice Use in Peacemaking in Israel/Palestine"

WHEREAS, "Justice" in the Bible is restorative as God seeks to bring about healing in relationships, transform alienation into community, restore offenders into God's family, and bless all the peoples of the earth and Jesus offers restorative responses to wrongdoing in the New Testament; and

WHEREAS, The United Methodist Church advocates for peace and justice in the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and recognizes that a significant portion of both the Israeli and Palestinians populations have experienced life-threatening traumatic events including years of suffering under occupation and years of war and terrorism so that at different times Israelis and Palestinians have both been victims and aggressors and both populations are impacted by high levels of trauma and stress due to the unresolved political situation (for further trauma information see articles cited below); and

WHEREAS, unhealed trauma profoundly impacts individuals, communities, and nations often perpetuating and prolonging the very conflict which caused the trauma in the first place and making resolution seem impossible by preventing the trust which must be built for negotiations for a lasting, just and peaceful solution to be successful; and

WHEREAS, restorative justice works to recognize damages, re-build trust, honor dignity, and integrate all people who have been harmed through conflict, and since restorative justice is a peace-building, conflict transformation approach that can be of great assistance in trust building between parties who have been in prolonged conflict, restorative justice dialogue is especially appropriate in the Israeli-Palestinian conflict where both parties see themselves as the victim and the other as the aggressor/offender; and

WHEREAS, restorative justice dialogue invites parties to meet in a safe and structured setting so that the dialogue includes both victims and aggressors/offenders and a mediator/coach in order to name what happened, identify impact, and create some common understanding, often including reaching agreement as to how any resultant harm will be repaired. For example, Dr. Howard Zehr, professor of restorative justice at the Center for Justice and Peace Building, Eastern Mennonite University, Harrisonburg, Virginia, describes a role play in the United Kingdom by high school students and their principal. In the first role play, a fight between two girls is handled traditionally with the principal behind his desk interrogating the girls and rendering judgment. In the second example, a restorative justice circle process included the principal and girls dialoguing with the help of a facilitator. Each party told their story including feelings of harm and wrongdoing helping each party acknowledge their responsibility in the conflict. A solution emerged acknowledging mutual harm as well as shared responsibility and the disputants became friends (http://www.wiscomp.org/pp-v1/Howard_Zehr_Paper.pdf). Restorative justice does not shame or punish and seeks healing by acknowledging all injustices and searching for appropriate gestures of regret and reconciliation; and

WHEREAS, restorative justice offers hope and creative possibilities for some steps toward reconciliation in the Israeli/Palestinian conflict while still recognizing that both sides are suffering and that both sides are traumatized and blame each other. Through the sharing of personal and national narratives, mutual articulation of needs and mutual acceptance of responsibility, restorative justice processes can ultimately create empathy for the “other” and opportunities for trust building, conflict resolution, and trauma recovery. Knowing this, the Church is obliged to practice restorative justice in its own ranks and to call our own society and all nations to move in the same direction.

Therefore, be it resolved, that the 2016 General Conference calls on the General Board of Church & Society, in cooperation with JustPeace to:

1. Affirm strategies which will engage both Israelis and Palestinians in an effort to learn more about their historic and current lived experiences and to gain an understanding of their fears, aspirations, and hopes; and

2. Commit to lifting up voices within both Palestinian and Israeli communities, especially those of victims of violence and injustice, in order to seek peace with justice through restorative responses to conflicts; and

3. Actively seek ways to restore right relationship and promote reconciliation between Israelis and Palestinians through restorative justice dialogue and projects involving mutual cooperation; and

4. Encourage all United Methodists to actively pursue restorative justice mechanisms for peace and justice between Palestinians and Israelis; and

5. Commit to support U.S. and international efforts at serious and effective diplomacy to promote restorative justice and cooperation between all parties to the conflict leading to the creation of a sustainable solution which ends the occupation and establishes a viable Palestinian state at peace with Israel.

Rationale:

Restorative justice must be part of any lasting, just and peaceful solution between Israelis and Palestinians because of the deep lack of trust caused by years of occupation and violence making resolution of their conflict so difficult. This resolution asks the Church to practice this discipline.

Philippines: Democratic Governance, Human Rights and the Peace Process

Delete current text and replace with the following, including merging resolution 6119:

Philippines: Democratic Governance, Human Rights and the Peace Process

“Justice is pushed aside; / righteousness stands far off, / because truth has stumbled in the public square, / and honesty can’t enter. / Truth is missing; / anyone turning from evil is plundered. / The LORD looked and was upset at the absence of justice. / Seeing that there was no one, / and astonished that no one would intervene” (Isaiah 59:14-16 CEB).

“Jerusalem, Jerusalem! You who kill the prophets and stone those who were sent to you. How often I wanted to gather your people together, just as a hen gathers her chicks under her wings. But you didn’t want that” (Matthew 23:37 CEB).

“An injustice does not only affect the people against whom the injustice is committed, but threatens every one of us and the life we share together as an ordered society. It is a Christian imperative that we are vigilant in defending the rights of every person at all times. Long before human rights were formulated in law, they were inscribed in the being of every person, for it is in the very image of God that we are created. For human rights to have meaning they need to be vigilantly defended, where possible the dignity of those denied their rights needs to be restored, and those who are responsible for violations, be they states or individuals need to be made accountable. In our Philippine society we have seen the institutionalization of a culture of impunity, where those who violate the human rights of others, are able to escape investigation and prosecution” (Rev. Fr. Rex R. B. Reyes, General Secretary, National Council of Churches in the Philippines).

Our Concern: Intensifying Impunity Amidst Increasing Militarization in the Philippines

The United Methodist Church continues to be alarmed by and concerned about the unabated and egregious violations of human rights in the Philippines. Such violations that take place within the perpetual framework of U.S. counterinsurgency and military doctrine, take the form of extrajudicial killings, summary executions, abductions, torture, arbitrary and prolonged political detentions, and enforced disappearances. Since the beginning of Philippine President Benigno Aquino III’s term in office, victims of human rights violations include over 226 extrajudicial killings and 26 forced disappearances 693 illegally arrested and detained, and 491 political prisoners (KARAPATAN Report, December 2014).

The Philippines persists in officially collaborating with the United States-sanctioned war on terror, willingly subordinating itself to interests of U.S. militarism. The Philippines has adopted the U.S. Counterinsurgency Program of 2009 as its blueprint for counterinsurgency, a methodology demonstrably dismissive of human rights. Criticisms directed at the Armed Forces of the Philippines about its dismal human rights record since 2007 has been defended by the defense establishment as falling within the frame of counterinsurgency. Such frame is inherently flawed and fundamentally at odds with the genuine pursuit of peace and the protection of human rights.

Very alarming and disturbing is the increasingly militarized approach of both the Philippine and U.S. governments to the economic development of and humanitarian crises in the Philippines. This approach follows the 2012 announcement of plans by the U.S. Department of Defense to “pivot to Asia” (See http://www.defense.gov/news/Defense Strategic Guidance.pdf). The Asia pivot heralds the Pentagon’s strategy to shift at least 60 percent of its military forces to the Asia Pacific, including the Philippines. It is a U.S. bid to protect and expand the United States’ market and military interests in the region. This military, defense and foreign policy focus on Asia benefits the advancement of free-trade partnerships and agreements in Asia. Most notable for its disturbing features is the Trans-Pacific Partnership, otherwise called TPP Agreement (<https://ustr.gov/tpp> and http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Trans-Pacific Partnership. Accessed February 2, 2015). This partnership agreement is modeled after the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) that has devastated the economies of Mexico and Central America, triggering an exponential increase in the migration of people fleeing poverty and violence. This neoliberal economic strategy seeks to further open markets in the Philippines and throughout Asia, ultimately making the fragile economies of the region even more vulnerable to intrusion and domination by foreign multinational corporations.

The Backdrop of United Methodist and Ecumenical Witness in the Philippines

There is expressed opposition of the ecumenical community in the Philippines to the TPP. In a statement dated August 24, 2014, the National Council of Churches in the Philippines (NCCP) stated: “The President’s attempt to reopen the issue of Charter change is related to influence being exerted by the U.S. government, large corporations and some developed countries in the region to pave the way for the entry of the Philippines into a massive “free-trade” agreement referred to as the Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP). The TPP negotiations that were a central discussion point during the recent visit of U.S. President [Barack] Obama have been shrouded in secrecy.

“The TPP threatens to raise the legal status of large corporation to effective equality with sovereign nations, and to undermine the sovereign rights of participant nations to establish their own financial and product standards regulative regimes. The Philippines is currently on the sidelines of the TPP negotiations because our current Constitution does not conform to TPP requirements. The Constitution is a basic protection of our national sovereignty, and it is inappropriate for any other country, even when acting behind the scenes, to exert pressure for Constitutional change.”

Intimidation and violence have met the opposition by Filipino peoples to the economic impositions by foreign powers such as the TPP, and the violation of their human rights, especially the human rights of indigenous peoples, farm workers, and land tillers in rural areas. Philippine military, paramilitary forces, private armies and vigilante groups of warlords and big landlords and multinational corporations, have been documented to be in collusion (<<http://www.hrw.org/asia/-philippines>>).

Under the terms of the 1999 Visiting Forces Agreement (VFA) between the U.S. and the Philippines, since 2006 over 600 American special-operations forces have been on “permanent rotation” in resource-rich areas on the southern island of Mindanao. Joint training exercises involving several thousands of U.S. and Philippine military personnel are conducted dozens of times every year on Philippine air, land and water. Such exercises serve as a not-so-subtle reminder of the military muscle backing up both the Philippine military and U.S. business interests in the region.

When Typhoon Haiyan, the strongest typhoon in recorded history to hit land, struck the Philippines in 2013, the enormity of destruction to human lives, infrastructure, and property was staggering. More than 6,000 people were confirmed dead, nearly four million people were displaced, and 1,600 were declared missing. The immediate response of the U.S. government was to send military support to the Philippines. The U.S. “pivot to Asia Pacific” meant sending ships, weapons, and soldiers, in stark contrast to other countries that provided medical professionals, engineers, aid workers, and food.

This militarized and securitized approach to humanitarian aid was cemented in a new agreement called Enhanced Defense Cooperation Agreement (EDCA), which was signed by the U.S. and the Philippines a mere five months after Typhoon Haiyan. As the Visiting Forces Agreement (VFA) and numerous Status of Forces and Mutual Logistics Support Agreements before it, forged between the U.S. and other states after, the EDCA is also an access agreement. It grants the U.S. the ability and flexibility to station its war material, Special Operations Forces, and forces to handle “housekeeping” matters, such as logistics support, administration, and military justice. The aim is to wage asymmetrical warfare against anyone: governments, “rogue states,” but also activists. The activists who are opposed to the economic and security interests of the U.S. are casually branded as terrorists.

EDCA also protects the interests of the oil, mining, agribusiness, banking and technology corporations that depend on the U.S. military to protect U.S. investments and operations on foreign soil. Such protection extends to the water and airways that serve as the shipping lanes for global commodities, even when such protections have contributed to the destruction in the Philippines of livelihoods and properties of over 13,000 people and the displacement of nearly 50,000 people during Benigno Aquino III’s presidency.

Retired Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the Philippines, Hon. Reynato Puno, who was the first Filipino United Methodist to hold this high position, said in a university commencement speech: “One visible result of the scramble to end terrorism is to take legal shortcuts and legal shortcuts always shrink the scope of human rights. .

.. These shortcuts have searched the landscape of rights in the Philippines. . . . The escalation of extrajudicial killings in the Philippines has attracted the harsh eye of advocates of human rights. . . . Their initial findings are not complementing to our Constitutional commitment to protect human rights. . . . If there is any lesson that we can derive from the history of human rights, it is none other than these rights cannot be obliterated by bombs but neither can they be preserved by bullets alone. Terrorism is a military/police problem but its ultimate solution lies beyond the guns of our armed forces. . . . The apathy of those who can make a difference is the reason why violations of human rights continue to prosper. The worst enemy of human rights is not its nonbelievers but the fence sitters who will not lift a finger despite their violations.”

Patronage politics, an economy controlled by oligarchies, and a tightening space for democratic speech and organizing to air grievances against powerful political and economic forces characterize the Philippine situation today. This situation has led to prophetic and forthright witness by United Methodist leaders and members in the country, asserting it as a moral response. Speaking to the accountability of Philippine government officials in the way they disburse and use funds from the public coffers, United Methodist bishops of the Philippines and the leaders of the Philippines Central Conference Board of Church and Society asserted:

“[O]ur country has been governed by an oligarchy of big business people and big landlords who effectively influence all the branches of government and have succeeded in preserving their selfish interest at the expense of the greater interest of the people. The amassing of immoral wealth dog[s] the heels of the ancient shepherds/rulers who disregarded their flock. . . . The present outcry against PDAF [Priority Development Assistance Fund] and DAP [Disbursement Acceleration Program] is all about misappropriating the people’s money while shrugging off any responsibility especially to the poor of the land, and then shifting that burden to those who create those resources. Taxes and other revenues are all managed and manipulated by the unholy alliance of political and economic elites for their own benefit and to the neglect of the hungry sheep who are deprived of those resources” (Statement by Philippines Central Conference, The Filipino People Deserve Servant Leaders and Righteous Governance!).

The Human Rights Situation is Appalling

Many international groups—religious bodies, non-governmental organizations, foreign governments, and intergovernmental organizations such as the United Nations—have pressed the Philippine government to do more to stop the many disturbing forms of human rights violations in the Philippines, urging the government to fulfill its constitutional and international law obligations. These human rights violations continue unabated and escalating with impunity. Calls to stop them are contained in detailed, credible, and substantiated reports from various sources. Such reports were issued by the U.N. Special Rapporteur on Extrajudicial, Summary or Arbitrary Executions; the U.S. State Department, in particular its Country Report on Human Rights Practices, from 2007 to the present; Amnesty International; Human Rights Watch; Human Rights First; and the Asian Human Rights Commission.

The Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP), paramilitary units under its control, and the Philippine National Police (PNP) continue to be implicated in EJKs, enforced disappearances, torture, and illegal arrests and detention. One hundred ninety of the 226 victims of EJKs were peasant activists and indigenous peoples. The targeting of these specific populations reveals the victimization of people actively resisting economic exploitation, land grabbing, and forced displacement. (Many EJKs were conducted with impunity through the very familiar and visible method involving two men on a motorcycle with hidden or missing license plates, faces covered, driving up and shooting the victim or victims with a handgun, and then speeding off to evade identification and arrest.)

The U.S. State Department 2013 Human Rights Report states, “The most significant human rights problems [continue] to be extrajudicial killings and enforced disappearances undertaken by security forces; a dysfunctional criminal justice system notable for poor cooperation between police and investigators, few prosecutions, and lengthy procedural delays; and widespread official corruption and abuse of power.”

In 2013, from January to October, the Office of the Ombudsman, an independent agency in the Philippines responsible for investigating and prosecuting charges of public abuse and impropriety, received 306 cases involving military and law enforcement officers accused of committing human-rights abuses. These cases included killings, injuries, unlawful arrest, and torture. Most were filed against low-ranking police and military officials. As of October 2014, some 302 cases were dismissed due to insufficiency of evidence, and eight are under investigation. There are no recorded convictions of high-ranking police or military officials.

Many of the victims of human-rights violations are themselves human-rights defenders, also labor leaders, peasant leaders, environmentalists, journalists and others fighting against graft and corruption, and for peace and justice. They are frequently vilified as “enemies of the state” by the police and military establishments, tagged as supporters of a 45-year long armed struggle conducted by the National Democratic Front of the Philippines (NDFP) and its armed wing, the New Peoples Army. Their vilification has been used by paramilitary forces under the control of the police and military as some sort of license to arrest, even kill, these ordinary citizens and their community leaders.

Harassment by military and paramilitary forces is rampant among indigenous peoples who are protesting against dislocation from their ancestral lands. Forced displacements have happened due to increased operation of extractive mining companies that have sprung up in many parts of the country, but mostly in indigenous peoples’ lands. A hearing on the killing of four members of the B’laan tribe in Mindanao, who protested against the large Tampakan copper-gold mine being proposed and developed by Sagittarius Mines Inc., disclosed that the mining company has paramilitary-armed men on its payroll who are under the nominal command of the AFP.

In the case of Manobo tribes of Southern Mindanao, armed paramilitary units operate in their indigenous communities and are pitted against their own tribes who are opposed to large-scale logging, mining and other foreign-funded projects like hydroelectric power plants that encroach into their ancestral lands.

Hamleting, food blockades, food rationing and establishing curfew hours are just some of the harassment they commit to force these indigenous peoples into submission.

Those who dare resist are threatened and many of them eventually become victims of extrajudicial killings. In situations where entire communities protest the encroachment, massive military operations have been undertaken, causing dislocations of entire villages such as the evacuation of 118 families of the Talaingod-Manobos in 2014. The schooling of indigenous children is compromised, even stopped, under these situations. A campaign to spare schools from combat and to declare the schools as zones of peace is of paramount importance (This area of Mindanao where the Manobos have their ancestral lands has been visited five times between 2010 and 2014 by a group organized under the auspices of the Philippines Task Force of the California-Pacific Annual Conference and lead hosting in the Philippines by Panalipdan-Southern Mindanao, a broad alliance of environmentalists and people’s organizations with a strong human-rights advocacy, and the Davao Episcopal Area of The United Methodist Church.).

Persistence in Peace Negotiations

The past 46 years have been marked by two armed conflicts waged separately against the Government of the Philippines (GPH) by the National Democratic Front of the Philippines (NDFP) and the Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF). Through the process of peace negotiations, the GPH and the MILF forged an agreement to end formally their armed hostilities. The two parties signed the Comprehensive Agreement on the Bangsamoro in 2014. The peace talks between GPH and NDFP remain stalled.

The Filipino people's clamor for peace with justice is a fervent desire. The National Council of Churches in the Philippines (NCCP) has called for "... principled negotiations to thresh out the issues, unearth and address the root causes of the conflict." The NCCP asserted, "The peace negotiation is a way to just and lasting peace," stating, "it is a way to end the armed conflict that has claimed the lives of thousands of Filipinos, combatants and non-combatants alike."

Peace negotiations aimed to pave decisively the way to a just, sustainable and durable peace must resume and aim for completion. It must focus on resolving the conditions that have provoked the past 46 years of armed conflict throughout the Philippines. Solving this long-term conflict, including ending the AFP counterinsurgency program that has been prosecuted with so many human-rights violations committed, is vital to achieving a lasting and durable peace and beginning a solid regime of human rights and human dignity.

Building peace requires building trust. Between 2002 and 2003, the U.S. made a deal with the GPH whereby upon GPH joining the "Coalition of the Willing" to invade Iraq, the U.S. would add the Communist Party of the Philippines–New People's Army (CPP-NPA) to the list of Foreign Terrorist Organizations (FTO), even though the CPP-NPA does not fit the State Department's definition of FTO.

The listing of the CPP-NPA has been a significant contributing factor to the deteriorating environment for concluding a peace agreement with this insurgent group. Still, 27 years of sporadic yet persistent negotiations have produced more than 10 significant peace agreements aimed at addressing the lingering root causes of the Philippine crisis.

The call for peace with justice is an international call and the resolution of the Philippine crisis must involve the international community. The support of the Government of Norway in helping broker the peace negotiations between the GPH and the NDFP is most commendable.

The time is ripe and the moment is urgent. Both GPH and NDFP must proceed to implement in earnest and with good faith the agreements they have already negotiated between them. Among these agreements are The Hague Joint Declaration of 1992, the Joint Agreement on Safety and Immunity Guarantees (JASIG, 1995) and The Comprehensive Agreement on Respect for Human Rights and International Humanitarian Law (CARHRIHL, 1998).

There are palpable challenges to the peace process. Thousands of grievances have been filed against the AFP and PNP for violating the JASIG and CARHRIHL. The peace talks are derailed by the imprisonment of registered NDFP peace-negotiation consultants on false charges. There are the EJKs, disappearances, and illegal arrest and torture of NPA sympathizers. These governmental acts undermine the peace process and must be stopped at all costs.

The reported success of the December 2014 meetings of special teams from both the GPH and NDFP to discuss compliance with past agreements, along with the release of prisoners of war by the NDFP, augurs well for the resumption of peace talks. The resumption shows the readiness amongst various parties to come to the negotiating table for more needed steps in the peace process. The peace negotiations must resume as soon as possible.

The Filipino People Deserve Our Solidarity and Action

We welcome the release of "Let the Stones Cry Out: An Ecumenical Report on Human Rights in the Philippines and a Call to Action" released by the ecumenical and nongovernmental community in the Philippines, led by the National Council of Churches in the Philippines, whose production and distribution was led and supported by a couple of general agencies of The United Methodist Church.

We share with the ecumenical community in the Philippines the perspective posed and the burden of the question raised in the ecumenical report's preface: "Something is wrong when members of the clergy and lay missionaries are being silenced when they are deeply engaged in missions that address the concerns of their constituencies—and the Philippine society as a whole. Something is wrong when members of the church and faith institutions are killed, go missing or are arrested while pursuing their calling to bring about justice closer to the poor, to fight for their rights, and advocate peace in a society that is torn asunder by armed conflicts fueled by structural problems. Of greater alarm is that the gross and systematic attacks on these pilgrims of peace and servants of God are forcing their institutions to an inevitable clash with the State."

We issue this statement not only to support the ecumenical report from the Philippines and the direction in which its call to action points. We issue this statement because the struggle for human rights in the Philippines is at a point when our solidarity and accompaniment, as we have expressed in many ways and many times in the past, are crucial and needed even more so today.

We Commit to Action with Resolve and Dispatch

Filipino faith communities and citizens continue to address the situation in the Philippines. General boards and agencies of The United Methodist Church have addressed the human-rights situation in the Philippines in a variety of ways and venues, including providing to the Philippine Working Group (PWG) of the Asia Pacific Forum of U.S. and Canadian church and ecumenical staff executives, which helped produce the ecumenical human-rights report and supported the itineration in Canada, U.S., and Europe, of a Philippine ecumenical delegation called "Ecumenical Voice for Human Rights and Peace in the Philippines." This ecumenical voice has briefed U.S. House of Representatives members and testified at a U.S. Senate hearing on March 14, 2007. This ecumenical voice as submitted numerous reports to, and addressed the sessions of, the U.N. Human Rights Council in Geneva, engaging this global-human rights body in its Universal Periodic Review of the Philippines. This ecumenical voice has since expanded its membership, and its voice is ever more heard and its perspective ever more sought, in the Philippines and abroad.

Our denomination also helped secure meetings with the U.S. State Department and key congressional offices to raise concerns about the Philippine human-rights situation. Our denomination, through a number of its boards and agencies, also accompanied the ecumenical delegation in submitting the ecumenical report to a variety of United Nations-related offices in Geneva, Switzerland, especially the U.N. Human Rights Council, the Office of the U.N. High Commissioner for Human Rights, and the U.N. Special Rapporteurs on Indigenous Peoples, and on the promotion and protection of human rights while countering terrorism.

Other annual conferences in the United States, such as California-Nevada, Pacific Northwest, Desert Southwest, California-Pacific, and Northern Illinois, have also addressed these issues, including conducting fact-finding, solidarity, and mission trips to the Philippines. In all these visits, Philippine church leaders and church workers showed them the appalling human-rights situation and in turn the visitors voiced their concern with government and military officials, and expressed their solidarity with church and community leaders.

We Commit to Work on the Following Actions:

We will submit this statement to concerned governmental and intergovernmental offices to convey our call to the Philippine government to stop immediately illegal arrests and prolonged detention; stop the killings, disappearances, torture, forced displacement; and stop all the other forms of human-rights violations.

We also call on the Philippine government to take effective measures to bring to justice members of its security forces and their agents for whom there is credible evidence of human-rights violations, to comply with its obligations under international human-rights and humanitarian laws, to rescind national security policies that make no distinction between combatants and noncombatants, to hold free and fair elections, and to investigate any allegations of electoral fraud.

We call on the Philippine government to stop the practice of listing peace and human-rights advocates in its watch lists of individuals banned from entering or leaving the Philippines and to expunge such record of names already listed.

We call on other governments, but especially the governments of the United States of America, the European Union, the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, and significant development aid and trading partners like Japan, to look into these human-rights violations and pressure the Philippine government to stop them. To this end, we also support moves within the U.S. Congress calling for a review of official development aid, and trade and economic arrangements to examine whether these do or do not further exacerbate human-rights violations.

We support the call to require the Department of Defense of the United States to file Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) reports, including social impacts, with every U.S. military or resource deployment in the Philippines, to prevent environmental damages, as well as remediation of environmental damages caused U.S. military activities.

We especially call for any military appropriations and official development assistance to the Philippine government to be withheld unless the Philippine government demonstrates strict adherence to international laws and standards of human rights and good governance, and thereby supports the development and use of benchmarks that will guide and measure the Philippine government's adherence to the same.

Since human rights thrive under democratic, just, and peaceful conditions we therefore call for the resumption and full engagement of peace talks by the government, without preconditions, with all of the Philippine rebel groups. With the successful completion of negotiations the civil, political, social, economic, and cultural problems that beset the Philippines may yet result in just and durable peace.

We call on the United Nations and its agencies to continue investigating human-rights violations in the Philippines, and to offer help to the Philippine government in meeting its international obligations, including non-interference, empowerment, and capacity-building of nongovernmental organizations in their work of monitoring Philippine government compliance and promotion of human rights.

We call for the termination of military agreements between the U.S. and the Philippines that prioritize profits over people and foster conditions that abet the culture of impunity in the Philippines.

Lastly, we call on our general boards, agencies, annual conferences, and local churches in the U.S. and throughout the global connection, including the National Association of Filipino American United Methodists, to work with Philippine annual conferences, ecumenical bodies, and nongovernmental organizations in joint undertakings to address the peace and human-rights situation in the Philippines.

Eyes on the Prize: Truth, Justice and Peace

The Human Rights Watch (HRW) World Report 2015 called on Philippine President Aquino to “take decisive action against torture and extrajudicial killings by the police and other state security forces.” In his introductory essay of that report, HRW Executive Director Kenneth Roth, urged “governments to recognize that human rights can offer an effective moral guide in turbulent times, and that violating rights can spark or aggravate serious security challenges. The short-term gains of undermining core values of freedom and non-discrimination are rarely worth the long-term price” (Press Release by Human Rights Watch, “Philippines: End Police Torture, Killings,” Manila, January 29, 2015).

We must keep our eyes on the prize even as we struggle for the recognition of each one’s human dignity and fight for each one’s human rights.

“These are the things you should do: Speak the truth to each other; make truthful, just, and peaceable decisions within your gates. Don’t plan evil for each other. Don’t adore swearing falsely, for all of these are things that I hate, says the LORD” (Zechariah 8:16-17 CEB).

The United Methodist Church and Peace

Delete current text and replace with the following, incorporating parts of Resolution 6146 (proposed for deletion) and Resolution 6159 (proposed to expire):

Then justice will reside in wild lands, / and righteousness will abide in farmlands. / The fruit of righteousness will be peace, / and the outcome of righteousness, / calm and security forever. / Then my people will live in a peaceful dwelling, / in secure homes, in carefree resting places (Isaiah 32:16-18 CEB).

For he himself is our peace, who has made the two groups one and has destroyed the barrier, the dividing wall of hostility (Ephesians 2:14 NIV).

Christ is our peace. He is the Prince of Peace (Isaiah 9:6). Yet we know that the peace of Christ, the peace that passes all understanding, has not always ruled our lives and swayed our actions as peoples, institutions, or nations. We have not always followed God’s will for peace evidenced by the many conflicts and wars waged throughout human history. We have not always sought counsel from the Christ whose words assure us justice and peace, compassion and forgiveness, and yes, salvation and liberation, even in our wayward and non-peaceful ways.

The Bible makes justice the inseparable companion of peace (Isaiah 32:17; James 3:18). Both point to right and sustainable relationships in human society, the vitality of our connections with the earth, the well-being and integrity of creation. To conceive peace apart from justice is to compromise the hope that justice and peace shall embrace (Psalm 85:10). When justice and peace are lacking we need to reform our ways.

Peace is God’s will and must be done. Christ’s true disciples must work for peace: build it and not just keep it; live it and not just aspire for it. If Christ is our peace, then peace must be imperative. In the end, war and conflict will not triumph over the Prince of Peace.

Even God's people, however, do not always see and acknowledge the peace of Christ and God's justice. As the prophets have done, God's people must be reminded and warned of their collusion with destruction and with injustice and non-peace. The United Methodist Church, whose commitment to peace is rooted in its obedience to the Prince of Peace, must recognize the things that make for peace.

The Council of Bishops asserted in 2009 that God's people "have neglected the poor, polluted our air and water, and filled our communities with instruments of war. We have turned our backs on God and one another. By obstructing God's will, we have contributed to pandemic poverty and disease, environmental degradation, and the proliferation of weapons and violence" ("A Call of the Council of Bishops of The United Methodist Church to Hope and Action for God's Good Creation," 2009).

The bishops' call was prefaced by an assertion that God's creation is in crisis and that our neglect, selfishness and pride have fostered a trio of "threats to life and hope." The gravity of these threats prompted the bishops to call for a comprehensive response that urged United Methodists and "people of goodwill" to offer themselves as instruments of God's renewing Spirit in the world.

"God calls us and equips us to respond," the bishops exhorted. They reminded us of God's offer of redemption to all creation and reconciliation to all things, "whether on earth or in heaven" (Colossians 1:20 NRSV). The bishops made us recognize again that God's Spirit is always and everywhere at work in the world fighting poverty, restoring health, renewing creation and reconciling peoples.

The bishops' collective prayer is that God will accept and use our lives and resources that we rededicate to a ministry of peace, justice and hope to overcome poverty and disease, environmental degradation, and the proliferation of weapons and violence. The bishops' 2009 call for hope and action built on their 2004 document, "In Search of Security." The 2004 document asserted that "the longing for safety is a feeling that all human beings share with one another. ... The way to real peace and security is reconciliation. We will not attain full reconciliation between all peoples before God's final consummation because the forces of evil and destruction are still at work in the hearts of human beings and in their relationships. But we are called to be peacemakers and ministers of reconciliation until our Lord comes ("In Search of Security," Council of Bishops Task Force on Safety and Security, 2004).

The 2009 call for hope and action also recalled the bishops' 1986 study document, "In Defense of Creation: The Nuclear Crisis and a Just Peace." The 2009 document described "In Defense of Creation" as "an urgent message to all United Methodists and the Church at large on the growing threat of nuclear war and of the extinction of life on the planet through a 'nuclear winter.'" The bishops reasserted that "the nuclear crisis threatens 'planet earth itself,' that the arms race 'destroys millions of lives in conventional wars, repressive violence, and massive poverty,' and that the 'arms race is a social justice issue, not only a war and peace issue.'"

"Peace is not simply the absence of war, a nuclear stalemate or combination of uneasy ceasefires. It is that emerging dynamic reality envisioned by prophets where spears and swords give way to implements of peace (Isaiah 2:1-4); where historic antagonists dwell together in trust (Isaiah 11:4-11); and where righteousness and justice prevail. There will be no peace with justice until unselfish and informed life is structured into political processes and international arrangements" (Bishops' Call for Peace and the Self-Development of Peoples).

The mission of Jesus Christ and his church is to serve all peoples regardless of their government, ideology, place of residence, or status. Surely the welfare of humanity is more important in God's sight than the power or even the continued existence of any state. Therefore, the church is called to look beyond human boundaries of nation, race, class, sex, political ideology, or economic theory and to proclaim the demands of social righteousness essential to peace.

The pursuit of peace is a universal longing. It is a fervent prayer of all religions. It is the pilgrimage that the ecumenical community continues to embark on. At the 10th Assembly of the World Council of Churches in Busan, Korea, Christian leaders asserted in their "Statement on the Way to Peace": "Those who seek a just peace seek the common good. On the way of just peace, different disciplines find common ground, contending worldviews see complementary courses of action, and one faith stands in principled solidarity with another. Social justice confronts privilege, economic justice confronts wealth, ecological justice confronts consumption, and political justice confronts power itself. Mercy, forgiveness and reconciliation become shared public experiences. The spirit, vocation and process of peace are transformed."

The following are interrelated areas that must be dealt with concurrently in a quest for lasting peace in a world community.

I. Disarmament

"In that day I will make a covenant for them / with the beasts of the field, the birds in the sky / and the creatures that move along the ground. / Bow and sword and battle / I will abolish from the land, / so that all may lie down in safety" (Hosea 2:18 NIV).

The arms race goes on. "After many decades and millions of dollars, we are no more secure or peaceful in our world with a larger number of nations in the ‘nuclear club,’” the Council of Bishops said.

While the exact number of the world’s combined stockpile of nuclear warheads is not known, all respectable institutions monitoring and reporting such numbers agree that they remain at unacceptably high levels. (See “World Nuclear Stockpile Report,” Updated August 28, 2014. Ploughshares Fund. <http://www.ploughshares.org/world-nuclear-stockpile-report> accessed on January 12, 2015. See also “Worldwide Nuclear Arsenal,” Fact Sheet by Union of Concerned Scientists, <http://www.ucsusa.org/sites/default/files/legacy/assets/documents/nwgs/Worldwide-Nuclear-Arsenal-Fact-Sheet.pdf> accessed on January 12, 2015. Also, “Nuclear Weapons: Who Has What at a Glance: Fact Sheets and Briefs,” <http://www.armscontrol.org/print/2566> accessed on January 12, 2015.)

The illicit trading in small arms, light weapons and ammunition remains a worldwide scourge even as the Arms Trade Treaty took effect December 14, 2014. With less reliable data compared to nuclear weapons, small arms remain a worldwide scourge, according to the United Nations Office for Disarmament Affairs (<http://www.un.org/disarmament/convarms/salw/>, accessed January 12, 2015).

If there is any concern in the international community where international law intersects with ethics and morality, it is the legality of the threat or use of nuclear weapons. In an advisory opinion sought by the U.N. General Assembly in 1996, the International Court of Justice (ICJ) ruled: “The threat or use of nuclear weapons would generally be contrary to the rules of international law applicable in armed conflict, and in particular the principles and rules of humanitarian law. . . . There exists an obligation to pursue in good faith and bring to a conclusion negotiations leading to nuclear disarmament in all its aspects under strict and effective international control.”

In spite of the ICJ ruling, billions of dollars in research, development, maintenance and deployment continue to be spent on nuclear weapons. International law bans chemical and biological weapons, including landmines and cluster munitions, for being excessively cruel and indiscriminate. This has been proven in Hiroshima and Nagasaki, and yet nuclear weapons, remain outside of this classification.

The danger of a nuclear holocaust remains as long as nations maintain nuclear weapons, however. Many more people will be maimed and killed as long as small arms are easy to acquire and readily available for use in domestic quarrels, street fights, or in wars and conflict zones.

Wars and rumors of wars are not unique in our time. What is new is the sophistication with which they are waged. High-precision technologies exist side-by-side with conventional weapons. For example, drones and other robotic weapons systems are progressively developed and increasingly employed. Their use to select and strike at targets without human intervention when operating in fully autonomous mode must be banned. These instruments of destruction fracture the fragility of peace. They are not under the control of nations only. They are also in the hands of non-state actors, therefore making possible unregulated, indiscriminate and unpredictable use. Their use fall under the judgment of a God whose design is of a world of peaceful, caring and loving relationships.

Current expenditures on weapons are distorting priorities in national budgeting. Because of fear of unemployment, desire for profits, and contributions to the national balance of payments, the arms industry engenders great political power. Arms-producing nations seek to create markets, then vie with one another to become champions among the arms merchants of the world. We must advocate for the reallocation of national military budgets for purposes that are humanitarian and sustainable, and promote civilian peacebuilding and conflict transformation.

Disarmament is related to military spending, and is possible and sustainable when defense funding in national budgets does not overshadow and underfund the social and welfare needs of people. Meaningful disarmament will happen when countries like the United States, China, Russia, Saudi Arabia, France, Japan, United Kingdom, Germany, India, and Brazil, which lead the world in military spending (according to 2013 report by Stockholm International Peace Research Institute), start to redirect their defense budgets to peaceful and sustainable purposes.

National budgets are moral documents. They are a testament to national priorities. May it be that such budgets invest in life-giving and life-sustaining priorities, indeed, the things that make for peace.

We support initiatives in every part of the world that move toward the goal of disarmament. This demands a radical reordering of priorities coupled with an effective system of international peacemaking, peacekeeping, and peacebuilding. The Church must constantly keep that goal before peoples and governments. In particular, we support the abolition of nuclear weapons.

Food, health, social services, jobs, and education are vital to the welfare of nations. Yet the overriding priority given by governments to “defense” constantly threatens their availability. Millions starve and development stagnates. Repeatedly, regional tensions grow, conflicts erupt, and outside forces intervene to advance or protect their interests without regard to international law or human rights.

Our bishops’ historic position remains sound and clear: “We say a clear and unconditional ‘NO’ to nuclear war and to any use of nuclear weapons. We conclude that nuclear deterrence is a position that cannot receive the church's blessing" (In Defense of Creation).

We affirm the prophetic position of our bishops who said in their statement In Defense of Creation: "We say a clear and unconditional 'NO' to nuclear war and to any use of nuclear weapons. We conclude that nuclear deterrence is a position that cannot receive the church's blessing."

Accordingly, we reject the possession of nuclear weapons as a permanent basis for securing and maintaining peace. Possession can no longer be tolerated, even as a temporary expedient. We call all nations that possess nuclear weapons to renounce these vile instruments of mass destruction and to move expeditiously to dismantle all nuclear warheads and delivery vehicles. As a first step, we support all movement to ban the "first strike" policy from all North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) doctrine.

We support the Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty and the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty. We call upon all nations to sign and ratify these important treaties and to abide by their provisions. These treaties form part of a non-nuclear proliferation regime under the purview of the United Nations. The ratification of the New Start Treaty by the United States and Russia in 2010 is to pave the way for the reduction of strategic nuclear missile launchers by half. It is, though, only a beginning. Far more agreements need to be signed not just by these two powers but also by other nuclear and non-nuclear states alike. Beyond nuclear proliferation itself, the threat of nuclear terrorism must inform the move for global disarmament.

Deterrence comes from international controls on materials used to make bombs. We support the concept of nuclear-free zones where governments or peoples in a specific region band together to bar nuclear weapons from the area either by treaty or declaration.

As Christian people committed to stewardship, justice, and peacemaking, we oppose and condemn the use of the Pacific for developing, testing, storage, and transportation of nuclear weapons and weapons-delivery systems and the disposal of radioactive wastes. We further affirm the right of all indigenous peoples to control their health and well-being.

Disarmament deals with not only non-conventional weapons, such as nuclear weapons, but also conventional weapons, particularly small firearms and light weapons. In this regard, we must support the continued review of implementation of the U.N. Program of Action to Prevent, Combat and Eradicate the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects.

The agreement moves forward the goal of making the Middle East a zone free of nuclear and other weapons of mass destruction. We must help diminish the perceived political and military value of nuclear weapons that is prevalent in security doctrines. A humanitarian approach is crucial to understanding nuclear weapons as cruel, inhumane instruments of mass murder and environmental destruction. True security puts human security over any other national security consideration.

World public opinion justly condemns the use of chemical or biological weapons. Governments must renounce the production and use of these particularly inhumane weapons as part of their national policy. We support universal application of the Chemical Weapons Convention and the Biological Weapons Convention.

We support treaty efforts to ban the development, trade, and use of weapons that are inhumane, are excessively injurious, and have indiscriminant effects. Such weapons include landmines, booby traps, weapons with non-detectable fragments, incendiary weapons, dirty bombs, cluster bombs, and blinding laser weapons.

We join religious leaders, physicians, veterans, humanitarian activists, environmentalists, and human-rights advocates in calling governments to sign and ratify the Convention on the Prohibition of the Use, Stockpiling, Production, and Transfer of Anti-Personnel Mines and on Their Destruction, also called the Ottawa Treaty, or simply the Mine Ban Treaty.

Antipersonnel land mines are a growing threat to human community and the environment, kill or maim hundreds of people every week, bring untold suffering and casualties to mostly innocent and defenseless civilians and especially children, obstruct economic development and reconstruction, inhibit the repatriation of refugees and internally displaced persons, and have other severe consequences for years after emplacement. The United States, Russia and China are among 34 countries that are not signatories to the Mine Ban Treaty. They refuse to halt production of antipersonnel land mines.

Since 2008, the General Conference has condemned the use of cluster bombs. We reiterate this call, urging all governments to stop its production, use, transfer and stockpiling. Cluster bombs are often scattered indiscriminately in wide areas. Like landmines, they remain a lethal threat to anyone in the area for decades. Their small size and curious shapes make them particularly appealing to children, who make up a large proportion of casualties. Cluster bombs kill and injure people. The almost perpetual threat of explosion prevents people from safely using their land for sustainable and productive, including agricultural, uses. This situation makes rebuilding lives and communities after a conflict more difficult and challenging. We therefore call all countries to sign, accede and ratify the Convention on Cluster Munitions, which provides for a legal and regulatory framework to address the humanitarian consequences and unacceptable harm to civilians caused by cluster munitions.

We are also concerned about the use of inhumane weapons by civilian or military police. The increasing use of military-grade weapons and munitions, and military-style tactics, by civilian police is troubling. The militarization of police departments does not augur well for ethnic relations and domestic harmony.

Hollow-point (“dumdum”) or other bullets designed to maim are not acceptable weapons for use by civilian or military forces. We support measures that outlaw use of such weapons at all levels.

Progress in disarmament must be monitored so that declarations to disarm are truly matched by action. We support five criteria to use in assessing progress in disarmament:

1. Verification—A state’s unilateral declaration that it does not have nuclear weapons must be confirmed by highly reliable sources and by objective means;

2. Irreversibility—Confidence in compliance grows if controls are sufficient to make it extremely difficult, if not impossible, for a state to abandon a disarmament commitment and build or construct a nuclear arsenal;

3. Transparency—It is essential to have hard facts about the size of nuclear arsenals and concrete progress made in eliminating them;

4. Universality—Any agreement to achieve global nuclear disarmament must be fully “global” in geographic scope, with no exceptions; and

5. Legally binding—The world community expects commitments to disarmament to be legally binding.

We affirm peoples’ movements directed to abolition of the tools of war. Governments must not impede public debate on this issue of universal concern.

Nongovernmental Organizations (NGOs) play important roles in the campaign for global disarmament. Their presence and advocacy at every Review Conference of the NPT as well as in the U.N. conferences dealing with small arms and light weapons are crucial. NGOs dealing with international humanitarian law, human-rights protection and environmental justice must work together to form a strong foundation for an effective, universal, comprehensive nuclear weapons convention. The convention would outlaw and ban development, possession, use and threat of use of nuclear weapons.

To realize our commitment to disarmament, we call The United Methodist Church to a ministry of justice and peacebuilding. In particular, we call on the General Board of Global Ministries, nongovernmental organizations, and all governments to increase resources for humanitarian de-mining, mine awareness programs, and increased resources for landmine victim rehabilitation and assistance. We also call on the General Board of Church and Society to advocate for the signature and ratification of all disarmament-related treaties and conventions cited herein.

II. Multilateral Cooperation Among Nations for Democracy, Freedom and Peace

“Turn from evil and do good; seek peace and pursue it” (Psalm 34:14 NIV).

Millions of people still live under oppressive rule and various forms of exploitation. Millions more live under deplorable conditions of racial, sexual, religious, and class discrimination. In many countries, many persons, including Christians, are suffering repression, imprisonment, and torture as a result of their efforts to speak truth to those in power.

Action by governments to encourage liberation and economic justice is essential. Such action must be supported by parallel action on the part of private citizens and institutions, including the churches, if peaceful measures are to succeed. Unless oppression and denial of basic human rights are ended, violence on an increasing scale will continue to erupt in many nations and may spread throughout the world. The human toll in such conflicts is enormous, for it results in new oppression and further dehumanization. We are concerned for areas where oppression and discrimination take place.

We, as United Methodists, must build the conditions for peace through development of confidence and trust between peoples and governments. We are unalterably opposed to those who instill hate in one group for another. Governments or political factions must not use religious, class, racial, or other differences as the means to achieve heinous political purposes. This concern extends to all situations where external commercial, industrial, and military interests are related to national oligarchies that resist justice and liberation for the masses of people. It is essential that governments which support or condone these activities alter their policies to permit and enable people to achieve genuine self-determination.

Democracy thrives under a rule of law founded on human rights and fundamental freedoms. The U.N. General Assembly World Summit of 2005 reaffirmed democracy as “a universal value based on the freely expressed will of people to determine their political, economic, social and cultural systems, and their full participation in all aspects of their lives.” The U.N. Democracy Fund was established at this summit. The large majority of the fund is intended for local organizations whose projects aim to strengthen the voice of civil society, promote human rights, and encourage the participation of all groups in democratic processes. United Methodists must promote this fund and help grassroots groups to access it.

Graft and corruption erode the credibility of governments (See ¶ 163L). Transparency and accountability are pillars of a democratic system and are checks upon graft and corruption. Much of today’s anger vented against governments arises from graft and corruption, and from economic fraud and exploitation. The United Nations Convention Against Corruption must be supported. This international law deals with promoting prevention, criminalization, law enforcement, international cooperation, asset recovery, technical assistance and information exchange. It also includes mechanisms for implementation against corruption.

Peace and societal harmony are greatly enhanced when peoples and nations cooperate to address global concerns for economic and environmental justice, for peace and security, and for human dignity and human rights. Addressing these in a manner that invites all peoples and nations to just, participatory and democratic processes is the hallmark of international law and cooperation, which are the cornerstones of multilateralism. (See Resolution #6133, 2012 Book of Resolutions). The United Nations is a primary venue for multilateral cooperation and remains to be the best instrument now in existence to pursue these mechanisms and frameworks. (See Social Principles, ¶165D).

III. World Trade, Economic Justice, and Sustainable Development

“Everyone will sit under their own vine and under their own fig tree, and no one will make them afraid, for the LORD Almighty has spoken” (Micah 4:4 NIV).

The gap between rich and poor countries continues to widen. When the surpluses of some arise in part as a result of continued deprivation of others, human rights are bound to be denied. This growing inequity exists in our own communities and in all our nations. Globalization has exacerbated these inequities when plentiful resources are not equitably shared and sustainably used. Past efforts to alleviate these conditions have failed. Too often these efforts have been limited by our own unwillingness to act with the posture of kindness and the ethical attitude of sharing in abundance rather than out of scarcity. Sometimes efforts have been frustrated by private interests and governments striving to protect the wealthy and the powerful.

Debate is growing on why Gross Domestic Product (GDP) as a measure of economic success is failing to represent national well-being even as the two are increasingly interconnected. Economic development is heavily dependent on investment in human capacity development. To proponents, the shift must move from simply measuring economic production to measuring the well-being of people. Such a shift moves in the direction of a more equitable, sustainable future (Center for Partnership Studies, “The State of Society: Measuring Economic Success and Human Well-Being,” 2010).

To eliminate inequities in the control and distribution of the fruits of God’s good earth, which are the common goods of humanity, we are called to join the search for more just, equitable international economic structures and relationships. We seek a society that will assure all persons and nations the opportunity to achieve their maximum potential.

Sustainable development is development that is people-centered, human rights-based, and justice-oriented. Such is the concept of development justice that must define our support for sustainable development and serves as a framework to support as well as critique development agendas developed at the United Nations and other international arenas. According to the Campaign for People’s Goals for Sustainable Development (see <http://peoplesgoals.org/>), development justice is “a transformative development framework that aims to reduce inequalities of wealth, power, and resources between countries, between rich and poor, and between men and women. Development justice places people, the majority poor and the marginalized, at the front and center of development. It is a paradigm for development that upholds people as the primary agents and subjects of change. Development justice upholds that development will, and should be, designed and adapted in response to the aspirations of the people and their available resources, and not imposed by technocrats and so-called high-level experts for all time and for all peoples.”

In working toward that purpose, we believe these steps are needed:

1. Conceive, develop, and structure economic systems designed to cope with the needs of the world’s peoples and the increased demand on limited and nonrenewable natural resources. Such systems must consider the debilitating effects of climate change on our ecological system and its ability to respond to the increased demands of development and by the population.

2. Implement measures that will free peoples and nations from reliance on financial arrangements that place them in economic bondage. In this regard, we support the creation of a Global Economic Council. This council was one of the recommendations of the Commission of Experts of the President of the U.N. General Assembly on Reforms of the International Monetary and Financial System. Such a council, when created, would become the main forum within the United Nations for setting the agenda for worldwide economic and financial policy.

3. Develop policies and practices that establish just prices and avoid damaging fluctuations in price for the exchange of commodities and rare and raw materials. Policies must be developed and supported to stop manipulation and marketing of commodities and rare and raw materials for illegal and unregulated uses, including so called “conflict minerals” used in funding wars and conflicts.

4. Development agencies and international financial institutions must operate with great transparency, accountability and democratic participation. They must be free from the domination of industrialized economies under the aegis of the Group of 8 or Group of 20 countries. Control of international monetary facilities must be more equitably shared by all the nations, including the needy and less powerful. We support efforts to make the Bretton Woods institutions, namely the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank, and other international financial institutions more representative, transparent and democratic, including being accountable within the United Nations framework.

5. The resources of the seabed, subsoil, outer space, and those outside a specific national jurisdiction are the heritage of humanity and should be accepted by all nations as part of the global commons. Their use and protection must be governed by agreements that affirm the common heritage principle We support U.N. efforts to develop international law to govern the sea through the Convention on the Law of the Sea, and to ensure that the world's common resources will be used cooperatively and equitably for the welfare of humankind.

6. We urge the appropriate boards and agencies of The United Methodist Church to continue and expand efforts to bring about peace and justice in cooperative and multilateral action between peoples and governments of all countries. Multilateral, rather than bilateral, assistance programs should be encouraged for secular as well as religious bodies. They must be designed to respond to the growing desire of the "developing" countries to become self-reliant and sustainable.

7. Nations that possess less military and economic power than others must be protected through international agreements from loss of control of their own resources and means of production to either transnational enterprises or other governments.

These international policies will not narrow the rich-poor gap within nations unless the disenfranchised poor are enabled to take control of their own political and economic destinies. The internationally accepted principle of free, prior and informed consent is a great measure to adopt.

Economic and political turmoil within many developing nations has been promoted and used by other powers as an excuse to intervene through subversive activities or military force in furtherance of their own national interests. We condemn this version of imperialism that often parades as international responsibility. The concept and practice of responsibility to protect (R2P) and an evolving counterpart responsibility to prevent are twin measures that deserve our attention and call for the harmonious coexistence of peoples and nations who endeavor to prevent wars and end conflicts.

IV. Peace Research, Education and Action

"Would that you, even you, had known on this day the things that make for peace! But now they are hidden from your eyes" (Luke 19:42 ESV).

The 1960 General Conference established the landmark study "The Christian Faith and War in the Nuclear Age." That study said, "The Christian Church and the individual must accept responsibility for the creation of a climate of opinion in which creative changes can occur." It called work for these creative alternatives "our mission field as we live as disciples of the Prince of Peace."

The study, "In Search of Security" issued by the Council of Bishops Task Force on Safety and Security in June 2004, asserted: "Fear causes us to accumulate weapons and to devote all too much of our resources to the goal of deterring our supposed enemy. Paradoxically enough, it is the special temptation of the strong and the rich to overreact in this way. This blocks resources that could be used much more creatively for development and social justice around the world."

The living out of peace prospers in a climate of mutual understanding, tolerance and the acknowledgement of the inherent dignity and self-realization of every human being, indeed of every child of God. Peace, security and human rights help realize sustainable development and social justice in the world.

For true peace and security to take root in the lives of people and in the relations of nations, we call upon The United Methodist Church, especially those engaged in informal and formal learning from primary to higher education, in the light of its historical teachings and its commitment to peace, human rights and self-development of peoples, to:

1. Seek the establishment of educational institutions and the development of programs and curricula devoted to the learning and living out of peace and human rights;

2. Develop alternatives to vocations that work for peace, and support individuals in their quest;

3. Explore and apply ways of resolving domestic and international differences that affirm human fulfillment and tolerance, rather than exploitation and violence;

4. Affirm and employ methods that build confidence and trust between peoples and countries, including training in multicultural understanding and appreciation of differences, rejecting all promotion of hatred and mistrust;

5. Continue to develop and implement the search for peace through educational experiences, including immersion and educational exchange programs church school classes, schools of Christian mission, and other settings throughout the church;

6. Encourage local churches and members to take actions that make for peace and to act in concert with other peoples and groups of goodwill toward the achievement of a peaceful world; and

7. Develop study and action materials that incorporate the understanding and practice of peacekeeping actions that keep the peace through law and order, peacemaking actions that make for peace in personal, institutional and social relations, and peacebuilding infrastructures fostering values that secure peace and constitute justice.

8. Commend to study the following international documents that engender peace and justice, including religious and cultural harmony: “Promotion of Interreligious Dialogue” (United Nations General Assembly Resolution, hereinafter UN GA/RES, 59/23), “Promotion of religious and cultural understanding, harmony and cooperation” (UN GA/RES/59/142), “Global Agenda for Dialogue Among Civilizations” (UN GA/RES/56/6), “International Decade for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence for the Children of the World (UN GA/RES/53/25), “International Day of Peace” (UN GA/RES/55/282), “Program of Action on a Culture of Peace” (GA/RES/53/243 B), UNESCO Director-General’s report to the 59th Session of the UN General Assembly “Promotion of religious and cultural understanding, harmony and cooperation” (UN GA/RES/58/128), and the Hague Agenda for Justice and Peace and its Global Campaign for Peace Education.

Korea: Peace, Justice and Reunification

Delete current text and replace with the following:

“For he is our peace; in his flesh he has made both groups into one and has broken down the dividing wall, that is, the hostility between us” (Ephesians 2:14 NRSV).

Our Faith Commitment to Peace and Reconciliation

At the 10th General Assembly of the World Council of Churches held in Busan, South Korea, in late 2013, the delegates declared in a statement the following, which could also serve as a faith statement of our commitment to peace and reconciliation:

“As a global body of believers in Jesus Christ, we confess our sins in having given in to the powers and principalities of the world in their wars and military conflicts full of hate and enmity, armed with nuclear arsenals and weapons of mass destruction targeting humanity and the whole of God’s creation. Also we lament our failure to adequately acknowledge the Korean people’s long suffering, caused by external powers fighting for colonial expansion and military hegemony. We hereby join the Christians in Korea in their confession of faith in Jesus Christ, who came to this world as our Peace (Ephesians 2:13-19); who suffered, died upon the Cross, was buried, and rose again to reconcile humanity to God, to overcome divisions and conflicts, and to liberate all people and make them one (Acts 10:36-40); who, as our Messiah, will bring about a new Heaven and new Earth (Revelation 21-22). With this confession, we join in firm commitment with the Christians of Korea, both North and South, especially in Korean churches’ faithful actions to work towards peace, healing, reconciliation and reunification of their people and their land” (WCC Statement on Peace and Reunification of the Korean Peninsula).

The Tragedy of Division and the Urgency of Peace

Christians in Korea have spoken about the urgency of the reunification of their nation. Celebrating one hundred years of Korean Methodism in 1985, the Korean Methodist Church, in its Centennial Statement, said:

“Faced as we are with the forty years’ tragic division of the Korean Peninsula, we express our longing for unification of the nation in any form possible through peaceful means in the earliest possible time. This must be done through establishing a democratic political structure based upon freedom and human rights, and must be fulfilled by working toward the establishment of a just society built for the sake of the people. Therefore, we reject any form whatever of dictatorship. Deploring the long history of our nation in which the reality has been the sacrifice of our country's political life, and now with a definite sense of national self-determination which rejects any domination by the superpowers, we disavow any form of war or the taking of life, and commit the whole strength of the Korean Methodist Church to the peaceful reunification of our country."

For the nation of Korea, divided for more than sixty-six years, justice, peace, and reconciliation are tragically overdue. In 1945, just before the end of World War II, the United States proposed and the Soviet Union agreed to the division of Korea, which resulted in the Korean War with more than 3 million lives lost and millions of families separated. The tragedy of the Korean people continued because the Korean War did not end with a Peace Treaty. Instead, the Armistice Treaty was signed in 1953 leaving the Korean Peninsula under a state of war and tension for more than sixty years. This resulted in the separation of families, many of whom never saw each other again.

The enmity between the superpowers has been played out in the Korean tragedy of war and death, dictatorship and militarization, separation of one people into two hostile camps and divided families with no contact at all. All members of the body of Christ have a responsibility to support the Korean people in their attempts to build democracy, reduce tension, create trust on the Korean Peninsula, heal the divisions, and reunite their country. The threat to peace remains critical with the world's fifth and sixth largest armies facing each other across the Demilitarized Zone.

North-South Reconciliation Efforts

In many ways, the Korean people, north and south, have expressed their strong desire for reunification. Since 1984, there have been official contacts and conversations on economic and humanitarian issues between the Republic of Korea (ROK, also known as South Korea) and the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK, also known as North Korea). Emergency assistance by the DPRK and ROK following devastating floods in the south and floods and drought in the north was offered and accepted by each other.

The first government-sponsored exchange of visits between divided family members occurred in 1985. Thousands of overseas Koreans were able to visit their family members in the DPRK. Christians from north and south met in 1986 in Glion, Switzerland, as part of an ecumenical process on peace and the reunification of Korea led by the World Council of Churches. In 1987, both sides offered proposals to lower military tensions on the peninsula.

In June 2000, an unprecedented historic summit between North and South Korean leaders took place in Pyongyang, DPRK. ROK President Kim Dae Jung and DPRK Chairman Kim Jong Il pledged themselves to work toward Korean reunification. Since the summit, both Koreas have had numerous exchanges such as reunions of separated families, ministerial-level talks, and other economic, social, cultural, and sports exchanges including reconnection of railways and roads through the Demilitarized Zone.

The two Koreas marched together in the opening ceremony of the 2004 Olympic Games in Sydney, Australia, carrying the Korean unification flag. In 2007, the late President Roh Moo Hyun urged U.S. President George W. Bush to resolve the Korean War by signing a peace treaty with North Korea. At the second summit between leaders of North and South Korea, President Roh and Chairman Kim Jong Il committed to resolving disputes in the West Sea surrounding the Northern Limit Line.

The relationship between the United States and the DPRK, however, has deteriorated due to the issues related to the DPRK's withdrawal from the nuclear nonproliferation treaty, its violation of the 1994 Agreed Framework, and threats by the United States of pre-emptive strikes on North Korea.

In 1991, the Agreement on Reconciliation, Non-aggression, Exchanges and Cooperation was adopted by the Republic of Korea and DPRK; and in 1992, both countries signed a joint declaration on the denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula. In 1994, the United States and DPRK signed the Agreed Framework whose objective "was the freezing and replacement of North Korea's indigenous nuclear power plant program ... and the step-by-step normalization of relations between the U.S. and the DPRK" (http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Agreed_Framework, accessed Feb. 1, 2015). The agreement stipulated that funds would be provided to the DPRK from the United States, Japan, and ROK for the construction of two light-water electric power reactors. In addition, the U.S. agreed to provide 500,000 tons of heavy oil annually to the DPRK. In return, the DPRK agreed to forego any further accumulation of fuel rods, which could be used to produce atomic bombs.

Over time, the mandates of the Agreement were violated by both sides. It is most desirable that the United States and the DPRK, through direct negotiations, redraft or update the 1994 Agreement encompassing all vital matters of interest to both sides, including DPRK's nuclear-proliferation issues, and U.S. recognition of the sovereignty and security of the DPRK.

The Agreed Framework remains an important stabilizing element in U.S.-DPRK relations. It is one of the key tools of engagement by which DPRK uses incentives rather than threats to build inter-Korean and regional cooperation.

Historic Role of the Ecumenical Community for Peace in the Korean Peninsula

In 1986, as a result of consultations in Korea, North and South, with Christians and government representatives, the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the USA (NCCCUSA) adopted an important policy statement on “Peace and the Reunification of Korea.” United Methodist representatives participated fully in the development of this statement, in consultations on peace and reunification, and in an official ecumenical delegation to North and South Korea in the summer of 1987.

The WCC Assembly of 2013, adopted the “Statement on Peace and Reunification of the Korean Peninsula” urging churches to “call upon all stakeholders in the region to participate in a creative process for building peace on the Korean Peninsula by halting all military exercises on the peninsula, by ceasing foreign intervention, withdrawing foreign troops and reducing military expenditures.” The statement called on ecumenical partners to be peacemakers and bridge builders for the two Koreas and the world, and to embark upon a universal campaign for a Peace Treaty to replace the Armistice of 1953, bringing an end to the state of war and paving the path toward reconciliation and peace.

In an international ecumenical consultation held in May of 2013, United Methodist groups, including the United Methodist Korean American National Association Committee on Korean Reunification & Reconciliation and the National Council of Churches in Korea, issued the “Call for Peace and Reconciliation on the Korean Peninsula,” stating in part: “For too long, the Korean people have been divided and suffered from political brinkmanship, the wall of ideology, and the scourge of militarism.

The Armistice Agreement of 1953 only temporarily halted the war that claimed 4 million lives and divided 10 million families. This lingering state of war on the Korean Peninsula is a major contributor to tension and instability, both regionally and globally, and contravenes the spirit of United Nations Resolution 39/11, which recognizes a people’s right to peace. We Christians of different communions, gathered together in the common cause of peace, are deeply concerned about the growing tensions on the Korean Peninsula over recent nuclear testing in North Korea and U.S.-South Korea joint military exercises. We join with the Korean people, both in North and South Korea, in yearning for reconciliation, reunification and sustainable peace. Replacing the Armistice Agreement with a Peace Treaty is and should be the first step in establishing a lasting and sustainable peace on the Korean Peninsula.”

Current Plan and Actions Taken by Agencies and Caucuses of the UMC

The Reunification Committee of Korean United Methodist Churches, in close collaboration with other United Methodist churches, agencies and the ecumenical community, has initiated a four year Korea Peace Movement project in 2013 in response to “A Call for Peace March,” a petition adopted by General Conference of 2012 (Book of Resolutions #6130):

To promote the awareness for peace and reconciliation in the Korean Peninsula;

To build an ecumenical advocacy movement to replace the Armistice of 1953 with a peace treaty;

To build a coalition of peace workers among U.S. churches as well as churches in the Korean Peninsula; and

To prepare Christian leaders and churches for the work of reconciliation and peace in the Korean Peninsula and the world.

For these purposes, the Committee and its coalition developed a four-year plan:

A petition campaign for a peace treaty in the Korean Peninsula, to officially end the Korean War, an ecumenical effort from May 2013 to May 2016.

The Korea Peace Conference: In May 2013, this event was attended by more than 120 participants from U.S and South Korea, including representatives from NCC Korea.

The Korea Peace March and Advocacy: July of 2014 in Washington, D.C., attended by 300 participants from across the U.S.

Peace visits to the Korean Peninsula, both North and South Korea, in the summer and fall of 2015.

A Conference for Peace and Reconciliation for youths and young adult Christians in 2015.

Recommendations for Action

In support of the Korean people and in cooperation with partner Christian groups, it is recommended that The United Methodist Church, its members, local churches, annual conferences, and agencies undertake the following actions through intercession, education, public advocacy, and support of programs furthering justice, peace, and reconciliation:

1. Engage in prayer of penitence and petition with the Korean people and with Christians in the north and south, scarred and pained by the division of their nation and yearning for reunion, and establish working, collaborative and supportive relationships with the Korean Methodist Church, the National Council of Churches in Korea (ROK), and the Korean Christian Federation (DPRK) to seek peace and reconciliation.

2. Commend for study and action, the “Statement on Peace and the Reunification of the Korean Peninsula-la” adopted by the 10th WCC Assembly which called on churches to commit to, among others, the following:

a) Work with our governments to mandate the U.N. Security Council to initiate new efforts for peacebuilding across the Korean Peninsula and to lift the existing economic and financial sanctions imposed on the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea;

b) Embark upon a universal campaign for a peace treaty to replace the Armistice Agreement of 1953, bringing an end to the state of war;

c) Call upon all foreign powers in the region to participate in a creative process for building peace on the Korean Peninsula by halting all military exercises on the Korean Peninsula, by ceasing their interventions and reducing military expenditures;

d) Ensure the complete, verifiable and irreversible elimination of all nuclear weapons and power plants in northeast Asia, by taking steps to establish a Nuclear-free World and simultaneously joining the emerging international consensus for a humanitarian ban on nuclear weapons in all regions of the world, so that life is no longer threatened by nuclear dangers anywhere on earth;

e) Urge the governments in both North and South Korea to restore human community with justice and human dignity by overcoming injustice and confrontation, and to heal human community by urgently addressing the humanitarian issue of separated families, by establishing a sustainable process allowing confirmation of the whereabouts of family members and free exchanges of letters and visits, and by offering the support of international agencies where necessary; and

f) Work with the governments of the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea and Republic of Korea in providing international cooperation to maintain a truly Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) and transform it into a zone of peace. (<http://www.oikoumene.org/en/resources/documents/assembly/2013-busan/adopted-documents-statements/peace-and-reunification-of-the-korean-peninsula>).

3. Engage in a worldwide campaign for a Peace Treaty to replace the Armistice Agreement of 1953.

4. Urge all governments that have relations with the ROK or the DPRK, or both, to exercise their influence to further mediation, interchange, peace, and reunification.

5. Urge all governments involved to forthright commitment to the following policy directions in support of Korean efforts for peace and reunification:

a. The peaceful reunification of Korea should be a formal U.S. policy goal.

b. A peace treaty should be signed among the nations involved to eliminate the threat of war, establish an enduring peace, and minimize tension in the Korean Peninsula. The peace treaty, replacing the existing armistice treaty, should be based on the conditions of a non-aggression pact between the Republic of Korea and the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea, with the full participation of the United States and the People’s Republic of China, as well as other related countries.

c. ROK and DPRK contacts should be encouraged;

d. Bilateral diplomatic and human contacts between the United States and the DPRK should be enhanced.

e. The U.S. should negotiate to end the war and to seek a comprehensive peace settlement in Korea.

6. Encourage continued humanitarian aid to the DPRK through agencies like the U.N. World Food Program (WFP). This aid is directed to those persons most at risk and is monitored carefully. The WFP has developed productive working relationships with its DPRK counterparts and continues to push for more open access to the food distribution process.

7. Increase communication, dialogue and exchange of delegations, with church and ecumenical representatives, with ROK and DPRK. Political, economic, social, and religious delegations are a high priority with DPRK leaders. They provide Korean middle management with experience outside their country and a greater perspective regarding the situation between the Korean Peninsula and outside it. Delegations from DPRK can also be matched with exchange delegations to DPRK, which allows people from around the world to see and understand the country, share ideas, and have personal contact with Korean peoples.

8. Advocate for removal of economic sanctions against DPRK. Sanctions limit the engagement of DPRK in the regional and global economy. Removing sanctions will also facilitate foreign investment in improving the DPRK production infrastructure. Because of economic and legal obstacles, development of foreign investment will be a difficult and long-term process, even without sanctions. Removing sanctions is a high priority with DPRK leaders.

9. Continue to redraft or update policies to comply with the Agreed Framework, of which the most positive element is U.S.-DPRK relations, by supplying heavy fuel oil and supporting ROK and Japanese financing for the Korea Peninsula Energy Development Office (KEDO) light-water reactors.

10. Encourage a consistent, bipartisan, and long-range policy formulation regarding both North and South Korea by governments around the world, but especially the U.S., China, Russia, Japan and the European Union. Policies that engage the ROK and DPRK governments effectively and promote change and moderation will stand a greater chance of resolving the current crisis and bringing every party, including the DPRK, to relate according to agreed international norms and mechanisms.

11. Urge the United Nations to look into the North Korean refugee situation arising from political and economic needs, as thousands of North Koreans are crossing the border seeking asylum in neighboring countries. The United Nations should declare them refugees, assist them as they seek asylum, and provide humanitarian assistance.

12. Urge continued humanitarian assistance to North Korea, at the same time calling on the North Korean government to work with the United Nations to abide by all internationally agreed principles of human rights and humanitarian law, principles that must guide all parties addressing the resolution of the crisis in the Korean Peninsula.

When these approaches can be taken, and most of them depend on U.S. government policy decisions, there are still no guarantees that the crisis can be resolved. But it is quite clear that a U.S. policy of isolation, sanctions and military buildup directed against DPRK will stimulate North Korea to rely more on its military, even at the expense of the lives of its population, and may lead to another catastrophic war on the Korean Peninsula. Continued engagement, steadfast negotiation, and careful cultivation of cooperative relationships with appropriate DPRK organizations provide the only real opportunity for a positive resolution of the Korean stalemate.

To End the “War on Drugs”

Our United Methodist Book of Discipline charges us to seek restorative, not punitive, justice. Specifically, it states, In the love of Christ, who came to save those who are lost and vulnerable, we urge the creation of a genuinely new system for the care and restoration of victims, offenders, criminal justice officials, and the community as a whole. Restorative justice grows out of biblical authority, which emphasizes a right relationship with God, self, and community. When such relationships are violated or broken through crime, opportunities are created to make things right. (BOD ¶ 164, H)

To that end, we offer the following resolution as an appeal to end the so-called “War on Drugs.”

WHEREAS: The public policy of prohibition of certain narcotics and psychoactive substances, sometimes called the “War on Drugs,” has failed to achieve the goal of eliminating, or even reducing, substance abuse and;

WHEREAS: There have been a large number of unintentional negative consequences as a result of this failed public policy and;

WHEREAS: One of those consequences is a huge and violent criminal enterprise that has sprung up surrounding the Underground Market dealing in these prohibited substances and;

WHEREAS: Many lives have been lost as a result of the violence surrounding this criminal enterprise, including innocent citizens and police officers and;

WHEREAS: Many more lives have been lost to overdose because there is no regulation of potency, purity or adulteration in the production of illicit drugs and;

WHEREAS: Our court system has been severely degraded due to the overload caused by prohibition cases and;

WHEREAS: Our prisons are overcrowded with persons, many of whom are non-violent, convicted of violation of the prohibition laws and;

WHEREAS: Many of our citizens now suffer from serious diseases, contracted through the use of unsanitary needles, which now threaten our population at large and;

WHEREAS: To people of color, the “War on Drugs” has arguably been the single most devastating, dysfunctional social policy since slavery and;

WHEREAS: Huge sums of our national treasury are wasted on this failed public policy and;

WHEREAS: Other countries, such as Portugal and Switzerland, have dramatically reduced the incidence of death, disease, crime, and addiction by utilizing means other than prohibition to address the problem of substance abuse and;

WHEREAS: The primary mission of our criminal justice system is to prevent violence to our citizens and their property, and to ensure their safety.

Therefore, be it resolved, that the General Conference of The United Methodist Church supports seeking means other than prohibition to address the problem of substance abuse; and is further resolved to support the mission of the international educational organization Law Enforcement Against Prohibition (LEAP) to reduce the multitude of unintended harmful consequences resulting from fighting the war on drugs and to lessen the incidence of death, disease, crime, and addiction by ending drug prohibition.

Enforce the Nonproliferation Treaty

As a people who affirm the world as God's own handiwork, and understand ourselves as the stewards of the beauty and wonder of the planet; who understand our unity with all created order, we offer the following resolution:

WHEREAS, decades after the fall of the Berlin wall, the United States still maintains thousands of active nuclear warheads with hundreds of missiles on hair trigger alert, as do Russia, India, Pakistan, France, Britain, Israel, North Korea, and China;

WHEREAS, the intentional, or unintentional, launching of any of these weapons would kill tens of millions of civilians in their targeted cities and risk tens of millions of US casualties from the response. Already the U.S. has lost 11 nuclear bombs that have never been recovered in accidental launchings (Fact Source: "50 Facts About U.S. Nuclear Weapons," Brookings Institute, 1998);

WHEREAS, the United States has disregarded the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty of 1969, calling for nuclear states (at that time, Russia, France, Britain, and China) to initiate a full nuclear disarmament. Instead the U.S. is embarking on a modernization program to upgrade warheads and build new submarines, bombers, and delivery systems, estimated to cost $1 trillion over the next 30 years, about $10,000 per household;

WHEREAS, this excessive spending takes money away from public housing, education, transit, environmental, and healthcare programs;

WHEREAS, U.S and Russia possess 93% of the world's 16,300 nuclear weapons. The others are held by China, France, the UK, Israel, Pakistan, India, North Korea (Fact Source: "Worldwide deployments of nuclear weapons, 2014," Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, August 2014);

WHEREAS, China and Russia are the #2 and #3 military spenders, but their combined military spending is less than half of the U.S. (Fact Source: "SIPRI Military Expenditure Database," Stockholm International Peace Research Institute);

WHEREAS, the U.S. spends $1 on diplomacy for every $16 spent on military (Fact Source: "Fiscal Year 2015 Budget of the U.S. Government," Office of Management and Budget, U.S. Government Printing Office, 2014);

WHEREAS, the U.S. is the only nuclear-armed nation with nuclear weapons deployed on foreign soil (Fact Source: "Worldwide deployment of nuclear weapons," Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, August 2014);

WHEREAS, our United Methodist Social Principles (§ 165.c) state "that the production, possession, or use of nuclear weapons be condemned."

Therefore, be it resolved, that each annual conference of The United Methodist Church calls upon President Obama to live up to the Nonproliferation Treaty binding commitment to engage in international negotiations for the elimination of all nuclear weapons, a commitment affirmed by the U.S. Supreme Court; and

Be it further resolved, that each annual conference of The United Methodist Church condemns the new Nuclear Complex program, calls upon Congress to stop it and to devote the resulting $1 trillion in savings over 30 years to pressing human needs, including the environment, affordable housing, public transit, healthcare, and education; and

Be it further resolved, that each annual conference of The United Methodist Church urges President Obama to take the U.S. nuclear weapons off hair-trigger alert and to adopt an unconditional "No-First-Use" policy, both of which he is empowered to do without congressional action, and to adopt a formal policy never to target any city for nuclear devastation; and

Be it further resolved, that copies of this resolution, representing the combined membership of The United Methodist Church, be sent to our representatives in the U.S. Congress, our U.S. Senators, and the President of the United States.

Abolition of Nuclear Weapons

New Resolution as follows:

1. We call upon each congregation of The United Methodist Church to reflect on the dangers of nuclear weapons, to study possible remedies, and to pray and advocate annually for the abolition of nuclear weapons.

2. We call upon the parties to the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) to develop immediately a timetable to ban and eliminate all nuclear weapons.

3. We call upon the nations that possess nuclear weapons and have not signed the NPT to sign and implement the NPT immediately.

4. We call upon the United States and Russia to lead the way to a nuclear-weapons-free world.

We ask the presidents of the U.S. and Russia to commission studies on the economic and security benefits of reducing the number of nuclear weapons to 1,000 and then to 500 over the next ten years, and to zero nuclear bombs in twenty years.

Our Muslim Neighbors

Add a new Resolution:

Our Muslim Neighbors

Christians are called to initiate and promote better relationships between Christians and Muslims on the basis of informed understanding, critical appreciation, and balanced perspective of one another’s basic beliefs.

The Historical Context

United Methodists, seeking to be faithful neighbors and witnesses to other members of the human family, recognize with respect peoples of the religion of Islam.

Christians and Muslims acknowledge common roots, along with Jews, in the faith of Abraham, Sarah, and Hagar. As members of one of the monotheistic world religions, Muslims worship and serve the one God with disciplined devotion. Both Christians and Muslims believe that God is ever-inclined toward humankind in justice and mercy. Based on this common ground, we celebrate where Christians and Muslims are working together to make God’s justice a reality for all people. The two faiths sometimes understand differently the particular ways in which God deals with human beings, but they agree that the proper human response to the Almighty is a life of humble obedience, including repentance, faith, and good works. Muslims believe that the Qur’an sets forth the principles for righteous conduct and a harmonious life in society. The following verses from the Qur’an show that these principles are similar to the ones found in the Christian Scriptures:

O believers, be steadfast witnesses for God with justice. Do not let the hatred of a people make you act unjustly. Be just, for justice is next to piety (5:8).

Worship only God; be good to parents and kindred, to orphans and the poor; speak kindly to others (92:83).

Do not mix truth with falsehood, nor knowingly conceal the truth (2:42).

O believers, fulfill your obligations (5:1).

Hold to forgiveness and enjoin good; turn aside from the foolish (7:199).

It may be that God will bring about friendship between you and those whom you hold to be your enemies (60:7).

The Need for Understanding

United Methodists live together with Muslims in many countries of the world and in a variety of social environments. Indeed, in the United States of America, Muslims comprise one of the most rapidly growing religious communities. In places around the world, Muslims may constitute the majority of the population, and in other places, Christians may be the majority. As believers of the two religions build their lives in the same general area, they are often affected by patterns of religious antagonism inherited from the past history of disputes and misunderstanding between the two.

Also, Muslims and Christians experience varying degrees of political and social discrimination, depending on the particular circumstances of each country. In certain areas of tension believers in the two faiths are caught up in struggles for economic, political, and human rights.

We believe that sustained and ever-renewed initiatives of open discussion and sharing of concerns in interfaith settings contribute to the achievement of social justice.

By this statement, we express solidarity with those of either religion who suffer oppression or discrimination.

By this statement, we make a step toward more hospitable and cooperative relationships and encourage dialogical relations.

Basic United Methodist Documents

A. Called to Be Neighbors

A clear biblical basis for discussion in interfaith settings is set forth in Guidelines for Interreligious Relationships:

In conversation with a lawyer (Luke 10:25), Jesus reminded him that his neighbor, the one to whom he should show love and compassion, included a stranger, a Samaritan. Today, Christ's call to neighborliness (Luke 10:27) includes the "stranger" of other faiths. It is not just that historical events have forced us together. The Christian faith itself impels us to love our neighbors of other faiths and to seek to live in contact and mutually beneficial relationship, in community with them.

B. The Social Community

In our United Methodist Social Principles, we affirm all persons as equally valuable in the sight of God and determine to work toward societies in which each person's value is recognized, maintained, and strengthened.

Religious persecution has been common in the history of civilization. We urge policies and practices that ensure the right of every religious group to exercise its faith free from legal, political, or economic restrictions. In particular, we condemn anti-Semitic, anti-Muslim, and anti-Christian attitudes and practices in both their overt and covert forms, being especially sensitive to their expression in media stereotyping.

C. Our Theological Task

In our United Methodist Doctrinal Standards, our relationship with adherents of other living faiths of the world is set in the context of our ecumenical commitment. We are encouraged to enter into serious interfaith encounters and explorations between Christians and adherents of other living faiths of the world. Scripture calls us to be both neighbors and witnesses to all people. Such encounters require us to reflect anew on our faith and to seek guidance for our witness among neighbors of other faiths.

When Christians enter into such dialogue, they come to it consciously as they seek to live as one people, under the living God who is the Creator of all humankind, the One "who is above all and through all and in all" (Ephesians 4:6).

This theological understanding compels us to a particular kind of dialogue, one in which we reflect critically upon our Christian tradition, gain accurate appreciation of the traditions of others, and engage with love and generosity of spirit as we seek "to raise all such relationships to the highest possible level of human fellowship and understanding."

Christian-Muslim Discussions

The long-standing commitment of The United Methodist Church to social justice, to theological inquiry, and to just and open relationships places a particular responsibility on its members to develop discussions between Christians and Muslims. Mutual respect requires the church to recognize and affirm that, although individuals may move from one religion to another, we do not enter into formal interfaith dialogue with the intent to convert the Muslim community to Christianity. Although the movement is still small, there is increasing evidence that groups of Christians and Muslims are coming together to witness to their faith and acknowledge the power of God in their lives, to identify problems that challenge all on the deepest theological and moral level, and to try to understand better the complex factors that determine the crucial decisions being made by governments around the world.

Through such interactions, Christians and Muslims are finding that working for better exchange of information and for ways to cooperate in solving mutual problems and concerns often leads to discovery and growth, adding to the depth and understanding of each tradition.

If we observe the unfolding of events in today's world and assess Islamic movement as only reactionary and threatening, we will hinder the advancement of justice and peace and neither gain from nor contribute to mutual understanding.

If we develop friendships with Muslims as members of the human community from whom and with whom we have much to learn, we will increase our respect for Islam as a way of life that calls its millions of followers to the highest moral ideals and satisfies their deepest spiritual aspirations.

In the aftermath of September 11, 2001, The United Methodist Church has intentionally explored what it means to be in relationship with the Muslim community. The United Methodist Church stands in solidarity with Muslims in the struggles for economic, political and human rights.

Action Statement

Local congregations and United Methodist agencies are encouraged to develop ongoing relationships with Muslims and their respective organizations. They are urged to initiate conversations, programs, and dialogues leading to the understanding of both Islam and Christianity, and appreciation of their particular gifts, while discovering commonalities and differences; and seeking areas of mutual cooperation. They are also urged to exchange information and discuss ways to cooperate when they address common problems and concerns.

Recommendations

We request the Council of Bishops to support, participate in, and assist United Methodists in implementing this resolution.

We call upon the General Board of Global Ministries, and particularly its Women's Division, to promote a program of ongoing relationships with Muslim women, seeking areas of mutual concern about how to live ethically, morally, and responsibly in today's world and to join in common struggles for peace and justice.

We urge the General Board of Church and Society to work with Muslims in activities designed to achieve common political, social, economic, and ecological goals.

We urge that the General Board of Global Ministries and the General Board of Church and Society develop advocacy programs on behalf of religious freedom and minority rights, particularly regarding nations that are experiencing crisis in Christian-Muslim conflict in which religious minorities are harassed or persecuted.

We recommend that the Office of Christian Unity and Interreligious Relationships, as it initiates and engages in dialogue with representatives of Islam, remain mindful of the evangelism imperatives of the gospel and the gospel mandate to seek justice for those who are oppressed.

We recommend that United Methodist Communications, through its Division of Public Media and News Service, monitor and call attention to discrimination against Muslims in both the religious and secular media.

We urge United Methodist members, local churches, and agencies to take the following specific actions:

1. Study Islam, using the resolution “Called to be Neighbors and Witnesses: Guidelines for Interreligious Relationships”, this resolution, and other resources which the Office of Christian Unity and Interreligious Relations can recommend.

2. Initiate dialogue with Muslims, utilizing as our guide the resolution of the 2016 General Conference entitled “Called to Be Neighbors and Witnesses, Guidelines for Interreligious Relationships,” and models of dialogue developed by the Office of Christian Unity and Interreligious Relationships. The dialogue will address theological and justice issues, related to the particular contexts in which those dialogues occur.

3. Develop awareness of the concerns of particular Muslim populations through implementation of other applicable General Conference Resolutions in the 2000 Book of Resolutions, such as “Prejudice Against Muslims and Arabs in the USA.”

4. Promote understanding between Christians and Muslims in local communities through:

- arranging visits to local mosques;
- developing and participating in cultural exchanges with Muslims;
- inviting Muslims to social occasions;
- seeking Muslim participation in local interfaith councils and interfaith worship;
- sending messages of greeting and good will to Muslims upon the occasion of their religious festivals;
- encouraging authorities of schools, hospitals, prisons, factories, and places of business and government to respect particular features of Muslim life;

• upholding the dignity of individuals, families, and communities; and

• seeking to remedy situations in which Muslims encounter misunderstanding, prejudice, stereotyping, or even hostility from the neighborhood or population when they desire to express their faith in everyday life.

Environmental Health

Environmental Health

God gave us a good and complete earth. We must care for that which is around us in order that life can flourish. We are meant to live in a way that acknowledges the interdependence of human beings not just on one another but the world around us, the mountains and lilies, the sparrows and the tall pine which all speaks of the nature of God.—As Jesus declared, “If these were silent, the stones would shout out” (Luke 19:40), or “consider the lilies” (Luke 12:27) or the sparrows” (Matthew 10:31), for they tell us of God’s love. The psalmists declare praise for the natural world because nature reveals God’s steadfast love, justice, and faithfulness. Not only are we dependent and interdependent on the ecosystems around us, but we also recognize that the natural world as a place where a faithful, loving just Creator’s handiwork can be seen.

Since the onset of industrialization and globalization, we’ve lost our sense of interdependence with the natural world. Though some of us go away to the beaches, forests, and lakesides to find rest and respite, we’ve forgotten that everything around us is made from the natural world: the houses we live in, the food we eat, the technology we use, the air we breathe, and the water we drink. The manufacturing of those products that have made our lives what they are today are made by taking the natural world, working with chemicals, and producing that which we use in daily life.—Almost everything that is manufactured uses chemicals. Some of those chemicals have proven to be troublesome to our health. When these chemicals and the chemical by-products of production meet with rivers and streams, earth, and air, toxins result.—Those who work closest to the extraction and production, often are exposed to toxins at unsafe levels. We get hurt, we get sick, and our quality of life diminishes. This hurt needs careful attention and healing in order for us to have the healthy quality of life God intended.

God's covenant with humanity affirms that God is involved in the healing of individuals (Proverbs 3:7-8) and includes the mandate to protect the community from dangers that threaten the health and safety of the people. At the beginning of Methodism, John Wesley provided medicine and medical treatment at no cost to the poor in London and Bristol. In addition to pioneering free dispensaries in England, Wesley emphasized illness prevention. In Primitive Physick, Wesley wrote of the importance of nutrition and hygiene, as well as treatment of the sick. The first Social Creed, adopted by the 1908 General Conference of The Methodist Episcopal Church, declared that workers must be protected "from dangerous machinery, occupational disease, injuries, and mortality," and that working conditions must be regulated to safeguard the physical and moral health of the community. Today, the church is called to declare that the health of every individual is part of community health, including safe and healthy work conditions. The church has a responsibility to pronounce clearly the implications of God's law of love for human health. Where human life and health are at stake, economic gain must not take procedure.

Since Wesley's day's the rapid growth of chemical usage in our industrialized extraction, production, agricultural, and waste cycles have significantly altered our environments. In industrialized zones, chemical sludge and dangerous airborne particles exist in concentrated form with significant health impacts on the communities that live and work closest to them.—Throughout the globe, industrial extraction, production, and waste happen closest to populations that are already experiencing economic inequities and injustice. —In rural areas, agricultural pesticides and chemical fertilizers disproportionately hurt not only farmworkers on large farms but small farmers who work mainly with hand tools.—Those who live downstream or close to where those chemicals have been applied are also at risk.—The Rotterdam Convention was created so that the problem of known harmful chemicals would not be traded internationally without prior knowledge of the receiving country.

According to the United Nations, there are approximately 70,000 known chemicals, and approximately 1,500 new chemicals come onto the market every year.—

Although the Basel, Stockholm, and Rotterdam conventions seek to regulate the most dangerous of these chemicals, in reality, there is little knowledge about almost all of those 70,000 chemicals and their effects on human health.—Around forty chemicals are regulated when it comes to international trade. Sickness often happens years after exposure and so is difficult to trace.

Toxicology research suggests that certain chemicals such as dioxin, mercury, polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs), or other persistent organic pollutants (POPs) that are used in production or discarded as by-products of manufacturing and/or agricultural practices can be linked to cancer, reproductive aberrations, developmental disorders, blood and muscle growth abnormalities, disease of the liver and kidney, obesity, hormone disruptions, and behavioral concerns.—Many of these chemicals are often trans-generational, where the exposure might be in one generation but the effects of that exposure are transmitted to children and grandchildren.—Toxins also seep into the environment from our everyday products, including beauty products, household cleaners, drugs, fire retardants, food and beverage containers, pesticides, pharmaceuticals for both human and animals, and industrial effluent.—When these everyday products are thrown away, in dumps or sewers, they enter water sources.— Even in regions of the world where water treatment plants exists, toxins are often still present.

Reproductive, Maternal, and Child Health

According to the United Nations Development Program (UNDP), there are three types of chemicals that affect men and women differently: (1) endocrine disrupting chemicals; (2) chemicals that are persistent (meaning they remain a long time in the environment), bio accumulative (meaning they accumulate through the food chain), and toxic; and (3) heavy metals (such as mercury, lead, and cadmium). (Found at www.undp.org/content/dam/aplaws/publication/en/publications/environment-energy/www-ee-library/chemicals-management/chemicals-and-gender/2011%20Chemical&Gender.pdf <<http://www.undp.org/content/dam/aplaws/publication/en/publications/environment-energy/www-ee-library/chemicals-management/chemicals-and-gender/2011%20Chemical&Gender.pdf>>)

Endocrine disruptors are chemicals that interrupt hormonal activity. These chemicals, which include POPs, are usually bio accumulative. Though men are affected, women seem to be particularly vulnerable to chemical toxins. This could be because of their higher percentage of body fat in addition to their rapid physiological changes during pregnancy, lactation, and menopause. In addition, women's exposure to toxic chemicals can be transmitted through the placenta to the developing fetus. Children also seem to be more vulnerable to toxins in the environment. Their fast growth and proportionately high-intake needs might be reasons for this.

POPs are widely used in products because of their long half-life and their stability. They are now used almost everywhere. They are of particular concern because of their ability to affect the endocrine and immune systems, the liver, cognitive abilities, and the reproductive system (including low birth weight). They have also been linked to cancer.

Heavy metals used in high volume in industrial processes, mining, or paint are highly toxic. They affect the reproductive organs, kidneys, brain, bones and cardiovascular function. Mercury and lead are of most concern in the international community because they are known to cause birth defects and underweight infants.

In 2013, the American Congress of Obstetricians and Gynecologist released an opinion that called for reduced exposure to toxic environmental agents citing evidence that shows preconception and prenatal exposure to certain toxins, chemicals, and pesticides can lead to myriad reproductive health consequences, including increased risk of childhood cancer, sterility and infertility, and interference with developmental stages of reproductive function. (Found at: <http://www.acog.org/Resources-And-Publications/Committee-Opinions/Committee-on-Health-Care-for-Underserved-Women/Exposure-to-Toxic-Environmental-Agents>)

In addition, harmful chemicals in our environments multiply and intersect in ways that disproportionately affect vulnerable and underserved populations. When the poor and underserved live in sacrifice zones, or are close to incinerators or garbage dumps, or are farmworkers or subsistence farmers, the harmfulness of chemicals evident in everyday products multiplies and causes adverse effects such as debilitating sickness, infant sickness, and abnormal brain, hormone, and growth development. This disproportionately affects women, and policy consideration must understand the role of women as caregivers. Future policies must also understand the disproportionate impact on families and communities when family members get sick and are underserved by health care. Healthcare providers who work in low income areas—and especially those who work in reproductive, infant and children's health—must be educated on these ubiquitous toxins in their neighborhoods and their associated risks. And the church needs to be part of that education.

In the United States, the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences (NIEHS) asserts that the environment may play some role in as much as 85 percent of all disease and that exposure to chemicals can have great impact on human growth and development. Some of these chemicals, along with other pollutants, may even have a long lasting impact on a developing fetus, the effects of which could persist into adulthood and the reproductive cycle.

There are many everyday chemicals and exposures that are identified by UNDP or the Basel, Stockholm, and Rotterdam conventions as linked to various medical, behavioral, or reproductive disorders. Some of the effects of exposure may manifest in childhood, while some may emerge in adulthood.

- Air pollution: May contribute to intellectual delays, anxiety, depression, and attention problems.

- Arsenic: Leads to higher rates of liver, lung, and kidney cancers and is linked to increased mortality rates in liver and skin cancers.

- Dioxins: Greater rate of recurrent ear infections and incidents of chicken pox, and can cause developmental abnormalities.

- Endocrine disrupters (bisphenol A [BPA], pesticides, and phthalates): Increased aggression in young children, early onset of puberty, changes in mammary gland development, decrease in testosterone and sperm production, increased risk of breast cancer, abnormalities in genital development, and enlarged breast tissue in pre-pubescent boys.

- Flame retardants: Studies have shown growth of cancerous tumors in laboratory settings and they may alter hormones that are essential to reproductive and neurological development.

- Lead: Increased risk of hypertension, cardiovascular disease, diabetes, schizophrenia, and neurodegenerative changes later in life.

- Maternal smoking: Results in low infant birth weight as well as increased risk of childhood obesity.

- Mercury: Exposure before birth can cause disruptions in neurobehavioral and cognitive development.

Public health and safety is dependent on effective prevention and active protection before illness or injury have occurred. To fulfill God's commandment to love our neighbor as ourselves, we should support action that protects each individual's health and preserves the health of the community. To this end, we declare:

1. Every individual has a right to a safe and healthful environment un-endangered by a polluted natural world, a hazardous workplace, an unsanitary community, dangerous household products, unsafe drugs, and contaminated food. This human right must take precedent over considerations of cost analysis, capital investment, and financial return. It is unconscionable that anyone should profit or have their lives based on products that lead to the disease, disability, or death of themselves or another.

2. Public health hazards based on the lack of the wise use of chemicals must be prevented in order to avoid the serious individual and community consequences of injury, illness, and untimely death, including disability, physical pain, mental anguish, lost human potential, family stress, and the diversion of scarce medical resources to today's generation or future generations.

3. We must invest in research on the correlations between environmental concerns and cancer clusters, genetic defects, reproductive health issues, liver and kidney diseases, blood disorders, and brain disease. This research must include gender specific data and analysis which results in public policy.

4. The public health risks of technological development and waste must be fully researched and openly assessed before new technologies are introduced into the home, the workplace, the community, and the environment. Consumers and workers have the right to know what technologies and substances are used in the workplace, in foods, and other products and must know the health consequences of the same.

5. The preservation and protection of human life from public and environmental health hazards is a fundamental responsibility of government that must be maintained by active public support and adequate public funds. All levels of government must enforce public and environmental health and safety laws.

6. Preventive health care should be taught in educational institutions to persons in every age group at every level of society. Health professionals in all branches of medicine and public health, and those in related fields, should be encouraged to practice preventive medicine, implement community preventive health strategies, and assist patients in the adoption of healthy lifestyles. Programs should be implemented that educate and inform consumers and workers about physical, chemical, biological, and radiological hazards of products, services, working conditions, and environmental contaminants.

7. The right to a healthy and safe workplace is a fundamental right. Employers must assume responsibility to eliminate hazards in their workplaces which cause death, injury, and disease. Employers should work together with their employees and employee organizations to achieve this objective.

The church asks of governments to enact policies that protect human beings from environmentally toxic products and by-products:

1. The by-products, products, and/or waste of any consumer goods should be safe for the communities, families, and individuals who live or work near extraction, production, and waste sites. Industry must be held to account for its contributions to environmental degradation anywhere in the world, and environmental protections must be enacted through both national government and internal trade agreements.

2. Funding must be made available for the research of the safest possible extraction, production, consumption, products, and waste procedures. Tax incentives, penalties, and environmental regulations must be enacted to protect people rather than profit.

3. The burden of proof for the harmlessness of particular manufacturing or agricultural method must be with the corporations who are economically benefitting from the product. Safe disposal of products must be seen as part of the cost of production.

4. Consumers have a right to know and this right needs to be respected and protected by government. Consumers must know what's in their food, their hair and skin lotions, their cosmetics, their furniture, construction materials of their homes, buildings, and furniture, as well as their lawn and garden products. Many of the most dangerous known chemicals are continuing to find their way into hair coloring, makeup, food, and water. Transparency must be required for the use of chemicals in manufacturing processes.

5. As impacts of both the use and discontinuance of chemical toxins occur to workers and their communities, economic and health safety nets must be implemented.

Church actions need to consist of the following:

1. Churches can become places of Christian education that teach about the products we buy and their inherent dangers. It is important that the church provides information on the chemicals we encounter so that those we buy are as safe as possible and our disposal of the same is least harmful to the environment.

2. The United Methodist Church must provide for the safety and health of persons in their meeting spaces and work places; and as they actualize this provision we need to become educators and advocates for public and environmental health and safety in the community as indicated in the declarations above. As a church, we have a responsibility to make sure the spaces that we are creating for our children and families within the church have undergone a thorough evaluation including evaluating cleansers, lawn chemicals, carpets, paint and furniture, and even the food we serve.

3. The church must educate itself on public health initiatives and advocate for those which concretely address the disproportionate health impacts of our current extraction, manufacturing, agricultural, and waste economies on impoverished peoples, communities, and nations.

Principles for Just and Sustainable Extraction and Production

Principles for Just and Sustainable Extraction and Production

John Wesley proclaimed the following guiding principles as core to faithful action: Do no harm. Do all the good you can. -Obey the ordinances of God.

Scientists have confirmed that the industrialized form of economic development based largely on industrial extraction, production, and waste is not only harmful to many local ecologies and those who depend on them, but is harmful to the climate that humans depend on. Industrial extraction, production, and waste facilities compromise air, land, and water. Because of this, the health and well-being of surrounding communities are compromised. Yet communities who are wronged by extraction, industrial production, and waste are often under assault and militarized security forces often guard the industries from those who protest for just redress.

Because of industrial extraction, production and waste, some people's lives are destroyed while others profit. This is harmful and is neither sustainable nor just.

These four guiding principles and questions can form the architecture for a local community's advocacy work as people of faith in the Wesleyan tradition. They can provide a principled framework in which to advocate when industries seek to establish themselves or expand themselves in local communities. They can be a road forward to development which seeks to be just, sustainable, and responsible in its extraction, production, and waste practices.

1. First, do no harm:

Will or does the extractive, production, or waste industry effectively prohibit practices that result in toxic exposure, environmental degradation, and /or human rights violations?

2. Eradicate the root causes of poverty:

Will or does the extractive, production, or waste industry increase the most impoverished people's capabilities, choices, security, and power necessary for the full enjoyment of their human rights?

3. People as rights-holders:

Will or does the extractive, production, or waste industry guarantee people's rights to participate, including transparent access to information, freedom of expression and assembly, self-determination, and effective remedy for harms committed?

4. Sustainability:

Will or does the extractive, production, or waste industry adequately protect the land, water, and air for the rights of future generations and our planet?

These four guiding principles and questions should be asked by the church of any extractive, production, or waste facility, and land use or water use ordinance in any town, city, or nation.

A Call for Civility in Public Discourse

Adopt new resolution

All too often public discourse on political and social issues has devolved into name-calling, personal attacks, demonization of vulnerable groups, and a general dehumanization toward others that has led to acts of violence against individuals and groups in the past. Inflammatory statements are often uttered in the heat of debate and lead only to the continued deterioration of civility, further impeding possible solutions to the complex issues facing our church and our world. As the Council of Bishops stated in its "Beloved Community" statement (November 5, 2010), hateful rhetoric and escalating violence "diminish life for the victims, the perpetrators, and the total community. They are ultimately attacks on the sacredness of God given life."

Regretfully, these same patterns of public discourse have also been found among the community of believers, even among United Methodists. Jesus modeled a patient and welcoming love for even those who vehemently disagreed with him, while also never yielding in his commitment to truth and honesty. The apostle Paul reminded the divided Corinthians that "certainly the body [of Christ] isn't one part but many" (1 Corinthians 12:14) and their greatest calling is to love (1 Corinthians 13). Jesus' call to proclaim and live out God's unconditional love for the world was not deterred or dissuaded by the false accusations or personal attacks of his critics. And in staying committed to his mission, his love transformed the world.

In this call to tone down the heated rhetoric among politicians and commentators in the media, we, as Christians, must model respect in our civil discourse with one another for we will be known as disciples of Jesus for our love for one another (John 13:35). We are called to exhibit a "perfect love [that] drives out fear" (1 John 4:18).

Public discourse that dehumanizes others, especially vulnerable groups, must end. Unfounded accusations, misleading charges, and personal attacks have no place among leaders in the church or in society. While positions of leadership come with great responsibility, accountability without exhortation is like instruction without empathy; it is repressive.

Our prophetic call to our elected leaders to put away dehumanizing rhetoric must also be lived out in the community of Christ if it is to be authentic and taken seriously by the rest of society. Our love for one another must build up and not tear down. The prevalence of violence and hateful language so evident in society can effectively be addressed by a community of believers committed to proclaim and live out God's unconditional love for the world. Let the whole earth be transformed and may it begin with the house of God.

A Call for Faithful Lending Practices

New Resolution

Biblical and Theological Foundation

The Bible is consistent in its witness that God desires humans to live together in authentic community: in an economy of abundance in which neighbors love and care for each other and no one lives in scarcity. God created humankind to inhabit the good earth on which God amply supplied the needs of all creatures (Genesis 1). In the Sinai covenant, God commanded the people of Israel to refrain from usury and to care for the most vulnerable among them (Exodus 22:25; Deuteronomy 26:12). Isaiah, Amos, Micah, and other prophets warned the people of Israel to honor God by seeking justice for the poor. Jesus Christ taught his followers to treat others as they would want to be treated (Matthew 7:12), and he warned against measuring the abundance of life by possessions (Luke 12:15). The earliest Christian community lived with "all things in common" (Acts 2:44).

In the General Rules, John Wesley warned Methodists against doing harm by greedy or self-indulgent behaviors, including "the giving or taking things on usury," and "borrowing without a probability of paying; or taking up goods without a probability of paying for them" (United Methodist Book of Discipline, ¶ 103).

Current Concerns

Today's global economy is premised on credit involving individuals, businesses, and institutions that exchange goods and services with the promise of future payment. This credit market has enhanced efficiency and brought many consumer benefits. These markets have also given rise to abusive and predatory practices, however, that challenge the conscience of Christians. Among our most pressing concerns are contemporary financial practices and business models that entrap people in cycles of debt. These practices are exacerbated by lenders employing tactics to exempt themselves from banking regulation and traditional usury laws.

These practices include:

- Operations that profit by charging unconscionable rates of interest, often disguising the costs as "fees" rather than "interest," thereby exempting themselves from financial oversight and effectively extracting very high rates of return at the expense of the borrower;
- Bank and credit agency fees that entrap consumers into schedules of penalties that charge the equivalent of interest rates up to 1,000 percent for "services"; and
- Plans in which consumers are enrolled without knowledge or consent. In addition, consumers are burdened with hidden transfer charges, inappropriately large late fees, and sudden-rising interest rates.

Credit card marketing practices and convoluted contract agreements lack transparency and clarity on full pricing, fees, and alterations to the terms of agreement.

Our history of concern for the poor calls us to be attentive to these alternative banking systems that are often the way people living closer to the economic margins find space to participate in our economy. We call our congregations to investigate the current situations in their communities, states, and nations. We call our congregations to demand that our systems be regulated in a way that does not profit the rich at the expense of the poor, that benefits both parties involved in the transaction, and that has integrity in that it is characterized by honesty, disclosure, equal access, and equal power to begin or end the transaction. We advocate the establishment of bankruptcy laws that provide a full opportunity to be released from debilitating debt and enable individuals or families to restore financial stability.

We call on United Methodist members, churches, institutions, and agencies to adhere to and advocate for the following faithful principles:

- Promoting honesty, clarity, transparency, and evenhandedness. All sides should have the same opportunity to understand and negotiate a contract. Kickbacks and fees should be eliminated that distort lender and broker incentives to deal fairly with customers.
- Prohibiting unconscionable rates of interest. Usury caps should be reinstated to address abusive lending.
- Holding lenders accountable for only funding loans that borrowers have a reasonable ability to repay.
- Establishing equity in credit across communities.

Practices must be ended that particularly burden communities of color or low-income communities.

- Limiting fee-based penalties and business models that depend on consumer overspending and recurrent indebtedness. Penalties against repaying debts early should be eliminated.

- Requiring that the interest and fees charged on a loan are reasonable and proportional to the services rendered.

Rationale:

This petition is a response to abusive and predatory financial practices, and provides faithful principles for education and advocacy.

A Call for Just Tax Structures

Add new resolution to the Book of Resolutions as follows:

Biblical and Theological Foundation

The Law of Moses expresses God's expectation that society should care for its most vulnerable members both by refraining from exploiting them and by providing for their basic needs. The prophet Amos reminds the covenant community of God's expectations and rebukes his society for oppressing, trampling, and even crushing the poor and needy (Amos 2:6-8; 4:1, and 8:4-6). Amos gives voice to God's demand for just and equitable taxation as he cries out: "Because you crush the weak, / and because you tax their grain, / you have built houses of carved stone . . . / I know [you who are] afflicting the righteous, / taking money on the side, / turning away the poor who seek help" (Amos 5:11-12).

In the early church, all participants brought their gifts to the community with the understanding that everything should be shared according to everyone's needs (Acts. 4:32-25). While this was voluntary behavior that was not implemented everywhere as the Christian movement expanded, the principle/value remains valid to Christian understanding of living in community with each other.

In today's world, we recognize and affirm the vital role of governments in ordering society and enabling us to do together that which none of us could do alone. Tax laws enable us to embody our Judeo-Christian values of equal opportunity for all and care for the poor. They are necessary to provide adequate revenue that supports our shared commitment to a just society, including the maintenance of a safety net of services and opportunities for those most in need. (See the work of United Methodist layperson, Susan Pace Hamill, professor of law at the University of Alabama.) Taxation allows us to create systems that prevent our societies from descending to the tempting sin of greed. Unfortunately, current tax structures often have perpetuated rather than addressed economic injustices and have failed to provide sufficient revenue for the health, safety, educational, and welfare needs of our communities. Recent economic research ties unregulated market forces to increased inequality, justifying government tax interventions to more equitably distribute economic gains (Thomas Picketty, Capital in the 21st Century).

Current Concerns:

The gap between the rich and poor continues to widen worldwide. The eighty-five richest people in the world control as much wealth as the poorest half of the world (source: Oxfam). As our Companion Litany to the Social Creed states: "God cries with the masses of starving people, despises growing disparity between rich and poor. . . and so shall we."

The challenges of establishing fair and just tax systems are global. While some nations offer stronger social safety nets funded through more equitable tax systems, everywhere the forces of power and privilege seek to change structures to their benefit, oftentimes at the expense of our poorest and most vulnerable brothers and sisters. In our world economy, too often those individuals and corporations with the most wealth are most able to avoid the social responsibility of taxes by finding exemptions in local tax law or by using varied nations' tax regulations.

Given the clear injustice of many tax structures, and growing disparity between rich and poor, we affirm the need to reform these tax structures. Our Social Principles state our support for "efforts to revise tax structures and to eliminate governmental support programs that now benefit the wealthy at the expense of other persons" (§163).

Principles for Tax Reform:

The United Methodist Church calls for changes to current tax systems to better embody the following faithful principles:

Protecting the Poor and Vulnerable: All tax decisions must be judged by their impact on children, low-income families, the elderly, people with disabilities and other vulnerable populations. Taxes should be applied to a market activity that causes cost upon others or upon a public good (for example, clean air). Additional taxes should be levied on products that are damaging, such as tobacco, alcohol, and weapons.

Community: Systems should strengthen and uphold values of our common life together. Any nation's well-being is dependent on that of all its members. Tax and revenue systems enable governments to provide for the needs of the common good and should not give privilege to wealth earned through investment over wealth earned by labor.

Justice: Each government should ensure that both the burdens and the benefits of a nation's common life are shared equitably and proportionally among its citizens. Laws should address inequalities not institutionalize them.

We call for a global treaty to prevent transnational avoidance of taxation.

Rationale:

This petition addresses concerns over fair and just taxation, and growing income and wealth disparity. The proposed resolution outlines faithful principles to guide advocacy efforts for tax reform.

Caring for Victims of Crime

New resolution

In the parable of the good Samaritan (Luke 10:25-37), Jesus illustrates for his listeners the importance of caring for those who have been victims of crime. The way in which the Samaritan cares for the man who was robbed, beaten, and left for dead was specific as to the areas of need and lovingly generous. The Samaritan personally bandages his wounds, shares his wine and oil for healing, shares his animal so that the beaten man can ride to the inn, stays with him and cares for him during the night, and then covers all of his expenses while promising to return to check back in. Jesus defines a neighbor as the outpouring of mercy on this man by the Samaritan. For us to be neighbors today means that we must follow this example. We too must care for victims of crime.

Many people are victims of crime. Victims and their families suffer shock and a sense of hopelessness. In addition to financial loss, there is a spiritual and emotional trauma and often a lack of support and direction. Many victims feel frustrated because there often seems to be no provision for them to be heard. Their injuries are not redressed, and they are not always notified of the court procedures. Victims should have a greater voice within the criminal-justice system.

The United Methodist Church believes in healing through the ministries of restorative justice. As stated in the Book of Discipline, "restorative justice grows out of biblical authority, which emphasizes a right relationship with God, self, and community. When such relationships are violated or broken through crime, opportunities are created to make things right." Making restitution to those who have been victimized is at the heart of restorative justice. Judges and criminal-justice officials are urged to consider this when appropriate to help make victims of crime as financially whole again as possible.

For United Methodist congregations to effectively live out Jesus' call to be a neighbor to those who are victims of crime there are strategic ways in which congregations can act. These include:

- prayers by congregations for the healing of victims of crime and their families,
 - funeral assistance,
 - congregational care groups assigned to care for the crime victim,
 - participation in, support of, and utilization of advocacy groups for victims of crime,
 - referral to individual counselors and support groups that help crime victims as well as provide space for support groups to meet,
 - help for the victim to understand how the criminal-justice system works,
 - transportation getting to and from court,
 - child care for young children while the victim is in court,
 - good writers available to help the victim write their victim impact statement, and
 - financial aid to help those with financial losses or the losses that occur from missed periods of work.
- Congregations can be advocates for the rights of crime victims. Victims of crime should know these rights include:
- the right to participate and be heard at all phases of the criminal-justice process,
 - the right to be treated with dignity and compassion and respect by criminal-justice and church officials,
 - the right to be notified about the criminal case dispositions,
 - the right to disclosable information about the case, and
 - the right to request compensation that includes state victims compensation, restitution in the courts and paroling authorities, and civil-justice tort claims.
- Therefore, The United Methodist Church calls for:
- Congregations to embrace and care for victims of crime by identifying leaders and necessary resources both within the congregation and the local community.
 - Pastors and congregations to study the biblical basis of restorative justice and discuss how their church might engage in restorative-justice ministries. Some resources for this study include Changing Lenses: A New Focus for Crime and Justice by Howard Zehr, Ambassadors of Reconciliation: New Testament Reflections on Restor- ative Justice and Peacemaking by Elaine Enns and Ched Myers, Restorative Justice: Moving Beyond Punishment by Peggy Hutchison and Harmon Wray, Redeeming the Wounded by B. Bruce Cook, and Criminal Justice: Retribution vs. Restoration? by Eleanor Hannon Judah and the Rev. Michael Bryant, and

- The General Board of Church and Society to advocate for the recognition of the needs and rights of victims of crime.

Rationale:

Current resolutions do not address caring for victims of crime.

Caring for Creation: A Call to Stewardship and Justice

Combine Resolutions 1026, 1023, 1027, 1030, and 4059. Upon adoption of this new resolution, delete 1023, 1027, 1030, and 4059.

Our Call to Stewardship and Justice

Our covenant with God calls us to steward, protect, and defend God's creation. The psalmist proclaims, "The earth is the LORD's and everything in it" (Psalm 24:1) reaffirming our charge to care for creation as a trustee of God's handiwork (Genesis 1:28). We are to delight in and praise God for the abundance and diversity of creation (Psalm 148) and honor God's covenant established with all living creatures (Genesis 9:9).

The story of the garden (Genesis 2) reveals the complete and harmonious interrelatedness of creation, with humankind designed to relate to God, one another, and the rest of the created order. God's vision of "shalom" invites all of creation to know wholeness and harmony, and the good news that we are called to proclaim includes the promise that Jesus Christ came to redeem all creation (Colossians 1:15-20).

Violating the integrity of our relationship with creation is sinful. Our failure to serve as faithful caretakers of creation has local and global consequences. Our inability to share the abundance that God has entrusted to us has given rise to ecological crises and extreme poverty. Our unchecked consumption and unsustainable patterns of development have exacted a toll on creation and are increasing inequality of opportunity around the world.

Confronted with the massive crisis of the deterioration of God's creation and called to a ministry of reconciliation between God, humankind, and creation, we ask God's forgiveness and commit ourselves to a new way of being that integrates environmental, economic, and social justice. As United Methodists we therefore are called to participate in God's healing of creation through acts of personal, social, and civic righteousness. Proclaiming and modeling a new lifestyle rooted in stewardship and justice we work toward the day when all God's children respect and share in the goodness of creation.

Our Methodist Tradition and Witness

John Wesley taught a holistic view of salvation that included the deliverance of the created world in the creation of a new heaven and a new earth.

In the sermon "The New Creation" (#64) Wesley speaks imaginatively about what the new heavens and the new earth will be like, imagining into the scriptural promises of an end to death and suffering (Revelation 21:1-7), and an end to present environmental catastrophes like storms, polluted water, and animal suffering. This is all part of the promise of God's "greater deliverance" from sin. "And, to crown all, there will be a deep, an intimate, an uninterrupted union with God; a constant communion with the Father and his Son Jesus Christ, through the Spirit; a continual enjoyment of the Three—One God, and of all the creatures in him!"

Early Methodists worked toward this hoped-for view by addressing environmental concerns, such as open sewers, impure water, unplanned cities, and smoke-filled air. In response to squalor and filth in the mines and mills, Methodists advocated for a wider knowledge of concepts of basic health. The substantial decline in the death rate in England from 1700 to 1801 can be traced to this work.

Wesley's eschatological vision for the deliverance of all creation led him to respect and care for the created world here and now. "They may encourage us to imitate him whose mercy is over all of his works. They may soften our hearts towards the meaner creatures, knowing that the Lord cares for them. It may enlarge our hearts towards those poor creatures to reflect that, as vile as they appear in our eyes, not one of them is forgotten in the sight of our Father which is in heaven. . . . Yea, let us habituate ourselves to look forward, beyond this present scene of bondage, to the happy time when they will be delivered therefrom into the liberty of the children of God" (Sermon 60, The Great Deliverance).

Our Vision

We believe clean air is a basic right and necessity for all life. Air pollution puts at risk the health of our communities and threatens to forever alter the climate. To ensure that future generations inherit a legacy of clean air:

We advocate the adoption and strict enforcement of adequate standards to control both indoor and outdoor air pollutants. These standards must be developed to protect vulnerable populations including children and the elderly. We advocate measures to prohibit smoking and the provision of adequate ventilation for indoor facilities as well as ambitious standards to limit harmful emissions from stationary and non-stationary sources.

We support efforts to protect our shared atmosphere by reducing emissions that contribute to ozone depletion, acid rain and climate change. Through bilateral and international frameworks, we advocate ratification and enforcement of agreements to reduce harmful emissions with particular emphasis and accountability by the most developed and historic emitters.

We believe water is a sacred gift from God. We further believe water is a basic human right and not a commodity to be traded for profit. To ensure that water remains pure and available to all:

We support the right of native peoples to the first use of waters on their lands.

We advocate integrated, sustainable management to reduce or eliminate factors contributing to limited water quantity and poorer water quality. We call for measures to preserve groundwater sources, to address polluted runoff that threatens water quality and safety and for effective enforcement against illegal pollution.

We support the public's right to know that water is safe for drinking, swimming, and fishing and disclosure of any pollutants discharged by industries and municipalities.

We are to tend God's land and care for all creation's creatures as faithful trustees with a commitment to preserve its goodness and diversity for future generations.

We encourage economic and agricultural practices that conserve and promote the improvement of land resources, production of healthful foods, and preservation of a clean environment.

We call on governments to support careful management of agricultural lands, protection of forests, and preservation of biodiversity among both plants and animals. We support national and international efforts to protect endangered species and imperiled habitats.

We believe that natural resources, outside the control of different nations, from the genes that form life to the air and outer space, are the common heritage of all humanity and therefore must be developed and preserved for the benefit of all, not just the few, both today and for generations to come. We believe God's whole earth has inherent value and our use of these precious gifts, including energy resources, must balance the needs of human development with the needs of non-human creation and future generations.

We support the concept of common heritage guaranteeing that people have the right to enough of the resources of the universe to provide for their health and well-being.

We support policies that encourage energy conservation and a shift toward cleaner, renewable sources of energy. We advocate for just and sustainable energy policies that prioritize the needs of those individuals and communities with the fewest resources.

We advocate for equivalent environmental standards among countries entering into trade agreements so that creation and communities are not sacrificed in the name of "free trade."

We oppose the use of creation as a means of warfare or economic oppression and urge the abolition of chemical, biological, and nuclear weapons and the cleanup of sites contaminated with the waste byproducts of militarization.

We encourage measures to minimize the use of toxic and hazardous substances, strengthen right-to-know policies so that individuals and communities can understand threats from pollution, and support policies that hold polluters responsible for the cost of cleanup and health impacts.

We acknowledge the constantly imperfect state of our knowledge regarding the impacts of new technologies and urge the development of those technologies most in accord with God's plan of wholeness for all creation.

Our Commitment

As The United Methodist Church we understand our responsibility to address and our complicity in the challenges facing God's creation. We urge all United Methodists, local faith communities, agencies, and institutions to examine their roles as caretakers of creation and to study, discuss, and work to implement this resolution.

Specifically, The United Methodist Church:

Designates one Sunday each year, preferably the Sunday closest to Earth Day or World Environment Day, as a Festival of God's Creation incorporating creation care into the church's worship and study.

Promotes an environmentally sound lifestyle mindful of consumption amid a culture that encourages overconsumption and waste.

Commits to reducing, reusing, and recycling goods and to the use of recycled and "processed chlorine free" paper by United Methodist boards, agencies, and publishers.

Encourages all institutions to perform energy audits, improve energy efficiency, and utilize clean, renewable energy sources where available.

In addition, we call for the following:

Council of Bishops:

Communicate to the denomination the urgency of reducing our individual and corporate impact on God's creation.

Model for the Church a "ministry of witness" by practicing "social and environmental holiness" as recommended in “God’s Renewed Creation: A Call to Hope and Action.”

Support the efforts of annual conferences to form teams of United Methodists committed to creation care.

Connectional Table:

Request that each quadrennial report to General Conference include an evaluation of creation care efforts and steps taken by the reporting body to integrate sustainable environmental practices into its ministry.

Commission on General Conference:

Request that the meetings of General Conference model sustainable practices and report on efforts to reduce waste and consumption.

General Board of Church and Society (GBCS):

Develop resources highlighting opportunities for personal engagement and advocacy for individuals, local churches, annual conferences, and the general Church to understand and respond to our call to be caretakers of God’s creation.

Organize teams of United Methodists to engage in concrete actions including advocacy to address locally identified challenges to creation.

General Board of Discipleship (GBOD):

Develop curriculum and programs for all ages, in consultation with GBCS, GBGM and UMW, that emphasize ecological responsibility as a key element of discipleship.

General Board of Global Ministries (GBGM):

Join with GBCS, United Methodist Women (UMW), and other agencies in working with mission partners to participate in the ongoing global dialogue on sustainability through the United Nation’s Commission on Sustainable Development.

Explore and implement tangible ways to incorporate creation care into the mission, ministries, training programs, operations, and administration of GBGM.

General Board of Higher Education and Ministry (GBHEM):

Include a greater awareness in clergy education and training of the global ecological crises.

United Methodist Communications (UMCom):

Produce programs that stress Christian responsibility for the future of creation and include models of The United Methodist Church’s involvement in creation care.

General Council on Finance and Administration (GCFA):

Assist the denomination in its effort to be ecologically responsible in its own use of resources by collecting statistics on local churches’ and general agencies’ use of energy, water, paper, local purchasing efforts, minimization of toxics, and recycling to monitor the progress of the denomination in these aspects of stewardship.

General Board of Pension and Health Benefits (GB-PHB):

Develop investment guidelines, in consultation with agencies, to evaluate its securities on adherence to high standards of environmental accountability as evidenced by the adoption of an environmental code of conduct and a practice of transparency in public environmental reporting.

United Methodist Women (UMW):

Develop educational, missional, and policy initiatives surrounding climate justice, and environmental health and their impacts on women, children, and youths.

Local Faith Communities:

Develop programs to incorporate the concerns of ecological justice into their work in evangelism, social concerns, mission activities, stewardship, trustees, and worship.

Rationale:

This resolution seeks to update and combine five existing resolutions (1023, 1026, 1027, 1030 and 4059) to form one foundational creation-care resolution to serve as a statement of theological foundation, application to the current challenge facing creation and a call for United Methodist action.

Climate Change and the Church

Add new resolution to the Book of Resolutions; delete #1031, Resolution on Global Warming, after approval of this new resolution:

The natural world is a loving gift from God, the creator and sustainer, who has entrusted it in all its fullness to the care of all people for God’s glory and to the good of all life on earth now and in generations to come. The image of God in us (Genesis1:27) is reflected in our abilities, responsibilities, and integrity, and with the power of the Holy Spirit we are called as God’s coworkers in dialogue and covenant to live and serve for the good of creation.

We confess that we have turned our backs on our responsibilities in neglect, selfishness, and pride. And yet Christ’s redeeming and restoring work through his death and resurrection embraces all of creation. Even in the face of destruction and disaster, we believe that God’s vision for the world is of peace and wholeness and that God offers to us a future filled with hope (Jeremiah 29:11). This vision has a present and a future in the promise of a new heaven and a new earth (Revelation 21:1-8).

One manifestation of our neglect, selfishness, and pride is our sinful disregard for creation that has given rise to the injustice of climate change. Human-induced climate change is caused by the emission of CO2 and other greenhouse gases, for which the strong economies of this world carry the vast responsibility. Those economies that have benefited from fossil-fuel development rightly bear the responsibility to rapidly reduce emissions and support less wealthy economies in their journey toward sustainable and climate resilient development.

Unless we change our ways, the average global temperature by the end of the twenty-first century is on course to increase by 4 degrees Celsius resulting in sea level rise, shrinking glaciers, extreme weather, droughts, and flooding. The United Nations' World Food Program estimates that climate change will place 20 percent more people at risk of hunger by 2050.

Leaders in some developed nations continue to debate, from places of comfort and privilege, the "reality" of a changing climate in order to perpetuate their polluting ways. As the church we witness firsthand the consequences of climate disruption in our communities and in the lives of those Christ calls us to be with in ministry. Recognizing our complicity and responsibility, we seek to chart a new path rooted in economic and ecological justice. We understand climate justice not simply as an environmental or economic concern but rather as a deep ethical and spiritual concern that the Church must address so that abundant life is ensured for our children and future generations.

As we continue to call for bold leadership and advocate for policies rooted in justice and sustainability, we understand that God is calling each of us to respond and that as a denomination we cannot hope to transform the world until we change our way of being in it.

Therefore, we call on United Methodists to:

Study the pastoral letter from the Council of Bishops entitled "God's Renewed Creation: Call to Hope and Action." Clergy and laity should use the letter and accompanying resources to preach and teach on the care for creation as part of our discipleship;

Prayerfully explore lifestyle changes as individuals and faith communities that would reduce greenhouse gas emissions and support a cleaner, healthier future;

Support communities impacted by climate change as well as those currently dependent on fossil fuel extraction and production as they transition to a new energy economy;

Challenge all United Methodist institutions, organizations, and local churches to incorporate climate stewardship, reducing the use of fossil fuel, into the design of facilities and reduce the carbon footprint of meetings;

Utilize resources available through the General Board of Church and Society, the General Board of Global Ministries, the General Board of Discipleship, and United Methodist Women to support locally-appropriate climate actions;

Advocate for national policies that shift resources, including subsidies, away from high-carbon development and toward alternative, cleaner energy sources.

Advocate for a fair, ambitious and binding international agreement to address climate change built on nationally appropriate commitments to both mitigation and adaptation.

Rationale:

Shaped by voices from across the global church, this new resolution names the spiritual and ethical concerns posed by climate change and encourages locally appropriate personal, institutional and civic actions by the church and its members.

Eradicating Modern Day Slavery

New resolution to replace 6021, Church Supports Global Efforts to End Slavery AND 6023, Abolition of Sex Trafficking.

"How terrible for [him], who builds his house with corruption / and his upper chambers with injustice, / working his countrymen for nothing, / refusing to give them their wages" (Jeremiah 22:13).

"But people who are trying to get rich fall into temptation. They are trapped by many stupid and harmful passions that plunge people into ruin and destruction. The love of money is the root of all kinds of evil. Some have wandered away from the faith and have impaled themselves with a lot of pain" (1 Timothy 6:9-10).

While the transatlantic slave trade—Africans kidnapped and taken to work as slaves in the United States, Latin America, and the Caribbean—was abolished around 1807 (Ngwe, Job Elom and O. Oko Elechi. (2012). Human Trafficking: Modern Day Slavery in the 21st Century. African Journal of Criminology and Justice Studies: AJCJS, Vol.6, #s1&2), modern-day slavery has become the fastest-growing transnational criminal enterprise earning an estimated $150 billion (U.S.) in illegal profits annually while enslaving 21 million people around the world.

(International Labour Organization, www.ilo.org <<http://www.ilo.org>>) “[T]here are essentially three aspects of modern slavery according to Craig, et al (2007, namely, that they involve (1) severe economic exploitation; (2) the absence of any framework of human rights; and (3) the maintenance of control of one person over another by the prospect or reality of violence” (p.12) (Ngwe, Job Elom and O. Oko Elechi. (2012). Human Trafficking: Modern Day Slavery in the 21st Century. African Journal of Criminology and Justice Studies: AJCJS, Vol.6, #s1&2.)

Slavery exists in several forms, including the “descent slavery” (slaves and children of slaves passed down as property to one’s descendants) practiced in some African countries such as Mali and Mauritania; “bonded labor, serfdom, debt bondage, sexual slavery, child labor and enforced participation in armed conflict” as noted by Craig, et al (2007). Slavery has endured despite its abhorrence by . . . societies because of the critical role of labor as a factor of production. Some governments have either actively or tacitly participated in the exploitation of other peoples’ labor (or even their citizens’ labor) for economic benefits (Ngwe, Job Elom and O. Oko Elechi. (2012). Human Trafficking: Modern Day Slavery in the 21st Century. African Journal of Criminology and Justice Studies: AJCJS, Vol.6, #s1&2.)

Due to globalized communication, currency exchange, migration, and trading, human trafficking has become the predominate means by which people are enslaved. The United Nations defines trafficking to be “the recruitment, transportation, transfer, harboring, or receipt of persons, by means of the threat or use of force or other forms of coercion, of abduction, of fraud, of deception, of the abuse of power or of a position of vulnerability or of the giving or receiving of payments or benefits to achieve the consent of a person having control over another person, for the purpose of exploitation. Exploitation shall include, at a minimum, the exploitation of the prostitution of others or other forms of sexual exploitation, forced labor or services, slavery or practices similar to slavery, servitude”

One of the challenges in the abolition of modern-day slavery is that “[t]here is no consistent face of a trafficker. Traffickers include a wide range of criminal operators, including individuals, small families or businesses, loose-knit decentralized criminal networks, and international organized criminal syndicates” (Polaris Project, www.polarisproject.org <<http://www.polarisproject.org>>). In addition, trafficking is low risk and high profit because victims are isolated and often deemed “disposable” (Stop the Traffik UK, www.stophetraffik.org <<http://www.stophetraffik.org>>). It is estimated that 95 percent of trafficking victims experience physical and/or sexual violence while trafficked (The Health Risks and Consequences of Trafficking in Women and Adolescents. (2003). London School of Hygiene & Tropical Medicine).

A report from the Australian Institute of Criminology referred to reports of Chinese female migrants who, under the control of traffickers, were raped while family members were listening on the phone in order to persuade families to pay off debts (The Health Risks and Consequences of Trafficking in Women and Adolescents. (2003). London School of Hygiene & Tropical Medicine).

Industries where people are trafficked include: agriculture, domestic labor, hotels, landscaping, forestry, day labor, garment factories, manufacturing, warehousing, nail salons, meat/seafood, processing, mining, brothels, massage parlors, construction, canning, door-to-door sales/street vendors, restaurants and bars, tourism, entertainment, carnivals, disaster cleanup, strip clubs, sex trade, child soldiers, pornography, and fishing.

The majority of source countries of trafficking are on the continents of Africa and Asia, and the destination countries are often in Europe and North America. Colonization and an increasing globalized economy are two leading factors promoting human trafficking. As large groups of people were removed from their land in order to grow cash crops and mine, urban centers became overcrowded, joblessness increased and poverty swelled. People were no longer able to sustain themselves because economic and trade policies that allowed raw materials and resources to move from the continents of Africa, South America and Asia did not allow the people of those same lands to move with the resources. This transfer of wealth continues to destabilize governments, as do wars seeking to return indigenous peoples to leadership, and fighting among tribes or factions to gain control of lucrative natural resources. Failing economies and resulting budgetary constraints often inhibit the enforcement of national and international anti-trafficking laws, and can lead to corruption of new governments and law enforcement entities who benefit from money earned through trafficking enterprises.

Jesus’ ministry focused on standing with people who were most vulnerable. The reasons that children and adults fall prey to traffickers rest at individual, cultural, institutional, and governmental levels. There is a significant gap in wealth between urban and rural areas that creates a deep yearning to escape poverty. Abusive interpersonal relationships and unfair treatment, cultural practices and norms, institutional policies, and business practices at country level and beyond continue to deny the sacred worth of women and girls, and perpetuate gender inequality resulting in a disproportionate percentage of women and children living in poverty around the world. The United Nations Development Program reports that in many places women lack access to paid work and/or the ability to get a loan; thus, women make up 50 percent of the world's population but own only 1 percent of the world's wealth. Parents and children who are often deceived by promises of education, citizenship in a more prosperous country, or love send their children or leave with traffickers without knowing of the exploitation and abuse awaiting their children or them, respectively. This disparity in wealth and opportunity is mirrored in the percentages of women (70 percent) and children (50 percent) who are victims of trafficking. Human trafficking is particularly dangerous to children in disaster zones. Eva Biaudet of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe said: "When there are catastrophes—when the state fails, when there are no systems—children are extremely at risk for not only being abandoned . . . but also for abuse and exploitation. It's a very good place for traffickers to be when the state fails" (Humantrafficking.org, www.humantrafficking.org <<http://www.humantrafficking.org>>).

According to the Polaris Project, "Human trafficking is a market-based economy that exists on the principles of supply and demand. It thrives due to conditions that allow for high profits to be generated at low risks." International conventions have been ratified and country-level laws have been passed by numerous countries around the world. The laws provide necessary tools for governments, law enforcement, and nongovernmental organizations to raise awareness about trafficking, prosecute traffickers, and require governments to ensure the rescue and rehabilitation of trafficking survivors. These initiatives primarily focus on reducing the supply side of this economic equation. People of faith must lead the efforts to decrease the demand for cheap labor, goods, and services that drive modern-day slavery.

Jesus' ministry recognizes the sacred worth of every person and directly challenges the exploitation and abuse of people. In John 10:10 Jesus says, "I came so that they could have life—indeed, so that could have it to the fullest." John Wesley, the founder of Methodism, condemned slavery as wrong and incompatible with Christ's teachings in numerous instances, including a tract entitled "Thoughts on Slavery" and a sermon, "The Use of Money." Like all people, women and girls are promised the abundant life offered by Christ. Far too often, experiences such as these are recounted by trafficking survivors:

"Constance" was trafficked from the Middle East to the United States by a family that kept her as a domestic worker. She was a survivor of female genital mutilation and was physically, sexually, and emotionally abused by her employer. By the time she escaped and found help from a service provider, she was vomiting blood, experienced daily headaches, and suffered from severe stomach pain. Eventually, her pelvic pain was mitigated with the use of hormonal contraceptives (Trafficking in Persons Report, US Department of State [2012]).

People of faith must work to change attitudes, beliefs, policies, and practices at all levels of society that dehumanize and promote the exploitation and abuse of women and girls. "Women with equal rights are better educated, healthier and have greater access to land, jobs and financial resources" (United Nations Development Program, Gender and Poverty Reduction, www.undp.org <<http://www.undp.org>>).

The United Methodist Social Principles state: "[C]onsumers should exercise their economic power to encourage the manufacture of goods that are necessary and beneficial to humanity . . ." and call "[c]onsumers [to] avoid purchasing products made in conditions where workers are being exploited because of their age, gender, or economic status"(¶ 163D). Through the United Methodist Committee on Relief's partnership with Equal Exchange, individuals and United Methodist entities are able to purchase chocolate, cocoa, coffee, tea, and other goods that are fair trade, guaranteeing that no slave labor is involved in the production of such goods. Economic pressure and advocacy by United Methodists and other people of faith has led some major chocolate companies to commit to removing child slave labor from their supply chains in coming years. This is an important step; however, there are many more industries that need to eradicate slave labor from their business practices. For example, "Children from ages four to 14 are subjected to forced labor, working as many as 18 hours a day to weave rugs destined for export markets such as the U.S. and Europe" (Trafficking in Persons Report, US Department of State [2012]).

In order to eradicate modern-day slavery, we call on United Methodists, local churches, campus ministries, colleges, universities, seminaries, annual conferences, general agencies and commissions, and the Council of Bishops to:

1. affirm human rights and dignity of all peoples who are on the move, asserting the right to freedom of movement, and resisting violations and curtailments of such rights through forced migration, including trafficking in persons;

2. advocate for economic and trade policies that facilitate job development that is accessible to all sectors of societies, with wages that allow all persons to thrive according to God's will;

3. actively champion anti-slavery efforts by petitioning the United Nations and the legislative bodies of all countries in which The United Methodist Church has an organized ecclesiastical structure, to demand the freeing of all persons subjected to modern-day forms of enslavement and bonded labor;

4. petition the United Nations and governments around the world to abolish slavery through the use of nonmilitary options such as negotiations leading to agreements with binding obligations and corollary sanctions;

5. encourage swift resolution to civil strifes and armed conflicts and engage in coordinated responses to mitigate disasters to prevent traffickers from preying on children;

6. officially support stock/mutual fund divestment campaigns that urge people to remove funds from organizations and corporations whose actions profit from and contribute to slavery's existence;

7. create environments that model safe, healthy, and violence-free communities in order to raise children who do not accept violence as normative;

8. implement children's ministries that bolster self-esteem and provide educational and economic opportunities for women and children who are especially vulnerable to traffickers;

9. build a new generation of male leaders across the Church who model nonviolent, emotionally healthy masculinity, serving as positive change-makers in society.

10. educate pastors, lay leaders, children and families, teachers, health-care providers, and outreach workers about fraudulent promises of traffickers and the resulting exploitation and abuse;

11. advocate for local, regional, national, and international laws and funds that ensure trafficking victims have access to services that enable them to heal from the trauma including counseling, reproductive health care, education/job training, legal services and shelter;

12. commit to interrupting the demand for slaves by purchasing fair trade products, including coffee, tea, chocolate, T-shirts, athletic equipment, and other goods for personal and ministry-related activities; and,

13. demand that corporations eliminate exploitative labor in their business practices and use their influence to eradicate all slavery from their supply chains.

As Ambassador Melanne Verveer of Global Women's Issues 2009-2013 implores in the documentary "Not My Life," "[I]f we address women's needs in terms of accessing education, being free from violence, being economic participants, our world will be better for everybody."

Rationale:

This is a comprehensive resolution on human trafficking that will replace two expiring resolutions: 6021. Church Supports Global Efforts to End Slavery and 6023. Abolition of Sex Trafficking.

Our Call to End Gun Violence

New resolution to replace #3426 Gun Violence and #5011 Church is a Weapon-Free Zone

Jesus' call to his followers to be peacemakers (Matthew 5:9) is tied to intimate relationship with God, and echoes God's dreams for peace for all of creation as expressed in Micah 4:1-4:

"In days to come, / the mountain of the LORD's house / shall be established as the highest of the mountains, / and it shall be raised up above the hills. / Peoples will stream to it, / and many nations shall come and say: / 'Come, let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, / to the house of the God of Jacob; / that he may teach us his ways / and that we may walk in his paths./ For out of Zion shall go forth instruction, / and the word of the LORD's from Jerusalem. / He shall judge between many peoples, / and shall arbitrate between strong nations far away; / they shall beat their swords into plowshares, / and their spears into pruning hooks; / nation shall not lift up sword against nation, / neither shall they learn war any more; / but they shall all sit under their own vines and under their own fig trees, / and no one shall make them afraid; / for the mouth of the LORD of hosts has spoken" (NRSV).

Micah's prophetic dream points to a time when all peoples will journey to God's presence so God "may teach us his ways and that we may walk in his paths" (4:2). Micah describes God as the final judge and the nations will travel to God's presence out of their desire to live in peace without violence and bloodshed.

The stunning imagery of Micah's dream is the transformation of weapons into instruments of harvesting food that occurs after the judgments are handed down to the nations. The transformation is not complete until the nations participate in their own transformation. The work that went into creating the weapons will be matched by the human effort it will take to transform those weapons into peaceful instruments. God does not collect or hide the weapons from the nations, nor does God transform the weapons outside of human effort. The text states that the nations themselves, "shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks."

Violence, in so many ways, is fueled by fear and self-protection. Iron plows and pruning tools can be used as weapons. Yet, in Micah's vision, genuine peace and security are given to all people by God after the weapons of violence are transformed: "they shall all sit under their own vines and under their own fig trees, and no one shall make them afraid.” Culture as well as weapons will be transformed: Indeed, “neither shall they learn war any more.”

Whether it happens in the towns of northeastern Nigeria, a suburb in the United States, the streets of Australia, or an office in France, gun violence has become an all-too-often frightening phenomenon. We need the reality of Micah’s vision more than ever.

Small arms include assault rifles, submachine guns, light machine guns, grenade launchers, portable anti-aircraft guns and anti-tank guns, among other weapons (Small Arms Survey, <<http://www.smallarmssurvey.org/weapons-and-markets/definitions.html>>). Nations encumbered with violence from small arms face the greatest obstacles to delivering social services to those who need them the most (Ibid). Armed violence contributes to crime, human trafficking, drug trafficking, gender-based violence, racial and ethnic conflicts, systemic economic inequalities, persistent unemployment, and human rights abuses among other social maladies (Small Arms Survey, <http://www.smallarmssurvey.org/armed-violence/social-and-economic-costs/impact-on-development.html>). In many countries small arms are the greatest hindrance to food security.

One crucial step toward curbing this violence on an international scale is the Arms Trade Treaty that passed the United Nations in 2013. Its focus is to prevent arms from being traded into already dangerous situations. The treaty does not regulate the trade of small arms within nations. In adopting the treaty, the 118 nations that signed it and the 31 nations that have already ratified it are states that gun violence is a universal problem devastating lives and creating tremendous instability in nations and entire regions in the world (<<http://disarmament.un.org/treaties/t/att/deposit/asc/>>).

Gun violence also greatly affects families and individuals. One of the most prominent forms of gun violence is suicide. Worldwide, there are nearly one million suicides every year, which amounts to more than 3,000 per day (World Health Organization, International Association for Suicide Prevention, http://www.who.int/mental_health/prevention/suicide/suicideprevent/en/, Worldwide Suicide Prevention Day is September 10; <http://www.iasp.info/wspd/>). While not all of these involve firearms access to firearms makes suicide more attainable for many who attempt it. Indeed, firearms are the most frequent method for suicides in countries where firearms are common in private households (World Health Organization, <<http://www.who.int/bulletin/volumes/86/9/07-043489/en/>>).

When domestic violence incidents involve the use of firearms the results are often deadly. “Gender inequality, tolerance and cultural acceptance of the use of violence against women, and common notions of masculinity that embrace firearms possession (which may be supported by both men and women) all combine to create a climate that places women at risk of Intimate Partner Violence involving firearms” (Small Arms Survey, <<http://www.smallarmssurvey.org/fileadmin/docs/A-Yearbook/2013/en/Small-Arms-Survey-2013-Chapter-2-summary-EN.pdf>>). A U.S.-based study of mass shootings between January 2009 and January 2013 revealed that 57 percent of the incidents involved the killing of a family member, or a current or former intimate partner of the shooter (<<https://s3.amazonaws.com/s3.mayorsagainstillegalguns.org/images/analysis-of-recent-mass-shootings.pdf>>).

As followers of Jesus, called to live into the reality of God’s dream of shalom as described by Micah, we must address the epidemic of gun violence so “that he may teach us his ways and that we may walk in God’s paths.” Therefore, we call upon United Methodists to prayerfully address gun violence in their local context. Some of the ways in which to prevent gun violence include the following:

1. For congregations to make preventing gun violence a regular part of our conversations and prayer times. Gun violence must be worshipfully and theologically reflected on, and we encourage United Methodist churches to frame conversations theologically by utilizing resources such as “Kingdom Dreams, Violent Realities: Reflections on Gun Violence from Micah 4:1-4” produced by the General Board of Church and Society.

2. For congregations to assist those affected by gun violence through prayer, pastoral care, creating space, and encouraging survivors to share their stories, financial assistance, and through identifying other resources in their communities as victims of gun violence and their families walk through the process of grieving and healing.

3. For individual United Methodists who own guns as hunters or collectors to safely and securely store their guns and to teach the importance of practicing gun safety.

4. For United Methodist congregations that have not experienced gun violence to form ecumenical and interfaith partnerships with faith communities that have experienced gun violence in order to support them and learn from their experiences

5. For United Methodist congregations to lead or join in ecumenical or interfaith gatherings for public prayer at sites where gun violence has occurred, and partner with law enforcement to help prevent gun violence.

6. For United Methodist congregations to partner with local law-enforcement agencies and community groups to identify gun retailers that engage in retail practices designed to circumvent laws on gun sales and ownership, encourage full legal compliance, and to work with groups like Heeding God's Call that organize faith-based campaigns to encourage gun retailers to gain full legal compliance with appropriate standards and laws.

7. For United Methodist congregations to display signs that prohibit carrying guns onto church property.

8. For United Methodist congregations to advocate at the local and national level for laws that prevent or reduce gun violence. Some of those measures include:

- Universal background checks on all gun purchases
- Ratification of the Arms Trade Treaty
- Ensuring all gun are sold through licensed gun retailers
- Prohibiting all individuals convicted of violent crimes from purchasing a gun for a fixed time period
- Prohibiting all individuals under restraining order due to threat of violence from purchasing a gun
- Prohibiting persons with serious mental illness, who pose a danger to themselves and their communities, from purchasing a gun
- Ensuring greater access to services for those suffering from mental illness
- Establishing a minimum age of 21 years for a gun purchase or possession
- Banning large-capacity ammunition magazines and weapons designed to fire multiple rounds each time the trigger is pulled
- Promoting new technologies to aid law-enforcement agencies to trace crime guns and promote public safety.

Criminal Justice

New Resolution Criminal Justice, upon approval delete Resolutions 5031 (Equal Justice), 5032 (Grand Jury Abuse), 5033 (Justice with Young Persons), 5035 (In Opposition to Capital Punishment)

The biblical view of the criminal justice system is one that should be characterized by accessibility (Deuteronomy 1:17; 16:18), impartiality (Exodus 23:1-3), honesty (Exodus 23:7), integrity (Exodus 23:6, 8), and fairness to all without regard to status (Leviticus 19:15). accessibility to all (Deuteronomy 1:17, 16:18). God exhorts God's people, "Justice, and only justice, you shall pursue" (Deuteronomy 16:20).

It is later in the narrative of God's people when justice has become subverted by greed and self-indulgence that God prescribes corrective action, as described by prophets such as Isaiah and Amos. When justice is distorted God desires for the cause of the widow and the orphan, those most vulnerable to the injustice of the affluent and powerful, to be defended (Isaiah 1:17). When injustice is committed against the poor and marginalized, authentic justice as described here is prevented from being experienced and God's people are alienated from God (Amos 5:7, 10-13, 21-24). God is just and those who follow God must be just as well.

A justice system that reflects God's desires for the world is one that is healing and restorative. Those who have been victimized by crime and the communities in which they reside need healing. Healing can come as safety and security are restored and the broken bonds of mutuality and shared existence are mended. Those who commit crimes must be held accountable through making amends to those they have caused to suffer, and they must be given the opportunity to return to their full place in society and community.

Since crimes are so often linked to a lack of access to resources, gaining access to resources is a necessary part of this return. As United Methodists we "support measures designed to remove social conditions that lead to crime, and we encourage continued positive interaction between law enforcement officials and members of the community at large" (§ 164H).

A justice system must be first and foremost about humanization since God's justice always works to bring reconciliation. Systems of retribution breed only violence and isolation. Indeed, "we cannot punish our way to a healthy society" (Laura Magnani and Harmon Wray, Beyond Prisons: A New Interfaith Paradigm for Our Failed Prison System. Minneapolis, MN: Fortress Press [p. 5]).

Retributive systems of justice form barriers to the realization of the vision of restorative justice because they are tainted with explicit and implicit racial and ethnic bias, they punish children as harshly as adults, and they accommodate a two-tiered system that serves those with wealth and subjugates those without. Indeed, most justice systems do not seek healing and restoration for the people affected by crime or for those who commit crimes. Too many social and political obstacles blocking our path to achieving equal justice and safety for all God's children exist, including:

- Misinformation and biased public perceptions of racial and ethnic minorities that justify excessively punitive policies;
- Inadequate public health systems that neglect serious mental illness and treatment for addictions;

- Limited assistance and social services for victims of crime, and for children living in poverty and those with incarcerated parents;

- Justice systems that measure success by increasing numbers of arrests, prosecutions and incarcerations over ensuring fair and impartial justice;

- Outdated public policies that equate crime reductions only with increased incarceration and longer sentences, and inadequately support rehabilitative programming; and

- Inferior or absent legal representation for defendants without financial means to hire counsel.

Crime Prevention and Criminal Proceedings

Communities plagued by high rates of violent and nonviolent crime need the attention of the Church and government to heal their pain. These communities are often disproportionately poor, disenfranchised and populated by racial and ethnic minority peoples. Sometimes victims have also committed crimes and support services are unavailable to them. The Church believes that all people have sacred worth, including those who commit crimes and those impacted by it, and deserve our attention and support in order to limit recidivism and the intergenerational cycle of crime.

Racial and ethnic profiling is never an acceptable law enforcement tool. Police and prosecutors must be trained to avoid its use even unconsciously. Special care must be exercised in the selection of persons who serve as police officers, prosecutors and court personnel. They should be persons who possess good judgment, sound discretion, and proper temperament.

Moreover, police encounters with people who break the law must not always end in arrest. In certain circumstances diversion to a mental-health or treatment provider, homeless shelter, or outreach to a parent in the case of a child are more effective strategies to combat criminal behavior, reduce costs to the criminal-justice system and avoid a stigmatizing arrest record.

These kinds of restorative-justice practices should be utilized within the community as a first response to criminal behavior.

Young people under the age of eighteen who commit a criminal offense should not be adjudicated within the adult criminal-justice system. A special diversion program and/or court system centered on family solutions to addressing youth behavior is most appropriate.

When the arrest of adults is warranted, criminal defendants should have access to appropriate legal representation even in circumstances when he or she cannot afford to pay for representation. Prosecutors and the court system should use utmost scrutiny in determining whether or not sufficient evidence exists to charge a defendant. De-isions about guilt or innocence are best decided by a jury of peers within a court of law. All trials and the sentencing of those convicted under criminal laws must be conducted in a public courtroom.

The United Methodist Church urges the following recommendations in the area of crime prevention and criminal proceedings:

Police departments publicly establish standards of police conduct and policies for promotion that incorporate training in peacekeeping, life-protecting, other service roles, and law enforcement. The standards must include strict limits on the deadly use of force;

The composition of police agencies should reflect the communities that they serve, including geographic residence, diversity in race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, etc.;

Law enforcement agencies should be held accountable by the communities they serve. We encourage churches to coordinate events with these agencies to allow for open dialogue with the community, and to safely air grievances and concerns to authorities in order to ensure a culture of trust and transparency;

Fair and adequate compensation for police officers, public defenders, prosecutors and other court and law-enforcement personnel should be provided to these valuable public servants;

Train judges of juvenile and criminal courts in the use of non-incarcerating community sanctions whenever the offense does not involve persistent violence;

Encourage local churches to set up court-monitoring panels to observe court operations and proceedings. Such panels may well adopt a role of friends of the court or of advocacy on behalf of accused persons and/or on behalf of crime victims. They may adopt other appropriate procedures in the interest of restorative justice, including close scrutiny of plea bargaining and/or evidence of unequal imposition of sentences;

Develop appropriate jury selection procedures that would ensure the most inclusive representation, including representatives of the socioeconomic class and ethnic group of the defendants and of the crime victims; and

Adoption by all courts of: (a) speedy trial provisions; and (b) a presumption that a person accused of a crime should be released on personal recognizance unless an evidentiary-based determination is made that personal recognizance will not reasonably assure future appearance or represents a risk of imminent physical harm to others. Financial bond should be used as a last resort. A monetary bond can create an undue burden on individuals accused of crimes who have limited financial means, and results in unnecessarily prolonged periods of pretrial detention.

Criminal Laws and Penalties

Persons convicted of criminal offenses should be subject to penalties proportional to the harm caused by the offense. In cases involving limited victim impact or no violence, opportunities to address wrong doing within a restorative-justice framework, and outside the criminal-justice system, are most appropriate. Penalty decisions must allow for consideration of a multitude of factors in the circumstances of a case, including but not limited to a defendant's age, intellectual capacity, mental and physical health, prior history of criminal behavior and/or victimization. Conversely, a defendant's race, ethnicity, religion, familial status, political affiliation, sexual orientation or economic status should not be considered in sentencing decisions.

Criminalization of personal behaviors or conditions perpetuates unfair racial disparity, class discrimination, stigmatization, and wastes resources needed for other purposes. Therefore, the Church supports the repeal of laws that criminalize personal conditions or behaviors. Examples include vagrancy, homelessness, personal gambling, public drunkenness, drug use, prostitution, and real or perceived sexual orientation or consensual sexual activity. Moreover, individuals forced or coerced into criminal behavior should not be criminalized. The Church also opposes extreme sentences, including the death penalty and life imprisonment with no consideration for release, particularly for people under the age of eighteen. These extreme sentences are inherently cruel and leave out any opportunities for redemption or rehabilitation among people who commit crime.

Penal codes should prescribe a range of penalty options for courts to consider at sentencing with an emphasis on utilizing non-incarceration community sanctions whenever consistent with community protection. Furthermore, court-determined sentences that consider the unique circumstances of each case are most appropriate, rather than mandatory sentences prescribed by policymakers unaffiliated or unfamiliar with the nuances of specific criminal proceedings.

Judges and juries issuing penalties should issue publicly accessible statements to the court detailing the reasons for selecting a particular penalty for a defendant. When fines are assessed, they should be scaled to the magnitude of the crime and the ability of a defendant to pay.

Governmentally regulated programs of compensation for reimbursement of financial loss incurred by victims of crime should be encouraged, particularly as an alternative to incarceration.

Conditions of Confinement

More than 10 million people are held in penal institutions throughout the world, according to data compiled in 2013. The Church is concerned for the health and well-being of all detained and incarcerated people. Those confined in institutions, regardless of the length of their mandated stay, have basic human rights that must be protected by administrators and government officials. All confinement facilities must provide:

- Safe and sanitary living conditions, which incorporate a zero tolerance in policy and practice for violence, including sexual violence, committed by staff or other incarcerated individuals, and a bar on solitary confinement except in extraordinary situations where the safety of an individual or individuals is in jeopardy and then only for the briefest time possible;

- Medical and mental health care treatment services that meet community standards;

- Nutritious foods;

- Opportunities for compensated employment, education, recreation, and other rehabilitative programming;

- Fair and responsive grievance systems;

- Regular access to family, friends, clergy, legal representation, and the media.

Exiting Incarceration

People leaving incarceration to return to their home communities require special assistance during their transition. Communities benefit if people leaving incarceration are successful in their reintegration and do not return to criminal behavior. Families may also need aid in preparing to welcome home loved ones, particularly children who disproportionately feel the burden of a parent's absence. The Church has a powerful role to play in the reentry process and should utilize its resources to ensure successful transitions for those leaving incarceration and the families and neighborhoods to which they return.

Discrimination against people with criminal records must not be tolerated. Stereotypes about people who have been incarcerated can result in unemployment and homelessness because of a desire to exclude people with criminal records from businesses and housing. Laws that forbid professional licenses to persons with a criminal record, regardless of the relevance of the person's criminal history to the occupation, should be repealed. In addition, persons who commit no new offenses after a short time deserve an opportunity to expunge or erase a criminal record permanently. Moreover, laws that exclude any persons with a criminal record from the normal benefits and rights of citizenship, including publicly financed income assistance and housing, student loans, and voting rights should be ended.

United Methodist churches are encouraged to build relationships with returning citizens in their communities and congregations. Healing Communities is a framework for ministry for United Methodist congregations to mobilize existing resources within the congregation for ministry with the families of those impacted by crime and the criminal-justice system. By fostering reciprocal relationships and removing stigma and shame within congregations, Healing Communities emphasizes that good theology is an engaged missiology. Healing Communities engage in ministry with those directly impacted by the criminal-justice system and their families, and mobilizes congregations to join in advocating for “the creation of a genuinely new system” (§ 164H).

We call upon the General Board of Church and Society to mobilize United Methodist churches to advocate for legislation that will eliminate racism and classism in the criminal-justice system, ensure equality, transparency and fairness and protect the human rights of all adults and children by:

- promoting equity and transparency in courts by instituting legal representation of equal quality, regardless of financial ability, and public scrutiny of decisions to pursue criminal charges, convictions and sentencing;

- reassessing incarceration guidelines and reducing sentences of incarceration of persons guilty of nonviolent crimes, and eliminating extreme sentences, including capital punishment and life imprisonment with no opportunity for parole;

- ensuring adequate government funding to support the prevention of crime, including anti-poverty measures, strong public-education systems and universal access to medical and mental-health care, services for victims of crime, services for incarcerated people and those leaving incarceration and their families;

- protecting children from the severity of the adult criminal-justice system, and ensuring the punishment of youths takes into full account the science of youth brain development and youths still immature impulse control and decision-making capacity;

- creating laws prohibiting discrimination against people with criminal records; and

- restoring voting rights for people with criminal records.

New resolution Criminal Justice contains strong biblical and theological foundations, and presents a comprehensive treatise including four other resolutions eventually to be deleted: Equal Justice, Grand Jury Abuse, Justice with Young Persons, and Opposition to Capital Punishment.

Petition Number: 60534-CA-R9999; Howe, Margaret - New Paltz, NY, USA for New York Annual Conference.

Racism and the Mass Incarceration of Persons of Color

WHEREAS, the United States imprisons more of its own people than any other country in the world (The Pew Trusts, “One in 100: Behind Bars in America 2008,” http://www.pewtrusts.org/~media/legacy/uploadedfiles/wwwpewtrustsorg/reports/sentencing_and_corrections/onein100pdf.pdf). While the U.S. comprises 5% of the total global population, it accounts for a staggering 25% of the world’s prison population (Suzanne M. Kirchoff, “Economic Impacts of Prison Growth,” Congressional Research Service, April 13, 2010, <http://www.fas.org/sgp/crs/misc/R41177.pdf>; U.S. Department of Justice, Bureau of Justice Statistics, <http://www.bjs.gov/index.cfm?ty=tp&tid=132>. U.S. Census Bureau), and

WHEREAS, the U.S. prison population is not representative of the nation’s population as a whole. For instance, while African-American males comprise only 13.2% of the U.S. population (U.S. Census Bureau, 2013, <<http://quickfacts.census.gov/qfd/states/00000.html>>), they make up 37% of those in prison (E. Ann Carson, “Prisoners in 2013,” BJS Bulletin, United States Department of Justice Bureau of Justice Statistics, September 2014, <http://www.bjs.gov/content/pub/pdf/p13.pdf>, U.S. Census Bureau). Almost 3% of black males of all ages were imprisoned in 2013, compared to 0.5% of white males (E. Ann Carson, <http://www.bjs.gov/content/pub/pdf/p13.pdf>); simple math therefore tells us that an African-American male is six (6) times more likely to be imprisoned than a white male. While one in 30 men between the ages of 20 and 34 is behind bars, for black males in that age group the figure is one in nine (The Pew Trusts, “One in 100: Behind Bars in America 2008,” http://www.pewtrusts.org/~media/legacy/uploadedfiles/wwwpewtrustsorg/reports/sentencing_and_corrections/onein100pdf.pdf). The imprisonment rate for black females is twice the rate of white females. (E. Ann Carson, <<http://www.bjs.gov/content/pub/pdf/p13.pdf>>). As Adam Gopnik pointed out in a January 30, 2012 issue of The New Yorker:

Mass incarceration on a scale almost unexampled in human history is a fundamental fact of our country today—perhaps the fundamental fact, as slavery was the fundamental fact of 1850. In truth, there are more black men in the grip of the criminal justice system—in prison, on probation, or on parole—than were in slavery then. Over all, there are now more people under “correctional supervision” in America—more than six million—than were in the Gulag Archipelago under Stalin at its height. (“The Caging of America,” Adam Gopnik, The New Yorker Magazine, January 30, 2012, <http://www.newyorker.com/magazine/2012/01/30/the-caging-of-america>.)

Hispanics comprise 17% of the U.S. general population, yet 22% of the U.S. prison population (U.S. Census Bureau, <http://quickfacts.census.gov/qfd/states/00000.html>; E. Ann Carson, <<http://www.bjs.gov/content/pub/pdf/p13.pdf>>). One in every 106 white males age 18 or older is incarcerated. One in every 36 Hispanic males age 18 or older is incarcerated. One in every 15 black males age 18 or older is incarcerated (The Pew Trusts, “One in 100: Behind Bars in America 2008,” http://www.pewtrusts.org/~media/legacy/uploadedfiles/wwwpewtrustsorg/reports/sentencing_and_corrections/onein100pdf.pdf). The incarceration rate of Native Americans is 38% higher than the national rate. Law enforcement agents arrest Native Americans and Alaskan Natives at twice the rate of the greater U.S. population for violent and property crimes. On average, Native Americans receive longer sentences than non-Native Americans for crimes. They also tend to serve longer time in prison for their sentences than non-Native Americans (The Death Penalty Information Center, <<http://www.deathpenaltyinfo.org/native-americans-and-death-penalty>>), and

WHEREAS, when Jesus returned to Nazareth near the beginning of his ministry, he read from the scroll of the prophet Isaiah:

The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, / because the Lord has anointed me. / He has sent me to preach good news to the poor, / to proclaim release to the prisoners / and recovery of sight to the blind, / to liberate the oppressed (Luke 4:18), and

WHEREAS, the prophet Isaiah likewise spoke out:

Doom to those who pronounce wicked decrees, / and keep writing harmful laws / to deprive the needy of their rights / and to rob the poor among my people of justice . . . (Isaiah 10:1-2a), and

WHEREAS, the apostle Paul wrote in his First Letter to the Corinthians:

Christ is just like the human body—a body is a unit and has many parts; and all the parts of the body are one body, even though there are many. We were all baptized by one Spirit into one body, whether Jew or Greeks, slave or free, and we all were given one Spirit to drink. Certainly the body isn’t one part but many. . . . God has put the body together . . . so that there won’t be division in the body, and so the parts might have mutual concern for each another. If one part suffers, all the parts suffer with it. . . . (1 Corinthians 12: 12-26), and

WHEREAS, as Christians who claim the teachings of the Hebrew and Christian Testaments, the Prophets and the Gospels, we are responsible for speaking and acting prophetically when the laws of the land are not just or fair to all communities, and

WHEREAS, as Christians we are responsible for proclaiming release to the prisoners and to liberate the oppressed . . ., and

WHEREAS, our system of mass incarceration of persons of color represents a system of wicked decrees and harmful laws that deprive the needy of their rights and rob the poor . . . of justice . . .;

Therefore, be it resolved, that the 2016 General Conference of The United Methodist Church identify and recognize the mass incarceration of persons of color in the United States as an international civil and human rights crisis on a massive scale, and

Be it further resolved, that the 2016 General Conference of The United Methodist Church reaffirms its commitment to speak and act prophetically to dismantle the growing prison industrial complex in the United States, and

Be it further resolved, to turn this tide of institutional racism by mass incarceration in the United States, that the Restorative Justice Ministries Committee of The United Methodist Church (Resolution #5034, Mission Plan for Restorative Justice Ministries, 2012 Book of Resolutions) work to develop and implement plans to dismantle the unjust and oppressive laws that lead to mass incarceration of persons of color as follows:

- That the General Board of Church and Society continue to advocate for a criminal justice system that is not racist, advocate for less punitive sentences for nonviolent and drug-related offenses and develop a comprehensive strategy for dismantling the currently racist criminal justice and mass-incarceration systems, and

- That the General Board of Discipleship develop and implement a curriculum of study grounded in Scripture, tradition, reason, and experience that equips local congregations to understand the institutional racism embedded in our criminal justice system and prison-industrial complex and to advocate to dismantle it, and

- That the General Board of Global Ministries work with the General Board of Church and Society in the implementation of the “Healing Communities” mission and social justice program to work with those incarcerated to reenter society and reduce recidivism.

Eating Habits

WHEREAS, The United Methodist Church's four areas of focus for 2009-12 include "engaging in ministry with the poor" and "improving global health", and

WHEREAS, United Methodist employees are engaged in the Virgin HealthMiles program that encourages healthy habits, and

WHEREAS, many health problems are brought on by poor food choices and eating habits, and

WHEREAS, poor health requires a greater investment of time and money in medical care, leaving less time and money for ministry, and

WHEREAS, the increased cost of food-related health care problems ultimately results in a greater cost to local churches and conferences, and

WHEREAS, we United Methodists have inherited a strong legacy of ministries connecting food, health, social justice, and economic justice,

Therefore, be it resolved, that United Methodists intentionally and continually examine their purchasing and eating habits in light of their own health and the social and economic well-being of others.

Be it further resolved, that we make positive changes based on our findings and become advocates, in our churches and communities, for food purchases and eating habits that are beneficial, and do no harm, to consumer and producer alike.

Extractive Industries

WHEREAS, extractive industries brings with them a complexity of impacts: economic, environmental, property values, health, traffic, road conditions, and relationships among members of the community, and

WHEREAS, United Methodists uphold the Bible, which states, "The earth is the LORD's and the everything in it, / the world and its inhabitants too" (Psalm 24:1-2), and contains the Golden Rule, "Therefore, you should treat people in the same way that you want people to treat you; this is the Law and the Prophets" (Matthew 7:12), and

WHEREAS, the United Methodist Social Principles address our stewardship of water, air, soil, minerals, plants (§ 160.A), energy resources utilization (§ 160.B), and global climate stewardship (§ 160.D), and contain statements on rural life (§ 162.P), sustainable agriculture (§ 162.Q) and the many facets of the economic community (§ 163), including property (§ 163.A), consumption (§ 163.D), family farms (§ 163.H) and corporate responsibility (§ 163.I).

Therefore, be it resolved, that United Methodists become familiar with the contents of the Social Principles outlined above.

Be it further resolved, that United Methodists be intentional in engaging their faith principles, respectfully and constructively, in conversations and decisions about extractive industries in their churches and communities.

WHEREAS, in 2009 our Council of Bishops published God's Renewed Creation: A Call to Hope and Action, and

WHEREAS, United Methodist Women recently initiated their "Be Just. Be Green" program (<http://www.unitedmethodistwomen.org/environment>), and

WHEREAS, our General Board of Church and Society promotes Economic and Environmental Justice, and

WHEREAS, studies are increasingly showing that styrene and benzene do leach into foods and beverages, and

WHEREAS, producing polystyrene pollutes surrounding air, land, water, and communities, and

WHEREAS, Styrofoam continues to amass in landfills and oceans,

Therefore, be it resolved, that United Methodist leaders encourage alternatives to using Styrofoam as food and beverages containers in their local churches.

Employment and Criminal History

Add new resolution:

1. We commend the states, municipalities, and private employers who have eliminated questions about past criminal history from their initial job applications in order to provide all job applicants an opportunity to be considered on the basis of their qualifications for a specific job.

2. We call upon our local, state, and federal legislators in jurisdictions that continue to include questions about criminal history in initial job applications to enact legislation banning such questions from the initial job applications for public and private employment so that questions about criminal history or conduct of a criminal background check can be deferred until after an applicant has been selected for an interview, given a conditional offer of employment or otherwise found qualified for a specific job.

3. We urge private employers who include questions about criminal history in their job applications to take the initiative and follow the example of other private employers who have already banned the box from their employment applications.

4. We urge our clergy and lay members in jurisdictions where public and private employers include questions about criminal history in their job applications to contact their local, state, and federal legislators, urging support of a ban-the-box policy for those jurisdictions.

5. We call upon the General Board of Church and Society to join with other like-minded groups in a campaign to ban the box in all local, state and federal jurisdictions.

Rationale:

In most states the majority of ex-offenders find it almost impossible to obtain gainful employment because questions about criminal history in initial job applications tend to eliminate them from consideration. This resolution calls for deferment of questions about criminal history until applicants otherwise qualified are called for an interview. The . . .

Tax Fairness

Be it therefore resolved that in view of the principle of “leveling the playing ground” for all taxpayers so that everyone will be responsible for their fair share of taxes and uphold the common good, The United Methodist Church:

1. Calls upon our federal and state governments to reform our tax system by:

(a) Implementing a more progressive individual income tax under which the share of income paid by the rich for all taxes will be at least equal to the share of income for all taxes paid by the poor.

(b) Raising the cap on payment into Social Security so that contributions as a proportion of income by high income persons will be similar to the proportion of income contributed by low income workers.

(c) Closing corporate loopholes by imposing a tax on global income to remove incentives for firms to move to low-tax jurisdictions (with credit for any tax paid in other jurisdictions), blocking the use of tax havens, and providing incentives in the form of lower taxes for firms that invest and create jobs in the U.S.

(d) Taxing returns on capital at the same rate as for earned income, thereby removing the current unjust practice of taxing those who work hard to earn a living at higher rates than those who derive their income primarily from speculation, dividends, and capital gains.

(e) Creation of a financial transaction tax that will help to reduce volatility in the financial system and raise significant revenue, while affecting primarily the richest 10 percent.

(f) Reduce or eliminate corporate welfare such as “bailouts,” which primarily benefit those already wealthy, and agricultural subsidies that primarily benefit large agro-businesses (corporations).

(g) Reduce or eliminate exemptions in federal inheritance and estate tax laws, and reinstate the estate tax in jurisdictions in which it has been rescinded.

2. Encourages our clergy and lay members to join in this justice mission by contacting their congressional and state legislators, urging implementation of point #1 above.

Rationale:

Through major disparities and loopholes in tax policies, the wealthy elite and large corporations pay significantly less than their fair share of taxes. This forces disproportionate taxes on the poor and middle class to fund federal and state budgets. This resolution proposes seven principles for tax reform to promote tax . . .

Principle of Religious Freedom

Add New Resolution as follows:

WHEREAS, as people of faith seeking to love neighbors as ourselves, as citizens supporting liberty and justice for all, and as United Methodists called to lead by example, we must carefully weigh how our behavior affects the welfare of all people; and

WHEREAS, we hold religious freedom as a core value; and

WHEREAS, religious freedom guarantees that no religion shall receive preferential treatment or power to oppress those who hold different beliefs; and

WHEREAS, laws or actions that discriminate or harm are not expressions of “religious freedom.”

WHEREAS, our commitment to religious freedom leads us to challenge any secular or religious claim to the right to impose one religious way onto others by political, economic, or military force; and

WHEREAS, when any religion is used to justify discrimination, violence, or hateful attacks on others, God mourns and calls us all to repentance and to seek an end to such violence; and

WHEREAS, any policies or actions of nonprofit or religious organizations, private or corporate business, or any government entity that misuses the principle of religious freedom in ways that would do harm by denying anyone services, honor, dignity, equal rights, or equal protection is both unjust and inconsistent with Jesus’ teaching and example; and

WHEREAS, love does not allow a neighbor to continue doing harm even in the name of religion. Love does not condone silence in the face of the repression of anyone’s religion, and love does not condone silence in the face of discrimination against others in the name of religious freedom. We take the words of Paul to heart: “If one member suffers, all suffer together with it” (1 Corinthians 12:26). We are called to speak out whenever religious freedom is denied, and whenever religious freedom is used to oppress. We speak out in a spirit of prophetic love and respect for all humankind.

Therefore, The United Methodist Church, its agencies, institutions and members are called to:

1. Honor, respect, and advocate for religious freedom for all faith communities.

2. To seek and create opportunities to study and participate in interfaith sharing and listening as expressions of our love for all.

3. Urge all governments to respect the right of religious freedom in their laws and practices; and to welcome diverse religious expressions in service to the common good.

4. Challenge the policies and actions of non-profit and religious organizations, private or corporate businesses, and government entities that misuse the principle of religious freedom in ways that do harm by denying services, honor, dignity, equal rights, or equal protection to anyone.

5. Extend the compassionate ministry of the church to persons who suffer when either religious or governmental authorities seek to deny these rights.

Evolutionary Scientific Thinking

WHEREAS, the General Conference of The United Methodist Church in 2008 was courageous to rethink and approve three resolutions on evolution, we would affirm that finally after many years, Christians are moving on to recognize the facts of evolutionary thinking and many of the issues of science that help to understand our makeup as humans, organisms, DNA, and advances in medical technology, just as we are doing with the power of communication over the last hundred years. Yes, now we are willing to grapple with our faith and with new knowledge in our new age even while there are deeply sincere Christians and United Methodists who have trouble with this scientific and evolving life phenomena. Granted, there are people who want to insist on taking their sacred Scripture literally (as if God literally wrote or dictated the words), and they are not willing to deal with the reality that there is new knowledge (God given) and understandings coming to us now even as people two thousand years ago saw Jesus, a Jew, with new knowledge as he challenged the Pharisees and others. And Christians who followed this Jewish man, also saw the need to constantly reinterpret and update their thinking and theology. And we in The United Methodist Church see the need every four years to grapple with issues, theology, and things that need changing in the life of church claims and intentions. Given this, there are many positions and interpretations in our faith journey that we can agree on—essential truths—that we would say should remain unchanged; but, at the same given time we still struggle with new insights given by the God Spirit causing us to rethink again.

On February 12, 2012, in celebration of Evolution Sunday, 45 people gathered at Metropolitan Memorial UMC in Washington, DC, to hear about the private specimen collection of Alfred Russel Wallace. The collection was discovered 30 years ago by Robert Heggstad, then a young lawyer, when he purchased a chest of drawers in 1979 for $600 at an antique shop in Arlington, VA. The collection has been authenticated and now is in the possession of the Smithsonian. Wallace, while in the field in Malaysia, sent his letter to Darwin outlining the theory of evolution by natural selection, which was presented to the Linnaean Society in London in 1858 along with Darwin’s paper—and the rest is history. Heggstad provided poster-size photographs of many of the beetles, butterflies, spiders, and shells found in this priceless collection. You can get a sense of the collection by viewing the video produced by the National Science Foundation called “Cabinet of Wonders: Personal Collection of Alfred Russel Wallace.”

The issues of evolution, in regard to the controversies of science and specifically the reality of billions of years of human or cosmos development of biological and cultural evolution, we would now be bound to attempt to integrate and interact with these evolutionary realities of what it means to be a contemporary church that does not shrink from dealing, not only with our pre-scientific thinking, but also with how the stories of faith can be told with honesty and with a sense of religious literacy and how the realities of scientific thinking come into play as we deal with our non-scientific stories (six creation stories—Genesis 1:1- 2:4a, Genesis 2:4b-3:24, Psalm 8, Proverbs 8: 22f, John 1:1-14, and 1 John 1:1–4) and reconcile them (the whole biblical record and our two to three thousand years of theology) with our evolutionary rethinking (language use and God-given DNA) in our efforts in the twenty-first century to convey our marvelous evolution and also to be and make disciples as well as transform our world with more than 7 billion people.

Therefore, as a church that talks and grapples with wanting to grow and reach out to young adults who find themselves leaving or not being a part of the church (because of archaic thinking) and we wanting to be vital and relevant congregations, let us take the time now to make the commitment to the Great Mystery of our evolving life to make our more than 32,000-plus churches “open” to the God of evolution who is wooing us to change our language and to do the necessary rethinking and teaching that would relate evolutionary science and the evolving of religious and spiritual understanding in a holistic way.

This means that we will make evolutionary science and thinking a priority in our efforts to convey and teach our faith history and in our effort to educate, writing church school literature, and in our efforts to relate wisdom in our colleges and seminaries. We will also give great consideration to how in the face of contemporary thinking and science we will be open to learn and understand the vastness of this God-created world/universe. This rethinking will mean not throwing out the old ideas and concepts but seeing them in a new light giving the journey of wisdom and critical thinking new possibilities.

Rationale:

To make evolutionary scientific realities of our life and knowledge a part of The United Methodist Church by rethinking and implementing “evolutionary scientific thinking” into our worship experience, our theological language, teaching, our songs and life experience in accordance with the Book of Discipline Resolution number or ¶ 160.

Freedom of Conscience and Religion

Freedom of Conscience and Religion

Methodism has been enormously blessed by religious liberty, which allowed John Wesley and his followers to proclaim the gospel freely, outside the state church, often outdoors, to larger numbers of persons not typically exposed to organized faith. When attacked by angry mobs, Wesley appealed to the magistrates, citing their nation’s protection for freedom of speech and religion. Early American Methodism similarly benefitted from constitutional protections for speech, religion, and association, with Francis Asbury and other circuit writers, with their followers, freely preaching, meeting, organizing, and living out their faith under protection of law.

Freedom of speech, of association and religion is rooted in the intrinsic dignity assigned to every human person, created in God’s image, dating to Creation. God has given to each person a mind, conscience, and will to determine his or her own beliefs. Each person has the choice how or whether to heed the gospel. The God of Christianity does not compel belief or practice, and the church of Jesus Christ is a voluntary association, abjuring coercion, and opposing coercion by others, especially by the uniquely coercive powers of the state.

Religious freedom, with liberty of speech and association, is desirable for the gospel and any human community fully to thrive, and primarily entails immunity from coercion in civil society. The truth of the gospel and any other belief system can or should prevail only by its own persuasive power on the human mind and conscience.

Essential freedoms of belief and practice require that all persons be protected from coercion from other persons, groups or any human power so that no persons are forced to act contrary to their beliefs, privately or publicly, individually or in association, within due limits. These freedoms attach to all persons, based on their status as image bearers of God, as described by Scripture and confirmed by human reason and historic church teaching, fulfilled in the person of Jesus Christ. We affirm that these liberties should be protected by civil law in every society and should be regarded as civil rights.

Persons cannot fully pursue the truth, including above all the gospel, unless they enjoy immunity from external coercion. The right to religious freedom is not subjective to the person but rooted in God-given human identity. This exercise of religious and other conscience rights must not be impeded, if in accordance with just public order.

We affirm freedom of speech, association, and freedom knowing that God orders, directs, and governs the entire universe and all the ways of the human community with wisdom and love. Humanity was created to participate in this law, under God's gentle guidance, so that each person can perceive ever more fully the truth.

All persons are bound to follow conscience so they may respond to God's grace, which is the ultimate end and purpose of life. No person should be forced to act contrary to conscience, especially in religion, which includes internal, voluntary, and free acts regarding each person's relationship with God. No human power can either command or prohibit acts interfering in this relationship between God and humanity. The social nature of humanity and religion requires external expression to his internal acts of belief and faith, including sharing faith with others and professing religion in community. Injury is done to persons and to God's design for human life if the free exercise of religion is denied or limited in society beyond the absolute necessity of just public order.

Governments should respect religious life as part of the common welfare. To command or inhibit religious acts would transgress the limits of its rightful power. Freedom from coercion in religion belongs to individuals and to religious communities, which rightfully may govern themselves according to their own beliefs, including advocacy of their doctrine, selection of leadership, public worship, purchasing and maintaining property among others assets, educating adherents, speaking to public life, exercising the rights of citizenship inside or outside government, and promoting institutions in accordance with their faith.

The right to freedom of speech, association and religion devolves upon the whole citizenry, upon social groups, upon government, and upon churches and other religious communities, in common pursuit of the general welfare. Protecting inviolable conscience rights ranks among the essential duties of government, enacted through just laws applicable equally to all, without discrimination. It is a grievous wrong for any government to impose the profession or repudiation of any religion. Individuals and groups, in practicing their own beliefs, should respect the rights of others, with justice and civility. Religious freedom, rightly upheld and practiced, will foster greater community.

Freedom of speech, association, and religion in society for all persons is consistent with the freedom of the act of Christian faith and the dignity that God accords to each person. The principle of religious freedom helps create an environment in which persons can without hindrance be invited to the Christian faith, embrace it of their own free will, and profess it effectively in their whole manner of life. God calls persons to serve him in spirit and in truth, bound in conscience but under no compulsion. God respects the dignity of all persons whom he himself created, and he desires that all persons be guided by their own judgment and enjoy freedom. This truth appears supremely in Jesus Christ, in whom God manifested himself and his ways with all persons, issuing the invitation, "Come, whosoever will."

As the church of Jesus Christ, we pray for domestic order and human flourishing among all peoples in every nation, including respect for freedom of speech, association, and religion. We, as United Methodists, pledge to pray and advocate on behalf of all persons, especially of the household of faith, who are denied these liberties by governments or other actors. Our commitment to social justice, human dignity, the common good, and the freedom of the gospel, as counseled by Scripture, compel us vigorously and prayerfully to uphold liberty of speech, association, and religion for all persons at all times and places.

Justice, War and Defending the Innocent

The just war tradition was born in the Middle Ages as a way of thinking about the use of military force as a manifestation of sovereign responsibility. Emerging from the philosophical patrimony of both ancient Israel and the Greco-Roman worlds, the most significant early Christian expression of just war theory originated in Augustine of Hippo. From there it took on a more systematic character only some 800 years later with Gratian's twelfth-century Decretum; following this, it attained theological maturity through Thomas Aquinas in the thirteenth century; and then, deeper still into the Middle Ages, it was enhanced by the influence of the ideas and practices of the chivalric code and Roman law, and through continued reflection on the experience and theory of war and government. John Wesley did not write specifically about the just war tradition, but operated within its premises, acknowledging the ordained duties of his sovereign to use force within a moral framework.

For the thinkers in its classic form, the just war tradition is grounded in a verse from the thirteenth chapter of the letter to the Roman church: "For [the sovereign ruler] is God's minister to you for good. But if you do evil, be afraid; for he does not bear the sword in vain. He is God's minister, an avenger to execute wrath on him that does evil." Paul's emphasis on the good of government helps signal the just war tradition as essentially eudaemonist—that is, it promotes genuine human flourishing. It accomplishes this through fidelity to the fundamental Christian duty of neighbor love. This principle norm makes a universal anthropological assertion: All human beings, including our enemies, are right objects of love. This is because in the biblical view every human individual is made in the image of God and has a particular call to exercise dominion and participate in the care, and salvation, of the world. From this universal assertion that every human being enjoys equal dignity there issues a consequent universal command: All human beings are to love every other.

The way in which just war promotes the love and flourishing of the neighbor under assault should be quite clear. In order to flourish through properly responding to our created call, human beings need to enjoy those goods that make any such response possible. Most basically, of course, this includes the good of life. Because of this, the primary good for which government exercises responsibility is the provision of basic security characterized by order, justice, and peace without which no degree of human flourishing, including life, can long persevere. These goods correspond directly to the three conditions necessary for a just resort to force: sovereign authority, only the one with final responsibility for the political community has the duty to declare war; just cause, reclamation of what has been wrongly taken, and punishment of evil; and right intention, the achievement of real peace. The just war tradition insists that a nation's concern extends beyond narrow national interests to include intervention and rescue of the oppressed. In fact, the just war tradition insists that it is in national interests to rescue the oppressed. Virtue is a national treasure.

But the exercise of love is good not only for the object of one's love. The command to love is good, as well, for the one commanded. It is good for us to love our neighbor. One way the just war tradition promotes the flourishing of the just warrior is by assisting in the acquisition of virtue. It is good, genuinely good, to grow in such things as benevolence, courage, justice, mercy, and charity—characterized by other-centered acts of self-donation. This is true even if it should cost one everything, because the Christian has the gospel promise that the faithful will be recovered from death. Meanwhile, the virtues cultivate in the virtuous soul a taste for the character of heaven, even in the sometimes-seeming-hell of war. These virtues promote in the just warrior a disposition toward the just prosecution of war, characterized chiefly by a regard for discrimination—the recognition that we wage war not against all the members of an adversary nation but only against the combatants who remain a martial threat; and by proportionality—the use of force limited to that required to end the martial threat.

But what of the enemy neighbor? Can the just warrior both love and work toward the flourishing of the enemy-neighbor? According to the just war tradition, he can. One way he can is through individual participation in the right intention of the sovereign's resort to force in the first place. First, the just warrior avoids those things that are evil in war: the desire for cruel harm, lust for vengeance, an unruly and implacable hatred, the desire to dominate others, and the like. Second, the just warrior seeks to help allow for those conditions that permit for the restoration of peaceful relations and, ultimately, reconciliation. Finally, if human flourishing is achieved by responding appropriately to the divine call to participate in the care of the world, to prevent an enemy from doing evil is to restrain them from committing deep, perhaps indelible harms to their own souls and to dull their own taste for heaven.

Without question, all of this is greatly difficult, made harder by the fact of sin. The just war tradition sets limits to when and how we fight in order to help guard against such errors as believing ourselves to be involved in simple Manichean binaries of good versus evil. It remains a temptation in just war judgments to allow a just cause to become a crusade. The just war tradition is characterized by humility. We are responsible in history for what we do and how we respond to what others do. But our responsibility for history is more limited. While we share in God's providence by, ourselves, exercising a limited sort of provident care, what we can achieve is always only approximate. We need not strive for perfect peace, perfect justice, and perfect order. They are beyond our grasp regardless. But the just war tradition insists we have a role to play is setting or allowing to be set those conditions that allow for the cultivation in history of either hells on earth or for bearable living, even flourishing.

We commend to all United Methodists further reflection on the historic just war tradition.

Prerequisites for Peace in Judea and Samaria

PREREQUISITES FOR PEACE IN JUDEA AND SAMARIA

Be it resolved, that this General Conference of The United Methodist Church calls for the Arabs under the Palestinian Authority governance to acknowledge the existence of the state of Israel and of its right to exist.

Further, we call for the Palestinian Authority to prohibit the indoctrination of children toward anti-Semitism through television programming, classroom curriculum and instruction, and all other forms of institutional indoctrination of such character.

Additionally, the financial institutions of The United Methodist Church are prohibited from any economic apartheid or divestiture between the Jewish state and the Arabs under the Palestinian Authority.

Housing for Persons on the Margins

New resolution addressing housing shortage for persons on the margins

WHEREAS, Moses led the Hebrews to freedom from slavery, and Jesus fed the hungry, healed the sick, welcomed the outcast and raised people from disability and death, and

WHEREAS, The United Methodist Book of Discipline describes the responsibility of the Church to help the poor and helpless, and

WHEREAS, 45 million persons are homeless in the United States at this time, and that includes only those who can be counted, and

WHEREAS, the divide economically is so great that the hope for working hard and becoming secure financially is nearly impossible, and

WHEREAS, the housing efforts of the last thirty years have increased the size of the ghettos, and available houses are large, gated on large lots making them too costly for the working class and the disabled.

Therefore, be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church is called to address the issue of poverty and homelessness at this time by advocating for changes and flexibility in the zoning codes to permit smaller lot sizes, smaller housing units, mixed use of neighborhoods to include housing, business, food stores, employment transportation, and

Therefore, be it also resolved, that churches work together to seek to create homes to fit the incomes of veterans, disabled, group living, singles, one-parent families, immigrants, refugees, families, seniors who do not have increasing incomes and youths seeking employment, and

Therefore, be it also resolved, that empty buildings and churches, vacant shopping centers and strip malls, garages, attics, basements, and accessory apartments within larger homes may be made into living units by adding plumbing, insulation, heating with reasonable inspections, and

Therefore, be it also resolved, that individuals and churches will advocate for greater funding from the government and social agencies for service to meet the mental, social and physical need of those currently being under-served.

So that all will be welcome into God's creation with love, friendship, and joy.

Rationale:

The United Methodist Church could be the leader of all those of goodwill in the U.S. who see the need for inexpensive, safe housing in every community. There is no excuse for homelessness except lack of leadership to share resources and care for everyone in need.

Proposed Amendments to the Book of Discipline

¶161.

Petition Number: 60114-CB-¶161-G; Hawkins, Erin M. - Washington, DC, USA for General Commission on Religion and Race.

Culture and Identity

Add new sub-paragraph to ¶ 161. II The Nurturing Community

Culture and Identity

We believe that our primary identity is as children of God. With that identity comes societal and cultural constructions that have both positive and negative impacts on humanity and the Church. Cultural identity evolves through our history, traditions and experiences. The Church seeks to fully embrace and nurture cultural formation and competency as a means to be fully one body, expressed in multiple ways. Each of us has multiple identities of equal value that intersect to form our complete self. We affirm that no identity or culture has more legitimacy than any other. We call the Church to challenge any hierarchy of cultures or identities. Through relationships within and among cultures we are called to and have the responsibility for learning from each other, showing mutual respect for our differences and similarities as we experience the diversity of perspectives and viewpoints.

Rationale:

Human diversity is a reflection of God. Through relationships and engagements with different cultures, we learn from each other. The Church seeks to fully embrace and nurture cultural formation and competency as a means to be fully one body, expressed in multiple ways.

Petition Number: 60164-CB-¶161-G; Hare, Dawn Wiggins - Chicago, IL, USA for General Commission on the Status and Role of Women.

Pornography

Add new Social Principle to ¶ 161 Book of Discipline
Scripture teaches that humans are created in God's image and that we are accountable to God through right relationship. Sexual images can celebrate the goodness of human sexuality through positive depiction in art, literature, and education. We deplore, however, images that distort this goodness and injure healthy sexual relationships.

We oppose all forms of pornography and consider its use a form of sexual misconduct. Pornography is sexually explicit material that portrays violence, abuse, coercion, domination, humiliation, or degradation for the purpose of sexual arousal. Pornography sexually exploits and objectifies both women and men. Any sexually explicit material that depicts children is abhorrent and victimizes children. Pornography can ruin lives, careers, and relationships.

The Church is called to transformation and healing for all persons adversely affected by pornography. Congregations should send a clear message of opposition to pornography and commitment to safe environments for everyone. We encourage strategies to eradicate pornography, to support victims, and to provide open and transparent conversation and education around sexuality and sexual ethics. We also believe that people can be rehabilitated and should have the opportunity to receive treatment; therefore, churches should seek ways to offer support and care for addressing issues of addiction. By encouraging education, prevention, and pathways to recovery for all affected by pornography, we live out our Wesleyan understanding of grace and healing.

Rationale:

Considering the pervasiveness of pornography, it is important that the Church address the harm that pornography use can cause to individuals, families, and communities. Pornography is notoriously difficult to define, so we must define what it is about pornography that we find objectionable: violence, abuse, coercion, domination, humiliation, and degradation.

Bullying

Add the following new sub-paragraph to ¶ 161
p) Bullying—Bullying is wrong. We believe in nurturing all people and treating others with love and respect. We affirm the right of all people regardless of gender, socioeconomic status, race, religion, disability, age, sexual orientation, and gender identity to be free of unwanted aggressive behavior and harmful control tactics. We recognize that victims of bullying can be of any age, of any gender, etc. We will support victims of bullying by intervention, referral to professionals, and emotional and spiritual support. With the understanding that bullies are created not born, we will be diligent in offering intervention, education, and referral to professionals, emotional and spiritual support to those who have become the bully.

Rationale:

Our General Rules require that we do no harm, do good and stay in love with God (§104). We are doing great harm and failing to do good by allowing bullying in any form to continue unchecked. We are not demonstrating our love of God or our neighbor.

Petition Number: 60682-CB-¶161-G; Lawrence, Jan - Oakton, VA, USA.

Bullying

Add ¶ 161.Z (or the next available alpha):

¶ 161.Z Bullying

Bullying is a growing problem in parts of the connection. It is a contributing factor in suicide and in the violence we see in some cultures today. As the Church, we can play a pivotal role in ending this problem. We urge churches to seek opportunities to be trained in responding to the needs of those who have been bullied, to those who perpetrate bullying, and to support those in authority who may witness or be called to intervene on behalf of those who have been bullied. Churches are urged to connect with community associations and schools in this outreach.

Churches are also urged to: (a) adopt a zero-tolerance policy for bullying within their sphere of influence; (b) publicize this position through the use of their websites, e-mails, printed materials, and verbal announcements, with an emphasis on church youth programs; (c) stand with anyone or any group being bullied or used as a scapegoat; (d) support teachers, parents, and youth who may suffer, witness, or intervene to stop acts of bullying; and (e) take a leadership role in working with community leaders to prevent bullying.

Rationale:

The mission of the Church is to protect “the least of these.” that includes those who have been bullied for any reason. As the Church we could have a direct impact on both suicides related to being bullied and on those who bully others because of how they have been treated.

Rationale:

This paragraph acknowledges that many families do not consist of parents and children. Replacing “parents” with “adults” affirms the family unit of the many children being raised by adults other than parents (grandparents, etc.). Using “also” makes different types of families appear less valuable than the parent/child family unit.

We reject social norms that assume different standards for different sexes ~~women than for men~~ in marriage. ~~We support laws in civil society that define marriage as the union of one man and one woman.~~

Rationale:

Rationale:

The sanctity of marriage is rooted in love, mutual support, personal commitment, and shared fidelity. Sanctity of marriage is in no way tied to the sex of the marriage partners. All committed couples should have equal access to services of Christian marriage officiated by their pastors, held in their sanctuaries.

We encourage churches in conferences where homosexuality is a criminal offense to offer support to individuals and families impacted by those laws and to stand in opposition to persecution of individuals or those who love them. We implore families and churches not to reject or condemn lesbian and gay members and friends. We commit ourselves to be in ministry for and with all persons.

Rationale:

The definition of family has evolved over the history of humankind. Our role as the church is to nurture and support those families, even when some struggle to accept the evolving definition. This version deletes all language condemning homosexuality, creating equality for all families and individuals within the Methodist connection.

All persons need the ministry of the Church in their struggles for human fulfillment, as well as the spiritual and emotional care of a fellowship that enables reconciling relationships with God, with others, and with self. ~~The United Methodist church does not condone the practice of homosexuality and considers this practice incompatible with Christian teaching. We affirm that sexuality is God's good gift to all persons. We call everyone to responsible stewardship of this sacred gift.

Although all persons are sexual beings whether or not they are married, most Christian churches through history have affirmed sexual relations are affirmed only within the covenant of monogamous, heterosexual marriage. A growing number of Christians affirm both monogamous heterosexual and monogamous same-sex marriage. We recognize that many faithful Christians disagree, and we commit to disagree with respect and love.

We deplore all forms of the commercialization, abuse, and exploitation of sex. Rationale:

The current language is unnecessarily harsh and narrow. It hinders our mission to make disciples for the transformation of the world and makes us sound like ogres. By the design of God, human sexuality is a gift intended to bless the lives of all those who are created in the image of God. The gift of our sexuality, however, is one that requires careful stewardship and exercise. In our historic understanding of the Scriptures, sexual relations are to be affirmed only when practiced within the legal and spiritual covenant of a loving and monogamous marriage between one man and one woman.

We reject all expressions of sexual behavior that do not recognize the sacred worth of each individual, or that seek to exploit, abuse, objectify, or degrade others, particularly any who may be unable to defend themselves. We similarly grieve at the destructive impact of promiscuity, infidelity, bigamy, multiple or serial marriages, pornography, human trafficking, and all attempts to commercialize the gift of human sexuality within our societies.

We affirm that God's grace is available to all and we commit ourselves to be in ministry for and with all persons. Toward that end, we similarly exhort those within our families and churches not to reject or condemn any individuals based upon their gender, sexual identity or orientation, and we call upon our congregations to be welcoming to every individual who stands in need of the grace of God.

Rationale:

The current statement from 1972 includes language some find abrasive, singling out one segment while failing to reflect broader issues around human sexuality. As a part of the body of Christ, we affirm all people are individuals of sacred worth, created in the image of God. We affirm human sexuality as God's good gift to all persons. We affirm it as an intrinsic part of our personhood, and as a rich, complex element of human life.

Our faith tradition spells out the importance of a comprehensive approach to human sexuality that relies on an examination of scriptural principles, an application of the tenets of Wesleyan theology, and a prophetic witness to God's grace in a broken world. We believe that each of these sources mandates welcome to all God's people within the life of the church.

We call all people to responsible stewardship of this sacred gift of human sexuality. We reject all forms of commercialization, abuse, and exploitation of relationships merely for sexual gratification.

We commit our life together to the eradication of homophobia and heterosexism. We implore church members, clergy, and congregations not to reject or condemn lesbian and gay members or their families and friends.

All persons, regardless of age, gender, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity, and gender expression are entitled to have their human and civil rights ensured and to be protected against violence and all forms of discrimination. We call for strict global enforcement of laws prohibiting the sexual exploitation of children and for effective protection, guidance, and counseling for abused children.

We commit ourselves to be in ministry for and with all persons. We are called to create safe spaces for people, young and old, to discuss concerns related to human sexuality and healthy human relationships. We support the provision of age-appropriate, comprehensive sexuality education for children, youths, and adults. All persons deserve the ministry of the Church in their struggle for human fulfillment, as well as the spiritual and emotional care of a fellowship that enables reconciling relationships with God, with others, and with self.

The United Methodist Church has understood the "practice" of homosexuality as "incompatible with Christian teachings," and has not permitted "self-avowed, practicing homosexuals" to be candidates for ministry, nor has it permitted its clergy to perform same-sex unions or churches to host these ceremonies.

During the same period, a significant portion of The United Methodist Church has questioned the official position of the church.

Because of this continuing theological and ethical conversation concerning homosexuality, The United Methodist Church allows freedom in the decisions of annual conferences regarding candidacy for ministry; freedom of clergy regarding the performance of same-sex unions; and freedom of local churches regarding hosting of same-sex marriages or unions.

Rationale:

This legislation enables ministry with LGBTQ persons, while allowing each clergyperson, church, and annual conference freedom to abide by decisions of conscience.

Human Sexuality

BOD 2012 ¶ 161.F) Human Sexuality—We affirm that sexuality is God's good gift to all persons. We call everyone to responsible stewardship of this sacred gift.

Although all persons are sexual beings whether or not they are married, sexual relations are affirmed only with the covenant of monogamous, ~~heterosexual~~ marriage.

We deplore all forms of the commercialization, abuse, and exploitation of sex. We call for strict global enforcement of laws prohibiting the sexual exploitation of children and for adequate protection, guidance, and counseling for abused children. All persons, regardless of age, gender, marital status, ~~or~~ sexual orientation, or gender identity are entitled to have their human and civil rights ensured and to be protected against violence. The Church should support the family in providing age-appropriate education regarding sexuality to children, youth, and adults.

We affirm that all persons are individuals of sacred worth, created in the image of God. All persons need the ministry of the Church in their struggles for human fulfillment, as well as the spiritual and emotional care of a fellowship that enables reconciling relationships with God, with others, and with self. ~~The United Methodist Church does not condone the practice of homosexuality and considers this practice incompatible with Christian teaching.~~ We affirm that God's grace is available to all. We will seek to live together in Christian community, welcoming, forgiving, and loving one another, as Christ has loved and accepted us. We implore families and churches not to reject or condemn anyone and commit ourselves to be in ministry for and with all persons.

Family Violence and Abuse

Amend ¶ 161.G:

¶ 161.G Family Violence and Abuse

We recognize that family violence and abuse in all its forms—verbal, psychological, physical, sexual—is detrimental to the covenant of the human community. We encourage the Church to provide a safe environment, counsel, and support for the victim and to work with the abuser to overcome such behaviors. Abuse takes many forms and has many causes. Regardless of the cause or the abuse, both the victim and the abuser need the love of the church. While we deplore the actions of the abuser, we affirm that person to be created in God’s image and in need of God’s redeeming love.

Rationale:

Our role as the church in abuse situations extends to supporting both the victim and the abuser. We need to be reminded of it because in our humanness we gravitate toward support to the victim and can forget the abuser.

Sexual Harassment

Amend ¶ 161.I with the addition and deletion of the indicated text:

We believe human sexuality is God’s good gift. One abuse of this good gift is sexual harassment. We define sexual harassment as any unwanted sexual comment, advance, or demand, either verbal or physical, that is reasonably perceived by the recipient as demeaning, intimidating, or coercive. Sexual harassment must be understood as an exploitation of a power relationship rather than as an exclusively sexual issue. Sexual harassment includes, but is not limited to, the creation of a hostile or abusive working environment resulting from discrimination on the basis of gender, gender identity, or sexual orientation.

Contrary to the nurturing community, sexual harassment creates improper, coercive, and abusive conditions wherever it occurs in society. Sexual harassment undermines the social goal of equal opportunity and ~~the~~ a climate of mutual respect between men and women. Unwanted sexual attention is wrong and discriminatory.

Sexual harassment interferes with the moral mission of the Church.

Abortion

Amend ¶ 161.J of The Book of Discipline as follows:
J) Abortion—The beginning of life . . .

We recognize tragic conflicts of physical life with physical life that may justify abortion, and in such cases we support . . .

We oppose the use of late-term abortion known as dilation and extraction (partial-birth abortion) and call for the end of this practice except when the physical life of the mother is in danger and no other medical procedure is available, or in the case of severe fetal anomalies incompatible with life. This procedure shall be performed only by certified medical providers. Whenever the unborn child may be capable of surviving outside his or her mother’s womb, every reasonable effort should be made to preserve both lives. Before providing their services, abortion providers should be required to offer women the option of anesthesia.

We call all Christians . . .

We mourn, and are committed to diminishing, high abortion rates. The Church shall encourage ministries to reduce unintended pregnancies such as comprehensive, age-appropriate sexuality education grounded in Christian teaching, advocacy in regard to contraception, and support of initiatives that enhance the quality of life for all women and girls around the globe.

Young adult women disproportionately face situations in which they feel they have no choice due to financial, educational, relational, or other circumstances beyond their control. The Church and its local congregations and campus ministries should be in the forefront of supporting existing ministries and developing new ministries that help such women in their communities. We particularly encourage the Church, the government, and social service agencies to support and facilitate the option of adoption as a generally preferable alternative to abortion. (See ¶ 161.L) We affirm and encourage the Church to assist the ministry of crisis pregnancy centers and pregnancy resource centers that compassionately help women find feasible alternatives to abortion.

Governmental laws and regulations do not provide all the guidance required by the informed Christian conscience. Therefore, a decision concerning abortion should be made only after thoughtful and prayerful consideration by the parties involved, with medical, family, pastoral, and other appropriate counsel. (The Book of Discipline, 2012)

Rationale:

The current wording of ¶ 161.J has been treated by some United Methodists as a means for one-sidedly advocating for public policies advancing elective abortion. These amendments to ¶ 161.J would more clearly align our church with biblical, historic Christian teaching that defends unborn children and their mothers from abortion.

Abortion

Amend ¶ 161.J of The Book of Discipline as follows:

J) Abortion—The beginning of life and the ending of life are the God-given boundaries of human existence. While individuals have always had some degree of control over when they would die, they now have the awesome power to determine when and even whether new individuals will be born. Our belief in the sanctity of unborn human life makes us reluctant to approve abortion.

But we are equally bound to respect the sacredness of the life and ~~well-being~~ physical health of the mother and the unborn child.

We recognize tragic conflicts of physical life with physical life that may rarely justify abortion, and in such cases we support the legal option of abortion under proper medical procedures by certified medical providers. We cannot affirm abortion as an acceptable means of birth control, and we unconditionally reject it as a means of gender selection or eugenics (see Resolution 3184).

We support parental, guardian, or other responsible adult notification and consent before abortions can be performed on girls who have not yet reached the age of legal adulthood.

We oppose the use of late-term abortion known as dilation and extraction (partial-birth abortion) and call for the end of this practice except when the physical life of the mother is in danger and no other medical procedure is available, or in the case of severe fetal anomalies incompatible with life. Before providing their services, abortion providers ~~should~~ shall be required to offer women the option of anesthesia.

~~We call all Christians to a searching and prayerful inquiry into the sorts of conditions that may cause them to consider abortion. We entrust God to provide guidance, wisdom, and discernment to those facing an unintended pregnancy.~~

The Church shall offer ministries to reduce unintended pregnancies. We commit our Church to continue to provide nurturing ministries to those in whom a pregnancy has been terminated, ~~who terminate a pregnancy~~, to those in the midst of a crisis pregnancy, and to those who give birth.

The Church and its local congregations and campus ministries should be in the forefront of supporting existing ministries and developing new ministries that help such women in their communities. ~~They should also support those crisis pregnancy centers and pregnancy resource centers that compassionately help women explore all options related to unplanned pregnancy.~~ We particularly encourage the Church, the government, and social service agencies to support and facilitate the option of adoption as a much more preferable generally alternative to abortion. (See ¶ 161.L.) We affirm and encourage the Church to assist the ministry of crisis pregnancy centers and pregnancy resource centers that compassionately help women find feasible alternatives to abortion.

Governmental laws and regulations do not provide all the guidance required by the informed Christian conscience. Therefore, a decision concerning a medically necessary abortion should be made only after thoughtful and prayerful consideration by the parties involved, with medical, family, pastoral, and other appropriate counsel. M) Tobacco: We affirm our historic tradition of high standards of personal discipline and social responsibility. In light of the overwhelming evidence that tobacco smoking and the use of smokeless tobacco are hazardous to the health of persons of all ages, we recommend total abstinence from the use of tobacco. We urge that our educational and communication resources be utilized to support and encourage such abstinence. Further, we recognize the harmful effects of passive smoke and support the restriction of smoking in public areas and workplaces. We also discourage the use of electronic cigarettes (e-cigarettes) that perpetuate the consumption of tobacco-derived nicotine and may pose similar health risks to other uses of tobacco.

Suicide

Amend ¶161.N:

¶161.N Suicide

We believe that suicide is not the way a human life should end. Often suicide is the result of untreated depression, or untreated pain and suffering. The church has an obligation to see that all persons have access to needed pastoral and medical care and therapy in those circumstances that lead to loss of self-worth, suicidal despair, and/or the desire to seek physician-assisted suicide.

The suicide rate among youth continues to grow, particularly among LGBT youth, who are five times more likely to attempt suicide. It is essential that the church minister to at-risk youth in our congregations and in our communities, providing the love, care, acceptance, and encouragement essential to health and well-being.

We encourage the church to provide education to address the biblical, theological, social, and ethical issues related to death and dying, including suicide. United Methodist theological seminary courses should also focus on issues of death and dying, including suicide.

Rationale:

Our role as the church is to love and nurture our youth into adulthood and beyond. Many LGBT youth consider suicide because of the struggle the church has in welcoming and accepting them. They feel ostracized and it can be particularly harmful for those with a solid foundation of growing . . .

Bioethics

Amend ¶ 162 of The Book of Discipline by adding a new section O after current section N, re-lettering subsequent sections accordingly, as follows:

¶ 162.O) Bioethics—We recognize the image of God in all human life. Therefore, we cannot support medical or scientific practices that treat any human life at any stage, including embryonic, as a mere commodity who is categorically unworthy of any respect or protection. We support embryo adoption programs that both give couples the chance to become adoptive parents and rescue so-called “excess embryos” by giving them a chance to develop into full-grown babies, children, and adults.

Rationale:

Treating any human life as beyond God’s image and love is contrary to Christ’s example of pushing boundaries to extend his love to marginalized humanity. We want to advance science and medicine, but within the boundaries of Christian ethics. The Church must offer such prophetic witness for modern bioethical challenges.

The Arts

Amend ¶ 162, Add new sub-paragraph after R) Urban-Suburban Life and before S) Media Violence and Christian Values

We respect and value the arts as a mode of spiritual growth and understanding through the embodiment, expression, and response to the Word of God. The arts, including but not limited to music, dance, drama, and visual art, are a natural product of the human condition. We note that expressive arts therapies are known to promote human dignity and improve quality of life; therefore, the inclusion of arts in worship has an inherent healing relevance. We acknowledge that in many cultures across the globe, the arts are a key component of the celebration, ritual, and teachings related to religious understanding and worship. We further acknowledge that each society has a unique way of using these disciplines for the purpose of expressive spirituality and we honor these differences. We recognize the potential of the arts to enhance the worship experience both in private and public settings. We bear witness to the ability of the arts to create common threads of worship that bridge the gap of language and cultural barriers that might otherwise impede a unified celebration of Christ's love; this is evidenced by the global sharing of music and songs of worship. We affirm the importance of all comparative arts disciplines and support their inclusion in the worship experience as appropriate to each culture. We, The United Methodist Church, commit to uphold the arts, and the right of all humans to understand and express their spiritual relationship with Christ, through the inclusion and participation in the worship arts.

Rationale:

As the worship arts become a prominent field in higher education studies, it follows that the Church affirm its support of the arts. The arts reach individuals at various levels of physical, mental, intellectual, emotional, spiritual, and social engagement, which serves to promote improved human dignity and value of life . . .

Homelessness

Add ¶ 162.Y (or the next available alpha):

¶ 162.Y Homelessness

People are experiencing homelessness across the globe. As the Church we are called to support and love those experiencing homelessness. We are called on to do this by helping with feeding, clothing, housing, medical care, counseling, and assisting in the securing of vital records, among other human needs. There are many causes that might lead a person to lose their housing. Churches are urged to understand factors that contribute to a person or family becoming homeless in their local context and to provide appropriate support.

While homelessness is experienced by people across the globe, we understand that the contributing factors are location centric. Some people experience homelessness because they were rejected by family members and/or religious communities, this disproportionately affects lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, or queer youth. As a result, of homeless youth in the United States, nearly 43 percent identify as LGBTQ. Other people who experience homelessness suffer from addiction, some suffer from mental illness, many live on the streets. Some have lost jobs and thus the ability to support themselves and their families. Others have jobs, but become or remain homeless due to rising housing costs and stagnant wages. Some lose housing due to illness and the need to divert capital to healthcare or medication. Many become homeless due to political instability, conflict, and war. We commit the church to provide a nurturing, loving, and safe place for those who are experiencing homelessness. While we work within our communities to address issues of crime, littering, loitering, etc. that may result from people not having housing, we commit ourselves to welcoming those in this predicament into the life of the church and we advocate for policies that make homelessness rare, brief, and non-recurring.

Rationale:

There are solutions to homelessness. The United Methodist Church should be at the forefront in ministry with and to all persons.

Rights of Racial and Ethnic Persons

Amend ¶ 162.A The Social Community as follows:

A). Rights of Racial and Ethnic ~~Groups~~ Persons: Racism is the combination of the power to dominate by one race over other races and a value system that assumes that the dominant race is innately superior to the others. Racism includes both personal and institutional racism. Personal racism is manifested through the individual expressions, attitudes, and/or behaviors that accept the assumptions of a racist value system and that maintain the benefits of this system. Institutional racism is the established social pattern that supports implicitly or explicitly the racist value system. Racism manifested as sin, plagues and cripples our growth relationship with in Christ, inasmuch as it is antithetical to the gospel itself. ~~Unfortunately, historical and institutional racism provide support for white privilege, and white people, as a result of the color of their skin, are granted privileges and benefits that are denied to persons of color. White people are granted unearned privileges and benefits that are denied to persons of color. Racism breeds racial discrimination.~~ We define racial discrimination as the disparate treatment and lack of full access and equity to in resources, ~~and~~ opportunities, and participation in the Church and in society based on race or ethnicity.

Therefore, we recognize racism as sin and affirm the ultimate and temporal worth of all persons. We rejoice in the gifts that particular ethnic histories and cultures bring to our total life. We commit as the Church to move beyond symbolic expressions and representative models that do not challenge unjust systems of power and access.

We commend and encourage the self-awareness of all racial and ethnic groups and oppressed people that leads them to demand their just and equal rights as members of society. We assert the obligation of society and people within the society to implement compensatory programs that redress long-standing, systemic social deprivation of ~~certain~~ racial and ethnic groups people. We further assert the right of members of historically underrepresented racial and ethnic groups people to equal and equitable opportunities in employment and promotion; to education and training of the highest quality; to nondiscrimination in voting, access to public accommodations, and housing purchase or rental; to credit, financial loans, venture capital, and insurance policies; ~~and~~ to positions of leadership and power in all elements of our life together and to full participation in the Church and society. We support affirmative action as one method of addressing the inequalities and discriminatory practices within ~~our~~ the Church and society.

Rationale:

While significant advancements in areas of racial justice have occurred within the Church and society, systemic barriers still exist. Structural racism is embedded in policies and practices which contribute to inequitable racial outcomes, legitimize racial disparities, and undermine progress toward racial equity.

United Methodists Support Israel and the Jewish People

Amend ¶ 162(B) to include the following language at the end:

. . . We assert the right of all religions and their adherents to freedom from legal, economic, and social discrimination. Furthermore, we recognize that the Jewish people have a God-ordained history as the nation chosen by God to reveal God to all the other nations of the world. We also recognize that this special relationship with God has resulted in great persecution of the Jewish people that continues into the present day. Therefore, we assert our belief in, and advocate for the rights and freedoms of Jewish people in all parts of the world. We affirm and support their right to live in Israel and other nations and local communities that provide them with meaningful education, standardized modern housing, defense against aggressors, security, and the economic means to support themselves. We encourage all Christians to follow the command of Psalm 122:6 by praying regularly for the peace of Jerusalem and the safety of all Jews around the world.

We advocate for the enforcement of laws that protect Jewish people from oppression, violence, and anti-Semitic activity of all kinds. And we encourage Christians to economically support the Jewish people of all nations by patronizing their businesses and supporting ministries that care for the less fortunate members of the Jewish communities.

Rationale:

Engagement of Youth in the Church

Amend ¶ 162.D:

¶ 162.D Rights of Young People

Our society is characterized by a large population of young people who frequently find full participation in society difficult. Therefore, we urge development of policies that encourage inclusion of young people in decision-making processes and that eliminate discrimination and exploitation. Creative and appropriate employment opportunities should be legally and socially available for young people. Our churches should embody this belief in the engagement of youth in the church. Youth should be active participants in leadership, worship, and in the ministries of the church. It is our responsibility as the Church to instill in young people the relevancy of Christ's message in our world today.

Rationale:

Young people are the future of the Church. Their numbers are declining for many reasons. Active engagement of young people in the full life of the Church can change this trend.

Equal Rights

J) Equal Rights Regardless of Sexual Orientation or Sexual Identity—Certain basic human rights and civil liberties are due all persons; no one should be denied them due to sexual orientation or sexual identity. We are committed to supporting those rights and liberties for all persons, regardless of sexual orientation. We see a clear issue of simple justice in protecting the rightful claims where people have shared material resources, pensions, guardian relationships, mutual powers of attorney, and other such lawful claims typically attendant to contractual relationships that involve shared contributions, responsibilities, and liabilities, and equal protection before the law. Moreover, we ~~support efforts to stop violence and other forms of coercion against all persons, regardless of sexual orientation~~ are committed to opposing and speaking out against any form of violence, coercion, ridicule, stigmatization or marginalization directed toward individuals who self-identify as either homosexual or former homosexual or as LGBT or ex-gay.

Rationale:

Society increasingly ignores and disdains individuals who leave a homosexual orientation or LGBT identity. The United Methodist Church should recognize their real life experiences and offer them encouragement and compassion in their discipleship. This can be done without endorsing any particular program or organization or expressing antipathy toward anyone else.

Adoption in a Global Context

Amend Resolution 2021.

Insert two biblical quotes at beginning:

Mordecai had brought up Hadassah, that is Esther, his cousin, for she had neither father nor mother; . . . when her father and mother died, Mordecai adopted her as his own daughter (Esther 2:7, NRSV).

But when the fullness of time had come, God sent God's son, born of a woman, born under law, in order to redeem those who were under the law, so that we might receive adoption as children. (Galatians 4:4-5)

Insert new sentence at end of first paragraph and then merge with second paragraph:

"Adoption in the New Testament is the central biblical image for entrance into the family of faith." ("The Practice and Theology of Adoption," Jeanne Stevenson-Moessner, The Christian Century, January 24, 2001, p.10-13). Those seeking to adopt a child are faced with many challenges and concerns about the high costs of adoption, international laws and restrictions, interracial or intercultural differences, the availability of licensed agencies, and the long waiting times for processing adoptions.

Amend third paragraph:

International adoptions have increased dramatically in recent years. ~~In some cases, t~~This has created a lucrative multi-million-dollar-a-year "baby-selling" market in the business of where profit is often the primary motivation. in the business of "baby selling." Licensed adoption agencies are required by law to meet certain standards and ethical practices protecting the rights of the adoptive child(ren), the birth parents/family and the adoptive parent(s). High costs of international adoption call into question issues of stewardship while making adoption it cost-prohibitive for families with moderate or low incomes. An international adoption may give a child a new chance opportunity to live a more secure abundant life with greater opportunities. However, removing children from their native land can have dire consequences., either because of u Unresolved prejudices held by the adoptive parents or because the children are unable can lead to abuse and neglect and keep children from to adjusting emotionally or socially to their new homes. Amend fourth paragraph:

While some may pursue the adoption of children from other countries, many thousands of children in the foster-care systems wait in vain for families to adopt them. These children may come from difficult or painful families of origin or may have been harmed by years in successive and less-than-ideal placements. Adoption advocates point out that potential adoptive parents may view children who are under care in the foster care systems ~~are~~ viewed as "less desirable." ~~by potential adoptive parents, because these children may come from difficult or painful families of origin or may have been harmed by years in successive and less-than-ideal placements.~~ A form of "ageism" prevails in the adoption process, both in the selection of parents and the placement of children.

Amend fifth paragraph, third sentence:

~~Too often interracial adoption is based on economic class differences, or ability to provide for the child's needs.~~

Amend fifth paragraph, fourth sentence:

A family becomes a biracial or multicultural family when they adopt a child of a different race or culture than their own and, ~~therefore,~~ should be sensitive to the societal impact of racism or xenophobia upon the child.

Amend fifth paragraph, sixth sentence:

Great sensitivity also needs to be expressed with regard to the intricacies of the social welfare system and the impact ~~that adoption may have on Native Americans and other ethnic minorities~~ on people who are adopted cross-culturally.

Amend seventh paragraph, first sentence:

In a time when many ~~parents~~ people are seeking to adopt children, and when many children ~~are needing~~ a loving, caring family, The United Methodist Church affirms adoption as a means to create and strengthen families.

Insert new subparagraph under seventh paragraph retain before "encourage adoptive parents . . .":

promote conditions that would make adoption unnecessary by supporting programs that will improve the living conditions of children in their families, their communities and their countries of origin;

Amend current subparagraph 2:

make adoption more affordable by supporting efforts to provide increased financial assistance to middle- and low-income families considering adoption; support regulations and policies that enable more, better-qualified foster-care families and qualified extended family members to more easily adopt children in their care;

Amend current subparagraph 3:

Delete subparagraph four under seventh paragraph:

~~promote conditions which would make adoption unnecessary by supporting programs which will improve the living conditions of children in their families, their communities and their countries of origin; and provide access to counseling services for adoptive parents;~~

Amend subparagraph five under seventh paragraph:

in cases where information and contact is desirable for the well-being of the child, work through recognized organizations to make contact between adoptive and birth families; ~~and~~

Insert two new subparagraphs at end of paragraph seven:

actively use literature and resources that positively reflect and teach about the cultures from which all children come in order to bolster self-esteem and positive cultural identity in the context of faith; and, “make adoption the center of theological reflection, teaching and counseling so that adopted children are less frequently assigned a second-class status in society and communities of faith” (“The Practice and Theology of Adoption,” Jeanne Stevenson-Moessner, The Christian Century, January 24, 2001, p.10-13).

Responsible Parenthood

Amend and Readopt Resolution 2025 - Responsible Parenthood

1. Biblical Basis for Families

~~We affirm the principle of responsible parenthood. The family, in its varying forms, constitutes the primary focus of human love, acceptance, and nurture, ~~bringing fulfillment to parents and child.~~ Healthful and whole personhood is a gift of God’s grace that develops as one is loved, responds to love, and in that relationship, comes to wholeness as a child of God. Thus family life is a major aspect of the abundant life (John 10:10) that Jesus came to bring. The decision to have children is a decision to extend this grace to a new generation.~~

While the success of families at procreation has been essential to the survival of the human race, in our stories of human origin, we recall that Adam and Eve were created first for companionship with each other (Genesis 2:18). From this, we conclude that procreation is neither the sole nor primary reason for family relationships. We therefore affirm that while many men and women choose to be parents, decisions of if and when to be parents, as well as how many children to have, should be a matter of decision—a most momentous decision that each person is called to consider carefully.

The decision to have children is a decision to participate with God in the process of creation. Like the psalmist, we affirm that children are a gift from God (Psalm 127:3). Those bearing children therefore must take into account the future well-being of the child and their ability to provide for the child through stable parental relationships and material necessities. Freedom to choose parenthood can only exist when the rights of women are respected and the woman is of age. We believe in the parents’ ~~Each couple has the right and the duty to prayerfully and responsibly to control conception, and to employ any safe and effective according to their circumstances. They are, in our view, free to use those means of birth control considered medically safe.~~ As developing technologies have moved conception and reproduction more and more out of the category of a chance happening and more closely to the realm of responsible choice, the decision whether or not to give birth to children must include acceptance of the responsibility to provide for their mental, physical, and spiritual growth, and to treat all children equitably according to their individual needs, as well as consideration of the possible effect on quality of life for family and society.

2. Contraception

Human beings have always had some control over the number and spacing of their young through the frequency and timing of sexual intercourse. In the last century, however, new medical advancements that support decision making about desired family size have been developed, and we affirm these medically-safe technologies and medications as God's gracious gift to those making decisions regarding parenthood.

Pharmaceutical methods of family planning such as oral contraceptives prevent ovulation. These methods now include long-lasting injectable drugs and patches applied to the skin. Sterilization—including vasectomy in males and tubal ligation in females—prevents the sperm and egg from arriving at the point of union. Barrier methods such as condoms also prevent such a meeting. Other forms of contraception include intrauterine devices and the so-called "morning after" pills which prevent the fertilized ovum from implantation.

Use of family planning and access to contraception around the world has had a dramatic impact on empowering women, on women's economic development, and overall public health. Maternal and infant mortalities have been reduced. By controlling the number and spacing of their children, women have greater opportunities for education and economic participation, resulting in an enhanced quality of life for everyone.

3. Barriers to Responsible Choice

When women are neither educated about family planning nor have unfettered access to methods of family planning, women and their families bear the consequences. There are numerous aspects that can become barriers and prevent women from exercising responsible parenthood choices. Prevalence of these factors may vary around the globe, but each causes pain, economic cost, and sometimes, even death. Factors include:

- Gender inequality in some populations often leaves a woman with little or no say in her own health care decisions. In India, only 40 percent of married women ages 15-19 reported having sole or joint say in decisions made regarding their health. Healthcare for the remaining 60 percent is controlled by the husbands. (Anderson, Panchaud, Singh, & Watson, 2013)

- Financial barriers for individuals are certainly problematic around the world but these same barriers apply to governments as well. Throughout Asia, there are widespread disparities between regions and people of various socioeconomic backgrounds. In some areas, as many as 75 percent of women do not have access to contraception. Meeting Asia's needs for modern contraception would cost $4.2 billion annually with funds coming from national governments, individuals receiving services, international donors, and nongovernmental organizations (NGOs)." (Singh, Darroch, Ashford, & Vlassoff, 2014)

- Arranged marriages, which generally occur at a young age, limit female autonomy and therefore often result in a culture in which females do not feel in control of their own reproductive health. (Coale, 1992)

- Spousal disapproval is a significant barrier to access. In a 1996 study of postpartum women in Zambia who did not use birth control, "39 percent cited spousal disapproval as the reason." In another study, as many as 20 percent "of women in Sub-Saharan Africa used injectable contraceptives covertly" because of spousal disapproval. (Sinding, 2005)

- Lack of access can often prevent family planning, even in developed countries. Employers and pharmacists in the United States have claimed religious reasons for refusing to provide insurance or fill a prescription. Lack of access has also shown that in Sub-Saharan Africa, "extreme poverty, lack of access to birth control, and restrictive abortion laws cause about 3 percent of women to have unsafe abortions. (Rasch, 2011)

- Legal restrictions in some countries prevent access to some forms of contraception. In 2012, the Honduran Supreme Court upheld the ban on emergency contraception. This, despite the fact that more than 40 percent of unmarried women and 25 percent of married women in the country experience an unmet need for legal contraception. (Anderson, Panchaud, Singh, & Watson, 2013)

4. Challenging Pregnancies

To support the sacred dimensions of personhood, all possible efforts should be made by parents and the community to ensure that each child enters the world ~~in with a healthy body and is born into~~ an environment conducive to the realization of his or her full potential. ~~When these conditions are not present, a woman's pregnancy is challenging to her and her loved ones.~~ Challenging pregnancies can be the result of rape. The woman can be underage and the victim of child abuse. A pregnancy can be challenging when either the fetus' or the mother's life, health, or ability to provide for the family is threatened.

The creation of a child is an incremental process whose beginnings stretch back to the creation of earth's first life, and whose milestones include conception, implantation, quickening, viability, and live birth. The Bible affirms breath as the mark of a living human person. While respecting developing life at every stage, we reject the simplistic belief that the moment when egg and sperm unite is the sole marker of human existence.

A challenging pregnancy may dictate a number of responses, especially the need for prayerful choice about the pregnancy's outcome. Therefore, when a challenging ~~When an unacceptable~~ pregnancy occurs, we believe that a profound regard for unborn human life must be weighed alongside an equally profound regard for the fully developed woman personhood, particularly when the physical, mental, and emotional health of the pregnant woman and her family show reason to be seriously threatened if a birth should occur, by the new life just forming. We reject the simplistic answers surrounding to the issue problem of abortion: All that, on the one hand, regard all abortions are not murder, nor are they as murders, or, on the other hand, regard abortions as medical procedures without moral significance.

When ~~a challenging an unacceptable~~ pregnancy occurs, a family—and most of all, the pregnant woman—is confronted with the need to make a ~~difficult~~ decision. When a pregnancy occurs that appears to cause the parent or parents a hardship, we in the church should bring all our resources of compassion and support to their aid, including prayer and encouragement. We believe that continuance of a pregnancy that endangers the life or health of the mother, or poses other serious problems concerning the life, health, or mental capability of the child to be, is not a moral necessity. In order for women to have such cases, we believe the choices and healthcare they need, path of mature Christian judgment may indicate the advisability of abortion must be. We support the legal right to abortion as it is in many nations today including Canada, Korea, Estonia, Germany, Latvia, Lithuania, Mongolia, South Africa, Turkey, and Tunisia; and as described in the U.S. established by the 1973 Supreme Court decision, Roe v. Wade, which affirmed the right of a woman to control her own body. We encourage women in counsel with loved ones husbands, doctors, and pastors to make their own responsible decisions concerning the personal and moral questions surrounding decision whether or not to continue a pregnancy, the issue of abortion (see ¶ 161.J <<https://www.umofficialresources.com/reader/9781426766213/>>).

5. Mandates

We call upon United Methodist families to support those making reproductive decisions, to be informed about options for family planning, and to support a woman's decisions.

We call upon United Methodists pastors and congregations to provide the following:

- Education of respect for women as equal partners in family leadership and decision making
- Counseling and educational ~~We therefore encourage our churches and common society to:~~ 1. provide to all education on human sexuality and family life in its varying forms, including means of marriage enrichment, rights of children, responsible and joyful expression of sexuality,

~~and changing attitudes toward male and female roles in the home and the marketplace;~~ 2. provide counseling opportunities for married couples and those approaching marriage or those considering starting a family on issues such as reproductive health, fertility challenges, family planning, adoption, and foster care. the principles of responsible parenthood;

We call upon the United Methodist Seminaries, the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry, and the General Board of Discipleship to assist in the following ways:

- Provide theological basis for family responsibility in their course work and curriculum.
- Design and publish educational materials that are medically accurate, theologically informed, and developmentally appropriate.
- Promote the understanding that the family encompasses a wider range of options than that of the two-generational unit of parents and children; and
- Cultivate the development of socially responsible and life-enhancing expressions of extended families.

We call upon governments around the world to follow through with these family planning measures:

- Support 3. build understanding of the problems posed to society by the rapidly growing population of the world, and of the need to place personal decisions concerning childbearing in a context of the well-being of the community; 4. provide to each pregnant woman accessibility to comprehensive health care and nutrition adequate public funding for family planning services to ensure healthy children; 5. make such services—including access to medicines, intrauterine devices, safe and effective barrier methods, and emergency contraception— information and materials available so all can exercise responsible choice in the area of conception controls. We support the free flow of information about reputable, efficient, and safe nonprescription contraceptive techniques through educational programs and through periodicals, radio, television, and other advertising media. We support adequate public funding and increased participation in family planning services by public and private agencies, including church-related institutions, with the goal of making such services accessible to all, regardless of economic status or geographic location.;

• Work through legal and social campaigns to end the practice of child marriage thereby helping delay conception and childbirth among the one in nine women in the developing world married before the age of fifteen. (Child Marriage Facts and Figures, 2014)

- Make 6. make provision in law and in practice for voluntary sterilization as an appropriate means, for some, for conception control and family planning.;

• Safeguard 7. safeguard the legal option of abortion where it already exists under standards of sound medical practice; 8. make abortions available to women without regard to economic standards of sound medical practice, and to create legislative support to respect a woman's right to decision-making regarding her own body. In places where abortion is not legal, we invite faith leaders to be in dialogue with their governments to change the law, ending harmful practices that endanger the lives and health of women who seek illegal and often unsafe abortion. At the same time we support sufficient safeguards to prevent the use of abortion as a means of gender selection, make abortions available to women without regard to economic status; 9. monitor carefully the growing genetic and biomedical research, and be prepared to offer sound ethical counsel to those facing birth-planning decisions affected by such research;

• Be sensitive to the fears of many in poor and minority groups in developing nations about imposed birth-planning, to oppose any coercive use of such policies and services, and strive to see that family-planning programs respect the dignity of each individual person as well as the cultural diversities of groups.

• Make 10. assist the states to make provisions in law and in practice for not mandating parental consent when treating as adults minors who have, or think they have, venereal diseases, or female minors who are, or think they are, pregnant, ~~Eliminating thereby eliminating~~ the legal necessity for notifying parents or guardians removes and barriers prior to care and treatment. Parental support is crucially important and most desirable on such occasions, but needed treatment ought not to be contingent on such support. This statement shall not be used to assert or imply that The United Methodist Church opposes any requirements, with or without exceptions, of parental notification for abortion procedures performed on girls who have not yet reached the age of legal adulthood;

We call upon private and public health providers to take these steps:

• Provide each pregnant woman with access to comprehensive health care and adequate nutrition to ensure the healthiest possible pregnancy.

• Make information and materials available so everyone can exercise responsible choice in the area of contraception and to support the free flow of information about reputable, efficient, and safe prescription and non-prescription contraceptive techniques through educational programs, as well as through periodicals, radio, television, and other advertising media.

• Carefully monitor the growing genetic and biomedical research, and be prepared to offer sound, ethical counsel to those facing birth-planning decisions affected by such research.

• Make a full range of reproductive health services, including family planning, contraception, and abortion available to women consistent with their medical status and without regard to their economic status.

• Support fertility treatment for those who are unable to become parents without assistance.

We call upon private and public child welfare agencies to 11. understand the family as encompassing a wider range of options than that of the two-generational unit of parents and children (the nuclear family); and promote the development of all socially responsible and life-enhancing expressions of the extended family, including families with adopted children, single parents, those with no children, and those who choose to be single; 12. view parenthood in the widest possible framework, recognizing that many children of the world today desperately need functioning parental figures, and also to promote understanding that adults can realize the choice and fulfillment of parenthood through adoption or foster care;

We call upon the United Methodist General Board of Global Ministries and United Methodist Women to act:

• Encourage 13. encourage men and women to actively demonstrate their responsibility by creating a family context of nurture and growth in which the children will have the opportunity to share in the mutual love and concern of their parents; and

• Strengthen United Methodist-related health care institutions around the world by offering a full range of programs that address the many needs of families for reproductive health services, especially populations with no other access.

We call upon the United Methodist General Board of Church and Society to be proactive:

• Push for laws and public programs in each country that support individual and family-decision making about becoming parents.

• Support strong families in which children can achieve adulthood.

• Build understanding of the issues accompanying the rapidly growing population of the world, and of the need to place all personal decisions in the context of the well-being of the community.

14. be aware of the fears of many in poor and minority groups and in developing nations about imposed birth-planning, oppose any coercive use of such policies and services, and strive to see that family-planning programs respect the dignity of each individual person as well as the cultural diversities of groups.

Deletion

Delete Resolution #2025, "Responsible Parenthood."

Rationale:

Regardless of cultural conditions or family makeup, responsible parents care for their children. This resolution contradicts our belief in the sacredness of the life of the unborn child (¶ 161.J) by making children into commodities for parents to choose or reject at will. This statement is inappropriate and unnecessary.

Responsible Parenthood

Amend Resolution #2025: Responsible Parenthood as follows:

We affirm the principle of responsible parenthood . . .

We therefore encourage our churches and common society to:

1. . . .

7. safeguard the legal option of abortion, when appropriate, under standards of sound medical practice;

8. . . .

Rationale:

Because we believe in the sanctity of unborn human life and because we are reluctant to approve abortion (¶ 161.J), United Methodists should not provide an unqualified endorsement of abortion as the solution to all unexpected or unwanted pregnancies.

Responsible Parenthood

Amend Resolution #2025: Responsible Parenthood as follows:

We affirm the principle of responsible parenthood . . .

When an unacceptable pregnancy occurs, a family—and most of all, the pregnant woman—is confronted with the need to make a difficult decision. We believe that continuance of a pregnancy that endangers the life or health of the mother, or poses other serious problems concerning the life, health, or mental capability of the child to be, is not a moral necessity. In such cases, we believe the path of mature Christian judgment may indicate the advisability of abortion. ~~We support the legal right to abortion as established by the 1973 Supreme Court decision.~~ We encourage women in counsel with husbands . . .

Rationale:

Many faithful United Methodists are not supportive of what were actually two court decisions. Even some pro-choice legal scholars oppose the decisions' legal reasoning. Emphasis on US law does not belong in a statement of universal Christian principles.

Responsible Parenthood

Amend the first sentence in the fourth paragraph of Resolution #2025, "Responsible Parenthood:

. . . When an unacceptable pregnancy occurs, we believe that a profound regard for unborn human life must be weighed alongside an equally profound regard for fully developed personhood, particularly when the physical, ~~mental, and emotional health~~ life of the pregnant woman ~~and her family~~ shows reason to be seriously threatened by the new life just forming . . .

Rationale:

Except for the rare instances when the mother's physical life is endangered, supporting abortion of any child having mental retardation or another disability is completely inconsistent with our Church's defense of the sanctity of unborn human life (¶ 161.J). No unborn child is any less "worthy" of life than anyone else.

Prohibit Homosexual Marriage

Amendment to be added after last paragraph of Resolution 2041

WHEREAS a sociological view on homosexuality sets human affectionate sexual love above the law of God; this is not in accordance with Jesus’ teaching that love is the law. Jesus’ teaching on love does not include what the Bible views as immoral sexual acts. To attempt to bring honor to any act that the Bible teaches is immoral would be to set the act against the law.

WHEREAS, in Matthew 22:37-40 Jesus taught that love sums up the law;

WHEREAS, in Matthew 5:17-20 Jesus assures he has not come to abolish the law or the prophets;

WHEREAS, in Matthew 5:17-19 Jesus asserts that every minute requirement of the law is valid and will be fulfilled, and that any violation of any one of the most insignificant of these requirements involves the infringement of the whole law;

WHEREAS, the apostles taught and preached against sexual acts that are against biblical law;

WHEREAS, in 2 Corinthians 11:1-15 Paul warns against false apostles infiltrating the church. He advises that leaders of the church not be deceived as Eve was by the serpent’s cunning, and not to let their minds be somehow led astray from sincere and pure devotion to Christ;

Therefore, be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church in its commitment to uphold biblical law shall not allow pastors to perform marriage ceremonies for homosexual couples, to do so would be condoning an act that is socially accepted as love but breaks God’s law.

Church to Be in Ministry to Persons of All Sexual Orientations

Amend Resolution 2041.

Replace first paragraph:

We affirm our belief in the infinite worth and value of each individual because all are human beings created by God and loved through and by Jesus Christ, and we affirm all persons as equally valuable in the sight of God (Preamble to Social Principles). Baptism is God’s gift of unmerited grace through the Holy Spirit and marks the entrance of persons into the church and its ministries of love, justice, and service (§ 305, Book of Discipline) We affirm that through baptism God has made us members of one body of Christ so that all who follow Jesus have spiritual gifts to share for the common good (1 Corinthians 12:4-7). In addressing the nurturing function of Christian fellowship, our United Methodist Social Principles assert that human sexuality is a complex gift of which we have limited understanding (§ 161F). “We affirm that all persons are individuals of sacred worth, created in the image of God, and that all persons need the ministry and guidance of the church in their struggles for human fulfillment, as well as the spiritual and emotional care of a fellowship that enables reconciling relationships with God, with others, and with self” (§ 161F). “The inherent dignity of human beings is the foundation of all human rights. The Universal Declaration of Human Rights recognizes that ‘all human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights,’ and ‘governments are bound to protect them.’ The declaration specifies that everyone is entitled to equal protection under the law, and that everyone has the right to security of the person and to protection against violence or bodily harm” (“Affirmation of Human Rights of All People,” Statement by the Board of Directors of the General Board of Church and Society of The United Methodist Church, March 1, 2014).

Create new second paragraph with amendments:

Those seeking a deeper understanding of their An individual confronting his or her own minority sexual orientation and/or that of a close family member, friend, or associate other persons often experiences isolation, confusion, and fear and violence at a time when they he or she needs information, guidance, and support (“Teens at Risk,” 2000 Book of Resolutions); and we recognize that teens dealing with questions about sexual orientation are at a greater risk for suicide and violence perpetrated against them (“Teen Sexual Identity and Suicide Risk,” 2004 and 2008 Book of Resolutions). The teachings and actions of Jesus demonstrated radical inclusion of those rejected by mainstream society, we are called to renew our commitment to become faithful witnesses to the gospel, not alone to the ends of the earth, but also the depths of our common life and work (Preamble to the Social Principles).

Insert in last paragraph, second sentence:

Such ministry and openness may include: welcoming sexual minorities, their friends, and families into our churches and demonstrating our faith in a loving God; a willingness to listen and open our hearts to their stories and struggles in our churches, districts, annual conferences, and General Conference; encouraging study and dialogue around issues of sexuality; advocating for policies that protect the human rights of lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender persons; and praying for all those who are in pain and discord over our Christian response to this controversial issue.

Rationale:

Revisions enhance current language by strengthening theological foundation for study, prayer and advocacy.

Opposition to Homophobia and Heterosexism

Delete current Resolution 2042 and replace with the following:

Suggested new title: Opposition to Sexual Prejudice, Homophobia, and Heterosexism

The United Methodist Church affirms that “all persons are individuals of sacred worth, created in the image of God” (§ 161.F, Human Sexuality, The Book of Discipline of The United Methodist Church, 2012); and,

The United Methodist Church states, “Certain basic human rights and civil liberties are due all persons,” and as a church is “committed to supporting those rights and liberties for all persons, regardless of sexual orientation” (§ 162.J, Equal Rights Regardless of Sexual Orientation, The Book of Discipline of The United Methodist Church, 2012); and,

The United Methodist Church is committed to the eradication of sexism (#3443, 2012 Book of Resolutions); and,

Sexual prejudice (Sexual prejudice, A commonly used definition from Spring Reference Online [2014]: “Sexual prejudice encompasses all negative attitudes and assumptions directed toward an individual or group based on sexual orientation.”) is an attitude of negativity toward persons due to their sexual orientation, sexual identity, or gender expression; and,

Homophobia (Homophobia, A commonly used definition from the American Heritage Dictionary (1992): “Fear, hatred, or mistrust of lesbians and gay men.”) is holding and maintaining prejudicial and fearful attitudes toward individuals perceived to be nonheterosexual, regardless of the victim’s actual sexual orientation or sexual identity; or gender expression; and

Heterosexism (Heterosexism, A commonly used definition from the American Heritage Dictionary (2014): “Discrimination or prejudice against lesbians, gay men, or bisexuals by heterosexual people.”) is a self-justifying system of attitudes and behavior based on sexual prejudice that:

1. perpetuates stereotypical categories of what is essentially “masculine” and what is essentially “feminine”;
2. provides a privileged status for people who identify as culturally defined heterosexuals; and
3. discriminates against persons who, regardless of their sexual orientation, sexual identity, or gender expression do not appear to fit within the particular category defined as appropriate for their gender; and

Sexual prejudice homophobia and heterosexism are manifestations of sexism in general in that they foster stereotypes based on arbitrary distinctions of gender categories; and.

Actions rooted in sexual prejudice, homophobia, and heterosexism, including violence, threats, ridicule, humiliation, discrimination, isolation, rejection, and legislation break down the body of Christ and are damaging to persons of all sexual orientations and identities; and

The United Methodist Church is a worldwide faith community that has the unique opportunity to speak to matters of sexual prejudice, homophobia, and heterosexism globally.

Therefore, be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church strengthen its advocacy globally of the eradication of sexism by opposing all forms of violence or discrimination based on gender, gender identity and expression, or sexual orientation; and

Be it further resolved, that the General Board of Church and Society provide resources and materials aimed at educating members of the local churches about the reality, issues, and effects of sexual prejudice, homophobia and heterosexism and the need for a worldwide Christian witness against these facets of marginalization and rejection.

Abuse of Older Adults

Delete current text and replace with the following:

“Do not cast me off in the time of old age; / do not forsake me when my strength is spent” (Psalm 71:9 NRSV).

Elder abuse is defined by the World Health Organization as “a single, or repeated act, or lack of appropriate action, occurring within any relationship where there is an expectation of trust which causes harm or distress to an older person.” Elder abuse includes but is not limited to physical, psychological or emotional, sexual and financial abuse. It can also be the result of intentional or unintentional neglect.

The World Health Organization reports that, “In many parts of the world elder abuse occurs with little recognition or response. Elder abuse is a problem that exists in both developing and developed countries yet is typically underreported globally. Prevalence rates or estimates exist only in selected developed countries—ranging from 1% to 10%.” Obviously, any abuse is unacceptable. As such, it demands a global multifaceted response, one which focuses on protecting the rights of older persons.

Therefore, be it resolved, that we call on The United Methodist Church to more effectively address this issue through education and awareness, information, counseling and referral services, support systems, and reports to the proper authorities when abuse is suspected.

Therefore, be it further resolved, that the Older Adult Committee of the General Board Discipleship and other applicable general agencies provide resources and materials to address the issue.

Rationale:

Revisions enhance current language with stronger biblical foundation and updated information about elder abuse from the World Health Organization.

Aging in the United States: The Church's Response

Delete current text and replace with the following:

I. The Situation

Older adults have been a vital part of our congregations for generations. The percentage of older adults in the United States is growing rapidly. As a result of better health care, nutrition, job safety, and many other factors more U.S. residents are living into older adulthood, which presents many challenges including:

(1) Over 23 million U.S. residents aged 60+ are economically insecure, living at or below 250% of the federal poverty level. These older adults struggle each day with rising housing and health care bills, inadequate nutrition, lack of access to transportation, diminished savings, and job loss (The National Council on Aging).

(2) Almost 75% of single Social Security recipients aged 65+ depend on Social Security for all or most of their monthly income (Social Security Administration).

(3) Older women typically receive about $4,000 less annually in Social Security than older men due to lower lifetime earnings, time taken off for caregiving, occupational segregation into lower-wage work, and other issues. Older women of color fare even worse (Wider Opportunities for Women).

(4) One-third of senior households has no money left over each month or is in debt after meeting essential expenses (Institute on Assets and Social Policy).

(5) Fourteen percent of adults aged 65+ face retirement with negative net worth, contributing to a rise in bankruptcies that has grown at the fastest pace ever due to high credit-card debt and debts against their home (Aging and Bankruptcy, U.S. Courts).

(6) Over 27% of older adults living in poverty were at risk for hunger in 2011 (National Foundation to End Senior Hunger).

(7) The average senior in good health needs to spend about $381/month to cover basic health needs. This includes Medicare premiums, supplemental coverage, copays, and out-of-pocket costs. This figure increases to $511/month for a senior in poor health (Gerontology Institute).

(8) As of December 2011, 16% of older homeowners owed more on their house than it was worth (AARP).

(9) A majority of older adults has unsustainable housing costs, with 59% of older renters and 33% of homeowners with mortgages spending more than 30% of their income on housing costs (AARP).

(10) 44% of African American and 37% of Latino seniors either rent or have no home equity (Institute on Assets & Social Policy).

II. A Theological Rationale

Psalm 24:1 boldly proclaims that the earth is the Lord's and everything in it. Psalm 71:9 gives us this warning:

"Do not cast me off in the time of old age; / do not forsake me when my strength is spent."

As United Methodists we give thanks for God's creation and the value of each person regardless of age.

III. Calls to Action

A. By individuals and society at all levels

United Methodists are called to advocate for the elimination of age discrimination in personal attitudes and institutional structures. We should pursue this advocacy vigorously and in cooperation with appropriate private and public groups, including all levels of government. Our efforts should be based on the following:

1. Religious institutions make a unique and significant contribution to human life. Living involves ethical issues and value decisions. Therefore, a religious presence is important to the quality of total community life. The experience and gifts of older persons is a valuable resource for the whole church.

2. Governments should play a critical role in ensuring that all benefits are available to all older adults to improve their quality of life. Christians should support governmental policies that promote sharing with those who are less fortunate. This does not absolve either the institutional church or individual Christians from responsibility for persons in need.

3. A standard of basic survival support systems should be accepted and established in our society and made available to all persons. These systems should include: health care, transportation, housing, and income maintenance at a minimum. Christians need to identify and promote those facilities and services that ensure opportunities for prolonged well-being. These services need to be provided within the financial means of older adults, with appropriate public subsidy when necessary. They include the following:

a. universal, comprehensive health-insurance program;

b. national legislation correcting the disparity in Medicare's failure to cover full prescription drug needs;

c. health-resources systems special to the needs of older adults that are comprehensive, accessible, and feasible within available resources, these include long-term care, hospice care, home health care, and health-maintenance organizations;

d. health-education systems that emphasize proper nutrition, proper drug use, preventive health care, and immunization, as well as information about the availability of health resources within the community;

e. training for medical and social-service personnel concerning the special cultural, physical, psychosocial, and spiritual aspects and needs of older adults;

f. adequate housing that is both affordable and secure, with protections that massive tax and rental increases will not create displacement, and transportation systems that meet the special needs of older adults;

g. national legislation correcting the disparity in Medicare's failure to cover either assisted-living residences or dementia-specific housing, or home nursing care;

h. a basic governmental income-maintenance system adequate to sustain an adequate standard of living affording personal dignity;

i. basic pension systems benefit levels adequate to meet economic needs at least equal to the defined poverty level, supplementation by benefits from public funds;

j. continuing educational and counseling opportunities for older adults in pre-retirement planning, in work-related training, in interpersonal retirement relationships, and in personal enrichment;

k. formal and informal community associations such as public and private centers that foster social, recreational, artistic, intellectual, and spiritual activities to help persons overcome loneliness and social isolation;

l. continuing employment opportunities for those who desire them in flexible, appropriate work settings related to varying lifestyles; and

m. opportunities for volunteer work and paid employment that best utilize the skills and experiences of older adults.

4. Finally, our society is called upon to respond to a basic human right of older adults: the right to faithful care in dying and to have personal wishes respected concerning the number and type of life-sustaining measures that should be used to prolong life. Living wills, requesting no heroic measures be used, and other such efforts to die with faithful care should be supported.

B. By the church at all levels

1. All levels of the church are called to:

a. practice nondiscrimination in the church on the basis of age in hiring, deployment, and promotion of older workers, including the appointment of clergy;

b. include ministries by, with and for older adults as an essential and intentional component of the church and its mission;

c. promote flexible retirement and eliminate mandatory retirement based solely on age;

d. develop theological statements on death and dying recognizing the basic human right to faithful care of the dying;

e. address the questions raised by the declining quality of life; stimulate research to connect the improvement of the quality of life with longevity of life, raised by increased longevity;

f. develop ethical guidelines for dealing with difficult medical decisions that involve the use of limited resources for health and life insurance;

g. authorize appropriate research, including a demographic study of members of The United Methodist Church, to provide greatly needed information on the psychosocial and spiritual aspects of aging; and

h. establish a properly funded pension system with an adequate minimum standard for all clergy and church-employed lay persons and their spouses, including the divorced spouse.

2. Each local church is called to:

a. become aware of the needs and interests of older people in the congregation and in the community, including the places in which they reside, and to express Christian love through person-to-person understanding and caring;

b. intentionally sponsor ministries in institutions designed to meet the needs of older adults, such as nursing homes, assisted-living residences, and dementia-specific housing as well as the homes of older adults living alone, as we keep these older persons fully incorporated in the body of Christ;

c. affirm the cultural and historical contributions and gifts of ethnic older adults;

d. acknowledge that ministry by, with, and for older adults is needed in congregations of all sizes;

e. support, equip, and train lay volunteers with a dedication for this important ministry;

f. develop a barrier-free environment in which older adults can function in spite of impairments;

g. develop an intentional ministry with older adults that:

- ensures life maintenance for each person related to adequate food, health service, mobility, personal security, income, and other personal services;

- offers opportunities for life enrichment including intellectual stimulation, social involvement, spiritual cultivation, and artistic pursuits;

- encourages life reconstruction when necessary, including motivation and guidance in making new friends, serving new roles in the community that help people cope with loss, and providing support systems for older adults experiencing losses;

- affirms life transcendence, including celebration of the meaning and purpose of life through worship, Bible study, personal reflection, and small-group life;

- recognizes that older persons represent a creative resource bank available to the church and to involve them in service to the community as persons of insight and wisdom (this could include not only ministry to one another, but also to the larger mission of the church for redemption of the world, including reaching the unchurched); relates to secular retirement communities within its boundaries;

- fosters intergenerational experiences in the congregation and community including educating all age groups about how to grow old with dignity and satisfaction;

- ensures that the frail are not separated from the life of the congregation, but retain access to the sacraments and are given assistance as needed by the caring community;

- provides support and information for adults caring for aging parents;

- cooperates with other churches and community agencies for more comprehensive and effective ministries with older persons;

- accepts responsibility for an advocacy role in behalf of older adults; and

- develops older-adult ministries responsible to the church council. (A staff position or older adult council may be needed to facilitate this ministry with older adults.)

3. Each annual conference is called to:

- provide leadership and support for an intentional ministry to older persons in its local churches, with special attention to the needs of women and minorities;

- develop a program of job counseling and retirement planning for clergy and lay employees;

- share creative models of ministry and a data bank of resources with the local churches and other agencies;

- define the relationship between the annual conference and United Methodist-related residential and nonresidential facilities for older adults, so that the relationships can be clearly understood and mutually supportive;

- recruit persons for professional leadership in working with older adults;

- serve as both a partner and critic to local church and public programs with older adults, promoting ecumenical linkages where possible;

- support financially, if needed, retired clergy and lay church workers and their spouses who reside in United Methodist long-term care settings;

- promote Golden Cross Sunday and other special offerings for ministries by, for, and with older adults; and

- recognize that older persons within the conference, both lay and clergy, represent a significant and experienced resource that should be utilized in both the organization and mission of the conference.

4. General boards and agencies are called to:

- examine the pension policies of the general church and their impact related to the needs of those who are single (retired, divorced, or surviving dependents of pensioners);

- create specific guidance materials for ministry by, for, and with older adults;

- prepare intergenerational and age-specific materials for church school and for other special studies in the local church;

- promote advocacy in behalf of all older adults, but especially those who do not have access to needed services because of isolation, low income, or disability (this might include advocacy for health care, income maintenance, and other social legislation);

- assist institutions for older adults to maintain quality care and to develop resource centers for ministry with and by older adults;

- create a variety of nonresidential ministries for older adults;

- coordinate general church training in ministry with older adults;

- provide for formal coordination on aging issues;

- advocate the special concerns and needs of older women and minorities; and

- utilize older persons as a creative resource bank in the design and implementation of these objectives.

5. Retirement and long-term care facilities related to the church are called to:

- develop a covenant relationship with the church to reinforce a sense of joint mission in services with older adults;

- encourage the provision of charitable support and provide a channel for the assistance of the whole church; and

- encourage both residential and nonresidential institutional settings that emphasize the spiritual, personal, physical, and social needs of older adults.

6. Finally, seminaries and colleges are called to:

- provide seminarians with instruction on aging and experiences with older persons in the curriculum;

- prepare persons for careers in the field of aging;

- develop special professorships to teach gerontology, and to provide continuing education for those who work with older adults;

- engage in basic and applied research related to aging, and communicate the findings;

- develop a system for sharing research results with the church;

- enable older adults to enroll in courses and degree programs and to participate generally in the life of educational institutions; and

g. develop and offer lay courses in locations accessible to older persons.

IV. Summary

Concern for older persons in the church is theologically grounded in the doctrine of Creation, in the meaning of God's work in Christ, in the response to grace that leads us into service, in the continuing value of older persons in the larger mission, and in the nature of the church as an agent of redemption and defender of justice for all. Older adults deserve respect, dignity, and equal opportunity. The United Methodist Church is called to be an advocate for older adults, for their sense of personal identity and dignity, for utilization of experience, wisdom, and skills, for health maintenance, adequate income, educational opportunities, and vocational and avocational experiences in cooperation with the public and private sectors of society. The aging process is part of God's plan for life, with the good news of Christ's redemption giving hope and purpose. United Methodists are called to live this message through words and deeds in the church and in society.

Alcohol and Other Drugs

Amend resolution 3042 as follows:

Insert a new fifth paragraph:

The ~~US~~ United States policy response to the drug crisis has focused almost exclusively on law enforcement and military solutions.

Replace paragraph #4 under I. Alcohol

~~4. We strongly encourage annual conferences to develop leadership training opportunities and resources for local church pastors and laity to help with counseling individuals and families who have alcohol-related problems; counseling those bereaved by alcohol-related deaths and violence; and teaching stress management to church workers in communities with high alcohol abuse.~~ 4. We oppose the sale and consumption of alcoholic beverages within the confines of United Methodist Church facilities and recommend that it be prohibited.

Replace paragraph #5 under I. Alcohol

~~5. We urge all United Methodist churches to work for a minimum legal drinking age of twenty-one years in their respective states/nations.~~

5. We ask individuals and local congregations to study and discuss the problem of driving while intoxicated and impaired by alcohol or other drugs, and we support legislation to reduce such activity.

Replace paragraphs #6 and #7 under I. Alcohol

~~6. We oppose the sale and consumption of alcoholic beverages within the confines of United Methodist Church facilities and recommend that it be prohibited.~~

~~7. We ask individuals and local congregations to study and discuss the problem of driving while intoxicated and impaired by alcohol or other drugs, and we support legislation to reduce such activity.~~

Amend the following section, including the heading:

III. Other Drugs

Amend the fourth sentence to read as follows:

Additionally, commonly used products such as glue, paint thinners, ~~Spice, K2, incense, bath salts,~~ and gasoline have the potential to be abused as inhalants.

Delete the following paragraphs:

~~Abuse of drugs has risen dramatically in recent years. Some of these abused drugs are legal and some not. Very many abused drugs have a medicinal use. Numerous medicinal drugs, both prescription and over-the-counter (OTC) have no attraction other than their medicinal value. Others, however, notably pain relievers, stimulants and tranquilizers, are perceived to provide a pleasurable sensation, and are thus subject to abuse. Other such drugs because of their psychoactive qualities are primarily abused for their mind-altering qualities. These drugs' medical value, if any, is strictly secondary.~~

~~Prescription drug abuse has risen dramatically in recent years. Abuse of a prescription medication not prescribed for you, or taking it for reasons or in dosages other than as prescribed can produce serious health effects, including addiction. Commonly abused classes of prescription medications include opioids for pain, central nervous system depressants for anxiety and sleep disorders, and stimulants for ADHD and narcolepsy. Misuse of legal drugs has both a demand component and a supply component that must be strictly regulated.~~

Delete third and fourth sentences under C. Psychedelics or Hallucinogens:

~~We urge complete abstinence from such drugs.~~

We urge all persons to abstain from all use of sedatives and stimulants unless legally prescribed in a form appropriate for treating a particular medical condition, or legally available over the counter and is used in moderation in accordance with its labeled purpose.

Delete the heading for E. Medication Abuse and the first paragraph:

E. Medication Abuse

~~Above and beyond the forms of abuse described previously, one has to address a “medical culture” that sees problem solution primarily in pharmaceutical terms. This may be expressed in the home when children break into their parents’ medications to seek some pleasant sensation, or the purchase of over-the-counter cold medications to isolate a psychoactive component. It may also be expressed through physicians who prefer to medicate a patient to dull the experience of childbirth or grieving, or who prescribe medications when the real need of the patient is to address life challenges. Ultimately, this reflects an underlying philosophy that the most profound existential and spiritual challenges have a chemical solution.~~

Amend item number 5 under Therefore as follows:

5. We strongly encourage annual conferences to develop leadership training opportunities and resources for local church pastors and laity to help them with counseling individuals and families who have alcohol- and other drug-related problems; counseling those bereaved by alcohol- and other drug-related deaths and violence; and teaching stress management to church workers in communities with high alcohol and other drug activity.

Insert a new item number 6:

~~6. We urge redevelopment of more effective methods of treatment of drug abuse and addiction.~~ 6. We support comprehensive tobacco control policies and legislation that includes provisions to: a) reduce the rate of youth smoking by increasing the price of cigarettes; b) protect tobacco farmers by helping them shift from tobacco to other crops; c) give the US Food and Drug Administration full authority to regulate nicotine as a drug in the United States; d) fund anti-tobacco research and advertising, as well as education and prevention campaigns.

Insert a new number 7:

7. We urge redevelopment of more effective methods of treatment of drug abuse and addiction.

Insert a new #10:

10. We urge all United Methodist churches to work for a minimum legal drinking age of twenty-one years in their respective states/nations.

Amend the new #12 as follows:

~~10-12.~~ 12. We note with deep concern that law enforcement against possession and use of illegally procured drugs has resulted in a dramatic increase in jail and prison populations, often consisting disproportionately of poor, minority, and young persons, many times often due to huge sentencing disparities between possession of “crack” cocaine (the cheaper form, used more by poor minorities, where possession of only 5 grams is subject to a five-year mandatory minimum sentence) and possession of powder cocaine (the more expensive and purer form where possession of 500 grams or more is necessary to invoke a five-year mandatory minimum sentence), even though the two forms are pharmacologically identical, and therefore call for fairness in sentencing through reform of sentencing guidelines governing the possession and use of powder and crack cocaine. Therefore, we call for fairness in sentencing through reform of sentencing guidelines governing drug laws. In particular, we support the drug-court system that more fairly and comprehensively addresses problems of drug addiction with policies and sentences that encompass hope, transformation, and compassion for the addicted person.

Rationale:

Amendments to resolution tighten focus while strengthening content related to alcohol and tobacco, especially related to young people. Inequitable criminal-justice enforcement in some areas of drug usage is also discussed.

Keep Children and Youth Free From Alcohol and Other Drugs

Drinking on Campus

Amend #3044. Drinking on Campus

Revise first paragraph, second sentence:

Jesus also said, ~~“Allow Let the children to come to me, . . . Don’t forbid them, because and do not hinder them; for to such belongs the kingdom of heaven—belongs to people like these children”~~ (Matthew 19:14 NRSV).

Modify the fourth paragraph, first sentence:

The alarming increase in binge drinkers ~~18 to 20~~ 18-20 years old indicates that many college students in the United States ~~eon-tinue~~ continue to engage in binge drinking and drinking to get drunk, with a disturbing percentage of students reporting alcohol-related incidents, such as missing classes, personal injuries, sexual assault, or other forms of violence and vandalism.

Rationale:

Updated scriptural reference and minor edits.

Petition Number: 60458-CB-R3045-G; Henry-Crowe, Susan - Washington, DC, USA for General Board of Church and Society.

A Call to Action on Alcohol

Amend 3045. A Call to Action on Alcohol

Amend paragraph 1:

The Scriptures provide many dimensions to understanding the issue of alcohol. For example, Proverbs 23:20-21; and 29-32 (NRSV) illustrates the cautious attitude of Scripture with respect to alcohol: “Do not be among winebibbers, or among gluttonous eaters of meat; for the drunkard and the glutton will come to poverty, and drowsiness will clothe them with rags. . . . Who has woe? Who has sorrow? Who has strife? Who has complaining? Who has wounds without cause? Who has redness of eyes? Those who linger late over wine, those who keep trying mixed wines. Do not look at wine when it is red, when it sparkles in the cup and goes down smoothly. At the last it bites like a serpent, and stings like an adder.” ~~Don’t hang out with those who get drunk on wine or those who eat too much meat, because drunks and gluttons will be impoverished; their stupor will clothe them in rags . . . Who is suffering? Who is uneasy? Who has arguments? Who has complaints? Who has unnecessary wounds? Who has glazed eyes?— those who linger over wine; those who go looking for mixed wine. Don’t look at wine when it is red, when it sparkles in the cup, going down smoothly. In the end, it bites like a snake and poisons like an viper.”~~ On the other hand, Jesus affirmed the use of alcohol at the wedding in Cana (John 2:1-10, NRSV): “When the wine gave out, the mother of Jesus said to him, ‘They have no wine.’ . . . Jesus said to them, ‘Fill the jars with water.’ And they filled them up to the brim. . . . The steward tasted the water that had become wine . . . and said to him, . . . ‘you have kept the good wine until now.’” ~~When the wine ran out, Jesus’ mother said to him, ‘They don’t have any wine.’ . . . Jesus said to the servants, ‘Fill the jars with water,’ and they filled them to the brim. . . . The headwaiter tasted the water that had become wine . . . and said to [the groom], . . . ‘You kept the good wine until now.’”~~ The United Methodist Church is challenged to apply the ethical guidelines of Scripture to a contemporary culture in which alcoholic beverages play a prominent role, for which we pay a heavy price in both human and economic terms. Further, there is substantial evidence that patterns of casual alcohol use, problematic use, dependence and addiction are prevalent within our fellowship, and may be as prevalent among members of The United Methodist Church as they are in society at large.

Amend paragraph 3, sentence 1:

John Wesley, the founder of the Methodist Movement, was ~~vividly~~ keenly aware of the effects of drunkenness on individuals and families, including members of his own extended family, but was charitable to those individuals affected by alcohol in his culture.

Amend paragraph 3, sentence 2:

Christian discipleship, stewardship, and justice demand that we attend to the human and economic damage caused by high-risk consumption, recognizing the needs of our addicted brothers and sisters, whether they are within our ~~fellowship~~ denomination or outside of it; and fostering understanding and good will among people who are not addicted or in recovery and choose abstinence or scripture-led judicious use of alcohol.

Amend paragraph 3, sentence 3:

Our Social Principle, ¶ 162.L, and ~~several of the other~~ resolutions within the Book of Resolutions further explain our position on a variety of matters as it relates to alcohol.

Amend paragraph 4, sentence 1:

The Social Principles place emphasis on abstinence as “a faithful witness” and allow for persons to exercise reasonable discernment regarding “judicious use with deliberate and intentional restraint, with Scripture as a guide,” while at the same time encouraging us to “{assist} those who ~~are~~ have become dependent, and their families

Amend paragraph 5, sentence 3:

However, we acknowledge ~~that there are no substantive resources for individuals and local churches that explicate and interpret our position for~~ the complexity in interpreting our position of “judicious use with deliberate and intentional restraint, with Scripture as a guide” and foster dialogue between the two approaches to alcohol-abstinence and judicious use.

Amend paragraph 6, sentence 1:

The legacy of the Temperance Movement of an earlier century has been transformed by new social forces and scientific findings into a vigorous public health movement, with emphasis on alcohol policies and education that place individual responsibility in the context of social norms and practices and environmental factors that encourage or foster casual behavior and attitudes about alcohol.

Amend paragraph 11, sentence 2:

Furthermore, the alcohol industry has shown in many ways that it is far more interested in profits than in the health, safety and welfare of the people, more interested in expanding its customer base to ~~insure~~ ensure its economic viability, blaming its customers for alcohol-related problems, and refusing steadfastly to define what it means by “responsible drinking,” to the point that even their “responsibility” messages serve their own self-interests, attempting thereby to absolve themselves of corporate responsibility.

Amend paragraph 12, sentence 1:

Those who profit from the production, distribution, promotion, and sale of alcoholic beverages have been allowed to assume a privileged position in the formation of public policy and legislation at key governmental levels across the globe, at local through national and international levels, local, state, regional, and national levels, a degree of power and influence which has succeeded in dissuading the public, including the faith community, from taking appropriate action as citizens.

Amend paragraph 15, sentence 1:

The call for faith community leadership on this issue, leadership that transcends special economic interests and considers the public interest, leadership that pursues action rather than continued pronouncements; able and the critical need willing to challenge industry practices, ~~when others have a defeatist attitude and even in the face of the industry’s outsized influence on public health consider the industry invincible~~ in matters of social policy, public health and the common good is a critical need.

Amend paragraph 16, sentence 1:

Therefore, be it resolved, that the members of The United Methodist Church take a firm stand ~~to reduce~~ focused on reducing alcohol-related problems, not only as a personal matter, but as a concern for congregations, communities, regions, states, and nations, and communicate that it stands actively and effectively, rather than passively, through action and organizing to change the social norms; and

Paragraph 17, sentence 1:

Be it further resolved, that further education occur to close the gap in understanding between abstinence and addiction, using comprehensive theological and biblical analysis, be closed, using the entire Bible as our ethical guide, and that The United Methodist Church promote an ethic that is consistent with personal, spiritual and societal concern for health, safety and well-being; that such ethic be one that (a) accepts abstinence ~~in all situations~~; (b) accepts judicious consumption, with deliberate and intentional restraint, in low-risk situations; (c) actively discourages consumption for those under the age of 21; (d) actively discourages consumption in high-risk situations; and (e) actively discourages heavy consumption in all situations; and

Amend paragraph 20, sentence 1:

Be it further resolved, that the members of The United Methodist Church take action to reduce the domination of industry agenda on government and public health policy at all state and local levels and encourage our leaders and legislators to place the health and safety concerns ahead of profitability; and

Amend paragraph 21, sentence 1 and 2:

Be it further resolved, that The United Methodist Church support public policy proposals that would increase regulation across the globe. This includes strong world health policy and advocacy for strong alcohol regulation in under-regulated countries, supporting appropriate rates of fees and excise taxes paid by the industry in the U.S. to the various states for the privilege of selling beer, wine and spirits, with proceeds earmarked for the development of prevention, treatment and other measures to reduce alcohol-related problems; and

Paragraph 22, sentence 1:

Be it further resolved, that the General Board of Church and Society provide resources and materials to foster action, education, understanding, and dialogue regarding abstinence, judicious use, and addiction; to provide guidance to annual conferences; to work toward wholeness, compassion, reconciliation and healing, community, alternatives to incarceration and restorative justice; to give help and hope to those who feel helpless and hopeless; and to advise congregations on ways in which members can advocate for pro-health alcohol policies in public health policy at local, state, regional, and national all levels in our society.

Rationale:

Biblical and theological portions strengthened, and amendments make the resolution more global in application.

Eradicating Abusive Child Labor

Amend Resolution 3083.

Delete second paragraph and replace with the following:

However, throughout the world, childhood itself is under assault. Children in too many parts of the world must not only cope with warfare, famine, and pestilence at an early age, but are often denied childhood itself by being forced into labor under abusive and destructive conditions. According to the International Labour Organization, 168 million children around the world labor in work that is coerced, forced, bonded, enslaved, or otherwise unfair in wages, injurious to health and safety, and/or obstructive of educational or moral development. Over half of these children are involved in hazardous work, and 73 million of the world's child laborers are between the ages of 5 and 11. (<http://www.ilo.org/wcmsp5/groups/public/---ed_norm/---ipec/documents/publication/wcms_221894.pdf>)

Third paragraph first sentence change as follows:

WHEREAS, the majority of child labor is found in informal sectors of the world's poorest economies, a growing element in global competition is the employment of children in ~~developing country~~ export industries harvesting crops such as coffee, tea, cocoa, vegetables, seafood, and fruit; mining and shaping raw goods, such as gemstones, leather, gold, silver, and diamonds; and making products such as garments, leather goods, brassware and glassware, jewelry, and hand-knotted carpets for sale on the international market. As many as 300,000 South Asian children between the ages of 4 and 14 are kidnapped, trafficked, or sold into bondage in the hand-knotted carpet industry.

Third paragraph insert sentence after second sentence:

In the Democratic Republic of Congo, children make up 40 percent of the 2 million people working in artisanal mines, where children use their bare hands to dig, wash, and lift minerals and are at high risk of injury or death due to soil collapses and other incidents (<http://thecnnfreedomproject.blogs.cnn.com/2013/06/26/child-miners-face-death-for-tech>/<http://thecnnfreedomproject.blogs.cnn.com/2013/06/26/child-miners-face-death-for-tech>).

Amend end of fourth paragraph:

"Children working in agriculture in the US represent only 8 percent of the population of working minors, yet account for 40 percent of work-related fatalities among minors. An estimated 100,000 children suffer agriculture-related injuries annually in the United States." In addition to agriculture, mining, and manufacturing, child labor and trafficking are also prevalent in numerous other industries, including domestic service, hotels, restaurants, retail, military, drug manufacturing and sale, and commercial sex. (For further information on child labor around the globe, visit <<http://www.ilo.org/global/topics/child-labour/lang--en/index.htm>>.

<<http://www.un.org/en/events/childlabourday/background.shtml>>, <<http://www.globalmarch.org>>, <<http://stopchildlabor.org>>, <https://www.continuetolearn.uiowa.edu/laborctr/child_labor/about/>

Amend fifth paragraph:

The United Nations and the International Labor Organization (ILO) have established universal principles to protect children from such abuse, including the UN International ~~Covenant~~ Convention on the Rights of the Child and the ILO Convention No. 138 for Minimum Age for Admission to Work. ~~These international conventions have been ratified by many countries, but not including the United States. Somalia and the United States have not ratified the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child (http://www.unicef.org/crc/index_30229.html), and eighteen countries have still not ratified Convention No. 138 (According to the International Labor Organization, the countries that have not ratified Convention No. 138 for Minimum Age for Admission to Work are as follows: Australia, Bangladesh, Canada, India, Islamic Republic of Iran, Liberia, Marshall Islands, Mexico, Myanmar,~~

New Zealand, Palau, Saint Lucia, Somalia, Suriname, Timor-Leste, Tuvalu, United States, Vanuatu). The United States has ratified ILO Convention No. 182 concerning the Prohibition and Immediate Action for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor.

Amend item two under call to The United Methodist Church:

2. to work to eradicate the evils of child labor ~~through encouraging the appropriate agencies and units to join with the Child Labor Coalition , a broad-based coalition of medical, welfare, religious, consumer, labor, and human-rights organizations in the United States (The Child Labor Coalition is a broad-based coalition of medical, welfare, religious, consumer, labor, and human-rights organizations in the United States);~~

Amend item three:

3. to join the Education Campaign of the Global March Against Child Labour ~~, a movement to mobilize worldwide efforts to protect and promote the rights of all children, especially the right to receive a free meaningful education and to be free from economic exploitation and from performing any work that is likely to be harmful to the child's physical, mental, spiritual, moral, or social development (Global March Against Child Labour is a movement to mobilize worldwide efforts to protect and promote the rights of all children, especially the right to receive a free meaningful education and to be free from economic exploitation and from performing any work that is likely to be harmful to the child's physical, mental, spiritual, moral, or social development);-~~

Amend item four:

4. to support consumer initiatives such as the RUG-MARK campaign, which ~~was established by a coalition of nongovernmental organizations, businesses, government entities, and multilateral groups such as UNICEF to labels and markets oriental carpets made without exploited child labor (RUGMARK was established by a coalition of nongovernmental organizations, businesses, government entities, and multilateral groups such as UNICEF. Amend item seven:

7. to work toward the reform of local, regional, and national United States labor laws to provide better protection of farm workers' rights and to bring child labor restrictions into conformity with international standards.

Rationale:

Revisions enhance current language with references, statistics and examples from around the world.

Child Soldiers

Amend Resolution 3085

Insert a new first sentence in the third paragraph:

The use of children as soldiers is abhorrent and unacceptable.

Amend fourth paragraph, second subparagraph, second sentence:

Some ~~€~~children as young as 8 years of age, however, are being forcibly recruited, coerced and induced to become combatants.

Delete first sentence of sixth paragraph:

~~The use of children as soldiers is abhorrent and unacceptable.~~

Insert new subparagraph at end of sixth paragraph:

Encourage partnership and collaboration among international organizations, including faith-based groups that monitor governments and armed groups in the recruitment and mobilization of children for military purposes, and ensuring adherence to international norms and agreements prohibiting child soldiers.

Rationale:

The amendment introduces a new sentence to this more than a decade-old resolution. The amendment reinforces global cooperation in ensuring adherence to international norms and agreements that prohibit recruitment and mobilization of children as soldiers.

The Girl Child

Amend and Readopt Resolution 3089 - The Girl Child

WHEREAS, The United Methodist Church affirms the rights of children and of women and recognizes that "children are now acknowledged to be full human beings in their own right, but beings to whom adults and society in general have special obligations." Moreover that, "children have the rights to food, shelter, clothing, health care, and emotional well-being, as do adults." And "In particular, children must be protected from economic, physical, emotional, and sexual exploitation and abuse." And that women are affirmed as equal to men "in every aspect of their common life" (Social Principles ¶ 162.C, F <<https://www.umofficialresources.com/reader/9781426766213/>>); and

WHEREAS, there are challenges faced by all children, but there are also challenges that are unique to girls; and

WHEREAS, although girlhood should be a time of growth and learning as the girls of today develop into the women of tomorrow, for millions of girls it is a time of perilous dangers; and

WHEREAS, in many societies, girls are not as valued as boys are; from the time of birth, ~~in many societies~~. Girls everywhere may often have limited opportunities in education, training, and employment. In addition many face dangerous practices, such as female genital mutilation/cutting (FGM/C) (United Nations Children's Fund, 2014) and child marriage that often lead to psychological trauma, infection by sexually transmitted diseases, and frequent pregnancies, jeopardizing their health and economic well-being. Furthermore, many girls are forced into hazardous and exploitative work situations, while bearing most if not all the burden of housework at home; and

WHEREAS, according to ~~R~~reports from the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), the UNESCO Institute for Statistics, the Educations for All Global Monitoring Report (EFA GMR), and the International Labour Organization (ILO):

1. ~~D~~ecades after commitments and reaffirmations of those commitments have been made to ensure a quality education for every child, an estimated 31—some 17 million children, among them 62 million girls of primary school age and 24 million girls of lower secondary school age are still denied this right (UNESCO Institute for Statistics and Education for All Global Monitoring Report, 2014);

2. The ILO the International Labour Organization estimates that ~~352~~ 168 million children, or ~~23~~ 11 percent of all children between ~~5~~ five and ~~17~~ seventeen years of age, are engaged in child labor. were economically active in the year 2000. About half Many of these children are estimated to do work that is likely to harm their health, safety, or moral development (United Nations Children's Fund, 2014);

3. Given its hidden nature, it is impossible to have reliable figures on how many children are globally exploited as domestic workers. According to the ILO, though, more girl-children under ~~16~~ sixteen are in domestic service than in any other category of child ~~labour~~ labor. Common risks children face in domestic service are: long and tiring working days, use of toxic chemicals, carrying heavy loads, handling dangerous items, such as knives, axes and hot pans, insufficient or inadequate food and accommodations, and humiliating or degrading treatment, including physical and verbal violence, and sexual abuse (International Labour Organization, 2012);

4. It is estimated that more than 130 million girls and women alive today have undergone FGM/C, primarily in Africa and, to a lesser extent, in some Middle Eastern countries ~~in the Middle East~~ (United Nations Children's Fund, 2014);

5. ~~pregnancy-related deaths are known to be a leading cause of mortality for both married and unmarried girls between the ages of 15 and 19, particularly among the youngest of this cohort. More than 700 million girls and young women worldwide were married before reaching age eighteen resulting in high risk pregnancies/death in childbirth, lack of support, fewer educational opportunities, and increased vulnerability to sexually transmitted diseases such as HIV~~ (United Nations Children's Fund, 2014);

6. ~~Young people are at the center of the HIV/AIDS epidemic. In 2012, more than 300,000 adolescents between the ages of ten and nineteen were newly infected. About half of all new HIV infections worldwide are in young people aged 15-24. Adolescent girls and young women are especially vulnerable to HIV, and account for 60 percent of all HIV-positive young people. Of the 40 million young people living with HIV/AIDS, 6.2 million are young women and 3.9 million are young men. In some countries, they are two to three times more likely to be infected than their male counterparts of the same age~~ (UNICEF Statistics, 2015); and

WHEREAS, "The achievement of goals for children, particularly for girls, will be advanced if women fully enjoy all human rights and fundamental freedoms, including the right to development, are empowered to participate fully and equally in all spheres of society and are protected and free from all forms of violence, abuse and discrimination. We are determined to eliminate all forms of discrimination against the girl child throughout her life cycle and to provide special attention to her needs in order to promote and protect all her human rights, including the right to be free from coercion . . ." ("~~A World Fit for Children~~" United Nations) (United Nations General Assembly, 2002); and

WHEREAS, we have a special concern toward underserved populations, including indigenous children and children in isolated communities, The United Methodist Church has a history of supporting work with children, including girl children, through the advocacy work of ~~United Methodist Women~~ the Women's Division, the General Board of Global Ministries and the General Board of Church and Society;

Therefore, be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church, in accordance with the recommendations of the Report of the Expert Group meeting organized by the United Nations Division for the Advancement of Women in collaboration with UNICEF, calls on local churches, conferences, general agencies, ~~and~~ church-related organizations, parents, and individuals where appropriate, to:

1) give priority and active support to the empowerment of girls in all aspects of life and include girls in the design of programs and projects to ensure that their specific needs are reflected and addressed;

2) ensure girls' access to youth centers and other youth-specific initiatives, including age and sex-specific spaces and activities;

3) use the home visits that are part of health and child health initiatives to identify girls at risk of child marriage, out-of-school girls, girls living apart from their parents, and girls in other social conditions that are often associated with lack of immunization and elevated risk of sexual coercion and labor exploitation;

4) combine social and health promotion activities within maternal and child health initiatives to prioritize reaching the youngest, first time child-brides and child mothers;

5) develop financial literacy and microfinance (including savings and credit) programs for girls that are targeted specifically to age, sex, marital status, life cycle and context needs;

6) develop strategies and action plans to build girls' stakes in their societies and to recognize and acknowledge their rights and citizenship at an earlier age, ideally close to puberty when specific risks often undermine the rights of adolescent girls;

7) develop strategies and action plans to encourage and foster a healthy family ~~environment~~ environment and provide parental education when needed; and

8) support public education programs and spaces for girls to, for example, carry out national level consultations, essay contests, and national media events that include the voices of girls and boys in questioning gender inequalities.

Affirming Diverse Languages in U.S.

Amend Resolution 3121 as follows:

The United States is a ~~land~~ country whose inhabitants are enriched by diverse traditions, languages, and cultures. While English is the most commonly used or "primary" language of the country, ~~there have always been other languages present throughout the history of the nation. other languages present throughout the history have been used~~ throughout its history. For example, Native American languages and Spanish were spoken when the first English colonists arrived.

Throughout that same history, however, there have been various efforts to prescribe the use of English and to proscribe the use of other languages. These efforts sometimes resulted in legislation that had the effect of legalizing discrimination against various language minority groups, as was the case for German, Swedish, French, Greek, and Italian immigrants who came to this country in great numbers during the nineteenth century. However, Such legislative attempts were eventually overcome by the constitutional principles of equal rights for all. The acknowledgment of English as the primary language of the United States should not deny the right and contribution of other languages or the inherent right of people to retain and speak their mother tongues native language.

One particular area of concern is the attempt to remove bilingual education. The attempt to remove bilingual education is one particular area of concern. Education has played a very important role in the development of this nation. Access to a sound education is considered inalienable rights of all children in the United States. Bilingual education has been and ~~is~~ continues to be a critical tool to ensure these rights for non-English-speaking children living now in the United States ~~of America~~. It has been an instrument of education to allow children to make the transition from their native ~~tongues~~ languages while at the same time staying at the level correspondent to their age. Bilingual education works. ~~There are~~ Students who learned English in bilingual classrooms and who continue to achieve to the highest of academic and professional standards are living examples of bilingual education successes.

~~In recent years,~~ Over the years, there have been ~~renewed~~ consistent efforts to make English the official language of the ~~nation~~ United States. Notwithstanding unsuccessful attempts to pass a constitutional amendment, there have been concerted efforts to bring the same policy to state and local levels. ~~We are concerned that~~ The movement to constitutionally declare English...

~~The English-only~~ This movement is another manifestation of the systemic racism that has infected this country for generations. It blames the deterioration of the American fabric on immigration and the use of languages other than English; contends that the nation's unity rests upon the use of an official language; and defines multiculturalism and multilingualism as "anti-unity." If successful, this movement could result in further discrimination against and segregation of the racial and ethnic populations of the United States. Consequently, essential information such as: 1) numbers for the 911 emergency, hospital emergency rooms, police, firefighters; and 2) medical and legal forms, language services, bilingual education, and language interpreters in the judicial system might be denied.

As Christians, we believe . . .

We believe that our nation ~~needs to~~ should take advantage maximize the rich contributions that the ethnic/language groups bring to this country by preserving those languages and encouraging ~~North Americans~~ people living within the United States to learn other languages.

We believe . . .

Therefore, be it resolved, that ~~the General Conference shall:~~

~~1. express in writing to the President of the United States, its support for practices and policies that permit provision of information in languages appropriate to the residents of communities and its opposition to the movement that seeks to make English the only language of the United States, which movement is discriminatory and racist;~~

~~2. forward this resolution to members of Congress, governors, and the legislatures of fifty states and territories;~~

~~3. comment this resolution to all United States annual conferences for the promotion and interpretation within annual conferences; and~~

1. the Council of Bishops, annual conferences and members of local churches contact their local, state, and federal representatives urging support for practices and policies that permit provision of information in languages appropriate to the residents of communities and opposition to any movement that seeks to make English the only language of the United States;

and

2. ask the General Board of Church and Society to make this resolution an urgent item in their agenda for lobbying, constituency education, and advocacy

Rationale:

The United States is a country enriched by diverse traditions, languages, and cultures. The acknowledgment of English as the primary language of the United States should not deny the contribution of other languages or the inherent right of people to retain and speak their native languages.

New Developments in Genetic Science

Delete current text and replace with the following:

I. Foreword

The ethical implications of new developments in genetic science continue to make themselves known as new aspects of the technology are introduced in medicine, agriculture, and forensic science.

The 1988 General Conference approved a statement affirming the positive prospects and warning of the potential dangers of genetic technologies and authorized the establishment of a Genetic Science task force to:

1. review and assess scientific developments in genetics and their implications for all life;
2. take initiatives with industrial, governmental, and educational institutions involved in genetic engineering to discuss further projections and possible impact;
3. convey to industry and government the sense of urgency to protect the environment as well as animal and human life;
4. support a moratorium on animal patenting until the task force has explored the ethical issues involved;
5. cooperate with other churches, faith groups, and ecumenical bodies sharing similar concerns;
6. explore the effects of the concentration of genetic engineering research tasks and applications in a few crops; and
7. recommend to the 1992 General Conference such further responses and actions as may be deemed appropriate.

II. Our Theological Grounding

The United Methodist doctrinal/theological statement affirms that “new issues continually arise that summon us to fresh theological inquiry. Daily we are presented with an array of concerns that challenge our proclamation of God’s reign over all of human existence” (1988 Book of Discipline, ¶ 69, p. 87).

One of the concerns that merits critique in light of theological understandings is genetic science. The urgent task of interpreting the faith in light of the biotechnology revolution and evaluating the rapidly emerging genetic science and technology has only begun. The issues demand continuing dialogue at all levels of the church as persons from diverse perspectives seek to discern and live out God’s vision for creation.

The following affirmations provide the theological/doctrinal foundation of the task force’s work and recommendations. The task force urges the whole church to join in the urgent task of theological inquiry in what has been called the genetic age.

A. All creation belongs to God the creator

Creation has its origin, existence, value, and destiny in God. Creation belongs to God, whose power and grace bring the cosmos out of nothingness, order out of chaos, and life out of death. Creation is a realm of divine activity as God continually seeks to bring healing, wholeness, and peace. The goodness of our genetic diversity is grounded in our creation by God.

B. Human beings are stewards of creation

While human beings share with other species the limitations of finite creatures who owe their existence to God, their special creation “in the image of God” gives them the freedom and authority to exercise stewardship responsibly.

The image of God, in which humanity is created, confers both power and responsibility to use power as God does: neither by coercion nor tyranny, but by love. Failure to accept limits by rejecting or ignoring accountability to God and interdependency with the whole of creation is the essence of sin. Although the pursuit of knowledge is a divine gift, it must be used appropriately with the principle of accountability to God and to the human community and the sustainability of all creation.

C. Technology in service to humanity and God

God has given human beings the capacity for research and technological invention, but the worship of science is idolatry. Genetic techniques have enormous potential for sustaining creation and, for some, improving the quality of human life when they are applied to environmental, agricultural, and medical problems. When wisely used, they often provide positive, though limited and imperfect, solutions to such perplexing social problems as insufficient food supply, spread of disease, ecological deterioration, overpopulation, and human disease. When used recklessly, for greedy profit, or for calculated improvement of the human race (eugenics), genetic technology becomes corrupted by sin. Moreover, we recognize that even the careful use of genetic technologies for good ends may lead to unintended consequences. We confess that even our intended consequences may not be in the best interest of all.

D. From creation to redemption and salvation

Redemption and salvation become realities by divine grace as we respond in faith to God’s action in Jesus Christ to defeat the powers of sin that enslave the human spirit and thwart the realization of God’s purposes for creation. Having distorted God’s good intention for us in creation, we now are called to be conformed to God’s true image in Jesus Christ.

The community of Christ bears witness to the truth that all persons have unity by virtue of having been redeemed by Christ. Such unity respects and embraces genetic diversity, which accounts for many differences among people. Love and justice, which the Scriptures uplift and which Jesus Christ supremely expresses, require that the worth and dignity of the defenseless be preserved and protected.

III. Issues in the Development of Genetic Research and Technology

A. Genetic science affects every area of our lives

The food we eat, the health care we receive, how crimes are prosecuted, our biological traits, and the environment in which we live are all affected by research and developments in genetic science. As stewards of and participants in life and its resources, we seek to understand, to evaluate, and to utilize responsibly the emerging genetic technologies in accordance with our finite understanding of God's purposes for creation. The uses of genetic science have the potential for promoting as well as thwarting these aspects of the divine purpose.

The rapid growth of genetic science has increased our awareness of these concerns, has created new concerns, and has accelerated the theological, ethical, and pastoral challenges that genetics poses to persons of faith.

B. Scientific change now leads societal change

A major dimension of the biological revolution is genetic science. Fewer than fifty years ago, the actual genetic substance of living cells, DNA, was firmly identified. Now, altering DNA in plants and animals, even humans, in order to correct disorders or to introduce characteristics that are more desirable is being done. Genetic developments in medicine and agriculture promise to alter the very nature of society, the natural environment, and even human nature.

C. Genetic science challenges society

Extensive research has been conducted in plant and animal genetics, with significant implications for the food supply, farm policy, agricultural economics, and ecological balance. New developments in genetic engineering, collectively called, synthetic biology are allowing the re-engineering of whole organisms. Bioengineers have "printed out" from computers linked vials of nucleic acids of DNA and RNA, whole viruses and bacteria using these synthetic biology tools. These enhanced kinds of genetic engineering are already being used to make new drugs and new foods (See "Principles for the Oversight of Synthetic Biology" available at: <http://www.synbiowatch.org/2013/05/principles-for-the-oversight-of-synthetic-biology/>). Delays in commercializing some of the new technologies may afford society and the church additional time to address the implications, but the time available for serious reflection on the consequences of these technologies prior to their implementation is brief.

IV. Questions about Biotechnology

Although genetic technologies are similar to other technologies, genetic science and technology force us to examine, as never before, the meaning of life, our understanding of ourselves as humans, and our proper role in God's creation.

Several basic questions can provide a framework within which to evaluate the effect of genetics or any other new technology on any segment of society. The questions revolve around issues of appropriateness, availability, efficacy, and accessibility.

V. The Patenting of Life Forms

The patenting of life forms is a crucial issue in the debate over access to genetic technologies. Some claim that patenting of life will give complete control to the owner and so limit access. Others insist that the scientists and funding agencies or institutions must have some return on their investment. A compromise that many societies have worked out in order to provide economic returns for those who have developed a technology while providing access, eventually, to the entire society is the patent or exclusive control of a technological invention for a period of years.

In 1984, the General Conference of The United Methodist Church declared genes to be a part of the common heritage of all peoples. Therefore, exclusive ownership rights of genes, organisms, and cells as a means of making genetic technologies accessible raises serious theological concerns and profound ethical concerns. While patents on organisms, cells, and genes themselves are opposed, process patents—wherein the method for engineering a new organism is patented—provide a means of economic return on investment while avoiding exclusive ownership of the organism and can be supported. In 2013, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that genes are not patentable subject matter, but still allowed copies of the genes to be patented (http://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/12pdf/12-398_1b7d.pdf).

VI. Recommendations

A. Medical implications

1. Testing and treatment

a. We support the right of all persons to health care and health-care resources regardless of their genetic or medical conditions.

b. We support equal access to medical resources, including genetic testing and genetic counseling by appropriately educated and trained health-care professionals.

c. We support human somatic gene therapies (recombinant DNA therapies that produce genetic changes in an individual that cannot be passed to offspring) that prevent or minimize disease and its effects. But we believe these therapies should be limited to the alleviation of suffering caused by disease. We are concerned by reports of deaths of patients in somatic-gene research programs and urge that strengthened guidelines and government regulations be developed for the use of all somatic gene therapies. We oppose human germ-line therapies (those that result in changes that can be passed to offspring) because of the possibility of unintended consequences and of abuse. We are concerned that both the U.S. and the United Kingdom are considering approving the first experiments that would deliberately change the DNA of a human embryo. With current technology it is not possible to know if artificially introduced genes will have unexpected or delayed long-term effects not identifiable until the genes have been dispersed in the population.

Furthermore, we urge that government regulations and professional organization guidelines be developed and effectively implemented for all gene therapies. Given the reports of deaths from somatic gene therapies and the development of genetically engineered leukemia in some patients undergoing somatic-gene therapy, we urge a careful reexamination of the appropriateness of this therapy.

d. We call on all nations to ban human cloning (the intentional production of genetically identical or essentially identical human beings and human embryos), whether such cloning is funded privately or through government research.

e. We call for a ban on medical and research procedures that intentionally generate “waste embryos” that will knowingly be destroyed when the medical procedure or the research is completed. The exception to this is when ova (eggs) are being collected for in vitro fertilization. A woman is at risk for complications each time drugs are given to stimulate ovulation and ova are removed. Obtaining and fertilizing multiple ova may be justified to avoid the necessity of multiple attempts to obtain ova. The first attempt at IVF results in a living child less than 30% of the time thus making multiple attempts necessary.

2. Privacy and confidentiality of genetic information

a. We support the privacy of genetic information. Genetic data of individuals and their families shall be kept secret and held in strict confidence unless confidentiality is waived by the individual or his or her family, or unless the collection and use of genetic identification data are supported by an appropriate court order.

b. We support wide public access to genetic data that do not identify particular individuals, but we oppose using genetic data gathered for purposes other than that to which consent was given.

c. We oppose the discriminatory or manipulative use of genetic information, such as limiting, terminating, or denying insurance or employment.

B. Agricultural implications

1. We support public involvement in initiating, evaluating, regulating, and funding of agricultural genetic research.

a. We believe the public has an important policy and financial role in ensuring the continuation of research that further the goal of a safe, nutritious, and affordable food supply.

b. We believe that the public should have input into whether a research effort, or its products, will serve an unmet need in food, fuel, fiber production and processing.

c. We believe that the benefits of research applications should accrue to the broadest possible public, including farmers and consumers.

2. We urge that genetically modified crops and genetically engineered or cloned animal products be fully tested as new food stuff, and that they be labeled so that consumers have a choice in which kind of agricultural products they buy.

C. Environmental implications

1. As stewards of the planet Earth, we should be concerned not only with the well-being of humans, but also with the wholeness of the rest of creation.

2. We urge that genetically engineered organisms be released into the environment only after careful testing in a controlled setting that simulates each environment in which the organisms are to be used.

3. We urge the development of criteria and methodologies to anticipate and assess possible adverse environmental responses to the release of genetically engineered organisms.

4. Prior to the release of each organism, plans and procedures should be developed to destroy genetically engineered organisms that may cause adverse environmental responses.

VII. What the Church Can Do

1. We request that clergy be trained to provide pastoral counseling for persons with genetic disorders and their families as well as those facing difficult choices as a result of genetic testing. These choices might include decisions such as those related to reproduction, employment, and living wills. Churches are encouraged to provide support groups for individuals and families affected by genetic disorders.

2. We call on the church to support persons who must make difficult decisions regarding genetic information related to reproduction. We urge that the church support efforts to improve the quality of genetic testing on embryos and fetuses so that accurate information is provided to couples and their doctors about genetic conditions. We reaffirm the United Methodist position opposing the termination of pregnancy solely for the purpose of gender selection (2012 United Methodist Book of Discipline ¶ 161.J).

3. We urge theological seminaries to include courses and continuing education events that equip clergy to address theological and ethical issues raised by scientific research and technology.

4. We urge the church to establish and maintain dialogue with those persons working to develop or promote genetics-based technologies, including especially those working in the fields of synthetic biology. The ethical concerns of the church need to be injected into the laboratory, the factory, and the halls of government in an ongoing manner.

5. Produce resources to educate on genetics science, theology and ethics, including workshops, seminars and resource materials. General agencies of the church should develop additional interpretive resources on genetics issues.

Delete “The New Eugenics” section

~~The New Eugenics~~

~~The new eugenics is not so much the negative eugenics of state coercion or the oldest positive eugenics of better baby contests, but rather the eugenics made possible by the emerging biotechnology sciences, such as Preimplantation Genetic Diagnosis. Parents, not the state are the new eugenicists. They, as never before, are confronted with choices about which children they should have based on an incomplete science pointing to the genetic links of many conditions. Preimplantation Genetic Diagnosis (PGD) is only one of many emerging genetic and reproductive technologies in need of broad public discussion and regulation,~~ but we view PGD as a gateway technology. PGD, if permitted to continue unregulated, could pave the way to new eugenics, where children are literally selected and eventually designed according to a parent's desires and fears.

Recent rapid developments in PGD indicate that we are stumbling down a slippery slope toward this future, rendering a policy response an urgent matter. Finally, unfettered developments of PGD applications in the US attest to the general failure of the US policy regarding genetic and reproductive technologies. This policy failure must be corrected if we are to prevent a new eugenics in the US and abroad. Germany, Austria, Ireland, Switzerland, and Southwest Australia have banned PGD outright. Other nations, including the United Kingdom, France, the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy, and Greece have limited the use of PGD. Even in the US, until recently, PGD was used exclusively for medical purposes. Today, two thirds of the fertility clinics in the world offering PGD are in the US. Some clinics are blatantly performing PGD for selection.¹⁰ Many other clinics have used PGD to avoid late-onset diseases like Alzheimer's and recently breast cancer. A growing number of couples are using PGD to select an embryo that would grow into a child intended to be a tissue match for its sibling. None of these applications was subject to formal regulatory review or public deliberation prior to their use. In the case of sex selection, the practice specifically violates the voluntary guidelines of the American Society of Reproductive Medicine.¹¹

The US lack of regulation has resulted in advocates of expanded PGD in other countries to push for more permissiveness abroad. Some of the advocates, including Robert Edwards, who in 1977 performed the first successful IVF procedure in humans, explicitly promote the new eugenic approach. Edwards has predicted that "Soon it will be a sin for parents to have a child which carries the heavy burden of genetic disease. We are entering a world where we have to consider the quality of our children."¹² Today, thirty years after the birth of Louise Brown from Edward's IVF technique, more than one million children have been born from the process of IVF. The parallel development of genetic testing has resulted into the merger of genetic testing and assisted reproduction into preimplantation genetic diagnosis (PGD). Parents can now choose which of their embryos to implant in the mother's womb based on the outcome of more than 1000 genetic tests that potentially could be performed on the embryos. These tests at present only indicate probabilities for most conditions. We lack an adequate understanding of how the 98 percent of the human genome that is not made up of genes affects the genes that we can measure. The church needs to help its members sort through the implications of this new information that will never be complete. The overt racism of the eugenic campaigns of the last century is no longer acceptable in today's civic square or pulpits, but the impetus toward eugenics remains. Controlling the reproduction of the social body and individual bodies, controlling the quality and quantity of the next generation in order to form a more perfect union—these impulses remain part of culture. The church needs to remind its members that as Christians we are called to stand apart from culture and rejoice that our identity comes from being 'adopted' by Christ and where we are all welcomed as children of God regardless of our genetic makeup. Matthew in the opening of his Gospel (Matthew 1:1-16) reminds us that in Jesus' earthly family were not just Jews, but also four Gentile women. As Christians, we are not called because of our genetic identity; we are not called to reengineer our bodies or those of our children, or destroy those different from us, but rather to follow Christ.

Health Care for All in the United States

Delete current text and replace with the following:

Theological and Historical Statement

From our earliest days United Methodists have believed that providing health care to others is an important duty of Christians. John Wesley found ways to offer medical services at no cost to the poor in London. The first Methodist Social Creed (adopted in 1908) urged working conditions to safeguard the health of workers and community.

The provision of health care for all without regard to status or ability to pay is portrayed in the parable of the good Samaritan (Luke 10:24-35) as the duty of every neighbor and thus of every person. In a conversation that began with the question of how one might obtain eternal life, Jesus asserted that one must love God and one's neighbor. In response to the next question as to who one's neighbor is, Jesus portrayed a Samaritan, an outsider, who, coming upon a wounded traveler, provided him with health care. Jesus portrayed the duty to provide health care as (1) one that is owed regardless of the merit or ethnicity of the person in need; (2) one that is owed to the limit of one's economic capacity—the Samaritan told the innkeeper, "Take care of him, and when I return, I will pay you back for any additional costs" (v. 35); and (3) a duty that one neglects at the peril of one's eternal life. In a democracy, where citizens govern, our duty to our neighbor merges with the duties that the Hebrew Scriptures assign to government: The prophet Ezekiel denounced the leaders of ancient Israel whose failure of responsible government included failure to provide health care: "You don't strengthen the weak, heal the sick, bind up the injured, bring back the strays, or seek out the lost; but instead you use force to rule them with injustice" (Ezekiel 34:4). The United Methodist Church therefore affirms in our Social Principles (§ 162.V) health care as a basic human right, and affirms the duty of government to assure health care for all.

In the United States today, however, despite the passage and implementation of the Affordable Care Act, fulfillment of this duty is thwarted by simultaneous crises of access, quality, and cost. The result of these crises is injustice to the most vulnerable, increased risk to health care consumers, and waste of scarce public and private resources.

Access Barriers Are an Injustice to the Most Vulnerable

In today's United States, health-care access is continues to be disproportionately afforded to the affluent, the employees of government and large corporations, the very poor, and many receiving adequate pensions plus Medicare. While numbers of Americans have now obtained through the Affordable Care Act (ACA) insurance they previously could not access, uneven application of the law from state to state means that many continue to be uninsured. Lack of health-care access affects minorities disparately, and the results of the devastating expense of a long-term or terminal illness, inadequate care in general, and the extraordinary cost of insurance all contribute to keeping many minorities in the poverty cycle, dependent on welfare and other forms of assistance, and imprisoned in struggling and dangerous communities. Disparities in access lead to disparities in treatment. The poor, the aging, women, children, people with disabilities, and persons of color are most at risk. The infant mortality rate in the United States is the worst among the "developed" countries. African-American women die from cervical cancer at three times the rate of Caucasian women. African Americans have a significantly lower life span than Caucasians, and Hispanics have the least access to the health-care system of any group. Native Americans, besides suffering greatly from alcoholism, have a substantially higher diabetes and tuberculosis rate than average U.S. rates. Recent immigrants who experience health problems find the health-care system poorly equipped to meet their needs. We believe it is unconscionable and abhorrent that any human being should ever be denied access to adequate health care due to economic, racial, or class barriers (United States Bureau of the Census, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and US Department of Health and Human Services—Office of Minority Health).

Quality Issues Put All Patients at Risk

In the United States, the provision of health care has been transformed from a ministry to a commercial commodity measured in patient encounters, tests performed, medications dispensed, and beds filled. In the process, quality of care suffers as the primary concern is often cost, not care. The physician-patient relationship is thereby compromised. Insurance companies in their efforts to reduce costs seek to control physicians' practice of medicine, thereby interfering with the physician-patient relationship. As a result, medical decisions are often made with primary consideration for the costs to the corporation, not for the optimum health of the patient. In the current climate physicians who prescribe treatments or tests not preapproved by the insurance corporation face severe financial penalties or other disincentives to optimum patient care. Physician time is consumed with excessive paperwork, malpractice suits, and inadequate government programs (SOURCE 2 The Directives of the American Medical Association House of Delegates address these issues at each meeting).

The American claim-based system produces enormous administrative burdens as well as denial of needed care. When claims are not denied by policy, they are often denied by the sheer burden of bureaucracy that must be overcome to obtain approvals. It has been estimated that today's physician spends about one-third of his or her time satisfying these insurance company regulations and seeking approvals for treatment, time the physician could be spending with patients. Competition for premium dollars and concern for high profits have taken priority over necessary care at actual cost. It is evident that private insurance companies are prone to deny claims while continuing to receive premiums, favoring higher profit over the "health and wholeness" of the weakened, the worried, and the sick. These same companies want to limit a patient's right to sue in civil court when the company breaches its own contract to provide benefits, regardless of the suffering or death a benefit denial may cause.

In these types of cases a benefit denial is tantamount to medical malpractice. Care Management has often been taken over by funding agencies rather than physicians. Managed care companies, HMOs, PPOs, and the like, interfere with the physician's ability to develop comprehensive treatment plans for his or her patients. They require that a decision be made by the corporation about treatment cost and efficacy. Medical decisions are in effect made by persons much less qualified than the patient's physician or the specialist a physician may recommend. In fact, persons with little or no medical training often make those decisions. Many insurance companies hire nurses to review the physicians' diagnoses and treatment plans. While it is unusual for nurses to oversee doctors, it is also evident that these nurses have had no contact with the patient under review.

Hospitals are required to provide uncompensated care. As a result, patients who are unable to pay for small primary care bills are able to incur large hospital bills when their untreated illness has become life-threatening. In 2008, the estimated cost of uncompensated care included in each individual policy was $368, and in each family policy was $1051 (Hidden Health Tax: America Pays a Premium. Families USA). Hospitals can no longer stay financially sound under existing policies.

Hospital staffing, due to cost concerns, imposes burdens on patient care that compromises quality, issues reflected in unhappy staff and increased numbers of union complaints and strikes in recent years. Error rates due to overwork and other factors are a crisis; the Institute of Medicine estimates that 100,000 persons die in American hospitals each year as a result of medical errors.

Spiraling Costs Waste Scarce Resources

Per capita health care costs in the United States are more than twice the median level for the thirty industrialized nations in the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development. The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services have calculated that in 2012 health-care expenditures in the United States reached $2.8 trillion (Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, Office of the Actuary, National Health Statistics Group).

While some of the escalating costs of health care can be attributed to advances in technology and the aging of the population, a very significant part is due to the nature of America's health insurance market, in which:

Today's physician spends one third or more of his or her time satisfying insurance requirements and seeking approvals for service.

Multiple insurance companies, programs, coverage, claims processes, create confusion, duplication, and unnecessary administrative costs. It has been estimated that the cost of administration of Medicare is 4 percent to 5 percent of its budget, while the Affordable Care Act limits a private company's budget for administration and profit to 20 percent. Health-care provision is managed by a massive bureaucratic complex: more than fifty state and state-level Medicaid systems, the Department of Veterans Affairs, the Railroad Employees insurance program, Indian Health Service, federal and state employee systems, health care for retired military personnel, Medicare and countless programs of the various private insurance companies: HMOs, PPOs, Medicare Supplemental Plans, etc. These entities rarely communicate in similar terms: neither to patients, to physicians, or to hospitals, thereby complicating efforts of providers and patients to properly file and receive payments on legitimate claims.

Premium increases are driven by requirements to show a profit rather than rises in actual costs of treatment. High premiums to support the high profit margins of private health insurance companies force people to choose between health insurance and sustenance, housing, or other needs of a family, making even basic health insurance too expensive for an average individual or family. High co-payments and uncovered costs lead to significant impoverishment.

Costs are shifted to the consumer through increasing deductibles and co-payments for care.

Despite the ACA, large numbers of personal bankruptcies continue to be are now the result of illness. In 2013 such bankruptcies affected nearly 2 million Americans.

Despite the increased prevalence of health insurance, a study estimated that in 2013 about 56 million adults—more than 20 percent of the population between 19 and 64—would struggle with health-care related bills (Dan Mangan, "Medicare Bills are the Biggest Cause of US Bankruptcies: Study. CNBC, 25 June). Even individuals with ostensibly good insurance, let alone those who are uninsured, find themselves in situations where they must sell and/or spend all assets, including homes, financial holdings, lifetime savings accounts, etc., in order to qualify for Medicaid and restore any medical coverage at all.

Increased costs of health care inevitably impact state and federal resources available for Medicaid, often leading to reduction in the number of providers willing to participate, and ultimately to decreased access to health care for the poor and the physically or mentally challenged.

More and more annual conferences and even congregations are feeling the burden of providing health care to their clergy and their lay staff. Small churches, even multiple-point parishes, have difficulty paying for increasing health premiums for clergy. Funds going to this purpose are in effect diverted from other important ministries. Some United Methodist conferences have discontinued their own health insurance program in favor of clergy obtaining their coverage in the Health Insurance Marketplaces.

The Vision of Health Care for All

The United Methodist Church is committed to health care for all in the United States, and therefore advocates for a comprehensive health-care delivery system that includes access for all, quality care, and effective management of costs.

1. Access for All. In a just society, all people are entitled to basic maintenance and health-care services. We reject as contrary to our understanding of the gospel, the notion of differing standards of health care for various segments of the population. The American Health Care system must serve and be sensitive to the diversity of all people in the United States and its territories. Regional planning processes should coordinate the services rendered by all health-care institutions, including those funded by governments, to create a more effective system of health services in every area. Priorities should be established for the provision of health services, such as preventive care, mental-health services, home care, and health education. Corrective measures should be taken where there is maldistribution or unavailability of hospital beds, intermediate care and nursing home care, home-delivered care, neighbor-hood health centers, community mental-health centers, and emergency care networks.

2. Quality Care. Health care should be comprehensive, including preventive, therapeutic, and rehabilitative services. The American health care system should provide comprehensive and portable benefits to everyone; including preventive services, health promotion, primary and acute care, mental-health care, and extended care. It should promote effective and safe innovation and research for women and men in medical techniques, the delivery of health services, and health practices. It should assess the health impacts of environmental and occupational safety, environmental pollution, sanitation, physical fitness, and standard-of-living issues such as housing and nutrition. Professional health-care personnel should be recruited and appropriately educated to meet the health-care needs of all persons. Especially urgent is the need for physicians trained in geriatric medicine. Special priorities should be established to secure among the professional group at least proportional representation of women and minorities who are now seriously under-represented. We encourage development of community support systems that permit alternatives to institutional care for such groups as the aging, the terminally ill and mentally ill, and other persons with special needs. We encourage medical education for laypersons that will enable them to effectively evaluate medical care they need and are receiving. Religious and other appropriate forms of counseling should be available to all patients and families when they are called upon to make difficult medical choices, so that responsible decisions, within the context of the Christian faith, may be made concerning organ transplants, use of extreme measures to prolong life, abortion, sterilization, genetic counseling, institutionalization, and death with dignity. We support the medical community in its effort to uphold ethical standards and to promote quality assurance.

3. Effective Administration of Care and Management and Financing of Costs. The American health-care system must incorporate an equitable and efficient financing system drawn from the broadest possible resource base. It must reduce the current rapid cost inflation through cost-containment measures. It must provide services based on equity, efficiency, and quality, with payments to providers that are equitable, cost-efficient, and easy to administer and understand. The system must be sensitive to the needs of persons working in the various components of the health-care system and give special attention to providing not only for affirmative action in the recruitment, training, and employment of workers, but also for just compensation for all workers at all levels and for retraining and placement of those displaced by changes in the health care system.

Advocacy Steps

Globally, the church has a continuing duty to provide, in many parts of the world, the ministry of health care that government is unable to provide. In the United States, however, government has the capability to assure the provision of health care for all; doing so will extend health care to many who currently have no access, and doing so without the wastefulness of the current system will represent far better stewardship of resources than at present. In the United States, The United Methodist Church therefore supports a three-tiered approach to health-care advocacy:

1. Single Payer. We call for swift passage of legislation that will entitle all persons within the borders of the United States to the provision of health-care services, the cost of such services to be equally equitably shared by American taxpayers, and the government to distribute the funds to providers in a coordinated and comprehensive manner. This concept, known as "single-payer," would extend health care to all persons in the United States. Choice of private doctor and other health-care providers would be maintained. Public funds would make payment, and these funds would be generated by individual premiums and payroll taxes. Studies have shown that this method can be achieved with no increase over what is already being spent on health care from all sources. It therefore not only accomplishes the objective, but it best exercises our stewardship of public resources (Lewin Group, "Analysis of the Costs and Impact of Universal Health Care Models for the State of Maryland: The Single-Payer and Multi-Payer models." Report to Maryland Citizens Health Initiative Educational Fund. May 2, 2000).

2. Incremental Steps toward Single Payer. We recognize that much of the cost savings of "single payer" flow from the virtually total elimination of the health insurance industry. We cannot wait to overcome the current barriers to a single-payer plan, and therefore support all initiatives that move segments of our population closer to a single-payer system. The Affordable Care Act represents a substantial advance in providing health coverage to many Americans, and we support its extension and refinement.

3. Recognizing that the nation is deeply divided nationally on the philosophical bases for addressing America's health-care delivery problems, we support state-level initiatives in which individual states, at their own initiative become laboratories for trying out varying approaches to providing health care for all. We support in particular efforts at the federal level to support state-based efforts through necessary waivers of federal regulations.

Bringing America's health-care crisis under control will call upon the efforts of every sector of society and demand both personal and social responsibility. We therefore call upon all United Methodist persons and entities to do their part:

Individuals. We call upon United Methodist individuals and families to pursue a healthy lifestyle, preventing many health problems before they start and strengthening physical capacity to combat problems which do arise.

Health Care Institutions. We call upon United Methodist-affiliated health-care institutions to adopt, reaffirm, and strengthen policies supporting care delivery that is Christlike, compassionate, and wholistic rather than fee-driven and compartmentalized. We call upon such institutions as a requirement of their affiliation, to develop United Methodist standards of care that distinguish them from profit-driven, secular institutions.

Seminaries. We call upon United Methodist seminaries to develop curricula linking sound biblical theology with clergy self-care and advocacy for universal health care.

General Agencies. We call upon all agencies, commissions, and annual conferences of The United Methodist Church in the United States to adopt principles and support policies that are consistent with this resolution.

We charge the General Board of Church and Society with primary responsibility for advocating health care for all in the United States Congress and for communicating this policy to United Methodists in the USA.

Faithful Care for Persons Suffering and Dying

Delete current text and replace with the following:

Theological Statement

As Christians, we live between the certainty of death and the promise of resurrection. Jesus proclaims this paradox in John's Gospel: "I am the resurrection and the life. Whoever believes in me will live, even though they die. Everyone who lives and believes in me will never die" (John 11:25-26). In the face of loss, we pray that God may help us "to live as those who are prepared to die, and when our days here are accomplished, enable us to die as those who go forth to live, so that living or dying, our life may be in you, and that nothing in life or in death will be able to separate us from your great love in Christ Jesus our Lord" (United Methodist Hymnal, A Service of Death and Resurrection, p. 871). All Christians therefore have a ministry of faithful care for persons suffering and dying. As we minister to others we minister to Christ (Matthew 25:34-40). We exercise that ministry when we care for those who are closest to us as well as to those who are strangers. We exercise that ministry in a number of important ways.

Preparation for Our Own Death and Resurrection

Our ministry to persons who are suffering and dying necessarily includes ourselves. Recognizing that death faces each of us, we are called to prepare for our own death and resurrection. That includes affirming and exercising our relationship with God in Christ. It includes reconciliation with others. It includes making wills—the legal preparation for others to take on the stewardship of the material goods which God has entrusted to us. It includes obtaining social and health insurance when it is available to us so that we minimize the burden we place on others. And it includes preparation for times of illness when we are not able to speak for ourselves. Living wills and instructions provide not only clarity and guidance to care providers and loved ones, but immeasurable relief from the burden of their decision making on our behalf in times of great stress.

Assisting Others Who Face Suffering and Dying

Care for others is the calling of the whole community of faith, not only pastors and chaplains. Because Christian faith is relevant to every aspect of life, no one should be expected to cope with life's pain, suffering, and ultimate death without the help of God through other people. In care, God's help and presence are revealed. When we as the church offer care, we empathize with suffering patients and share in the wounds of their lives. When we listen as patients express their feelings of guilt, fear, doubt, loneliness, hurt, and anger we offer them a connection with others and God. When we listen as patients tell their stories of both the extraordinary and the everyday, we help them to make connections between their experiences and God's joy. We provide resources for reconciliation and wholeness and assist persons in reactivating broken or idle relationships with God and with others. We provide comfort by pointing to sources of strength, hope, and wholeness, especially Scriptures and prayer. Family and friends as well as those who are suffering and dying need care. Those who are grieving need the assurance that their feelings are normal human responses and need not cause embarrassment or guilt. Health-care workers—doctors and others who have intimate contact with dying persons—also need care.

Pastoral Care by Pastors and Chaplains

We exercise our ministry for persons suffering and dying as we support those in specialized ministries. Pastors and chaplains sustain the spiritual growth of patients, families, and health-care personnel. They bear witness to God's grace with words of comfort and salvation. They provide nurture by reading the Scriptures with patients and loved ones, by Holy Communion, by the laying on of hands, and by prayers of praise, petition, repentance, reconciliation, and intercession. They provide comfort and grace with prayer or anointing after a death. They conduct rituals in connection with a terminal illness, of welcome into the care of hospice or a nursing center, or of return to a local congregation by persons who have been absent.

Pastoral caregivers not only offer comfort and counsel, but help patients understand their illness. They can assist families in understanding and coming to grips with information provided by medical personnel. Pastoral caregivers are especially needed when illness is terminal and patients and family members have difficulty discussing this reality freely.

Medical Care

As human interventions, medical technologies are only justified by the help that they can give. Their use requires responsible judgment about when life-sustaining treatments truly support the goals of life, and when they have reached their limits. There is no moral or religious obligation to use them when the burdens they impose outweigh the benefits they offer, or when the use of medical technology only extends the process of dying. Therefore, families should have the liberty to discontinue treatments when they cease to be of benefit to the dying person.

Palliative Care

The World Health Organization has described palliative care as care that improves the quality of life of patients and their families through the prevention and relief of suffering. It provides relief from pain; it intends to neither hasten nor postpone death; it integrates the psychological and spiritual aspects of patient care. It provides support both to patient and family. It is applicable early in the course of illness, may accompany treatment, and while its intent is simply relief from distressing symptoms, it may positively influence the course of illness. Ministering to the needs of the suffering and dying includes affirming the need for palliative care, as well as the need for comfort, encouragement, and companionship. Those who are very ill and the dying especially express their needs as they confront fear and grief and loneliness.

When there is no reasonable hope that health will improve, and the rationale for treatment may diminish or cease, palliative care becomes the dominant ministry. Hospital care may be of no benefit and the family can be encouraged to take the loved one home so that the loved one can die surrounded by family and in familiar circumstances.

Patient Rights

We exercise the ministry of faithful care as we support the rights of patients. As Christians, we have a duty to provide counsel, and patients have a right to receive it. Decisions can be complex and not easily made. We affirm that:

- a. Patients deserve to be told the truth.
- b. Patients are entitled to a share of decision making both before and during their illness.
- c. Patients have a right to refuse nourishment and medical care.
- d. Decisions are best made within a family of faith.

The complexity of treatment options and requests by physicians for patient and family involvement in life-prolonging decisions require good communication. Pastoral caregivers can bring insights rooted in Christian convictions and Christian hope into the decision-making process. When advance directives for treatment, often called "living wills" or "durable powers of attorney," are being interpreted, the pastoral caregivers can offer support and guidance to those involved in decision-making. They can facilitate discussion of treatment and palliative options, including home and hospice care. Decisions concerning faithful care for the suffering and the dying are always made in a social context that includes laws, policies, and practices of legislative bodies, public agencies and institutions, and the social consensus that supports them. The social and theological context of dying affects individual decisions concerning treatment and care and even the acceptance of death. Therefore, pastoral caregivers must be attentive to the social situations and policies that affect the care of the suffering and dying and must interpret these to patients and family members in the context of Christian affirmations of faithful care.

Affirming Life

We exercise that ministry as we affirm both life and death. In providing counsel, we affirm the Christian tradition that has drawn a distinction between the cessation of treatment and the use of active measures by the patient or caregiver which aim to bring about death. Patients and those who act on their behalf have a right to cease nourishment and treatment when it is clear that God is calling the patient home. By contrast, however, we understand as a direct and intentional taking of life the use of active measures by the patient or caregiver that aim to bring about death. This United Methodist tradition opposes the taking of life as an offense against God's sole dominion over life, and an abandonment of hope and humility before God. The absence of affordable, available comfort care can increase the pressure on families to consider unacceptable means to end the suffering of the dying.

The withholding or withdrawing of life-sustaining interventions should not be confused with abandoning the dying or ceasing to provide care. Even when staving off death seems futile or unreasonably burdensome to continue, we must continue to offer comfort care: effective pain relief, companionship, and support for the patient in the hard and sacred work of preparing for death.

Health Delivery Reform

We exercise our ministry as we advocate for the reform of structures and institutions. As Christians, we have a duty to advocate.

We advocate for patient rights, which are easily neglected, especially when patients cannot speak for themselves, and when families are overwhelmed by the stress and confusion of difficult news. This is a reason that preparation is so important.

The duty to care for the sick calls us to reform the structures and institutions by which health and spiritual care are delivered when they fail to provide the comprehensive physical, social, emotional, and spiritual care needed by those facing grave illness and death.

We advocate for health coverage for all globally. In the world today, many nations do not have universal health care and many millions of people have either no health insurance or grossly inadequate coverage, leaving them without reliable access to medical treatment. Even when basic access is provided, good quality comfort care—including effective pain relief, social and emotional support, and spiritual counsel—is often not available.

Absence of comfort care can leave people with a distorted choice between enduring unrelieved suffering and isolation, and choosing death. This choice undermines rather than enhances our humanity. We as a society must assure that patients' desire not to be a financial burden does not tempt them to choose death rather than receiving the care and support that could enable them to live out their remaining time in comfort and peace.

We charge the General Board of Church and Society to advocate, identify, and address instances where proper care for the suffering and dying is unavailable due to scarcity of resources, unhealthy ideologies, and oppressive conditions.

Proclaiming the Good News

We exercise our ministry as we teach the Christian good news in the context of suffering and dying. We call upon the General Boards of Discipleship and Higher Education and Ministry to develop and promote resources and training for clergy and laity globally that:

Acknowledge dying as part of human existence, without romanticizing it. In dying, as in living, mercy and justice must shape our corporate response to human need and vulnerability.

Accept relief of suffering as a goal for care of dying persons rather than focusing primarily on prolonging life. Pain control and comfort-giving measures are essentials in our care of those who are suffering.

Train pastors and pastoral caregivers in the issues of bioethics as well as in the techniques of compassionate companionship with those who are suffering and dying.

Educate and equip Christians through preaching resources and adult education programs to consider treatments for the suffering and the dying in the context of Christian affirmations of God's providence and hope.

Acknowledge, in our Christian witness and pastoral care, the diverse social, economic, political, cultural, religious and ethnic contexts around the world where United Methodists care for the dying.

We also call upon the General Board of Global Ministries to promote our understanding of Ministry to Persons Suffering and Dying in United Methodist health-care institutions around the globe.

Welcoming the Migrant to the US

Amend Resolution 3281.

Delete first two sentences in paragraph four:

~~Reflecting upon the Scriptures, we are reminded that United Methodists are a global church. In the United States, we may be descendants of economic immigrants or forced migrants, or we may have recently arrived in the US. We may have formal documents proving US citizenship, or we may be undocumented.~~

Amend second sentence, nineteenth paragraph:

All of this emphasis on border security has not stemmed the flow of undocumented migration, even though the United States has poured ~~m~~billions of dollars into militarizing the border.

Amend paragraphs twenty-one and twenty-two:

All nations have the right to secure their borders, but the primary concern for Christians should be the welfare of immigrants. Between ~~1995-1994~~ and ~~2004-2009~~, according to the Department of Homeland Security Border Safety Initiative, more than ~~2,640-3,860~~ migrants have died crossing the border between the United States and Mexico (https://www.aclu.org/files/pdfs/immigrants/humanitarian_crisis_report.pdf). ~~and since 2004 more than one migrant has died per day.~~

Raids of workplaces, homes, and other social places have often violated the civil liberties of migrants. Migrants should be given due process and access to adequate legal representation. Due to these raids and the ensuing ~~indefinite~~ detentions and deportations that follow them, families have been ripped apart and the migrant community has been forced to live in a constant state of fear.

Insert new subparagraph between third and fourth subparagraphs in paragraph twenty-four:

- welcome newly arriving immigrants into our congregations;

Amend subparagraph nine in paragraph twenty-four:

- continue the work of the United Methodist Task Force on Immigration Task Force composed of staff from the general boards and agencies, representatives of the Council of Bishops, and members of caucuses and national plans that was created by the resolution, "Opposition to the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigration Resolution Act" (2004 Book of Resolutions, #118).

Insert sentence in paragraph twenty-five after first sentence:

The Executive Action taken by President Obama in 2014 was a necessary temporary step that allowed certain groups of immigrants to apply for temporary legal status, though not citizenship. Therefore, we acknowledge that legislative change is the permanent step that is needed.

Amend first sentence in first subparagraph in paragraph twenty-five:

- an opportunity for ~~legal status~~ citizenship for all undocumented migrants.

Abusive Treatment Methods for Persons With Mental Disabilities

Amend and Readopt Resolution 3301 as follows:

3301. Abusive Treatment Methods for Persons With Mental Disabilities

A large part of Jesus' ~~the~~ ministry of our Lord focused on ~~persons~~ serving people who had ~~with~~ mental disabilities. ~~All Such persons~~ people are children of God and, ~~therefore, our~~ brothers and sisters within God's family. The full and equal rights of ~~persons~~ people with mental disabilities are enshrined in the Social Principles of The United Methodist Church.

Yet the use of abusive treatment methods as "therapy" for people ~~persons~~ with mental disabilities still occurs. Such abusive treatment methods are used ~~both~~ on adults and children, and programs that rely on such abusive treatment methods are often funded by tax revenues. A number of organizations that advocate for people ~~persons~~ with mental disabilities have already taken a stand against abusive treatment methods.

The United Methodist Church ~~joins in affirming~~ affirms the right of ~~persons~~ people with mental disabilities to freedom from abusive treatment methods. ~~We oppose the use of any form of punishment for children or adults with mental disabilities in any case where such punishment would be considered illegal, abusive, or unconscionable if applied to a child or adult who is not disabled.~~ In particular, we condemn as unacceptable the following abusive practices:

1. treatment methods that result in physical injury or tissue damage to the person;
2. verbal abuse or insult, humiliation, or degradation;
3. prolonged isolation from others;
4. denial of food, warmth, hygiene, contact with other human beings, or other necessities of life;
5. the use of electric shock or noxious substances as a form of punishment;
6. the use of any punishment ~~on a child with a mental disability~~ in any case where such punishment would be considered illegal, abusive, or unconscionable if applied to a child or adult who is not disabled if used on a child with no disabilities;
7. neglect;
8. the misuse of physical or chemical restraint; and
9. the threat of any of the above treatments.

Any therapy used in the treatment of people ~~persons~~ with mental disabilities must be potentially beneficial to the person. As an alternative to abusive treatment methods, we support the use of positive approaches in the treatment of people with mental disabilities. Positive approaches affirm the humanity of ~~these~~ individuals who are under treatment and recognize that the needs and desires of all people are similar ~~such persons are not significantly different. from those of other persons.~~ Our obligation to ~~persons~~ people with mental disabilities is to support and assist them in their efforts to live ~~lives as rich and rewarding lives. as possible.~~

We call upon all public and private agencies and service providers involved in treating ~~persons~~ people with mental disabilities to adopt and uphold the standards set forth in this resolution.

We call upon United Methodist Church-related institutions and agencies, including hospitals, homes, schools, and universities, to adopt and uphold the standards set forth in this resolution and to support research on positive treatment methods.

We call upon governments at all levels to end immediately the expenditure of public revenues on any agency or program that fails to adopt and uphold the standards set forth in this resolution.

The United Methodist Church declares itself to be open to ~~persons~~ all people, including people with mental disabilities and their families. ~~and~~ ~~†~~ The Church commits itself to support ~~such persons~~ people with disabilities and their families and to accommodate their needs within ~~our~~ the congregation and community. We further pledge our support to help those of us ~~persons~~ with mental disabilities and our their families find appropriate services, programs, and supports that provide protection, ~~and to protect them~~ from abusive treatment methods.

Ministries in Mental Illness

Amend 3303. Ministries in Mental Illness

Amend paragraph 5, sentence 1:

We therefore commit ourselves to ~~the learning following:~~ 1) ~~learn~~ more about the causes of mental illnesses, ~~advocating~~; 2) ~~advocate~~ for compassion and generosity in the treatment of mental illnesses; and ~~prayerfully leading~~ 3) ~~prayer-fully lead~~ our congregations to be in ministry, demonstrating that our church, as the body of Christ, can work to provide the means of grace that leads to wholeness and healing for all.

Delete following sentence in paragraph 6:

~~Treatment should recognize the importance of a non-stressful environment, good nutrition, and an accepting community.~~

Delete the following after sentence 1 in paragraph 7:

~~We are blind when it comes to the needs of those individuals and families that live with mental illness, and for too long the body of Christ has associated mental illness with the story of the man from Gadara, a man possessed by evil spirits. Instead may the body of Christ consider this story: "Taking the blind man's hand, Jesus led him out of the village. . . . [Jesus] asked him, 'Do you see anything?' The man looked up and said, 'It is not clear'. Then Jesus placed his hands on the man's eyes again . . . [and] his sight was restored, and he could see everything clearly. Then Jesus sent him home" (Mark 8:22-26). This man is suggestive of the countless individuals, in our time as well as his, whose mental dysfunction makes him blind to his value in society, but also makes us blind to the painful stigmatization, isolation, incarceration, and restraint that people living with mental illness endure. But like the man who was blind, Jesus is helping both him and us to heal.~~

Amend paragraph 9, sentence 2:

The reasons include traumatic events like war, abuse or domestic violence; a life of physical or emotional poverty; deprivation of social experiences and limited social skills; and behaviors due to loneliness, being misunderstood, being powerless, or the absence of joy in their lives.

A Charter for Racial Justice Policies in an Interdependent Global Community

Amend & Readopt Resolution 3371 - A Charter for Racial Justice Policies in an Interdependent Global Community

Racism is a system of inequality based on race prejudice and the belief that one race is innately superior to all other races. In the United States, this belief has systemic race-based prejudice and misuse of power have justified the conquest, enslavement, and evangelizing of non-Europeans. During the early history of this country, Europeans assumed used legal documents such as the Christian Doctrine of Discovery of 1823 to justify the notion that their civilization and religion were innately superior to those of both the original inhabitants of the United States and the Africans who were forcibly brought to these shores to be as slaves. The concepts of race and racism were created explicitly to ensure the subjugation of peoples the Europeans believed to be inferior. The myth of European superiority persisted— and persists— in every institution in American life. Other people who came, and those who are still coming to the United States,— either by choice or by force,— encountered and continue to encounter racism. Some of these people are the Chinese who built the country's railroads as indentured workers; the Mexicans whose lands were annexed; the Puerto Ricans, the Cubans, the Hawaiians, and the Eskimos who were colonized; and the Filipinos, the Jamaicans, and the Haitians who lived on starvation wages as farm workers.

In principle, the United States has outlawed racial discrimination; ~~but~~ in practice, little has changed. Social, economic, and political institutions still discriminate, although some institutions have amended their behavior by eliminating obvious and overt discriminatory practices and choosing their language carefully. Adding to this reality, the success of some prominent people of color and the election of America's first African American president, have contributed to the erroneous but widespread belief that America is in many ways a "post-racial" society where race is seldom a factor in the opportunities and outcomes in people's lives. The institutional church, despite sporadic attempts to the contrary, also still discriminates on the basis of race.

The damage ~~of~~ from years of systemic race-based exploitation has not been erased and by all measurable indicators, a color-blind society is many years in the future. A system designed to meet the needs of one segment of the population cannot be the means to the development of a just society for all. The racist system in the United States today perpetuates the power and control of those who are of European ancestry. It is often called "white racism supremacy." The fruits of racism are prejudice, bigotry, discrimination, and dehumanization. Consistently, African Americans, ~~Hispanics~~ Latino, Asians, Native Americans, and Pacific Islanders have been humiliated by being given inferior jobs, housing, education, medical services, transportation services, and public accommodation accommodations that are all inferior. With hopes deferred and rights still denied, the deprived and oppressed fall prey to a colonial mentality that acquiesces can acquiesce to the inequities; ~~occasionally with religious rationalization.~~

Racist presuppositions have been implicit in ~~US~~ U.S. attitudes and policies toward Asia, Africa, the Middle East, and Latin America. And the fact that racism is not explicitly expressed in these policies leads many to believe that race-based prejudice in public policy is a thing of the past. While proclaiming democracy, freedom, and independence, the ~~US~~ United States, however, has been an ally and an accomplice to perpetuating racial inequality ~~of the races~~ and colonialism throughout the world. The history of The United Methodist Church and the history of the United States are intertwined. The "mission enterprise" of the churches in the United States ~~and "Westernization"~~ went hand in hand, with "Westernization," thus sustaining a belief in ~~their~~ and the institutionalization of this nation's superiority: Through policies that were hyper expansionist and inherently racist, such as Manifest Destiny.

We are conscious that "we have sinned as our ancestors did; / we have been wicked and evil" (Psalm 106:6 GNT). We call for a renewed commitment to the elimination of institutional racism. We affirm the 1976 General Conference Statement on The United Methodist Church and Race, ~~which~~ that states unequivocally: "By biblical and theological precept, by the law of the church, by General Conference pronouncement, and by Episcopal expression, the matter is clear. With respect to race, the aim of The United Methodist Church is nothing less than an inclusive church in an inclusive society. The United Methodist Church, therefore, calls upon all its people to perform those faithful deeds of love and justice in both the church and community that will bring this aim into reality."

Because we believe:

1. ~~that~~ That God is the Creator of all people and all are God's children in one family;

2. ~~that~~ That racism is a rejection of the teachings of Jesus Christ;

3. ~~that~~ That racism denies the redemption and reconciliation of Jesus Christ;

4. ~~that~~ That racism robs all human beings of their wholeness and is used as a justification for social, economic, environmental, and political exploitation;

5. ~~that~~ That we must declare before God and before one another that we have sinned against our sisters and brothers of other races in thought, in word, and in deed;

6. ~~that~~ That in our common humanity in creation all women and men are made in God's image and all persons are equally valuable in the sight of God;

7. ~~that~~ That our strength lies in our racial and cultural diversity and that we must work toward a world in which each person's value is respected and nurtured; ~~and~~

8. ~~that~~ That our struggle for justice must be based on new attitudes, new understandings, and new relationships, and must be reflected in the laws, policies, structures, and practices of both church and state;

We commit ourselves as individuals and as a community to follow Jesus Christ in word and in deed, and to struggle for the rights and the self-determination of every person and group of persons. Therefore, as United Methodists in every place across the land, we will unite our efforts within ~~The United Methodist Church;~~ the church to take the following actions:

1. ~~to eliminate~~ Eliminate all forms of institutional racism in the total ministry of the church, giving special attention to those institutions that we support, beginning with their employment policies, purchasing practices, environmental policies, and availability of services and facilities;

2. ~~to create~~ Create opportunities in local churches to deal honestly with the existing racist attitudes and social distance between members, deepening the Christian commitment to be the church where all racial groups and economic classes come together;.

3. ~~to increase~~ Increase efforts to recruit people of all races into the membership of The United Methodist Church and provide leadership-development opportunities without discrimination;.

4. ~~to create~~ Establish workshops and seminars in local churches to study, understand, and appreciate the historical and cultural contributions of each race to the church and community;.

5. ~~to increase~~ Raise local churches' awareness of the continuing needs for equal education, housing, employment, ~~and~~ medical care and environmental justice for all members of the community and to create opportunities to work for these things across racial lines;.

6. ~~to work~~ Work for the development and implementation of national and international policies to protect the civil, political, economic, social, and cultural rights of all people such as through support for the ratification of United Nations covenants on human rights;.

7. ~~to support~~ Support and participate in the worldwide struggle for liberation in church and community; ~~and~~.

8. ~~to support~~ Facilitate nomination and election processes that include all racial groups by employing a quota system that prioritizes leadership opportunities of people from communities that are disproportionately impacted by the ongoing legacy of racial injustice. Using temporary measures such as quotas seeks to align our vision for racial justice with actions that accelerate racial equity until the time that our voluntary performance makes use of such practice practices unnecessary.

WHEREAS, the Commission on Pan-Methodist Cooperation . . .

~~WHEREAS, the Council of Bishops has joined the Office of Christian Unity and Interreligious Relationships in preparation for a liturgical act of repentance for racism; and~~

WHEREAS, confession and repentance...

All annual conferences are also urged to engage in missional and liturgical acts of repentance.

Rationale:

Confession and repentance for racism is a first step in changing of hearts leading to healing and wholeness. Affirmative Action

Amend Resolution 3373 as follows:

The United Methodist Church . . .

Affirmative action is not intended . . . excluded from participating in them—women, ethnic and racial ~~minorities~~ persons, and, at a later time, persons with disabilities.

Over the past ~~three~~ four decades, programs of affirmative action in the United States have had a significant effect in the employment patterns of corporations and public agencies and in the character of the professional staff and student bodies of educational institutions, private and public. Proportionately, more women, racial and ethnic ~~minorities~~ persons, and people with disabilities have found their talents and training recognized than before such programs were instituted.

At the same time, however, many women, racial and ethnic ~~minorities-persons~~, and persons with disabilities, though fully competent, have confronted obstacles in these settings, stifling their advancement in education and in employment. Unemployment of racial and ethnic ~~minorities persons~~ remains appreciably higher than the national average. Women workers continue to earn less than male workers in the same or similar positions, and they continue to confront limitations in promotion to a more prestigious and responsible level of jobs. Persons with disabilities are bypassed regardless of their motivations . . .

In light of the evidence . . . to ignore the persistence of significant and widespread inequalities of opportunity affecting women, ethnic and racial ~~minorities-persons~~, and persons with disabilities throughout our social system.

From the perspective . . .

Therefore, be it resolved, that the ~~2008~~ 2016 General Conference of The United Methodist Church calls upon all its members to:

1. affirm . . .
2. constitute . . .
3. declare . . .
4. collaborate with movements and initiatives seeking to ensure effective participation of ethnic and racial ~~minorities-persons~~, women, and persons with disabilities in all sectors of our society; and
5. interpret . . .

Be it further resolved, that the ~~2008~~ 2016 General Conference reaffirms its mandate to implement affirmative action programs in all general church boards and agencies, annual conferences, church-related institutions, districts, and local churches.

Be it further resolved, that the General Commissions on Religion and Race and the Status and Role of Women continue to ~~monitor~~ assess the progress of The United Methodist Church and related institutions and to provide assistance in helping them move toward greater conformity with the principle of inclusiveness.

Rationale:

The implementation of affirmative action reflects a shared understanding that diversity is a positive outcome of social inclusion that benefits for the entire community. The United Methodist Church has long been committed to the principle of equity in policies and processes. This resolution re-affirms that commitment.

Opposition to White Privilege in the U.S.

Amend Resolution 3376 as follows:
European Americans . . .

Poverty is a serious problem in the U.S., but a far greater percentage of people of color are poorer than white people. Police brutality is also more prevalent in ~~ethnic minority communities, partly because police in minority communities are usually a nonresident, mostly white occupying force.~~ communities of color. Schools in white communities receive a far higher proportion of education dollars than those in ~~minority communities~~ predominantly non-white communities, leading to larger class size, fewer resources, and inferior facilities.

While welfare affects the entire society, it hits ~~minorities~~ predominantly non-white communities hardest. ~~Although Democrats and Republicans~~ Many in Congress support tax credits for families to enable middle-class ~~mothers~~ parents to stay home with their children, welfare “reform” forces poor, single ~~mothers~~ parents to take low-paying jobs and leave their children to inadequate or nonexistent day care. Because more and better job opportunities are open to white persons, they are leaving the welfare rolls faster than ~~minority-non-white~~ persons, making ~~minority-non-white~~ persons a disproportionate segment of the welfare population.

~~Criminal “justice” is meted out more aggressively in racial minority communities than white communities. Nearly half of inmates in the US are African American; one out of every fourteen Black men is now in prison or jail; one out of every four is likely to be imprisoned at some point during his lifetime.~~

While people of color make up about 30 percent of the United States' population, they account for 60 percent of those imprisoned. The prison population grew by 700 percent from 1970 to 2005, a rate that is outpacing crime and population rates. The incarceration rates disproportionately impact men of color: 1 in every 15 African American men and 1 in every 36 Hispanic men are incarcerated in comparison to 1 in every 106 white men. According to the Bureau of Justice Statistics, one in three black men can expect to go to prison in their lifetime. Individuals of color have a disproportionate number of encounters with law enforcement, indicating that racial profiling continues to be a problem. A report by the U.S. Department of Justice found that Blacks and Hispanics were approximately three times more likely to be searched during a traffic stop than white motorists. African Americans were twice as likely to be arrested and almost four times as likely to experience the use of force during encounters with the police. (American Prospect, March 17, 2012, The 10 Most Disturbing Facts About Racial Inequality in the U.S. Criminal Justice System).

If only one of these areas impacted ~~ethnic minorities~~ communities of color disproportionately, an explanation might be found in some sociological factor other than race . . .

The rights and privileges . . .

~~We direct the General Board of Discipleship (GBOD), in consultation with the General Commission on Religion and Race (GCORR), to prepare a study guide on white privilege and its consequences in church and society.~~

~~We ask the Board of Church and Society in every annual conference to sponsor workshops on white privilege.~~

~~We direct the GCORR and the GBOD to jointly review and develop UM curriculum materials, with particular attention to those for children and youth, for the purpose of affirming children of all racial and ethnic groups, and to communicate in our curriculum materials that in our society, privileges that are taken for granted by white persons are often denied to others because of their racial and ethnic identity.~~

We ask each local church . . .

Rationale:

This resolution includes updated statistics regarding racial inequity in the criminal justice system. Rural Communities in Crisis

3392. Rural Communities in Crisis

The United Methodist Church has long witnessed . . .

2. Increased Concentration and Corporate Agriculture—US government policy choices have perpetuated the greater concentration of assets and wealth into fewer larger farms and agribusiness firms. Federal farm programs and tax policies have historically benefited large farms the most. Large farms that depend on hired farm workers receive exemptions from federal labor laws allowing them the advantage of low-wage costs. (See 2008 Resolution 4134, "Rights of Farm Workers in the US") The ownership and control over agricultural assets is increasingly concentrated in fewer and fewer hands. Factory farms (Confined Animal Feed Operations [CAFO]) have become the dominant method of raising meat in the United States. Four firms now control over ~~80%~~ 85% of the beef market. Farmers have little to no control . . .

3. Farm Income—Net farm income . . .

Pathways to Transformation ~~2009-2012~~ 2016-2024

A United Methodist Rural and Urban Ministry Plan for Making Disciples of Jesus Christ for the Transformation of the World

WHEREAS, change is inevitable but transformation is optional, The United Methodist Church has the opportunity to transform and energize urban churches and communities ~~with holy boldness~~; and

WHEREAS, the Holy Boldness: Pathways to Transformation Plan, adopted by the 2012 General Conference, has been developed to continue and strengthen the National Urban Ministry Plan adopted at the 1996 General Conference and reaffirmed in 2004; and

WHEREAS, the primary goal of the Plan calls for The United Methodist Church to provide a vision for the future: identify areas of focus and collaboration; organize and mobilize resources; and equip leaders to carry out the Plan; and

WHEREAS, according to the “State of the World Population ~~2007~~ 2014” report, “in ~~2008~~ 2014, ~~half~~ 54 percent of the world’s population ~~will be~~ was in urban areas,” and 1.8 billion children living in urban areas, and “without proper planning, cities across the globe will face the threat of overwhelming poverty, limited opportunities for youth, and religious extremism”; and

WHEREAS, ultimately, the Pathways to Transformation Plan will be effective if annual conferences, districts, and, especially, local churches and faith-based community organizations and agencies develop strategies and carry out the agreed-upon goals and objectives; and

WHEREAS, it is also critical for the whole church (congregations in and outside urban areas, annual conferences, and general church agencies) to work in collaboration to support those working locally to transform urban congregations and the communities to meet the need of growing urban areas; and

WHEREAS, the priorities, goals, and objectives identified for this Plan were determined through a national survey of laity, pastors, faith-based community organization staff, annual conference staff, seminary presidents and deans, and bishops; and

WHEREAS, the primary goals are to accomplish the following:

1. transform existing urban congregations through training, coaching, and mentoring;
2. ~~establish~~ equip new urban churches and faith communities;
3. ~~identify and develop urban pastors and laity;~~ 3.

assist annual conferences and districts in urban strategic planning;

4. challenge and assist urban congregations to transform the communities in which they reside; and

WHEREAS, the priorities that will inform and guide these goals are:

- urban theology and leadership development;
- urban evangelism and congregational development;
- living in community with the poor;
- strengthening and developing multicultural relationships and congregations;
- eradicating racism and other forms of oppression;
- creating and developing urban/suburban collaboration and partnerships;
- community economic development;
- wholeness, healing, and health; and

WHEREAS, these goals and priorities further support the four areas of collaboration developed by the Connectional Table: 1) leadership development, 2) starting new congregations, 3) partnering with the poor, and 4) global health. This Plan is particularly synergistic with the third proposal, “partner with the poor to seek justice and address the causes of human suffering that result from poverty,” which has been assigned to Global Ministries ~~to take the lead on~~; and Whereas, urban transformation will require a collaborative effort by local churches working in cooperation with other denominations, community organizations, businesses, and governmental institutions; collaboration will need to occur beyond the city limits by collaborating with exurban churches that share similar challenges, and churches in suburban areas that have committed persons, resources, and relational roots in urban neighborhoods, all of which strengthen ministry; and

WHEREAS, collaboration will also need to occur at the national general church level with ~~the Rural and Urban Networks Advisory Council~~ and general agency teams (~~Global Ministries, Church and Society, Discipleship, Higher Education and Ministry, Religion and Race, and Communications~~) working together to identify common strategies that they can mutually accomplish; the national strategies linking with local strategies and needs; national collaboration involving the ethnic ministry plans already adopted by our Church with a particular sensitivity to those who are poor; and finally, national collaboration involving other ecumenical and interfaith bodies and national urban resources;

Therefore, be it resolved that we call upon the general agencies, ~~the Rural and Urban Networks Advisory Council, jurisdictional networks~~, annual conferences, districts, and, especially, local churches to take authority and responsibility ~~in being holy and bold~~ to accomplish the goals and objectives of the Plan; and

Be it further resolved that the General Board of Global Ministries Office of ~~Rural and Networks~~ Networks and Constituencies or its equivalent will be responsible for the coordination and implementation of the Plan. Objectives and action steps have been developed and will be implemented as funding is made available; and

Be it further resolved in order to facilitate this coordination and implementation, the Office of ~~Rural and Urban Networks~~ Networks and Constituencies or its equivalent will have copies of the plan available for any who wish to partner in this effort, and that with God's help, we can reclaim our cities for United Methodism and, in the process, meet Christ on the streets walking with his people.

Rationale:

The Pathways to Transformation Plan is the continuation of the Holy Boldness: Pathways to Transformation plan as reaffirmed by the 2012 General Conference, adopted by 2008 General Conference with some updates. It has been a dynamic tool for organizing and mobilizing people for urban transformation throughout more than fourteen annual conferences and districts.

As of 2014, 54 percent of the world's population resides in urban areas. In 1950, 30 percent of the world's population was urban, and by 2050, the United Nations projects that, 66 percent of the world's population will be living in urban centers.

Ultimately, the Pathways to Transformation Plan will be effective when annual conferences, districts and especially, local churches, faith-based community organizations and general church agencies develop strategies to carry out the objectives and goals.

Rationale:

The Pathways to Transformation Plan is the continuation of the Holy Boldness: Pathways to Transformation plan as reaffirmed by the 2012 General Conference with some updates. It has been a dynamic tool for organizing and mobilizing people for urban transformation throughout more than fourteen annual conferences and districts.

~~(1 John 4:8, 20)~~

~~WHEREAS, in the post-9/11 world, reports of hate crimes or acts such as the following have become part of the daily lives of people both in the United States and around the world:~~

~~So justice is driven back, / and righteousness stands at a distance; / truth has stumbled in the streets, / honesty cannot enter. / Truth is nowhere to be found, / and whoever shuns evil becomes a prey. / The LORD looked and was displeased / that there was no justice. / [God] saw that there was no one, / [God] was appalled that there was no one to intervene; / so [God's] own arm achieved salvation . . . / and [God's] own righteousness sustained him.~~

~~—Isaiah 59:14-16 (NIV)~~

~~And therefore, put off falsehood and speak truthfully, for we are all members of one body.~~

~~—Ephesians 4:25 (NIV paraphrased)~~

~~When Isaiah observed that “justice has stumbled in the streets” and “truth is nowhere to be found,” he said “God was appalled.” At a time of rising vitriol, racism, hate, and violence in the world born of deep economic crisis and global shifts, it is time for the church to speak out. If we do not, God will be appalled. We feel compelled to raise a prophetic voice challenging the climate of distrust, distortion of truth and fear, shifting the conversation to our common future. In many places, the level of anger has crossed a line in terms of civility. Whatever the disagreement about policy or program, this behavior is unacceptable. It represents a spiritual crisis that calls for us to respond by deepening our understanding of God's call and filling our own deep yearnings for spiritual wholeness, that can empower us to love and compassion without giving up our responsibility to speak out for justice. The consequences of this climate of fear and hostility has been an increase in the number of reported hate crimes, particularly in the post-9/11 world. Reports of hate crimes or acts such as the following have become part of the daily lives of people in the United States:~~

- ~~• A Muslim Arab-American woman receives a threat from a ~~coworker~~ co-worker: “You and your kids will pay ...death”.~~

- ~~• a Catholic high school student is punched and kicked on a bus by a group of youth for looking “Chinese”.~~

- ~~• a teenage boy is beaten with a baseball bat because of his perceived sexuality.~~

- ~~• anti-Semitic graffiti is spray painted on a store selling kosher meat products;~~

- ~~four~~ Four men attack and kill one of twelve undocumented immigrants;

- ~~a cross is burned on the lawn of a house for sale after being viewed by an African American family.~~

These acts ~~encourage social movements that promote and are manifestations of~~ bigotry based on ~~race,~~ religion, ~~gender,~~ race, sexual orientation, and national origin (~~white supremacists/nativists~~) to appeal to racial and other fears.

If we look ~~only~~ at these acts as the acts of individuals or groups of individuals we will fail to recognize the ~~wide context of fear and hate that gives rise to these individual acts.~~ That context has both historical roots and grounding in current economic and political realities. Demographic change and economic uncertainties contribute to a sense of insecurity and anxiety about the future leading to old animosities and prejudices being revived and new ones: systemic context of injustice that give rise to such acts.

In addition to the realities of the post- 9/11 increase in hate and fear mongering, many parts of our nation are facing a deep economic crisis. More and more people in the United States are learning the harsh realities: job loss, reduction of work hours, bankruptcies, lack of affordable health care resource, resources, foreclosures, predatory lending, declining wages, budget cuts for education and critical social programs. In the United States, the overall unemployment rate in November 2014 was 5.8 percent but for Latinos and African Americans, the respective rates were 6.6 percent and 11.1 percent. We recognize that there is cause for anger among all economic and social groups. However, we are alarmed by the climate of hate in public discourse in the United States that has emerged in the wake of these difficult economic realities. We must challenge the misdirection of anger toward the most vulnerable for all are impacted by these crises.

As Christians we are called to be models of compassion. The United Methodist Church reaffirms Social Principles affirm.

“We affirm all persons as equally valuable in the sight of God.... We support the basic rights of all persons to equal access to housing, education, communication, employment, medical care, legal redress for grievances, and physical protection. We deplore acts of hate or violence against groups or persons based on race, color, national origin, ethnicity, age, gender, disability, status, economic condition, sexual orientation, gender identity, or religious affiliation” Social Principles, ¶ 162III).

“The strength of a political system depends upon the full and willing participation of its historical commitment citizens. The church should continually exert a strong ethical influence upon the state, supporting policies and programs deemed to be just and opposing acts of hate, hate speech, policies and violence programs that are unjust” (Social Principles, ¶ 164.V).

The Charter for Racial Justice states that all persons are equally valuable in both church the sight of God, that racism is a rejection of the teachings of Jesus Christ, that we must work toward a world in which each person’s value is respected and society nurtured.

We remember our roots in speaking out for justice. Methodist women organized against lynching in the 1930s. The church commits itself to redouble its efforts spoke out boldly during the 1960s in support of the Civil Rights Movement. In South Africa and the United States, United Methodists were strong in the opposition to apartheid. We spoke boldly for peace and the reunification of Korea. In the 1980s we called for an end to U.S. government funding of paramilitary groups in Central America. When the United States began bombing Afghanistan in 2003, we called for an end to the bombing as well as long term support for the United Nations and international human rights. We continue to speak out against hate crimes and work to transform the context of fear and hate that gives permission to these acts, naming and challenging the culture that perpetuates it in support of migrants and immigrants who are demonized and criminalized in many countries.

Be it resolved,

We do not want God to be appalled. We confess that ~~The~~ we have not always behaved well as a church. We have violated one another and acknowledge the need to reexamine our own behavior in following our impulse to first protect our own needs and our own security.

It is time to act boldly and with God’s grace, truth will be found and we will know justice. We call for the United Methodist Church, with assistance from the appropriate —individuals, congregations, conferences, boards, and agencies, and local churches, implement the following recommendations clergy and laity—to:

Faith and Biblical Resources:

- provide

- Develop multigenerational educational resources to build understanding of the systemic nature of racism, sexism, homophobia, and other forms of marginalization.

- Provide biblically- based resources for young people and adults that address the historic and systemic roots of hate that lead to hate speech and hate crimes; all the manifestations of hate in our society.

- create resources to help United Methodists analyze the language of hate among groups that use religious language to justify hatred and bigotry;

- work with ecumenical and interfaith groups to create worship resources, and develop community activities to unite religious groups on behalf of justice for all;

Educational Resources:

- develop educational materials to build understanding

- Enter into dialogue and action, speaking out for compassion and against hate. A faithful dialogue requires the courage to speak up without misusing privilege and power. This will include:

- o Redefining compassion as the process of inviting and sustaining faith in full dialogue.

- o Acknowledging the wholeness of the human family means willingness to stay in community with those whom we disagree, by embracing both patience and humility.

- o Commitment to a lifelong journey of the systemic, institutionalized culture of racism, sexism, homophobia, and other forms of marginalization; develop materials to explore and challenge expressions of hate, including: personal attitudes, scapegoating, individual violence, media distortions to public policy, and collective violence, including state violence; discipline.

- educate United Methodists about trends of hate in the US and the world and how the church can prevent and respond to acts of hate;

Action/Organizing/Advocacy:

- encourage United Methodists to report hate incidents to the police, and to organize support for victims of hate crimes;

- o encourage Commitment to listen attentively, respectfully and never using dialogue as an excuse for talk and no action or to mask dishonesty.

- o Encouraging United Methodists to end complicity with hate by speaking out when jokes, disparagements and stereotypes are based on identity or status difference.

Annual Conferences—Responding

- o Creating opportunities to Hate Crimes: annual conferences develop data bases of information of local hear from excluded groups about the reality and state- impact of hate groups and explore the connections between anti-immigrant/refugee groups and white supremacist organizations in order to develop strategies for response for use by local churches; organize letter writing campaigns and denominational and ecumenical delegations to meet partner with state government officials to advocate for the passage, funding, and implementation of strong and comprehensive state hate crimes laws that extend civil rights protections to all individuals and groups; them to act for justice.

- o encourage Encouraging law enforcement personnel to maintain records on hate crimes and to bring to justice the perpetrators of such violence and intimidation.

- We call upon Annual Conferences—Transforming the Culture of Hate:

- strongly encourage local churches, annual conferences, general agencies, campus ministry units, and any other place where The United Methodist Church has a witness; church at all levels to

- o Create opportunities to hear from excluded groups about the reality and impact of hate and to partner with them to act sacred spaces for justice; common prayer and community discussion as an invitation to reconciliation.

- o be active participants Convene conversations in civic or religious organizations that promote unity family gatherings, churches, communities and diversity the political arena about current realities, fears and the need for faith-filled compassionate response:

- o Work with ecumenical and interfaith partners to create workshop resources and develop community activities to unite religions in our work to end all manifestations eradicate acts of hate; as well as working with diverse grassroots and national organizations;

- o Engage Engage in efforts to enable communities to unearth the truth about past and present hate- violence, to bring perpetrators (including state actors) to trial, justice, and to heal wounds and seek reconciliation based on justice and more equitable power relationships. This effort is based on the South African Truth and Reconciliation Commission and other efforts now linked through the Center for Transitional Justice;

- o work through local organizations and local schools to ensure their policies Be active participants in civic or religious organizations that promote unity and diversity, and work to eradicate acts of hate as well as work with diverse grassroots and national organizations.

- We call upon conferences, boards, and training programs adequately address various forms of discrimination and sexual harassment based on gender and perceived sexual identity; agencies to use United Nations and other resources for adults and children in efforts to build a our global culture of peace; create an annual conference task force church to develop share models and strategies for faithful dialogue and, to address actions of the media intentionally practice words and attitudes that use or condone hate speech, stereotypes, or racial profiling will help us find common ground.

- The United Methodist Church calls on We call on all annual conferences to

- o Report report on their work on undoing the culture of hate and hate crimes at their annual conference meeting; to include

- o Include hate crimes in their annual conference report to the General Commission on Religion and Race; and to work

- o Work with the General Board of Church and Society, the General Board of Global Ministries; and United Methodist Women on this concern.

The Status of Women

Amend and Readopt Resolution 3444

The Status of Women: Towards Realizing Human Rights for All Women

f.

~~Christianity was born in a world of male preference and dominance. Practices, traditions, and attitudes in almost all societies viewed women as inferior to men, as having few talents and contributions to make to the general well-being of society aside from their biological roles. This was true of the Judaic society of which Jesus was a part.~~

The Bible teaches us that both men and women are created in the image of God (Genesis 1:27). Further, the Bible teaches us that women are full members of the church of Christ: "There is no longer Jew or Greek, there is no longer slave or free, there is no longer male and female; for all of you are one in Christ Jesus" (Galatians 3:28 NRSV). But the The life of Jesus, the Redeemer of human life, stood as a witness against such ancient cultural patterns and societal prejudices. Consistently, he related to women as persons that viewed women as inferior to men. Jesus was extraordinarily supportive of intelligence-women's full equality with men, and capabilities. He he charged women as well as and men to use their talents significantly in the cause of God's kingdom. His acts of healing and ministry were extended without distinction to women and men.

~~The central theme of Jesus' teaching is love for God and neighbor. Jesus embodied this message in his life, and, in the early church, women held prominent positions of leadership. Christian love, as exemplified in the New Testament, requires that we relate to others all as persons of worth. To regard another as an inferior or to use power over them is to break the covenant of love; denying Denying equality demeans, perpetuates injustice, and falls short of the example of Jesus and. The United Methodist Church has sought to support the early church.~~

h.

The global movement to improve the status of women is one of the most profoundly hopeful of our times. The United Methodist Church, recognizing that equality between women and men is a matter of social justice, in various ways has sought to support that movement.

~~Although change is taking place, in most societies women are still not accorded equal rights and responsibilities.~~

There is increasing awareness that we cannot solve-solve world problems associated with economic global-ization and unequal distribution of resources, population growth, governance, security, hunger, poverty, climate change, and war, so long as the talents and potential of half the world's people are disregarded and even repressed. There are strong interrelationships between all these problems and the status of women. Women's experience differs across class, ethnicity, race, national status, religion, sexual orientation, etc., with the poorest and most marginalized women experiencing the greatest inequality. Thus, efforts towards women's equality must specifically address these different realities.

The International movement for the equality of women formally began in 1975, with the proclamation of International Women's Year by the United Nations General Assembly. The United Nations Decade for Women (1976-1985) which followed was a worldwide effort to examine the status and rights of women at all levels. For Christians, it was a time for repentance and for new dedication to Christ's ideal of equality.

In 1995, the Fourth World Conference on Women succeeded in bringing about a new and international commitment to the goals of equality, development and peace for all women, and moved the global movement for the advancement of women into the twenty-first century. The Beijing Declaration and the Platform for Action constitute a powerful agenda for women's empowerment and gender equality.

The Beijing Platform for Action defined a set of strategic objectives and spelled out actions to be taken by governments and civil society in the following twelve critical areas of concern: poverty, economy, power and decision-making, education, media, health, armed conflict, environment, violence, human rights, the girl child and the institutional mechanisms for the advancement of women.

The United Methodist Church affirms commitments made through four United Nations (UN) conferences on women, articulated in the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action (1995) and Beijing +5 outcome documents, which recognized that women not only need equality with men, but economic policies need to be changed so that they benefit both women and men. Equality must go beyond access; it needs to include genuine development that delivers fundamental economic and social human rights. Recognizing how militarism, war violent conflict, climate change, and volatile economic systems affect women, the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action as well as the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW) promote that equality, development, and peace are inseparable.

The following are some critical areas of concern for women's equality:

Economics: As part of the Beijing Platform for Action, statisticians were called upon to develop a more comprehensive knowledge of all forms of work and employment. Often the productive labor of women is ignored in economic statistics, reinforcing the impression that work done by women is peripheral, of secondary importance, even dispensable. For that reason, few studies have actually evaluated the importance of contributions by women. As one example, when women grow food to feed their families, they are "just" tending kitchen gardens, but when men grow cash crops such as tobacco and coffee, they are engaged in agricultural and commercial enterprises. In more industrialized societies, the enormous amount of volunteer work done by women is not counted as adding to the nation's wealth.

Although the gender gap in rates of economic activity is narrowing, the nature of women's and men's has narrowed slightly, there still remains a gap of 25 percentage points between participation of men and women in the labor force continues to be very different. Women have always engaged in the less formal types of work, working as unpaid workers in a family business, in the informal sector or in various types of household economic activities. They also . Women still continue to receive less pay than men. In manufacturing, for example, in 27 of the 39 countries with data available, women's wages were 20 to 50 per cent less than those of men. Moreover, women's unpaid work as caregivers and volunteers sustains economies and yet is not included in economic statistics. In times of economic crisis, women's unpaid labor fills gaps in education, health care, and other social services as governments cut budgets.

Power and Decision-making. In 1945, only 31 countries allowed women to vote; today, women have the right to vote in more than 125191 nations. Only eight (http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Womens_suffrage#Summary <http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Women's_suffrage>) while only three countries exclude women entirely from this political processes open to men. process. Still, many areas of legal discrimination remain such as the inequality between men and women in power-sharing and decision-making remain at all levels. In some nations, women are a woman is still considered the chattels of their husbands, with to be her husband's property and holds very few rights in with regards to family law, landholding, inheritance, and guardianship of children. Globally, women are still underrepresented in all branches of government.

Violence Against Women. In the United States, some of the more glaring inequities are being corrected step by step. However, women are still under represented in all branches of the government. The 75 women sworn into the 108th Congress in January 2003, account for only 13.8% of the 540 members. Gender-based violence has risen exponentially in recent decades. Sexual violence by

State and non-state actors has become common as women and girls are raped, beaten, sold or trafficked, forced to become child brides or victims of honor killings. This reality reflects the continuing belief that women and girls are property of men and are subservient to men, and the lack of accountability for violence at all levels. States and broader society must work together to dismantle social, economic and political structures that institutionalize and legitimize violence.

Education. The perception Levels of women as inferior and dependent is perpetuated through many institutions in society—the media, school textbooks and curricula, political structures, and, often, religious organizations. Education is one of the principal ways of opening doors to wider participation in society. Thus, it is distressing that, while the percentage of literate women is at an all-time high, the absolute number of illiterate women is greater than at any time in the past. Education are consistently linked with levels of socio-economic development. The fact that two-thirds of the world's 876-774 million illiterates are female is evidence of continuing disparity in importance given to the education of society's preference to educate boys and over girls. This proportion that has remained unchanged for over two decades. Discriminatory, cultural, and social norms, cost of schooling, and school safety concerns inhibit girls' opportunities to gain knowledge and marketable skills needed for jobs that pay decent wages, as well Violence Against Women. Traditional perceptions of female qualities also are a factor in the widespread domestic violence against women, now coming to be recognized as a tragically widespread occurrence. Nearly one third of women in the world report being physically or sexually abused by a husband or boyfriend at some point in their lives (according ability to negotiate power in multiple relationships. Quality education is one of the principal ways to World Health Organization open doors for women's wider participation in society).

Human Health and Women's Rights in Fertility Decisions Reproductive Health. Throughout the centuries, women have rarely been little consulted or involved in the decisions regarding fertility-related laws or practices. For women, particularly, the ability to make choices concerning fertility is a liberating force, helping to safeguard their health and that of their children, to plan for the future, to assume wider roles and responsibilities in society.

The United Nations has declared that education and access to means for determining the number and spacing of children is a human right, yet this is an ideal far from realization.

Coercion is still common, sometimes aimed at, with the aim of either limiting or increasing births, sometimes at limiting them, is common today. Evidence now clearly shows that many poor, women, particularly ethnic, women minorities, have been sterilized without their understanding of what was being done to them and without their informed consent. In many places, safe and legal abortion is denied, even in some cases even to save where the life of the pregnant woman is in danger and may be saved. In other cases, women are threatened that with cuts to welfare payments or other aid programs will be cut if they proceed with a pregnancy continues. Such inconsistency reflects lack of value-centered violates women's reproductive and economic rights. Women need to be fully informed and fully involved in all decision-making, as well as insensitivity to the personhood of the woman involved regarding their reproductive health and fertility. Furthermore, issues such as HIV/AIDS faced by women an adolescent girls due to gender inequality and how they cope with these inequalities and injustices will determine their ability to protect themselves from HIV/AIDS or to access antiretroviral therapy.

While societal needs should be considered more and more in fertility matters, this should never be at the price of demeaning the individual or applying restrictive measures only to the poor. Women should be fully informed and fully involved in the decision making.

HIV/AIDS and Women. According to 2004 Joint United Nations Program on HIV/AIDS report, women now account for almost half of the 38 million adults currently living with HIV/AIDS and of the 20 million adults who have died from the disease since the epidemic began. In 1999, 52 per cent of the 2.1 million adults who died from AIDS worldwide were women. The majority of these deaths occurred in sub-Saharan Africa, where women account for 57 per cent of those infected with HIV/AIDS. Women's risk of becoming infected with HIV during unprotected sexual intercourse is also known to be two to four times higher than that of men.

The Beijing Platform for Action recognizes that social and cultural factors often increase women's vulnerability to HIV and may determine the course that the infection takes in their lives. Women too often do not have the power to insist on safe and responsible sex practices and have little access to public health information and services, both of which have been found to be effective in preventing the disease and/or slowing its progress.

Women and Armed Conflict. Although the threat of global conflict has been reduced, wars of aggression, colonial or other forms of alien domination and foreign occupation, civil wars, and terrorism continue to plague the world. Grave violations of the human rights of women occur, particularly in times of armed conflict, and Women and the Environment. In terms of the environment, women around the world play distinct roles: in managing plants and animals in forests, dry lands, wetlands and agriculture; in collecting water, fuel, and fodder for domestic use and income generation; and in overseeing land and water resources. They contribute time, energy, skills, and personal visions to family and community development, and their extensive experience makes them an invaluable source of knowledge and expertise on environmental management and appropriate actions. However, when environmental changes takes place, the most affected are women. Yet, they have less access to land and productive resources.

Women and the Media. Today's data collection, social media, and surveillance are part of a new digital world. Technology has brought with it the amazing ability for women to organize virtually both regionally and globally; to access archives and document their history; to research; to monitor government commitments and actions; and to make the concerns of women visible to the public. It has opened new opportunities for women in science and technology. Simultaneously, there is a massive concentration of corporate ownership of media at all levels, which shapes images and attitudes regarding women. There are concerns about the potential privatization of the internet and the need for net neutrality. There continues to be a "digital divide" regarding access to the internet where many women in the Global South and poor women are excluded. Limited access to computer/technology education also restricts women and girls' access to quality jobs. Despite important efforts, there is still a huge gap in education and jobs for women and girls in science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) fields.

Women and Armed Conflict. In the twenty-first century, more wars are taking place within states than between states, with warring parties including non-state actors. Increasingly these are battles over natural resources, aided and abetted by powerful nations and corporations seeking control over oil, land, water and minerals in poor, undeveloped nations. Grave violations of women occur in conflict and post-conflict situations. These human rights' violations include murder, torture, systematic rape, forced pregnancy and forced abortion; in particular under policies of ethnic cleansing. Women and girls are among those most affected by the violence and economic instability associated with armed conflict. Yet, Yet when it comes to negotiating peace, advocating and facilitating the reconstruction of societies after war, peace, women are grossly under represented. For example, no Bosnian women were present at the Dayton Peace negotiations in 1995. Underrepresented in the decision-making process. The UN Security Council Resolution 1325 on Women, peace and security (2000), the United Nations has affirmed and subsequent resolutions on Women, Peace and Security (2000) affirm that women's protection in armed conflict and the integration of women's voices and experiences in the process of building peace are a primary concern of the participation in peace and decision-making are key to international community peace and security.

III.

Across the nations of the world, new movements are growing that address the serious handicaps and harsh realities of the lives of many women. In the context of this increasing momentum for a more just society, we call on local congregations and the agencies of the church:

1. to exert leadership in working, wherever possible, for legal recognition of equal rights for women. In the United States, this means a strengthened determination to secure passage for the Equal Rights Amendment, <<https://www.umofficialresources.com/reader/9781426766213/>> in line with the United Methodist Conference affirmations of 1972 and 1976. We need to recognize that this measure has become a symbol of the drive for equality. It has meaning far beyond the borders of one nation in the search for equal rights in other societies;

2. to urge governments

Call to Action:

Since The United Methodist Church recognizes that equality between women and men in a just sustainable society is a matter of biblical righteousness, the church is called to action in the following ways:

1. Take leadership in urging all remaining nations to ratify the Convention on the Elimination of Discrimination Against Women, CEDAW, which was adopted by the United Nations UN in December 1979, and advocate for the full implementation of CEDAW and Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action.

2. 3. to encourage Educate and advocate for policies that address the specific needs of women in all their diversity, including race, ethnicity, religion, class, age, sexual orientation, national origin and migration status, marital status and other factors.

3. Support mission programs that specifically address the needs and leadership of women who are marginalized due to multiple oppressions. Through studies, media, and education, work to explore the particular needs of women and girls in all their diversity, as well as the differential impact of policies on particular women due to their race, ethnicity, class, religion, sexual orientation, national origin, and other factors.

4. Encourage the support of studies by scientific and governmental bodies of on the economic contributions made by women outside the formal economic sector, and through women's unpaid labor and in the informal economy such as family care, domestic work and migrant labor. Urge nations to include this information in their gross national product of nations or products or national wealth compilations of national wealth;

5. 4. to urge Urge governments to ratify the June 1998 Statute of the International Criminal Court, adopted in June 1998, which that specifically addresses gender-based crimes and crimes against humanity such as rape, sexual slavery, enforced prostitution, forced pregnancy, and enforced sterilization;

6. 5. to support Support the need to enact specific legislation and develop policies to strengthen women's executive leadership and professional abilities, in particular to allow them including the right to manage their own businesses. To this end, governments should develop policies and projects that use local, national, and international networks to facilitate information, technology, credit, and training for women entrepreneurs, as well as specific programs that aim to empower women and enhance women's social and economic well-being through quality education; that leads to decent work.

7. 6. to examine Examine governmental policies and practices, including official development assistance, as to their impact on women's lives; to work to ensure that policies upgrade the status of women and that women in all their diversity are included in decision-making regarding sustainable development goals and programs. The key roles of women as workers and consumers and as transmitters of culture must be given adequate weight in national development activities; at all levels.

8. 7. to examine Examine the impact of transnational corporations on women's lives, and to work to eradicate including through the concentration of corporate power over democratic processes and decision-making; corporate bailouts that leave fewer resources for social spending; privatization of key government services; corporate influence over the multilateral system including the United Nations; corporate corruption and support of government corruption; corporate influence in resource wars and militarism; corporate violation of privacy through information technology; exploitative labor practices where identified. One such area is and the promotion and selling of dangerous or inappropriate products and technologies;

9. 8. to encourage Encourage steps that promote legal and economic literacy by publicizing and disseminating information on laws relating to the in the context of equal rights for men and women;

9. to encourage private charitable organizations, including churches, to initiate and support more programs of leadership education for women and other educational programs that upgrade the status of women. In many parts of the world, illiteracy remains high among adult women because of the lack of access to education in childhood. Strategies to combat female illiteracy must focus on ensuring girls' equal access to, and completion of, basic education. In addition, there is a need to reach out to adult women through massive literacy campaigns using all modern means available;

10. 10. to monitor Engage men and boys in gender equality and women's empowerment work to change both societal attitudes and behaviors towards women and girls as well as power relations and structures of inequality.

11. Promote the implementation of UN Security Council Resolution 1325 and related resolutions that support women in peace-keeping and decision-making in times of conflict and post-conflict reconstruction. Resolution 1325 is intimately connected to ending violence against women because historically women have been excluded from the peace process, leaving them vulnerable to more violence and dismissing the violence done to them during war as mere "collateral damage."

12. Monitor printed and audiovisual media and, as well as other means of communication on their portrayals of the roles and nature of women and men, and to seek ways to eradicate narrow stereotypes that limit the possibilities of useful contributions by both sexes/genders. The church should encourage study of the impact of Western—particularly US/the United States'—television, radio, and other media on cultural patterns and national development around the world, and it should draw public attention to cases where such influence is harmful to women and girls and destructive to other/their cultures;

13. 11. to support Support programs providing knowledge of the information and access to resources in the area of family planning and contraception. including that which is Christian-based, to encourage abstinence outside of marriage as a method of birth control, and to involve. Involve women in the preparation and distribution of these resources. Attention/Particular attention should particularly be given to ensuring access to safe, legal, and noncoercive contraception; well-informed choice/providing accurate information regarding abortion and its alternatives (adoptions and so forth); requiring informed consent for sterilization procedures; and creating safe women's health-care facilities. We also oppose/Oppose for-profit making referral agencies, which that charge fees for providing information that is freely available elsewhere; and.

14. 12. to examine Examine the impact of judicial decisions at all levels upon the daily lives of women in such areas as child custody, employment, civil rights, racial and sexual discrimination, credit practices, estate settlements, reproduction and education, and socioeconomic status.

15. Encourage the church to initiate and support leadership education for women and other educational programs that upgrade the status of women. Opposition to Global Racism, Tribalism and Xenophobia: Impact on Women, Children, and Youth

Amend Resolution 6024 as follows:

The General Conference of The United Methodist Church affirms the United Nations principles relating to global racism, tribalism and xenophobia.

The General Conference reaffirms the principles of equality and nondiscrimination in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and encourages respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction of any kind such as race, color, sex, language, religion, political, tribe or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth, or other status.

We, the General Conference . . .

We recognize the fundamental importance of nations in combating racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia, tribalism and related intolerance [~~hereinafter referred to as racism~~]; and, the need to consider signing, ratifying or acceding to all relevant international human rights instruments, with a view to international adherence.

We recognize that religion . . .

We recognize the need to develop a more systematic and consistent approach to evaluating and monitoring racial discrimination against women, children, and youth.

Therefore, we, the General Conference, urge that in light of these affirmations and principles, each nation in which The United Methodist Church is established:

- adhere to the principles and programs contained in the opening statements;
- that the United States, all nations, and The United Methodist Church incorporate a gender perspective in all programs of action against racism, tribalism and xenophobia;
- that the United States, all nations, and The United Methodist Church undertake detailed research on racism, tribalism, and xenophobia, especially in respect to its effect on women, children, and youth;
- that the United States, all nations, and The United Methodist Church address the burden of such discrimination on women, children, and youth and promote their participation in the economic and productive development of their communities, especially in respect to:

1. the increased proportion . . .

2. the large number of children and young people, particularly girls, who are victims of racism, tribalism and xenophobia;

3. the rights of children . . .

4. child labor . . .

5. education . . .

• ~~that the United States, all nations, and The United Methodist Church~~ involve women, children, and youth in decision-making at all levels related to the eradication of racism, tribalism, and xenophobia;

Therefore, we further resolve that the General Commission on Religion and Race, the General Commission on the Status and Role of Women, in consultation with United Methodist Women, ~~create a monitoring instrument for assessing~~ assess evidences of racism, tribalism and xenophobia in programs for and with women, children, and youth;

• all mission institutions, schools, and institutions of higher education, annual conferences, and general agencies evaluate current and projected programs to determine their impact in reducing racism, tribalism and xenophobia in programs for women, children, and youth; and

• a report be prepared and presented to each General Conference by the General Commission on Religion and Race, the General Commission on the Status and Role of Women, in consultation with United Methodist Women, related to the status of women, children, and youth impacted by racism, tribalism, and xenophobia.

Rationale:

In order to reflect and address the reality of global church, and specifically the experiences and impact on women, children, and youth, this resolution was updated to include tribalism.

Ethics of Embryonic Stem Cell Research

Amend Resolution 8006

Delete last sentence in Preamble

~~We reaffirm our theological grounding on these issues as found in Section II of the 2004 Book of Resolu-~~

~~tions, Resolution #102—“New Developments in Genetic Science.”~~

Amend first paragraph under Concerns

A human embryo, even at its earliest stages, commands our reverence and makes a serious moral claim on us., ~~although not a claim identical to that of a more developed human life.~~ For this reason we should not create embryos with the sole intention of destroying them, ~~as in the creation of embryos for research purposes.~~ Neither should we, even for reproductive purposes, produce more embryos than we can expect to introduce into the womb in the hope of implantation.

Amend second paragraph under Concerns:

We recommend the following guidelines for clinicians and couples considering IVF ~~to minimize the over-production of embryos~~:

Insert new subparagraph before current first subparagraph:

• We call for rigorous standards of informed consent regarding the procedures, the physical and emotional risks, and the associated ethical issues be applied to all reproductive technologies.

Delete the following subparagraphs:

• ~~Only enough embryos should be produced to achieve one pregnancy at a time.~~

• ~~We insist that rigorous standards of informed consent regarding the procedures, the physical and emotional risks, and the associated ethical issues be applied to all reproductive technologies. This is especially important regarding the disposition of “excess” embryos and should be the norm of practice around the world.~~

Amend first paragraph, fourth sentence under Some Judgments:

There has been . . . The use of adult stem cells and stem cells derived from umbilical cord blood raises few moral questions.

Amend second paragraph first sentence under Some Judgments:

Given the reality that most, if not all, ~~of these~~ excess embryos will be discarded, we believe that it is morally tolerable to use existing embryos for stem-cell research purposes.

Delete first paragraph under The Issue of “Therapeutic Cloning”:

~~In consideration of the potential therapeutic benefits that might eventually arise from research on embryonic stem cells, particular concerns are raised by a proposed practice called “therapeutic cloning.” This involves taking a donated human egg, extracting its nucleus, and replacing it with a nucleus taken from another body cell. This newly formed cell would then be electrically or chemically~~ stimulated to develop into an embryo. This embryo would contain most of the same genes as the person whose body cell was used to obtain the nucleus. The cloned embryo would then be used as a source of stem cells, which would be a closer genetic match for that donor, although they would contain some genes from the egg cell used for the cloning. This procedure might overcome the problem of immune system rejection of cellular treatments that might be developed for an individual from embryonic stem cells. As of March 2007, no human embryos have been successfully cloned. However, we still believe that human embryos should not be created purely for the sake of research, or created with the advance intention of destroying them, or cloned for harvesting stem cells.

Amend second paragraph under The Issue of “Therapeutic Cloning”:

The United Methodist Church supports persons who wish to enhance medical research by donating their early embryos remaining after in vitro fertilization procedures have ended, and urges ~~the United States Congress~~ national governments to pass legislation that would authorize ~~federal~~ funding for derivation of and medical research on human embryonic stem cells that were generated ~~for~~ from IVF embryos and remain after fertilization procedures have been concluded, provided that:

Amend last paragraph:

~~The United States Secretary of Health and Human Services is~~ National health agencies are urged to establish an interdisciplinary oversight body for all research in both the public and private sectors that involves stem cells from human embryos, adult stem cells that have been made pluripotent, parthenotes, sperm cells, or egg cells, and cells that produce sperm or eggs.

Rationale:

Revisions enhanced current content by shortening it through deletions of language that occurs in other resolutions, such as 3182 Human Cloning.

Non-Discrimination in Disability Compensation

Long term disability insurance protects employees around the world by providing continuing compensation in lieu of salary when an accident or illness prevents an employee from continuing their service to their employer. Ideally, such insurance provides for compensation based purely on the existence of a disability that prevents continuing employment, and continues for the duration of that disability.

In many countries such insurance is often subject to a limitation for disabilities based on “mental and nervous conditions.” The primary reason offered for such a discrimination between disabilities is the comparative difficulty of validating disabilities whose evidence relies on self-reporting. Other reasons may include the belief that mental and nervous conditions are more likely temporary in nature and therefore a time limitation, typically two years, is appropriate. The limitation therefore places the administrative needs of insurers over the wellbeing of the persons they are committed to insure. In the United States, courts have held that discrimination in disability insurance is not addressed by non-discrimination provisions of either the Americans with Disabilities Act or the Affordable Care Act. In the United States, disability insurance is generally regulated at the state level.

The United Methodist Church affirms its long standing support for persons with mental illness and their families. Jesus Christ made no distinctions in his healing ministry between persons with physical disabilities and those which we might today call mental illnesses. We call upon the General Board of Church and Society to advocate globally on behalf of non-discriminatory long-term disability insurance for workers, and to support and encourage the work of annual conference boards of church and society in such advocacy at state and regional legislative bodies.

UMC and the Sand Creek Massacre

Add a new resolution to the Book of Resolutions:

The 2016 General Conference commits The United Methodist Church to learning and teaching its own history and entering into a journey of healing in relationship with the descendants of the Sand Creek Massacre of 1864.

1. We receive with appreciation the report, Remembering the Sand Creek Massacre: A Historical Review of Methodist Involvement, Influence, and Response by Dr. Gary Roberts, which was authorized by the 2012 General Conference in Petition #20767, "1864 Sand Creek Massacre." We commend this report to the Church as a resource for understanding the Sand Creek Massacre and the history of the Church's role in colonization, displacement, and destruction of indigenous cultures in every land. And we refer the report to The United Methodist Publishing House to prepare study materials for use across the connection.

2. We acknowledge that too often in the past and yet today, Christian individuals and the Church as an institution have been agents of death rather than protectors of life. Clergy and lay leaders who were trained, respected and honored by the Methodist Episcopal Church used their influence through the church, government and the military, in ways that caused profound harm to Indian peoples at Sand Creek, including killing nearly 200 peaceful Indians camped under the protection of the U. S. government and desecrating the bodies of the slain. We acknowledge that leading up to the Massacre, during the Massacre and in the aftermath of the Massacre, representatives of the Church utterly failed to uphold gospel values of respect for human life and all of creation, justice for all people, self-giving love and hospitality to strangers.

3. We commit The United Methodist Church to the following actions, recommended by official Sand Creek Massacre tribal descendants representatives:

a. Recognize the Northern Cheyenne Tribe of Montana, the Cheyenne and Arapaho Tribes of Oklahoma and the Northern Arapaho of Wyoming as the Federally recognized Tribes as stated in the 1865 Treaty of Little Arkansas with the U.S Government, and the official representatives concerning the Sand Creek Massacre. The Council of Bishops will initiate formal negotiations with official tribal representatives to produce a Memorandum of Understanding establishing an on-going healing relationship between these tribes and The United Methodist Church.

b. Through the General Board of Church and Society in cooperation with other agencies of the Church, support legal efforts for reparations approved in the Treaty of Little Arkansas with the Cheyenne and Arapaho people in 1865, but never paid in full. (<<http://digital.library.oxstate.edu/kappler/vol2/treaties/che0887.htm>>).

c. Through the Mountain Sky and Oklahoma Areas, where descendant tribes are located, support and encourage participation in the annual Spiritual Healing Run, commemorating the Sand Creek Massacre and promoting healing of generational trauma.

d. Through the Office on Christian Unity and Interreligious Relations of the Council of Bishops, and the General Commission on Archives and History, assist with the creation of public memorials remembering and honoring the people who were killed at Sand Creek.

e. Through the Office on Christian Unity and Interreligious Relations, in cooperation with the General Board of Church and Society, encourage the Roman Catholic Church to repeal the Doctrine of Discovery (see The Book of Resolutions of The United Methodist Church, 2012, Resolution 3331, "Doctrine of Discovery," page 424.) The Doctrine of Discovery was established by Papal Bulls in the 15th century and became "a principle of international law used to justify Western Europe's dominion over lands occupied for thousands of years by indigenous peoples... sanctioning and promoting the conquest, colonization and exploitation of non-Christian lands and peoples." (<<http://www.lorettocommunity.org/mission-work/justice-and-peace/papal-bull-rescission-committee/>>).

f. Through the General Board of Church and Society in cooperation with the General Board of Global Ministries and the General Commission on Religion and Race and other agencies of the Church, support tribal work to strengthen the Cheyenne and Arapaho way of life by respecting traditional religious practices, protecting tribal ancestral lands and assisting with development of renewable energy projects for a healthier environment.

g. Through the Council of Bishops and the General Board of Church and Society, encourage return to the tribes Native artifacts or remains in the United States covered by the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (NAGPRA) or related to the Sand Creek Massacre.

h. Through these same agencies, to support acquisition of property and increase tribal landholdings in ancestral lands.

[See ADCA Volume 2, Section 3 for full text of the report.]

Rationale:

The 2012 General Conference authorized research into Methodist involvement in the Sand Creek Massacre. Cheyenne and Arapaho descendants along with United Methodists guided this research. This petition invites the Church to receive the report, Remembering the Sand Creek Massacre, learn the history, and help heal historic wounds

Opposition to Racial Profiling in the U.S.

Opposition to Racial Profiling in the U.S.

WHEREAS, racial profiling in the United States, is a practice directed at people based solely on race and has been a concern of numerous civil rights organizations and The United Methodist Church for decades; and

WHEREAS, the insidious practice of racial profiling by law enforcement agencies around the country continues to rise;

WHEREAS, racial profiling is a violation of the respect for human rights, an abhorrent manifestation of racism, and violation of the moral standard of the United States and The United Methodist Church; and

WHEREAS, various states have signed or attempted to sign legislation that would give local law enforcement the right to arrest anyone they suspect is in the country illegally, which violates the equal protection clause in the U.S. Constitution; and

WHEREAS, racial profiling threatens the safety of both U.S. citizens and immigrants;

Therefore, we call on the Council of Bishops, annual conferences and members of local churches to contact their local, state, and federal representatives urging that they prioritize and enact legislation to end racial profiling, and allocate sufficient funds for its vigorous enforcement so as to ensure:

a. a federal prohibition against racial profiling,

b. re-training of law enforcement officials on how to discontinue and prevent the use of racial profiling, and

c. law enforcement agencies are held accountable for use of racial profiling.

Therefore, finally, we call on The United Methodist Church through its annual conferences, districts and local churches and under the leadership of the General Board of Church and Society and the General Commission on Religion and Race, in coordination with the General Board of Global Ministries and the United Methodist Women, to be proactive in educating the constituency about racial profiling and establishing networks of cooperation with criminal justice and law enforcement agencies.

Rationale:

Racial profiling is a violation of the respect for human rights. This resolution calls on the Church to be proactive in educating the constituency about racial profiling and establishing networks of cooperation with criminal justice and law enforcement agencies.

End Celebration of Columbus Day

Be it resolved, that “Columbus Day” will no longer be recognized by the people of The United Methodist Church. United Methodist annual conferences, agencies, schools, universities, and local churches in lands that officially celebrate “Columbus Day” will either not observe this holiday or will initiate organizational conversations designed to rename and re-purpose this holiday in accordance with our United Methodist Social Principles (See Book of Discipline ¶¶ 162 & 162a), and upon passage

Be it further resolved, that the General Board of Discipleship of The United Methodist Church will provide and distribute to our local churches in North America a liturgy designed to enact the spiritual dimensions of our choice to cease participating in the celebration of Columbus. Our repentance, petitions for God’s forgiveness, and return to God’s Word for visions of the relationships God desires will take place in worship on the Sunday closest to the second Monday in October, and upon passage

Be it further resolved, that United Methodist annual conferences, boards, agencies, and local churches in lands affected by the legacy of Columbus are encouraged and directed to invest our relational influence at regional, local, and personal levels toward the initiation of conversations intended to awaken the conscience of God’s people to the benefits of turning away from the legacy of Columbus. The General Board of Church and Society is directed to give leadership to our effort bring about the repeal of “Columbus Day” as a national holiday in the United States of America.

Rationale:

“Bear fruits worthy of repentance!” - Matt. 3:8) The genocidal legacy of Columbus is celebrated rather than lamented, allowing a sinful pattern of exploitation to become the norm. As the church leads in establishing the Kingdom of God, it should demonstrate repentance and announce God’s desire for relationships founded on . . .

Stop Criminalizing Communities of Color in the United States

Stop Criminalizing Communities of Color in the United States

In the United States, policing policies, immigration law enforcement, and exponentially growing incarceration rates all disproportionately impact persons of color and harm families and communities. The United Methodist Church must work to dismantle policies that assume whole groups of people are criminals and encourage public acceptance of the injustices of racial profiling (2008 Book of Resolutions, #3378), mass incarceration, and disenfranchisement of entire communities demonized as a threatening “other.”

Economic Crisis and Demonization of Communities

Globally and within nations, including the United States, there is a widening gap between rich and poor (2012 Book of Resolutions, #4052 and #6028). To maintain order amid this wealth and resource inequality, governments increasingly enact policies that divide workers and exploit migrant labor, as did Pharaoh in the biblical story of the Exodus. The Book of Exodus opens with Pharaoh looking over the land of Egypt and seeing a people growing in strength and number; he becomes fearful.

“He said to his people, ‘Look, the Israelite people are more numerous and more powerful than we. Come, let us deal shrewdly with them, or they will increase and, in the event of war, join our enemies and fight against us and escape from the land’” (Exodus 1:9-10 NRSV).

Pharaoh did not fear other peoples or migrant labor but rather, he feared that a mixed multitude of Israelites, impoverished Egyptians, and “enemies” would unite (Exodus 12:38) and rise up to free themselves from exploitation. As in Pharaoh’s day, today’s governments use fear-based policies to divide and to control populations that might otherwise challenge the growing concentration of wealth and resources in the hands of a few.

Today, invoking the crises language of national security—“the war on drugs,” “the war on illegal immigration,” “the war on terror”—the U.S. government, like Pharaoh, has targeted poor, racial, ethnic, migrant, and other marginalized communities of color for selective enforcement of statutes, and thus criminalized entire communities.

Waging “war” on communities of color

The 40-year-old “war on drugs” has had a devastating impact on communities of color in the United States. In 2012, 23.9 million Americans, ages twelve and over, and of all races and socioeconomic levels had used an illicit drug or abused a medication, according to the National Institute on Drug Abuse (National Institute on Drug Abuse, 2015). But the “war on drugs” has not been waged across all races and socioeconomic levels; it has been waged through systemic selective law enforcement targeting African Americans, Latinos, and Native Americans (2012 Book of Resolutions #3042, #3376, and #5033) in settings that vary from traffic stops, SWAT-type raids on homes and grocery stores, and stop-and-searches of people going about their daily tasks.

Policies like New York City’s “stop and frisk” and “broken windows” policing have empowered officers to detain and search pedestrians without probable cause and make arrests for minor infractions. In 2013, 88 percent of the nearly 200,000 persons “stopped and frisked” by the New York Police Department were innocent civilians; 85 percent of those stopped were Black and Latino, and 11 percent were White (New York Civil Liberties Union, 2015). These policies subject hundreds of thousands of innocent people of color to routine abuse, public humiliation, injury, and even unprosecuted deaths for some (Harris-Perry, 2014).

Similarly, children of color are punished more severely and more frequently than their white classmates (U.S. Department of Education, 2014), making school suspensions and expulsions “stops” on the “school-to-prison pipeline”—pushing children out of school and onto troubled streets and then off to prison.

Such over policing erodes community trust in law enforcement and sends a clear message to police that not all Americans are equal under law, as people in targeted communities do not have the same constitutional protections other Americans enjoy (Alexander, 2010).

Targeting migrants

This criminalization of entire communities is being expanded today in the name of a so-called “war on ‘illegal’ immigration” and “war on terror.” As with the “war on drugs,” citizens and migrants alike in “immigrant” communities are subjected to racial profiling and suspension of basic rights. Migrants are being arrested and held in prisons in a growing network of “detention centers,” many private for-profit institutions.

Roundups targeting specific communities of color, such as Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) raids or drift-net arrests (this refers to police sweeps within a specific community and arrests without probable cause designed to catch potential criminals), sweep up large numbers of people without probable cause often for non-violent offenses. In the process, more than 5,000 migrant parents have permanently lost custody of their children as detention court and family court policies collide (Race Forward). When migrants who have been deported seek to reunite with their families, they face felony charges for reentering the United States. More than 25,000 migrants with these and other nonviolent convictions are detained in thirteen private prisons under the “Criminal Alien Requirement” program, costing taxpayers billions of dollars every year.

Mass incarceration

The criminalization of communities of color includes mass incarceration. The “war on drugs” has played a critical role in the escalation of U.S. incarceration rates. From 1970 to 2009 the U.S. prison population grew more than 700 percent (American Civil Liberties Union, 2015) so that today, with only 5 percent of the world's population, the United States incarcerates 25 percent of all prisoners in the world. This makes the U.S. the world's largest jailer. More than 60 percent of the people incarcerated in U.S. prisons are people of color. Nearly half of federal prisoners (48 percent) are incarcerated for drug offenses (Federal Bureau of Prisons, 2015). Nearly half of state prisoners (47 percent) were convicted of nonviolent drug, property or public order crimes (The Sentencing Project, 2015).

Migrant communities also find themselves in the tight grip of mass incarceration promoted by a growing prison industry, which includes the multibillion-dollar business of detention and deportation. In 2010, private companies in the United States operated more than 250 correctional facilities, housing almost 99,000 prisoners. These companies regularly lobby Congress for more detention and mandatory sentences as they profit from increased incarceration and extended sentences, even if this is not the most effective use of taxpayer dollars (Detention Watch Network, 2011). U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) detains an average of 34,000 immigrants each day, three times the number detained in 1996. In 2012, about 400,000 immigrants were detained, costing taxpayers $1.7 billion at an average of $122 a day per bed (Carwell, Sarah; Grassroots Leadership; Detention Watch Network, 2015). As of 2015, a congressionally mandated bed quota obliged ICE to incarcerate 34,000 immigrants in detention at any given time or pay private companies in any case (Detention Watch Network, 2015).

Both citizen prisoners and migrant detainees are frequently held in facilities far away from their families and legal counsel, placing tremendous hardship on loved ones and their ability to legally fight for their freedom.

Impact on women and children

Women of color—citizen and migrant—are at the crux of the mass incarceration of people of color. African American and Latina women make up the fastest growing population in U.S. prisons and jails (The Rebecca Project for Human Rights). Nearly 25 percent of women in state prisons are there for nonviolent drug-related offenses (Carson, 2015). Fifty-six percent of female prisoners are mothers (Glaze & Maruschak, 2015).

Women in prison and detention face sexual harassment and sexual abuse, as they struggle to keep families together. Women who face abuse in prison and detention fear speaking out and cannot flee. Both imprisoned and detained women have been chained and shackled during childbirth. Most incarcerated women were first survivors of sexual and physical abuse.

Ending the Torture of Solitary Confinement

Once incarcerated, the conditions of confinement for many people of color continue to follow a pattern of bias, as exemplified by the use of solitary confinement in jails, prisons, and immigrant detention centers. According to the Bureau of Justice Statistics, on any given day, roughly 80,000 incarcerated adults and youth are held in solitary confinement in the United States. A disproportionate number of them are people of color (Schlanger, 2013). Prolonged solitary confinement in U.S. prisons constitutes torture and violates the Convention Against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (CAT).

Solitary confinement also impacts immigrants confined in civil detention. Women are placed in solitary confinement in retaliation for reporting incidence of rape.

Ongoing punishment after incarceration

The impact of the criminalization of communities of color does not end after incarceration. Rather, upon their release from prison, people with a felony conviction begin a lifelong sentence of second-class citizenship, stripped of their right to vote, facing legal discrimination in employment and housing, and banned from accessing government services such as tuition assistance, food stamps, housing, and more. Such experiences are described in Michelle Alexander's The New Jim Crow: Mass Incarceration in the Age of Colorblindness.

The United Methodist Church's Response

The United Methodist Church affirms the inalienable human rights of all persons. The Charter for Racial Justice calls us to challenge institutional racism. Also, The United Methodist Church's Social Principles (§ 164H) calls United Methodists to practice restorative justice, seeking alternatives to retribution and restoration of right relationships among all God's people. So, The United Methodist Church calls on local and national governments to:

- Stop the criminalization of communities of color and the cacophony of "wars" being waged against these communities.
- Make the enforcement and protection of international human rights law central to criminal justice and immigration policy.
- End racial/ethnic/religious profiling by law enforcement officers and end "zero tolerance" policies in schools.
- Suspend ICE raids, end family detention and ALL incarceration of children in compliance with the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child. Keep families together.
- End local police involvement in immigration enforcement (2012 Book of Resolutions, #3281).
- End mandatory sentencing laws and mandatory detention policies, and affirm judicial discretion in sentencing and deportation rulings.

- Restore the full citizenship rights, including the vote, to U.S. citizens with felony convictions; remove barriers to their employment and ability to secure housing and supportive services. Provide education and job creation so they can rejoin society.

- Repeal employer sanctions and other measures that criminalize undocumented migrants seeking work.

The United Methodist Task Force on Immigration, representing the Council of Bishops, agencies, and racial/ethnic caucuses should work to:

- Affirm the humanity and inherent dignity of all who are under correctional control and examine links between criminal justice and immigrant enforcement policies as they impact communities of color.

- Challenge the criminalization of migrants in the United States and globally by engaging annual and central conferences in advocacy. Build alliances with ecumenical and secular groups.

General Board of Church and Society, General Commission on Religion and Race, the General Board of Global Ministries, and United Methodist Women should:

- Develop local church resources on this issue with U.S. and international groups.

- Work with Central Conferences to deepen research, analysis, and action on global migration policies.

- Mobilize congregations to challenge private prisons and detention centers, and to advocate the release of prisoners held for nonviolent offenses.

Annual conferences and local congregations should:

- Challenge police engagement in immigration enforcement.

- Call United Methodists to discernment on these issues through use of the Wesleyan Quadrilateral, as well as the frameworks of human rights, racial justice, and restorative justice. Use a critical lens regarding mass media (See Resolution 8011, “Proper Use of Information Communication Technologies.”)

- Engage with churches and local communities in speaking out publicly for police accountability regarding racial profiling, misconduct, abuse, and killings.

- Work to end the use of solitary confinement.

- Provide reentry ministries for people released from prison.

Religious Freedom: Grounded in Love

Add new Resolution to the Book of Resolutions as follows:

Religious Freedom: Grounded in Love

“For you were called to freedom, brothers and sisters; only do not use your freedom as an opportunity for self-indulgence, but through love become slaves to one another. For the whole law is summed up in a single commandment, “You shall love your neighbor as yourself.” If, however, you bite and devour one another, take care that you are not consumed by one another” (Galatians 5:13-15 NRSV).

The many Epistles in the New Testament were addressed to, and read by, small faith communities facing religious persecution and political repression. The early church often faced beatings, imprisonment, and death for the public expression of their faith. As a religious minority, early Christian communities were frequently accused of blasphemy against the dominant religion and/or of being a political opposition group that must be suppressed. From the start, Christians have asserted our right to freely respond to God’s grace at work in our lives.

Throughout history many different religious communities, notably minorities, have maintained their faithfulness as they faced similar accusations and violent repression. Too often those seeking to maintain or attain political power have yoked religious fervor with use of violence and repression against “the other.” As Paul warned the Galatians long ago, today too many neighbors of different faiths are devouring one another rather than living together in mutual respect and love.

Religious freedom seeks to restore the rule of love that binds us through our diversity, over against the ways of fear, hate and violence that keep us divided.

At the same time, history gives us many examples of people of different faiths living side by side in cooperation and conversation with one another. We affirm that often we learn more about, and deepen, our own faith when we share and engage with others.

With the Protestant Reformation and the Enlightenment, Western Christian societies placed increasing emphasis on the individual and one’s personal relationship with God. The rights of the individual in contrast to the State, or the Church, gave rise to the modern human rights movement culminating in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (1948) and succeeding international human rights treaties. These rights include freedom of religious belief and have served as a foundation for much of modern calls for religious freedom.

Religious freedom, as a human right, involves not only every individual’s freedom of belief, thought, and conscience, but also a person's right to change one's belief. Religious freedom flourishes when societies welcome diverse faith communities gathering in worship and living out their respective faith traditions as integral parts of society.

The insistence on religious freedom as a human right does not necessarily mean an end to repression, but rather the affirmation from a Christian perspective that love of God and love of neighbor is more powerful than government repression, hate speech and violent, extremist threats.

The words from First Peter demonstrate the power of religious freedom in contrast to a spiraling cycle of violence and repression: "Do not repay evil for evil, or abuse for abuse; but, on the contrary, repay with a blessing. . . . Now who will harm you if you are eager to do what is good? But even if you do suffer for doing what is right, you are blessed. Do not fear what they fear, and do not be intimidated, but in your hearts sanctify Christ as Lord. Always be ready to make your defense to anyone who demands from you an accounting for the hope that is in you; yet do it with gentleness and reverence. Keep your conscience clear, so that, when you are maligned, those who abuse you for your good conduct in Christ may be put to shame" (1 Peter 3:9, 13-16 NRSV).

Our commitment to religious freedom leads us to challenge any secular or religious claim to the right to impose one religious way onto others by political, economic, or military force. When any religion is used to justify violence or hateful attacks on others, God mourns, and God calls us all to repent and seek an end to such violence. In humility, we affirm that God's love is too strong, too broad, and too deep for any of us to constrain or prescribe how God continues to work among us all. Accepting God's grace at work in transforming our lives, we are both free and at the same time compelled to share how God's love manifests itself in our lives and in the world today. We testify to God's love both through sharing the good news and through our love of neighbors and love of enemies. Yet if we do not respect, honor, and listen to our neighbors, and especially our enemies, then we have not love (1 Corinthians 13:1).

Religious freedom, grounded in love, invites us into the hard work of dialog, listening and sharing with different faith communities, and also to acts of reconciliation across boundaries that divide our own Christian communities. The letter of Colossians offers us guidance in our interfaith and intercultural efforts. "Bear with one another and, if anyone has a complaint against another, forgive each other; just as the Lord has forgiven you, so you also must forgive. Above all, clothe yourselves with love, which binds everything together in perfect harmony. . . . Conduct yourselves wisely toward outsiders, making the most of the time. Let your speech always be gracious, seasoned with salt, so that you may know how you ought to answer everyone" (Colossians 3:13-14; 4:5-6 NRSV).

In the letter to the Romans, Paul urges, "Let love be genuine; hate what is evil, hold fast to what is good; love one another with mutual affection; outdo one another in showing honor. Do not lag in zeal, be ardent in spirit, serve the Lord. Rejoice in hope, be patient in suffering, persevere in prayer. Contribute to the needs of the saints; extend hospitality to strangers. Bless those who persecute you; bless and do not curse them. . . . Do not repay anyone evil for evil, but take thought for what is noble in the sight of all" (Romans 12:9-14, 17 NRSV).

Following the wisdom of Paul, we seek societies where all faith communities are honored and treat one another with mutual respect. At the same time, whenever freedom of religion is denied or people are discriminated against on the basis of their religious belief or practice, we are called to speak out and to resist all such discrimination in nonviolent, loving ways. Blessing those who persecute does not mean accepting the violence of persecution. Rather, it requires resistance grounded in love.

"Love does no wrong to a neighbor; therefore, love is the fulfilling of the law" (Romans 13:10 NRSV). Thus, we challenge actions and government policies that misuse the notion of religious freedom in ways that would harm others by denying anyone services, honor, dignity, equal rights, and equal protection. Such actions that harm or discriminate against others are not expressions of religious freedom. Moreover, love does not allow a neighbor, or an enemy, to keep doing wrong even in the name of religion. Religious freedom grounded in love does not mean "anything goes." It does not condone silence in the face of violent repression of anyone's religion. On the contrary, the letter to the Ephesians insists that we take on an often painful, hard task: "So then, putting away falsehood, let all of us speak the truth to our neighbors, for we are members of one another" (Ephesians 4:25 NRSV).

We must speak out and act whenever religious freedom is denied but always in a spirit of love and respect for all.

Therefore, The United Methodist Church, its agencies, institutions, and members are called to:

1. Honor, respect, and advocate for religious freedom for all faith communities through study, through interfaith sharing, and through listening as expressions of our love for all.

2. Urge all governments to respect the right of religious freedom in their laws and practices; and to welcome a diversity of religious expressions as serving the common good in every society.

3. Join with ecumenical and interfaith partners to advocate, through education and political action, to protect and further religious freedom wherever it is denied or threatened. Indeed, we take the words of Paul to Corinth to heart: “If one member suffers, all suffer together with it” (1 Corinthians 12:26 NRSV).

4. Extend the compassionate ministry of the church to persons who suffer because either religious or governmental authorities seek to deny these rights to them.

5. Offer support to the mandate of the United Nations Special Rapporteur on Religious Intolerance and other international efforts seeking to protect and promote religious freedom as a human right.

See Resolution 239, 2004 Book of Resolutions

See Social Principles, ¶ 164 A,C

Rationale:

The UMC has long affirmed the importance of religious freedom. In the face of rising violence in the name of religion, it is critical that we, as followers of the Prince of Peace, re-affirm to respect and protect the religious rights of all people and faith communities that find themselves . . .

Global Health and Rights: Eradicating Sexual and Gender-based Violence

New Resolution to replace expiring resolutions #3423 Violence Against Women and Children, and #6145 Rape in Times of War

All of creation is sacred in God’s sight. Because many women and children, along with others, are ignored, abused, and violated, we urge renewed commitment to prohibiting violence against women and children in all its forms.

Violence takes different forms and in many cases, it is about power and control. Violence is a tool used by the strong to dominate the weak and the powerful to dominate the vulnerable. Often the mere threat of violence is enough to achieve the goal of dominance and control. Human beings are especially vulnerable with respect to gender and sexuality, and therefore sexual and gender-based violence (SGBV) is particularly devastating.

Exploitation, abuse, and violence take many forms: child marriage, female genital mutilation, child soldiers, displacement of persons, family violence, polygamy, human trafficking, and rape as an act of war.

Child Marriage. In 1948 the Universal Declaration of Human Rights affirmed that marriage must be based on consent. Yet, in practice, one third of girls in the developing world are married before the age of 18 and 1 in 9 are married before the age of 15: usually without their consent and often to men they do not know (Child Marriage Facts and Figures, International Center for Research on Women, <<http://www.icrw.org/child-marriage-facts-and-figures>>). As recently as 2010, 67 million women aged 20-24 around the world had been married before the age of 18 (Child Marriage Facts and Figures, International Center for Research on Women, <http://www.icrw.org/child-marriage-facts-and-figures>). Child marriage itself is an expression of power and control, and can lead to further experiences of violence.

Female Genital Mutilation. According to the World Health Organization, “female genital mutilation (FGM) comprises all procedures that involve partial or total removal of the external female genitalia, or other injury to the female genital organs for nonmedical reasons. FGM is recognized internationally as a violation of the human rights of girls and women” (Female Genital Mutilation Fact Sheet, World Health Organization <http://www.who.int/mediacentre/factsheets/fs241/en/>). FGM is nearly always carried out on minors to keep girls and women from experiencing pleasure during sexual intercourse, rationalized that this will keep girls from straying outside of marriage. FGM “has no medical benefits” and can cause harmful medical complications including “severe pain, shock, bleeding, recurrent bladder and urinary tract infections, infertility and an increased risk of childbirth complications and newborn deaths” (Female Genital Mutilation Fact Sheet, World Health Organization, <http://www.who.int/mediacentre/factsheets/fs241/en/>).

Child Soldiers. UNICEF estimates that “300,000 children—boys and girls under the age of 18—are involved in more than 30 conflicts worldwide. Children are used as combatants, messengers, porters, cooks and for forced sexual services. Some are abducted or forcibly recruited, others are driven to join by poverty, abuse and discrimination, or to seek revenge for violence enacted against them or their families” (Fact Sheet: Child Soldiers, UNICEF, <http://www.unicef.org/emerg/files/childsoldiers.pdf>). Sexual violence is increasingly common in conflict situations and is perpetrated against both girls and boys.

Displaced Persons. Displaced children, women, lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) persons and persons with disabilities are particularly at risk of sexual and gender-based violence (U.N. High Commissioner on Refugees). During conflict and disaster, children are easily separated from their families. Limited in their ability to protect themselves, they are vulnerable to sexual exploitation, abuse, trafficking, forced or early marriage, female genital mutilation or other harmful traditional practices. With less access to employment than men, women and girls are often compelled to engage in sex for survival. In the developing world, they are in danger of rape, assault, and even death as they search for water, firewood, and food for the household. Added to these social and physical atrocities are the possibilities of unwanted pregnancy, HIV infection, and the transmission of the virus from the mother to her unborn child.

Family Violence. Violence and abuse exist around the world and in families in virtually every congregation; tragically, no church or community is exempt. Abuse among family members—child abuse, spouse/partner abuse, elder abuse—takes many forms: emotional, physical, verbal, sexual, and economic. It is manifested through violence, abusive language, controlling behavior, intimidation, and exploitation.

Polygamy. Some traditions observe polygamy: multiple wives of one husband. Polygamy typically places women in a subordinate role subject to the power and control of the husband, and with no legal rights to family property.

Labor and Sex Trafficking. Modern-day slavery has become the fastest-growing transnational criminal enterprise earning an estimated $150 billion (U.S.) in illegal profits annually while enslaving 21 million people around the world (Human Trafficking, U.N. Office on Drugs and Crime, <http://www.unodc.org/unodc/en/human-trafficking/what-is-human-trafficking.html>). The United Nations underscores the role of violence in trafficking, defining it as “the recruitment, transportation, transfer, harboring, or receipt of persons, by means of the threat or use of force or other forms of coercion, of abduction, of fraud, of deception, of the abuse of power or of a position of vulnerability or of the giving or receiving of payments or benefits to achieve the consent of a person having control over another person, for the purpose of exploitation.

“Exploitation includes . . . sexual exploitation, forced labor or services, slavery or practices similar to slavery, servitude” (Human Trafficking, U.N. Office on Drugs and Crime, <http://www.unodc.org/unodc/en/human-trafficking/what-is-human-trafficking.html>).

Rape as a Weapon of War. For centuries, women have been raped as an act of violence and a demonstration of power—especially in times of conflict and war. Rape has been and is sanctioned by some military organizations for the gratification of soldiers during war. For example, during World War II “comfort women” were forced to have intercourse with soldiers. The motivation for abuse of women is also a deliberate strategy to terrorize opposing forces and the civilians in their territory. For example, in eastern Democratic Republic of Congo, rape of women by warring parties has been confirmed as “a war in the war.” Many women are raped by armed groups including the regular forces of the country. Impregnating women and forcing them to bear children who will continue to remind them of their violation is used as a way to destabilize opposition ethnic groups. Unfortunately, government responses tend to focus on violence against individual women rather than violence used as a strategic weapon. Thus, women and girls are discouraged from reporting the crime because of the stigma associated with being a victim.

According to United Nations Women, one in three women and girls are impacted by physical or sexual violence in their lifetimes. Violence has immediate and residual consequences:

Psychological Trauma. Sexual and gender-based violence inflicts deep emotional and physical wounds that can carry lifelong scars. Child brides often show signs symptomatic of sexual abuse and post-traumatic stress, and are therefore extremely vulnerable to domestic violence, abuse, and abandonment (Facts and Figures, International Center for Research on Women, <http://www.icrw.org/child-marriage-facts-and-figures>). One woman who was raped as a tactic of war stated: “[A]fter the rape, I was in pain all the time and lost all sexual desire. Because of my chronic fatigue I could no longer work. My husband eventually abandoned me and the children” (Child Marriage Sexual and Gender-based Violence in the Democratic Republic of Congo, World Health Organization, http://www.who.int/hac/crises/cod/sgbv/sgbv_brochure.pdf). The World Health Organization reports: “Many survivors of sexual and gender-based violence suffer from psychological trauma expressed through symptoms such as chronic fatigue, anxiety, insomnia, depression, etc. Some have even resorted to suicide. And trauma that boys and men face as witnesses or perpetrators of sexual violence is underestimated” (Sexual and Gender-based Violence in the Democratic Republic of Congo, World Health Organization, http://www.who.int/hac/crises/cod/sgbv/sgbv_brochure.pdf).

Physical Injury. Underage girls experience higher mortality during pregnancy and childbirth. Girls younger than 15 years old are five times more likely to die in childbirth than women in their 20s, making pregnancy among the leading causes of death for girls ages 15 to 19 globally (Facts and Figures, International Center for Research on Women, <http://www.icrw.org/child-marriage-facts-and-figures>). One million girls worldwide suffer from an obstetric fistula, a hole between the vagina and rectum or bladder that is caused by prolonged obstructed labor, leaving a woman incontinent of urine or feces or both. This commonly occurs among girls who are anatomically immature. As a result of the incontinence and resulting foul smell, the girl or woman is often rejected by her husband and community (What is Fistula? Fistula Foundation, <https://www.fistulafoundation.org/what-is-fistula> /fast-facts-faq/). Child brides, often unable to effectively negotiate safer sex, are vulnerable to sexually transmitted infections, including HIV, along with early pregnancy. Nearly 2,500 adolescents are infected with HIV daily (Opportunity in Crisis, UNICEF, http://www.unicef.org/lac/Opportunity in Crisis-Report EN 052711.pdf). Other practices such as FGM can result in pain and the spread of infection (Child Marriage Female Genital Mutilation Fact Sheet, World Health Organization <http://www.who.int/mediacentre/factsheets/fs241/e>).

Economic Hardship. The United Nations Development Program reports that in many places women lack access to paid work or the ability to get a loan. Thus women, who make up 50 percent of the world's population, own only 1 percent of the world's wealth (Gender and Poverty Reduction, U.N. Development Program, http://www.undp.org/content/undp/en/home/ourwork/povertyreduction/focus_areas/focus_gender_and_poverty.html). People living in poverty, and particularly women and children, are disproportionately affected by violence. Abusive interpersonal relationships and unfair treatment, cultural practices and norms, institutional policies, and business practices at every level of society, including between some nations, continue to deny women's and girls' sacred worth and perpetuate gender inequality. Sexual and gender-based violence is not only a gross human-rights violation, but fractures families and communities, and hampers development, also costing billions of dollars annually on health-care costs and lost productivity (Estimating the Costs of Violence Against Women in Viet Nam, United Nations Women, <http://www.unwomen.org/~media/headquarters/attachments/sections/library/publications/2013/2/costing-study-viet-nam%20pdf.pdf>). Child marriage limits young girls' skills, resources, knowledge, social support, mobility, and autonomy. Young married girls have little power in relation to their husbands and in-laws. Perceived as a way to provide for a daughter's future, married young she will be subjected to physical and sexual violence without education or skills to create economic opportunity for her or her children (Child Marriage Facts and Figures, International Center for Research on Women, <http://www.icrw.org/child-marriage-facts-and-figures>).

Stigmatizing the Victim. Many victims of sexual violence are stigmatized in society or rejected by their families. Misguided religious morality often reinforces stigma and blame regarding rape, domestic violence, gender identity, disability, and sexually transmitted infections like HIV. A significant consequence of sexual and gender-based violence is the breaking of sacred trust within society, including the Christian community, where vulnerable members are violated. When brokenness is reinforced, it can lead to new social manifestations of violence. For example, a woman's inability to bear a child, a teenager's odor from a fistula formed in prolonged labor, or her positive HIV status are grounds for divorce. At the same time, traditional beliefs such as child marriage and FGM are reinforced by traditional leadership and mandatory cultural practice.

Disempowerment. The combined effect of these many consequences of sexual and gender-based violence is decreased ability to create solutions and respond to local concerns. All of the manifestations of violence identified above limit the educational and employment opportunities for women. Girls who marry young are less likely to discuss family planning—healthy timing and spacing of pregnancies—with their husbands, increasing the chances of infant mortality and maternal death. Rather than spending time developing ideas that would generate income, enhancing the emotional and physical health of families and communities, women and children plagued by sexual and gender-based violence often focus precious resources on survival.

Sexual and gender-based violence is not new. One thousand years before Christ, Tamar was raped by her brother Amnon (2 Samuel 13). An earlier account tells of the gang-rape of a concubine (Judges 19), and an even earlier account the rape of Dinah (Genesis 34). These are stories not only of the violence done to women, but the failure of those in power to support the victims. In Tamar's case, her father, King David, was silent, doing nothing for Tamar, the victim, but rather protecting Amnon, the perpetrator, and thus his own dynasty.

The history of our faith is the history of attempts to recover the insight of Genesis 1 that all creation is sacred in God's sight, and all human beings are creatures of sacred worth. Jesus was an advocate for the sacred worth of all. In the account of the woman caught in adultery (John 7:53–8:11), we see Jesus actively oppose violence against women. Jesus saw beyond the stigma and blame that her accusers imposed on her. Unlike King David, Jesus did not employ his power to cover the injustice, but instead recognized her dignity, interrupted the proposed violence, and sought to restore her to community. Jesus' response expresses his commitment to abundant life (John 10:10), and his call to help create the circumstances in which abundant life can thrive. Jesus' gracious response reaches for the redemption of both victim and perpetrator and stops the cycle of violence.

Our Call

United Methodists have worked to eradicate the many forms of violence that destroy the integrity of individuals, families, communities, and nations. People of faith must work to change attitudes, beliefs, policies, and practices at all levels of society that dehumanize and promote the exploitation and abuse of women and girls. Women with equal rights are better educated, healthier, and have greater access to land, jobs, and financial resources. Because women and children, along with others, are ignored, abused, and violated, we urge renewed commitment to eradicating violence against women and children in all its forms.

We call on all United Methodists, local churches, campus ministries, colleges, universities, seminaries, annual conferences, general agencies and commissions, and the Council of Bishops to:

1. Teach, preach and model healthy masculinity and respectful relationships that reflect the sacred worth of women and girls (Principles of Healthy Masculinity, <http://www.maleallies.org/principles-of-healthy-masculinity>);

2. Engage men and boys as allies in the promotion of gender equality;

3. Assess resources used in local ministry settings to ensure the promotion of sacred worth of women and girls and healthy masculinity;

4. Develop theological, educational, and advocacy tools to raise public awareness of sexual and gender-based violence, and to promote a culture of nonviolence;

5. Develop and implement culturally relevant and culturally competent training focused on violence against women;

6. Advocate for an end to harmful traditional practices, such as child marriage, polygamy, and female genital mutilation;

7. Advocate for training in local contexts for people on the front lines of disaster and conflict to recognize women's and girls' increased vulnerability to opportunistic rape, sexual exploitation, and other forms of sexual and gender-based violence;

8. Advocate for full and legal access to medically safe reproductive health-care services. Violence against women undermines sexual and reproductive health, contributing to unwanted pregnancies, unsafe abortions, fistulas, sexually transmitted infections, and HIV, and their recurrence;

9. Ensure that adolescent sexual and reproductive health services address gender-based violence, including access to prompt quality care in cases of rape, emergency contraception and Post Exposure Prophylaxis to prevent HIV infection, and additional referrals (e.g., legal, specialized counseling, and support groups);

10. Provide comprehensive sexuality education so that girls and women in abusive relationships have increased understanding of their bodies and tools to protect themselves from sexually transmitted diseases and/or unwanted pregnancies;

11. Advocate for girls to have access to higher levels of education to decrease the rates of child marriage and poverty;

12. Ensure that all children have access to registration and documentation, including birth registration, to increase access to basic services, and,

13. Advocate for the reduction of war and conflict in the world to reduce conditions that increase the risk of aggression toward women and girls.

The Church must reexamine the theological messages it communicates in light of the experiences of victims of sexual and gender-based violence. We must treat with extreme care the important, but often-misused, concepts of suffering, forgiveness, and the nature of marriage and the family. Part of our call, as individuals and as a Church, is seeking to address the root causes of violence, working to eradicate it in its multiple forms, and being God's instruments for the wholeness of affected women and children. As people of faith we must become aware of how violence affects our communities, how we can end our participation in it, and what interventions will end its ongoing cycles.

Rationale:

New comprehensive resolution focuses on manifestations of exploitation, abuse and violence and the ways we as a church are called to prevent and respond when it occurs. This resolution will replace two expiring resolutions, 3423 Violence against Women and Children and 6145 Rape in Times of War.

Suicide: A Pastoral Response

Add a new resolution to the Book of Resolutions as follows:

The apostle Paul, rooted in his experience of the resurrected Christ, affirms the power of Christ to overcome the brokenness of human life, including the devastating experience of suicide:

“For I am convinced that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor rulers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, nor height, nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord” (Romans 8:38-39 NRSV).

As United Methodists, we affirm that the Church's response to those who have contemplated suicide in the past and those who may be contemplating it in the present must be grounded in compassion and love. Similarly, we believe that local congregations, grounded in an affirmation of God's ultimate power over brokenness, suffering, and death must be prepared to accompany grieving families and loved ones on the difficult journey to spiritual, mental, and physical health.

A Global Challenge

Suicide poses a complex, global challenge that negatively impacts individuals, families, congregations, and entire societies. The World Health Organization (WHO) reports that every year nearly 800,000 people commit suicide, which roughly corresponds to one person dying every forty seconds. Additionally, for every person who completes a suicide, another ten to twenty more make unsuccessful attempts to end their lives (World Health Organization, Mental Health: June Suicide Prevention: http://www.who.int/mental_health/prevention/suicide/suicide-prevent/en/. Accessed June 15, 2014).

Though suicidal behavior is present in all social groups, suicide rates are particularly high among young people, minority populations, and people living in poverty. In some countries, suicide is among the top three causes of death for those aged 15 to 44 and the second highest cause of death for those aged 10 to 24. These numbers do not include attempted suicides by young people, estimated to be three times the number of reported deaths (World Health Organization, Mental Health: Suicide Prevention: http://www.who.int/mental_health/prevention/suicide/suicideprevent/en/. Accessed June 15, 2014).

Around the world, minority populations are at increasing risk of suicide. Recent studies for example have reported high rates of suicide among the aboriginal peoples of Australia and New Zealand, Native Americans and Asian-American women in the United States, and Caribbean and East Indian immigrants in the United Kingdom and other parts of the globe (Michael Crawford, "Suicide in Ethnic Minority Groups," in BJPsych: The British Journal of Psychiatry: <http://bjp.rcpsych.org/content/183/2/100.short>. Accessed 15, 2014).

Other studies have corroborated a long-suspected link between suicide, mental illness, and poverty. Not only are alcoholism, depression, and other forms of mental illnesses more prevalent within impoverished communities, the accompanying social stresses of malnutrition, poor education, lack of income, and displacement all lead to higher risks of suicide among the world's poor (See, for example, Vijaya Morali and Femi Oyebo, "Poverty, Social Inequality, and Mental Health," in Advances in Psychiatric Treatment 2004, 10, 216-224: <http://apt.rcpsych.org/content/10/3/216.full>. Accessed online August 3, 2014).

Changing Theological Perspectives

While the biblical witness, particularly the teachings of Jesus, offers no explicit guidance on the issue of suicide, Christian tradition has generally regarded suicide as a continuing sign of human brokenness and woundedness in a world desperately in need of God's restorative love. Furthermore, while some theologians of the past have harshly condemned those who have committed suicide, theological perspectives from the late nineteenth century onward have stressed the need for a more pastoral and caring response.

Additionally, while some faith communities have stressed the finality of suicide and described it as "an unforgivable sin," such an attitude roundly contradicts the central Protestant emphasis on the ultimate power of God's justifying and sanctifying grace. Indeed, over the past seventy-five years a more nuanced theological understanding of suicide has developed as mental health experts have uncovered the complex psychological, social, and economic factors that contribute to suicidal behaviors.

As early as the 1970s, United Methodist scholars, including the late Dr. James T. Clemons, sounded the call for pastors and congregations to refrain from condemnation and to commit themselves to compassionate and caring ministry to those affected by suicide inside local churches and in the community at large. Adding to this, Henri Nouwen, another leading theological voice, emphasized the importance of grounding our responses in the humble recognition of own experiences of woundedness and vulnerability.

The Church's Response

Grounded both in the collective recognition of the ongoing brokenness of the human community and the affirmation of God's transformative power over suffering, grief, and death, we the General Conference of The United Methodist Church urge United Methodists at every level of the denomination to recommit themselves to the task of providing life-giving prevention and care to those considering suicide as well as the families and communities that have been affected by it.

In urging that suicide education, prevention, and care remain a priority, the General Conference affirms that because of its past history of condemning those who attempted suicide and their families, the Church has a special role to play, particular in building networks of compassion and support in social environments where condemnatory and punitive religious and social attitudes still hold sway.

With one accord, the General Conference supports the creation and deployment of major public and private initiatives aimed at educating the general public about the prevalence and complex causes of suicide, following guidelines and recommendations issued by the World Health Organization, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, and other similar governmental and nongovernmental organizations.

Within the structures of The United Methodist Church, we urge general boards and agencies to continue making issues related to suicide education, prevention, and care a top priority.

We call upon

1) the General Board of Church and Society to continue to support international and national public policies that: (a) promote access to mental-health services for all persons regardless of age, (b) remove the stigma associated with mental illness, and (c) encourage “help-seeking” behavior;

2) the General Board of Discipleship to develop curriculum for biblical and theological study of suicide as well as related mental and social problems, and to promote programs and strategies recommended by the World Health Organization, the American Association of Pastoral Counseling, and various other governmental and non-governmental organizations, such as the National Council of Suicide Prevention in the United States;

3) the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry to develop materials for United Methodist-related seminaries to train church professionals to recognize treatable mental illness associated with suicide, e.g., depression, drug and alcohol abuse, and to realize when and how to refer persons for treatment; to ensure that all pastoral counseling programs include such training and strategies for ministry to survivors of suicide loss and suicide attempts; and to seek attention to suicide in courses in Bible, Christian Ethics, Preaching and Religious Education, as well as Pastoral Care.

As a General Conference, we also affirm that local churches have perhaps the greatest role to play in promoting suicide prevention and care. We urge pastors and congregations to avoid the harsh and punitive measures imposed on the families of suicide victims in the past and to create instead new educational and outreach ministries that provide increased support and work to reconnect those who attempt suicide and/or their loved ones to the community of faith.

We specifically urge local congregations to:

1) affirm through worship and other means the saving power of God’s redeeming love, particularly in instances of suicide, suffering, and death;

2) embrace all persons affected by suicide, including young children, in loving community through support groups and responsive ministries and programs;

3) call upon the media and other social institutions to emphasize the importance of human life and dignity and to avoid the glamorization of suicide, particularly among teens;

4) advocate for social and economic policies that promote mental, spiritual and physical well-being and increased health and wellness;

5) denounce policies and practices that devalue human life and lead to increased risk of suicide among high risks groups, e.g., growing economic disparities, outbreaks of war and conflict, and the persistence of institutional racism;

6) support United Methodist institutions that provide suicide prevention and care services for emotionally troubled children, youths and adults, as well as retirement homes that provide care and support for older adults;

7) strengthen outreach and ministry to local youths, helping young people to experience concretely the saving grace of Jesus Christ in the context of caring and supportive church community.

Rationale:

Provides United Methodists with an official teaching document on suicide including a faith perspective, an understanding of suicide’s prevalence and severity, and an outline of the church’s needed response.

Impact of Racism on Health of People of Color in US

We commit ourselves to the rights of men, women, children, youth, young adults, the aging, and people with disabilities; to improvement of the quality of life; and to the rights and dignity of all persons. (The Social Principles of The United Methodist Church, ¶ 166)

“If racism was constructed, it can be undone. It can be undone if people understand when it was constructed, why it was constructed, how it functions, and how it is maintained.”

—People’s Institute for Survival and Beyond (www.pisab.org)

WHEREAS, a good and just healthcare system delivers quality services to all people, when and where they need them, the exact configuration of services varies from country to country, but in all cases requires a robust financing mechanism, a well-trained and adequately paid workforce, reliable information on which to base decisions and policies, well-maintained facilities, and logistics to deliver quality medicines and technologies (World Health Organization. Available online at <http://www.who.int/life-course/news/2015-intl-womens-day/en/>), and

WHEREAS, the Social Principles of The UMC states that, “Health is a condition of physical, mental, social, and spiritual well-being. . . . Providing the care needed to maintain health, prevent disease, and restore health after injury or illness is a responsibility each person owes others and the government owes all, a responsibility the government ignores at its peril.” It also states that, “healthcare is best funded through the government’s ability to tax each person equitably and directly fund the provider entities,” and

WHEREAS, currently noncommunicable diseases (NCDs) kill 38 million people each year. Almost 75 percent of these deaths (28M) occur in low- and middle-income individuals. Prior to age 70, NCD accounts for 16M deaths; 82 percent of these “premature” deaths occurred in low- and middle-income people globally. Cardiovascular diseases account for most NCD deaths, or 17.5 million people annually, respiratory diseases 4M, diabetes 1.5 million (ibid.), and

WHEREAS, the legacy of imperialism and colonialism along with continued economic exploitation by developed nations is responsible for high levels of poverty and poor healthcare in developing nations. Maternal mortality is a health indicator that shows very wide gaps between rich and poor, urban and rural areas, both between countries and within them. Reproductive health problems are responsible for one third of health issues for women between the ages of 15 and 44 years (<<http://www.who.int/life-course/news/2015-intl-womens-day/en/>>). Maternal mortality and maternal childcare study show that during 2013, about 800 women died daily due to complications of pregnancy and childbirth. The risk of a woman in a developing country dying from a maternal-related cause during her lifetime is about 23 times higher compared to a woman living in a developed country, and

WHEREAS, diseases are often driven by circumstances related to unequal access to adequate healthcare. Joseph Barndt, in his book, Understanding and Dismantling Racism, points out that over the course of U.S. history, African Americans, Latinos/Hispanics, Chinese, Japanese, Filipinos and others were brought to the continent either as slave labor or as cheap and easily exploited wage laborers to serve the predominantly white landowners and businesses. (Joseph Barndt, Understanding and Dismantling Racism (Minneapolis: Fortress Press, 2007)). They were subject to racist treatment as well as harsh working and living conditions. The associated stress contributed to the higher than average incidence among people of color of four key health issues: high blood pressure, overweight/obesity, diabetes and cardiac disease, and

WHEREAS, race and racism were invented by 16th century Europeans, imported to the Americas, codified and perpetuated throughout the 19th and 20th centuries, to establish white dominance over other races and justify exploitation and oppression (Joseph Barndt, Becoming an Anti-Racist Church: Journeying toward Wholeness (Minneapolis: Fortress Press, 2010)). While the concept of race is a false and misleading social construct without basis in science, it is still a very powerful socially perceived reality, whose effects we must address and combat, and

WHEREAS, a study published in the American Journal of Public Health estimated that 880,000 deaths of black Americans could have been avoided between 1991 and 2000 if black mortality rates were the same as those of whites, and

WHEREAS, people of color in the U.S. suffer from poorer health than whites in most categories of health and the discrepancy cannot be explained by income level, education or health behaviors. For example:

- Black women with a bachelor’s or higher-level degree experience a higher rate of infant mortality than white women who dropped out before high school.

- For women with college degrees, the infant mortality rate is three times higher for black women than for white women. (“Racism as the Root Cause of Infant Mortality,” Racism Review (July 6, 2008), racismreview.com/blog/2008/07/06/racism-as-the-root-cause-of-infant-mortality. Adam Serwer, “The De-Facto Segregation of Health Care,” American Prospect (August 21, 2009) <https://prospect.org/article/de-facto-segregation-health-care-0>).

- While white women who begin life poor manage to raise their economic status see improved birth outcomes, this does not hold true for African American, Latina immigrant or South Asian Indian women whose economic conditions similarly improve. (Ryan Blitstein, “Racism’s Hidden Toll” <http://www.psmag.com/books-and-culture/racisms-hidden-toll-3643>).

- Foreign-born black women tend to have rates of infant mortality and low-birth weight babies comparable to white women in the U.S. However, when African women immigrate to the U.S., within one generation, their daughters show significantly higher rates, comparable to African-American women (Unnatural Causes: Is Inequality Making Us Sick? PBS Documentary. Transcript of Episode 2, page 3. <http://www.unnaturalcauses.org>. See also, “Root Cause,” Racism Review, slide presentation by Barbara Ferrer, Executive Director of the Boston Public Health Commission).

- Black immigrants from majority-black nations, when they come to the U.S., are generally healthier than blacks from mostly white areas than blacks already in the U.S. However, their health deteriorates after a short time in the U.S. to the level of African Americans, and

WHEREAS, all of this evidence, which is a small sampling of a very large phenomenon, indicates that being black in the social conditions of U.S. contributes to poor health, and

WHEREAS, “more than a hundred studies have found a relationship between racial discrimination and negative physical health outcomes for people of color.”

- “Racial discrimination increase[s] stress levels . . . thereby elevating blood pressure and correlating directly with worse health.”

- “Racial bigotry causes the brain’s hypothalamus to send an alert . . . resulting in a release of adrenaline along with the release of endorphins in the brain and cortisol (a stress-related hormone) throughout the body. Over time, these experiences can damage the hypothalamic-pituitary-adrenal (HPA) axis” (Tim Wise, Colorblind: The Rise of Post-Racial Politics and the Retreat from Racial Equality (San Francisco: City Lights Books, 2010), 116).

- Racism is a significant factor leading to stress causing increase in wear and tear of the body. It increases the biologic response and, during pregnancy, crosses through the placenta to the fetus and can trigger premature birth of the fetus (Michael K. Brown, et al., Whitewashing Race: The Myth of a Color-Blind Society (Berkeley, CA: University of California Press, 2003), 15, 46), and

WHEREAS, the abundant data available make it clear that the effects of bigotry and racism are very bad for one’s health in a relatively short time frame and the effects are cumulative.

WHEREAS, powerful evidence points to unequal and discriminatory treatment of people of color by physicians and healthcare institutions:

- African-American women are 25 percent less likely to receive a mammography screening.

- African Americans are 60 percent less likely to receive coronary angioplasty or bypass surgery, even when compared with white patients of the same age and gender in the same area (Michael K. Brown, et al., Whitewashing Race: The Myth of a Color-Blind Society (Berkeley, CA: University of California Press, 2003), 15, 46).

- A large research study published in 2008 found significant differences in the way white doctors treated, communicated with, and coordinated care with patients of color (“Racial and Ethnic Disparities Detected in Patient Experiences,” ScienceDaily (October 30, 2008), <http://www.sciencedaily.com/releases/2008/10/081028184826.htm>).

In a 2001 survey, 20 percent of Asians, 19 percent of Hispanics, and 14 percent of African American respondents reported being treated with disrespect or being looked down upon during a patient-provider encounter (Blanchard J, Lurie N., “R-E-S-P-E-C-T: Patient report of disrespect in the healthcare setting and its impact on care,” Journal of Family Practice (2004; 53:721-729)). In another survey, “63% of the 76 participants indicated they had experienced discrimination in their interactions with their healthcare provider because of their race or color”

(Bird ST, Bogart LM. “Perceived race-based and socioeconomic status (SES)-based discrimination in interactions with healthcare providers,” Ethnic Discrimination. (2001; 1:554-563)).

- Such discriminatory treatment often leads victims to avoid particular providers or facilities and even to hesitate in seeking health services in general (Hobson WD, “Racial discrimination in Healthcare Interview Project,” Special Report. Public Health Seattle and King County. Seattle, Washington; January 2001).

WHEREAS, “addressing racism as it relates to racial/ethnic health disparities requires an assessment of its prevalence and an understanding of the specific manner in which it operates, not only in the social environment, but in healthcare delivery systems as well” (Vickie L. Shavers and Brenda S. Shavers, “Racism and Health Inequity Among Americans,” Journal of the National Medical Association 98:3 (March 2006), 388).

Therefore, be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church, in all of its expressions, will work with governments, healthcare providers, and other organizations and individuals to find solutions to end the pattern of inequities and disparities in treatment and create the conditions for equal access to quality healthcare to all. We will mobilize to work toward the elimination of racism and economic and social injustices that lead to higher rates of disease and death for people of color. As part of that effort, we will seek to eliminate the continuing expressions of racism in the body of Christ, and

Be it further resolved, that The United Methodist Church, in an effort to reduce stress and increase whole-person health, advocate for increased availability of healthy, nutritional foods, safe environmental conditions, improved and adequate housing and access to adequate healthcare in neighborhoods that are predominantly people of color, and

Be it further resolved, that The United Methodist Church work to eliminate stigmas and stereotypes of people of color, including Latinos/Hispanics, Native Americans, Filipinos, Japanese, and African Americans by governmental, institutional, social organizations, and individuals. We urge conferences, advocacy organizations, and local churches to dialogue with organizations, stakeholders, institutions, and politicians on ways to improve, educate, and empower all persons to maintain and sustain improved health and wholeness.

Racism and Economic Injustice against People of Color in the US

Biblical and Theological Grounding

WHEREAS, the prophet Isaiah spoke out:

Woe to those who make unjust laws, / to those who issue oppressive decrees, / to deprive the poor of their rights / and withhold justice from the oppressed of my people (Isaiah 10:1-2a NIV), and

WHEREAS, Jesus taught the foundation of the law and the prophets was to love God and to love your neighbor as yourself and he made clear that everyone is our neighbor, and

WHEREAS, Jesus proclaimed the essence of his ministry when he read from the scroll of the prophet Isaiah:

The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, / because he has anointed me / to bring good news to the poor. / He has sent me to proclaim release to the captives / and recovery of sight to the blind, / to let the oppressed go free. (Luke 4:18 NRSV), and

WHEREAS, the prophet Isaiah proclaimed God's condemnation of economic injustice, saying:

Look, you serve your own interest on your fast day, / and oppress all your workers. / Look, you fast only to quarrel and to fight / and to strike with a wicked fist. / Such fasting as you do today / will not make your voice heard on high. . . . / Is not this the fast that I choose: / to loose the bonds of injustice, / to undo the thongs of the yoke, / to let the oppressed go free, / and to break every yoke? / Is it not to share your bread with the hungry, / and bring the homeless poor into your house; / when you see the naked, to cover them, / and not to hide yourself from your own kin? (Isaiah 58:3b-4, 6-7), and

Background and Motivation

WHEREAS, this condemnation applies directly to the reality of racial injustice and economic inequality in the U.S., and

WHEREAS, the U.S. has the most unequal distribution of income and wealth of all developed nations, and

WHEREAS, in 1967, when Jim Crow segregation was wounded, but still alive, median household income was 43 percent higher for white, non-Hispanic households than for black households, yet by 2011, with legal segregation eliminated, that figure had risen to 72 percent (Ned Resnikoff, "Race is the elephant in the room when it comes to inequality," MSNBC, posted 03/13/14, updated 05/23/14. Available online at <<http://www.msnbc.com/msnbc/washingtons-silence-the-racial-wealth-gap>>), and

WHEREAS, despite steadily rising overall wealth in the U.S., the "wealth gap" between whites and African Americans went from 12 to 1 in 1984 to 19 to 1 in 2009. (Ibid.) Significant disparities exist at all income levels. So, for example, in the bottom fifth of households, poor whites have an average of $24,000 in assets. Poor black households have, on average, $57 in assets, for a ratio of 421 to 1. In the middle income level, the ratio is 5.2 to 1 and even at the highest income level, white households have, on average 3.2 time more wealth than black households (Tim Wise, Colorblind: The Rise of Post-Racial Politics and the Retreat from Racial Equality (San Francisco: City Lights Books, 2010), 69-70), and

WHEREAS, "African Americans are twice as likely as whites to be employed in low-wage jobs and twice as likely to be unemployed," even when the job climate is good. In addition, on average, black men remain unemployed seven more weeks than white men and black women are out of work five more weeks than white women (Ibid., 66-67), and

WHEREAS, while median income for Asian Americans is higher than that of whites, Asian Americans earn less than whites at same educational level (Ibid., 95) and many Asian Americans still live in poverty, and

WHEREAS, slavery, Jim Crow segregation, the sharecropping and tenant-farmer system, the convict slave-labor system (See Douglas A. Blackmon, Slavery by Another Name: The Re-Enslavement of Black Americans from the Civil War to World War II (New York: Anchor Books, 2008)), thousands of lynchings, KKK terror, and other historical practices prevented the accumulation of wealth and property by most African American families and the legacy of those systems of oppression still affects many families, recent studies show that ongoing mass disparities between whites and blacks in the U.S. can be directly attributed to current racist policies and practices:

One study showed that African Americans, Latinos, and Asian Americans have more than a one-in-three chance of suffering discrimination in any given job search, concluding that roughly 600,000 blacks, 275,000 Latinos, and 150,000 Asian Americans face job discrimination each year (Wise, 88).

In studies of service-industry employment, research showed that even when researchers sent African-American testers who were more qualified; white applicants were more likely to get an interview (Ibid., 90-91).

A Princeton study using black, white, and Latino test applicants who were trained to have the same communication styles, physical characteristics, and demeanor found that white applicants were far more likely than applicants of color to be called back. It also found that even white men claiming a felony record were slightly more likely to be called back than black applicants with no criminal record (Ibid., 88-89), and

WHEREAS, the deliberate de-industrialization of the U.S. in the 1970s and '80s led to massive job losses among people of color, who had only gained access on a large scale to good-paying blue-color jobs. This is directly linked to the re-improvement of a large proportion of African-American households, to urban decay (as incomes and tax revenues plummeted) and the dramatic rise in the jail and prison population (starting around 1980). People of color (especially African American and Hispanic men) became an unneeded surplus labor force and mass incarceration became one of the primary solutions to that problem, and

WHEREAS, widespread discrimination against people of color continues in the U.S. in housing, education, healthcare and the policing and criminal justice system, and

WHEREAS, we need a vision of a beloved community, founded on social and economic justice and motivated by self-giving love. This vision includes removing the power of police oversight and discipline from the police themselves; substantially reducing sentences for minor crimes and dramatically reducing the prison population; eliminating the "prisons for profit" system; providing genuinely equal education opportunities for all; creating an economic system that provides for an equitable distribution of wealth, with much larger programs to assist developing nations; reinstating and strengthening voting-rights protections; and strengthening investigation and enforcement against discrimination in employment, housing, education and healthcare, and

WHEREAS, racial injustice and inequality still constitute the cornerstone of U.S. economic and social policy and practice, and

WHEREAS, intense and ongoing systemic and institutional racism is still greatest barrier in the U.S. to building beloved community.

Therefore, be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church advocates, encourages and will support a new multiracial, mass movement for racial and economic justice in the U.S., and

Be it further resolved, that every annual conference in the U.S. mandate anti-racism training for every active clergy member and for all members of the conference Board of Ordained Ministry and district Committees on Ordained Ministry, and, that this training be offered as well to other key leaders among laity in each conference. We note that anti-racism training must address white privilege and focus on intentional struggle and advocacy against racism in our churches and in society at large. So-called "diversity training" or "sensitivity training" is insufficient, and

Be it further resolved, that every annual conference, district, and local church should be engaged, intentionally, in being an anti-racist church, not merely on paper, but in action. Church bodies at every level should seek to educate themselves on the extent of racism in business, education, government, housing and healthcare and find ways to advocate for the elimination of specific instances locally and nationally.

Effectively Recruiting and Retaining Young Clergy of Color

Add new resolution to The Book of Resolutions of The United Methodist Church:

Be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church in all of its United States annual conferences will actively recruit and retain clergy of color, with particular efforts to recruit and retain young clergy of color, using empirically supported culturally relevant employment practices for African American, Native American, Latina/o, and Asian American/Pacific Islander clergy.

Be it further resolved, that each United States conference shall actively educate its clergy and lay members about institutional racism in accordance with ¶ 162.A of the Social Principles of The United Methodist Church.

Be it further resolved, that each United States conference shall include a report of its racial diversity clergy recruitment and retention practices and progress in its annual conference journal.

Rationale:

Men of color make up less than 8% and women of color make up less than 4% of United Methodist clergy in the United States (Kane, 2014), where the average age of first appointments of clergy of color is 45 years old (Johnson, 2012). ¶162A of the Social Principles of . . .

Reducing Harm for LGBTQ Children and Youth

Add New Resolution as Follows:

WHEREAS, research indicates that gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender teens who experience high levels of rejection at home are more likely to attempt suicide, are at higher risk for depression, are more likely to use illegal drugs, and are more likely to be at high risk for HIV and sexually transmitted diseases; and

WHEREAS, as many as 40 percent of homeless youth identify as lesbian, gay, bisexual, or transgender, many of whom are on the streets either because their families shut them out of their homes or because they feel unsafe and/or unwanted in their family home; and

WHEREAS, according to the Social Principles of The United Methodist Church, “We implore families and churches not to reject or condemn lesbian and gay members and friends. We commit ourselves to be in ministry for and with all persons”(¶ 161.F); and

WHEREAS, The United Methodist Church has affirmed its commitment to be in ministry to persons of all sexual orientations, and points out that “an individual confronting his or her own minority sexual orientation and/or that of a close family member, friend, or associate often experiences isolation, confusion, and fear when he or she needs information, guidance, and support, and we recognize that teens dealing with questions about sexual orientation are at a greater risk for suicide” (#2041, 2012 Book of Resolutions); and

WHEREAS, The United Methodist Church has also affirmed its opposition to homophobia and heterosexism, and its opposition to “all forms of violence or discrimination based on gender, gender identity, sexual practice, or sexual orientation” (#2042, 2012 Book of Resolutions); and

WHEREAS, while our church holds diverse opinions regarding sexual orientation, gender identity, and gender expression, we share a commitment to do no harm, to do all the good we can, and to love God; and

WHEREAS, it is not necessary for parents to agree with their children in order to demonstrate love,

Therefore, be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church seeks to educate families about how to respond with love to their youth whose sexual orientation, gender identity, or gender expression may not conform to their family’s expectations. This response includes affirming the value and sacred worth of their youth, maintaining safe spaces and not severing ties with their youth, and demonstrating respect for their youth; and

Be it further resolved, that, where possible, United Methodist Churches will work with local schools to encourage and support educational opportunities, best practices for creating safe spaces, policies for reducing bullying, and to support youth who identify as lesbian, gay, bisexual, or transgender, or who question their sexual orientation or gender identity.

Rationale:

Although there are diverse opinions about theology and polity in The UMC, notably regarding sexual orientation, gender identity, and gender expression, we are committed to doing no harm and doing all the good we can through reducing homelessness, risk, and harm to children and youth.

Holiness and the Human Body

The Christian Church, including Methodism, has always upheld the sacredness of the human body as the temple of the Holy Spirit, to be resurrected eternally. Methodism has been blessed with a particular focus on upholding the holiness of the human body, advocating spiritual disciplines faithful to that holiness in gratitude to God and in witness to the world.

In Romans 12:1-2, the apostle Paul offers this counsel:

“I urge you therefore, brothers, by the mercies of God, to offer your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy and pleasing to God, your spiritual worship. Do not conform yourself to this age but be transformed by the renewal of your mind, that you may discern what is the will of God, what is good and pleasing and perfect.”

Modern secularism rejects the holiness of the human body and its ultimate ownership by God, instead commodifying the human body as merely the property of the autonomous individual subject to personal choice. This confusion over the divine purpose of the human body has tragically created much destructive confusion for persons outside and inside the church. As United Methodists, we should point to a better way, reminding a confused world of God’s magnificent, loving intent for the human body.

Based on Creation and on the Incarnation and Resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ, Christianity affirms the intrinsic goodness of the human body. God created our first parents as bodily beings. “Male and female he created them” (Genesis 1.27). The two sexes of male and female are wonderful gifts of God, blessed for distinct and complementary purposes.

God’s purpose for human sexuality is for loving mutual giving and receiving in open self-surrender between husband and wife in lifelong commitment and openness to children. Other forms of sexual contact, outside natural marriage, while romanticized by the world, are outside God’s caring and wise desire for loving lifelong marriage between male and female. Chastity, which means fidelity in marriage and celibacy in singleness, emblemizes the goodness of God’s creation and the integrity of unity among human mind, body, and heart.

Maleness and femaleness, realized through the human body, are particular gifts of God that cannot be reimagined or reconfigured through alternative identities or surgical procedures. In sexuality and other physical expressions, the human body reveals what is invisible in God’s creation. It is a physical sign of each person’s unique identity as an image of God and is a sacrament of how God acts. So the human body should never become an object of use for self-gratification or for the exploitation of others.

As the temple of God, the human body should not be exploited, manipulated, mutilated, or disfigured. Instead, it should be nurtured, protected, and honored, with modesty and gratitude. In pursuit of holiness of body and spirit, Methodists have traditionally abjured intoxicants and recreational narcotics, have encouraged exercise and healthy diet, have urged modest apparel that is not costly or showy, and have opposed salacious media and pornography, along with prostitution, as gross distortions of God’s purposes for the human body.

Methodists have also traditionally encouraged policies in political life that honor and protect the human body for the common good. Public policies in society that undermine natural marriage, that mock chastity, that claim that gender is self-selected and that sex-change procedures should be publicly subsidized and acclaimed, that legalize and legitimate prostitution, that abet pornography, or encourage legalization and easy use of dangerous narcotics, are at variance with Methodism’s historic and noble concern for social holiness and social justice.

The church’s high regard for God’s gift of the human body, if effectively modeled among its own members and transmitted effectively to wider society, will help contribute to human flourishing, strengthen marriages and families, protect children, empower the poor, contribute to public health, liberate victims of sexual trafficking, and break destructive addictions to alcohol, drugs, and pornography, among other benefits.

Methodism’s unique legacy of emphasis on personal and social holiness ideally equip it to advocate renewed appreciation for the holiness of the human body amid a secular society that both deifies and exploits the human body. All outlets of United Methodism, from the local church to general agencies, are encouraged to provide resources on God’s purposes for the human body, to equip church members with instruction on holy living, and to advocate public policies that protect the human body for the good of all.

Assisted Suicide and Euthanasia

Laws permitting and popular attitudes supporting assisted suicide and euthanasia are increasingly common in the United States and Europe. Such laws and stances are at odds with historic Christian teaching and the legacy of John Wesley, which stress the sacredness and importance of all human life as God’s first gift, including for the very sick, the terminally ill, the depressed and despairing, the disabled and mentally impaired, and all persons, especially the poor and marginalized, who may think their lives unimportant, unappreciated or unbearable.

Modern secular culture prioritizes pleasure, comfort, assurance, autonomy, and affirmation, while often viewing death as senseless and suffering as unacceptable. Western secularism has rejected humanity’s relationship with God and made humans autonomously their own judges about the value of human life. It also is discomfited by human vulnerability and mutual interdependence. Technology and advanced medicine, while divine gifts for alleviating suffering and prolonging life, have too often created false expectations about endless good health and human control.

These trends and attitudes are legitimizing assisted suicide and euthanasia as a means for self-autonomy, avoiding suffering, and ending lives that on secular terms are no longer deemed worthwhile. In modern societies that glorify youth, beauty, success, vigor, and material acquisition, there is also the growing isolation of the elderly, the very ill, the mentally disturbed, and disabled persons, who too often are left to believe they are unwanted or hindrances to others.

Euthanasia is different from extraordinary and disproportionate medical intervention artificially to prolong physical life. It is also distinct from palliative care to alleviate avoidable physical discomfort at life's natural end. Euthanasia is the deliberate and morally unacceptable killing of persons, each of whom is created in the image of God and who belong to God. Assistance for suicide rejects God's loving care for all persons and renounces the obligation of justice and charity toward neighbors, communities and society as a whole. Most egregiously, it rejects God's kind and wise lordship over life and death.

Too often euthanasia and assisted suicide are portrayed as compassionate responses to suffering. But authentic compassion strives to share in the suffering of the afflicted, not to end their lives. Killing or assisting in the killing of the vulnerable perverts the loving, God-ordained responsibilities, respect, and patience that are supposed to guide families, friendships, and doctor-patient relationships.

Across history, and in our own time, the powerful have exploited euthanasia to eliminate persons considered undesirable or costly. No earthly authority can rightfully arrogate to itself an arbitrary power over life and death that belongs exclusively to God. Such claims and powers are profoundly unjust, corrupt, inhumane, and ungodly. Every just society will prioritize the protection of the weak from the strong.

In contrast with modern secularism's commodification of human life, the church has always spoken to the deepest reaches of the human heart by responding to despair and suffering with compassion, sympathy, and loving support. Christianity teaches that every life has eternal significance and has a sacred destiny authored by God in Christ. The suffering, death, and resurrection of Christ offer meaning, dignity, and hope to every person who despairs, suffers, and faces their own Calvary. God's plan for each person, contrary to secularism's too-frequent dismissal of human life, offers beauty and majesty.

The church stands in compassionate solidarity with all ailing and despairing persons tempted by or vulnerable to assisted suicide and euthanasia. We recall that God often turns the evil of suffering into good and closeness to him who also suffered, most supremely on the cross. The body of Christ is called endlessly to minister to the ill, depressed, disabled, and dying, giving them hope and preparing them, with all persons, for the hour they and we will meet God, at a time he chooses.

Methodists, as the spiritual descendants of John Wesley, who ministered to the very least and most neglected, have a special calling to love, support, and defend persons tempted by or vulnerable to assisted suicide or euthanasia. Our solidarity with these persons entails both direct ministry and affirmation of laws that defend them. We reject the legalization of assisted suicide and euthanasia. Instead, we affirm all exertions through families, home-care givers, the church, civil society, the medical profession, hospice care, and government to protect, alleviate the suffering of, offer companionship to, rescue from loneliness, and offer hope and dignity to the very sick, the despairing and depressed, the mentally troubled, the disabled, the elderly and terminally ill. With them, and in them, we experience Jesus Christ more fully.

Our Responsibility as Christians to Oppose Anti-Semitism: Ending Replacement Theology

Our Responsibility as Christians to Oppose Anti-Semitism: Ending Replacement Theology

Scriptural Foundation: Jeremiah 33:24-26 (NASB) 24 "Have you not observed what this people have spoken, saying, 'The two families which the LORD chose, He has rejected them'? Thus they despise My people, no longer are they as a nation in their sight. 25 Thus says the LORD, 'If My covenant for day and night stand not, and the fixed patterns of heaven and earth I have not established, 26 then I would reject the descendants of Jacob and David My servant, not taking from his descendants rulers over the descendants of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. But I will restore their fortunes and will have mercy on them.'"

WHEREAS, "The Christian church has a profound obligation to correct historical and theological teachings that have led to false and pejorative perceptions of Judaism and contributed to persecution and hatred of Jews. It is our responsibility as Christians to oppose anti-Semitism whenever and wherever it occurs" (Book of Resolutions 2008, 3147. "Building New Bridges in Hope").

WHEREAS, Replacement Theology or Supersessionism is a false, unbiblical doctrine that has been used for centuries inside the Church to justify, promote, and continue both indifference and complicity in anti-Semitic sentiment and activity such as the Inquisition, pogroms, Holocaust, and current persecution of the Jewish people and the State of Israel.

WHEREAS, By a literal and consistent reading of Scripture, this is just a partial list of verses that refute Replacement Theology: Genesis 12:1-4; 13:14-18; 15:1-21; 17:1-22; 24:7; 26:2-5; 28:10-22; 35:9-15; Exodus 19:3-6; 23:20-31; 29:45; Leviticus 26:44; Numbers 34:1-15 (God's borders for Israel); Deuteronomy 4:40; 30:1-14; 31:6; 34:1-4; Joshua 8:30-35; Judges 1-2:7; 1 Samuel 12:22; 2 Samuel 3:10; 7:8-13; 23:5; 1 Kings 6:13; 1 Chronicles 16:13-22; Psalms 89:34; 94:14; 106:8; Isaiah 11:11-16; 26:20; 43:1-21, 25; 49:14-26; 54:7-10; 55:3; Jeremiah 3:12-18; 31:31-38; 33:1-26; Lamentations 3:31; Ezekiel 37:15-28; Joel 3:1-21; Amos 9:11-15; Zephaniah 3:14-20; Romans 11.

Therefore, be it resolved, that the 2016 General Conference adopt the Statement of Principle on the topic of Replacement Theology/ Supersessionism below for the denomination in the Book of Resolutions, 3147. "Building New Bridges in Hope - United Methodist Guiding Principles for Christian-Jewish Relations."

A Statement of Principle on Replacement Theology/ Supersessionism

With regard to the doctrine of Replacement Theology/ Supersessionism, we believe that God's covenants are eternal; therefore God has not cast off his chosen people by replacing Israel with the church or transferred the possession of their blessings, promises, or land to others.

Rationale:

UMC needs a Statement of Principle reading "With regard to the doctrine of Replacement Theology/Supersessionism, we believe that God's covenants are eternal; therefore God has not cast off his chosen people by replacing Israel with the church or transferred the possession of their blessings, promises, or land to others."

Rights of All Persons

New Resolution - Rights of All Persons

The Social Principles of The United Methodist Church affirm: All persons, regardless of age, gender, marital status, or sexual orientation, are entitled to have their human and civil rights ensured and to be protected against violence (2012 United Methodist Book of Discipline ¶ 161.F).

The Constitution of the Church declares that all persons are of sacred worth and goes on to specify that no person shall be excluded from the Church on the basis of "race, color, national origin, status, or economic condition" (Article IV).

It is particularly disturbing when religious values are used to justify persecution of select groups. Christians proclaim that all people are God's children deserving the protection of their human and civil rights. Around the world, however, political and religious institutions have targeted lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender persons for discrimination in housing, employment, health care, and access to redress for such discrimination.

The rights and privileges a society bestows upon or withholds from those it comprises indicate the relative esteem in which that society holds particular persons and groups of persons. We affirm all persons as equally valuable in the sight of God. We therefore work toward societies in which each person's value is recognized, maintained, and strengthened (2012 United Methodist Book of Discipline ¶ 162).

Therefore, all United Methodists are called upon:

1. to refrain from signing petitions and to vote against measures that advocate the denial of basic human and civil rights to anyone;

2. to educate congregation and community alike about the position of the United Methodist Discipline on civil rights and its broad applications;

3. to stand against any political or physical acts that deny human and civil rights and the sacred worth of all persons;

4. to advocate for initiatives throughout the world that would prohibit job and housing discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identity; and

5. to advocate for initiatives that provide for extra penalties for crimes expressly committed for the purpose of harming someone based solely on their age, race, color, national origin, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender, or disability.

Therefore, be it resolved, that the General Board of Church and Society develop education tools designed to provide for open and healthy dialogue and understanding of sexuality in the world with the specific goal of protecting the human and civil rights of lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender persons.

We do this as part of our Christian witness and ministry. Never let it be said that United Methodists were silent during this attack on the rights of all.

Rationale:

This resolution was originally adopted in 1996. It expired because it was not acted upon by 2012 General Conference.

Religious Liberty

WHEREAS, religious liberty continues to be denied and violated in many parts of the world. Concerns about religious persecution have been raised by almost every religious group, especially in places where one particular religion or belief is in a minority position. Religious intolerance, of both the established as well as “nontraditional” religions, is growing both in new and established democracies. The rise in religious extremism, of all sorts, and from all of the established and nontraditional religions, have been convenient pretexts for the curtailment of the exercise of religious liberty by many governments around the world, and

WHEREAS, a grave threat to religious liberty exists in nation states where government actions subvert religious organizations by means of surveillance of their legitimate activities through use of informers, covert searches of religious property, and politically motivated threats to the safety of religious leaders or the financial operation of religious institutions. We abhor the use of religious leaders and mission personnel by any government’s intelligence forces. We pledge our continual efforts to protect against these activities, and

WHEREAS, The United Methodist Church must continue to foster further cooperation among spiritual, religious, and ecumenical bodies for the protection of religious freedom and belief. It must enter into healthy dialogues with peoples of differing faiths and ideologies, including Native and indigenous peoples, in the search for shared spiritual, social, and ethical principles that engender peace and justice, and

WHEREAS, The United Methodist Church is already committed to uphold the minimum standards of the right of belief that are contained in the provisions of the United Nations Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Intolerance and of Discrimination Based on Religion or Belief adopted by the United Nations General Assembly on November 25, 1981. This declaration enunciates that “freedom of religion and belief should also contribute to the attainment of the goals of world peace, social justice and friendship between peoples and to the elimination of ideologies or practices of colonialism and racial discrimination,” and

WHEREAS, United Methodists must urge their governments and encourage civil society to enter into dialogues about racism and discrimination and resolve to address especially those concerns that have religious bases. The United Methodist Church must also support and participate in the World Conference on Racism and Discrimination in 2001 organized by the United Nations, and

WHEREAS, persons must be allowed to live within the constraints and the demands of their convictions to the extent they do not violate the human rights of others. We believe it is the right of a person to be allowed to follow the call of conscience when it becomes impossible to live by the dictates of the state—but a sense of righteousness is not a reason for religious violence or infringements on human rights. When religion is used as an excuse for state-sponsored violence, vigilante attacks, and terrorism, it can lead to massive violations of human rights, including loss of freedom of religion or belief. (UN Report A/HRC/28/66 – January 2015)

Rather than being rooted in seemingly ancient religious antagonisms, violence in the name of religion is typically caused by contemporary factors and actors, including political and economic circumstances, which provide the fertile ground for fundamentalism, hatred, and extremism, and

WHEREAS, fundamentalist extremism is often linked to rigid gender discrimination. Women and girls become victims of “honor” killings, acid attacks, amputations, or floggings, based on religious laws. Women and girls face economic exploitation, rape, abduction, sexual enslavement, female genital mutilation, forced marriage, forced conversion, or other cruelties in the name of religion and “culture,” and

WHEREAS, women judged as immoral because of short skirts have been stripped naked and publicly shamed. Gay men have been paraded through the streets naked. These humiliations are ironically justified by religious morality. Judgmental attitudes by religious leaders against people based on their bodies, sexual orientation, and gender identity becomes de facto sanctions for acts of violence, including the desecration and burning of houses of worship where lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender (LGBT) people are accepted, and

WHEREAS, religious proscriptions have been used to excuse violence against LGBT persons. A man or woman who is seen acting outside their prescribed family role is not only subject to losing economic, social, and political standing, but also for imprisonment, persecution, and even execution. Religion becomes an excuse for mob violence against LGBT persons including brutal beatings, gang rapes, so-called “curative” rape, and family revenge, and

WHEREAS, as marriage laws change to include same-gender couples, religious liberty cannot be used as a license to discriminate. Derogatory terms and hate speech cannot be protected as religious speech. Freedom of religion gives people the right to work toward implementing laws and practices that reflect their core values and beliefs, but the role of courts is to protect everyone’s constitutional equality before the law. The right to hold and express beliefs does not include imposing them on others. State or country laws that allow same-gender marriage do not infringe on religious liberty since each religion has the right to determine who may worship or marry in their congregations and tradition, and

WHEREAS, we recognize that some religious observances threaten or seem to threaten the health or safety of individuals or society. However, religious liberty dictates that restrictions on religious observances based on the health or safety require the government to present compelling arguments before taking action that places a substantial burden on religious practices. The government must also show that they are placing the most minimal burden on religion to achieve safety and health, and

WHEREAS, as United Methodists we know firsthand and from other traditions that religious people sometimes discriminate against others based on sincerely held beliefs. When basic civil rights such as housing, employment, and public accommodations are undermined by people claiming religious exemptions to equal treatment under the law, the burden must rest with the religious person or organization to prove how their religion compels them to harm or undermine the legal rights of others, and

WHEREAS, The United Methodist Church places a high priority on the struggle to maintain freedom of religious belief and peaceful practice of religion. Religiously observant persons in some societies are denied the rights on which there have been international agreements. In other cases, minorities are persecuted by people who believe their sincerely held religious beliefs support acts of social exclusion and physical violence. Our members have an obligation to speak out on behalf of those for whom freedoms are denied.

Therefore, be it resolved, in carrying out their responsibilities, United Methodist agencies and institutions, shall:

- Affirm and support religious liberty in the ecumenical and interfaith groups in which we participate;
- Pursue the human right of religious liberty in all societies and work toward conditions where governmental units neither inhibit nor impose religion;
 - Advocate, through education, persuasion and laws to gain religious liberty in all places where it is lacking;
 - Resist the equating of terrorism with any religion and condemn violence in the name of religion;
 - Condemn and reject state-sponsored violence excused by ancient religious texts;
 - Extend the compassionate ministry of the church to persons who suffer because religious or governmental authorities seek to deny these rights to them;
 - Work on behalf of minority religions as well as larger religious institutions;
 - Condemn discrimination and human rights violations committed in the name of religion;
 - Educate ourselves so that we will be able to identify and respond to both violations of religious liberty and violations of human rights by religious people in our own and in other societies, and
 - Offer support to the mandate of the United Nations Special Rapporteur on Religious Intolerance. <http://www.ohchr.org/EN/Issues/FreedomReligion/Pages/FreedomReligionIndex>

Rationale:

Religious liberty forms part of the pantheon of human rights. The Universal Declaration of Human Rights provides that “Everyone has the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion: this right includes freedom to change his religion or belief, freedom, either alone or in community with others and in public . . .

Global Church Structure - Connectional Conferences

Insert new paragraph between ¶ 8 and ¶ 9, and renumber subsequent paragraphs, as follows:

¶ 9. Article II.—There shall be connectional conferences in all areas of the globe in which The United Methodist Church operates, with such powers, duties, and privileges as are hereinafter set forth.

AND

Insert new Section IV, subsequent to the Restrictive Rules and prior to what is currently ¶ 23, as follows:

Section IV. Connectional Conferences

¶ 23. Article I.—The connectional conferences shall be composed of the delegates from the annual conferences within its boundaries who have been elected to the Global Connectional Conference. No connectional conference shall have fewer than 100 delegates, one half of whom shall be lay and one half clergy. The same formula shall be used to determine the number of delegates of all annual conferences and missionary conferences. In cases where a connectional conference would otherwise have fewer than 100 delegates, the additional delegates shall be elected in accordance with the above process; these delegates may be the same as those elected to regional conferences. The missionary conferences shall be considered as annual conferences for the purpose of this article.

¶ 24. Article II.—All connectional conferences shall have the same status and the same privileges of action within the limits fixed by the Constitution.

¶ 25. Article III.—Each connectional conference shall meet within a year prior to or in conjunction with the Global Connectional Conference, at such time and in such place as shall be determined by the connectional College of Bishops or its delegated committee.

A special session of a connectional conference, possessing the authority and exercising all the powers of the connectional conference, may be called by the connectional conference's college of bishops, or in such other manner as the connectional conference may from time to time prescribe, to meet at such time and in such place as may be stated in the call. Such special session of the connectional conference shall be composed of the delegates to the preceding connectional conference or their lawful successors, except that when a particular annual conference or missionary conference shall prefer to have a new election it may do so. The purpose of such special session shall be stated in the call, and only such business shall be transacted as is in harmony with the purpose stated in such call unless the connectional conference by a two-thirds vote shall determine that other business may be transacted.

¶ 26. Article IV.—The connectional conferences shall have the following powers and duties and such others as may be conferred by the Global Connectional Conferences:

1. To provide for the organization, promotion, and administration of the work of the Church within their boundaries, including to promote the evangelistic, educational, missionary, social-concern, and benevolent interests of the Church, subject to the powers and authority of the Global Connectional Conference. Connectional Conferences are authorized to create a connectional Book of Discipline, subject to the powers that have been vested in the Global Connectional Conference as contained within the global Book of Discipline.

2. To set the tenure and method of assignment of the episcopacy within the connection, to provide a uniform rule for their retirement, to provide for the discontinuance of a bishop, and to fix a uniform basis upon which bishops shall be elected by the regional conferences.

3. To provide for a process of ordination and to set standards for conference membership and conference relationship, which shall in every case be without reference to race, gender, or status.

4. To regulate all matters relating to the form and mode of worship, subject to the limitations of the first and second Restrictive Rules.

5. To initiate and to direct all connectional enterprises of the Church within the connection and to provide boards for their promotion and administration, subject to the authority and powers of the Global Connectional Conference.

6. To determine and provide for raising and distributing funds necessary to carry on the work of the connection.

7. To change the number and the boundaries of regional conferences upon the consent of a majority of the annual conferences within the regional conferences involved.

8. To establish such commissions for the work of the Church within the connection as may be deemed advisable.

9. To secure the rights and privileges of membership in all agencies, programs, and institutions of The United Methodist Church within the connection regardless of race, gender, or status.

10. To allow the annual conferences to utilize structures unique to their mission, other mandated structures notwithstanding.

11. To provide a judicial system and method of judicial procedure, subject to the powers of the Global Connectional Conference and the authority of the Judicial Council, to determine legal questions on the rules, regulations, and other matters of connectional disciplinary law.

12. To enact such other legislation as may be necessary, subject to the limitations and restrictions of the Constitution of the Church and powers and authority of the Global Connectional Conference.

Budget Implications: estimated between US$300,000 and US$1,000,000.

There will probably be some additional costs related to connectional conferences, committees, etc., but these costs may be offset by a possible reduction in costs related to the meeting of the Global Connection. If the business of the North America connection is removed from the agenda of the Global Connectional Conference, the duration of that meeting will be less than the current General Conference, perhaps by three or four days, resulting in a reduction in costs for that meeting.

The most significant increase in costs will probably involve the meetings of the connectional conferences. This proposal would require each connectional conference to meet quadrennially, prior to the Global Connectional Conference. Depending upon when and where the connectional conferences meet, the incremental cost of these meetings is estimated to be between US$300,000 and US$1,000,000. GCFA will be asked to develop more accurate cost projections.

Any incremental cost increases will also need to be examined in the context of the overall budget for the 2016 General Conference budget of over US$10 million.

*Additional Budget Implications will be provided by the NEJ Structure Task Force.

Rationale:

This resolution provides enabling changes to the Book of Discipline for the larger proposal that creates an equitable Global Structure.

The new structure shall consist of a Global Connection, which would meet at the Global Connectional Conference quadrennially to address global matters pertaining to The United Methodist Church. New “United . . .

Global Church Structure - Boundaries

Insert new paragraph before ¶ 37 as follows:
Section VII. Boundaries

¶ 37. Article I.—The United Methodist Church shall organize its work into connectional conferences. There shall be one connectional conference each for Africa, Asia, Europe, and North America.

The initial number and boundaries of the regions shall coincide with the previously existing jurisdictional and central conferences.

AND

Delete ¶ 38 and ¶ 39.

AND

Re-number ¶ 40 and amend as follows:

¶ 39. Article III.—Changes in the number, names, and boundaries of the annual conferences and episcopal areas may be effected by the jurisdictional conferences in the Requirement for Election

Amend the Book of Discipline by adding a new paragraph immediately after current ¶ 36, and re-numbering subsequent paragraphs appropriately:

¶37. Article VI.—In order to be eligible for election as a delegate to a General, jurisdictional, or central conference, one shall have personally read the entirety of the Old and New Testaments prior to the time of election in the annual conference. It is the responsibility of each active bishop, in collaboration with other appropriate leaders in the annual conference, to communicate this and all other eligibility requirements prior to elections.

Rationale:

As we bring in new Christians and minister in changing cultures, we cannot always assume such a basic level of biblical literacy among our members. But this is a reasonable minimum requirement for the select few we entrust with making important decisions for our entire denomination's mission and ministry.

Global Connectional Conference - Connectional Conferences

Section IV. Connectional Conferences

¶ 23. Article I.—The connectional conferences shall be composed of the delegates from the annual conferences within its boundaries who have been elected to the Global Connectional Conference. No connectional conference shall have fewer than 100 delegates, one half of whom shall be lay and one half clergy. Such special session of the connectional conference shall be composed of the delegates to the preceding connectional conference or their lawful successors, except that when a particular annual conference or missionary conference shall prefer to have a new election it may do so. The purpose of such special session shall be stated in the call, and only such business shall be transacted as is in harmony with the purpose stated in such call unless the connectional conference by a two-thirds vote shall determine that other business may be transacted.

¶ 26. Article IV.—The connectional conferences shall have the following powers and duties and such others as may be conferred by the Global Connectional Conferences:

1. 9. To secure the rights and privileges of membership in all agencies, programs, and institutions of The United Methodist Church within the connection regardless of race, gender or status.

10. To allow the annual conferences to utilize structures unique to their mission, other mandated structures notwithstanding.

11. To provide a judicial system and method of judicial procedure, subject to the powers of the Global Connectional Conference and the authority of the Judicial Council, to determine legal questions on the rules, regulations, and other matters of connectional disciplinary law.

12. To enact such other legislation as may be necessary, subject to the limitations and restrictions of the Constitution of the Church and powers and authority of the Global Connectional Conference.

FINANCIAL IMPLICATIONS:

The actual incremental costs of this proposal will be dependent upon the global structure finally adopted by General Conference.

There will probably be some additional costs related to connectional conferences, committees, etc., but these costs may be offset by a possible reduction in costs related to the meeting of the Global Connection. If the business of the North America connection is removed from the agenda of the Global Connectional Conference, the duration of that meeting will be less than the current General Conference, perhaps by three or four days, resulting in a reduction in costs for that meeting.

The most significant increase in costs will probably involve the meetings of the connectional conferences. This proposal would require each connectional conference to meet quadrennially, prior to the Global Connectional Conference. Depending upon when and where the connectional conferences meet, the incremental cost of these meetings is estimated to be between US$300,000 and US$1,000,000. GCFA will be asked to develop more accurate cost projections.

Any incremental cost increases will also need to be examined in the context of the overall budget for the 2016 General Conference budget of over US$10 million.

Rationale:

These constitutional amendments are a component of the The Proposal to Restructure the Global UMC. The amendments in this petition enable the creation of Connectional Conferences in Africa, Asia, Europe, and North America with responsibilities for the work of The United Methodist Church in their respective areas.

Christian Conferencing

Add a new paragraph before the current ¶ 16 and re-number accordingly:

The General Conference shall gather delegates, as representatives of the church, for worship, prayer, and fellowship in a spirit of Christian conferencing.

Change Annual Conference to Biennial Conference

Amend ¶ 8. Article IV to read: There shall be ~~annual~~ biennial conferences . . .

Amend Section VI. Annual Conferences ¶ 32 Article I. through ¶ 36. Article V. wherever ~~annual conference(s)~~ appears to biennial conference(s).

There are numerous references to “annual conference” in the Discipline; if the changes above are approved, then all references in the Discipline where “annual conference(s)” appears would be amended to “biennial conference(s).”

Amend ¶ 14 as follows:

¶ 14. Article II.—1. The ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference shall meet ~~in the month of April or May~~ once in four years at such time and in such place as shall be determined by the ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference or by its duly authorized committees.

A special session of the ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference, possessing the authority and exercising all the powers of the ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference, may be called by the Council of Bishops, or in such other manner as the ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference may from time to time prescribe, to meet at such time and in such place as may be stated in the call. Such special session of the ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference shall be composed of the delegates to the preceding ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference or their lawful successors, except that when a particular annual conference or missionary conference shall prefer to have a new election it may do so. The purpose of such special session shall be stated in the call, and only such business shall be transacted as is in harmony with the purpose stated in such call unless the ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference by a two-thirds vote shall determine that other business may be transacted.

AND

Amend ¶ 15 as follows:

¶ 15. Article III.—The ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference shall fix the ratio of representation in the ~~General~~ Global, connectional, jurisdictional and central and regional conferences from the annual conferences, missionary conferences, and the provisional annual conferences, computed on a two-factor basis: (1) the number of clergy members of the annual conference and the missionary conference, and (2) the number of professing members in the annual conference and the missionary conference, provided that each annual conference, missionary conference, or provisional annual conference shall be entitled to at least one clergy and one lay delegate in the ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference and also in the ~~jurisdictional or central~~ connectional and regional conferences.

AND

Amend ¶ 16 as follows:

¶ 16. Article IV.—The ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference shall have full legislative power over all matters distinctively connectional, except for those powers constitutionally delegated to the connectional conferences, and in the exercise of this power shall have authority as follows:

1. To define and fix the conditions, privileges, and duties of Church membership, which shall in every case be without reference to race, gender, or status.

2. To define and fix the powers and duties of elders, deacons, supply ~~preachers~~ pastors, local ~~preachers~~ pastors, ~~exhorters~~ deaconesses, and home missionaries, which shall in every case be without reference to race, gender, or status.

3. To define and fix the powers and duties of annual conferences, provisional annual conferences, missionary conferences and missions, and of ~~central conferences~~ connectional conferences, regional conferences, district conferences, charge conferences, and congregational meetings.

4. To provide for the organization, promotion, and administration of the work of the Church ~~outside the United States of America~~ around the globe.

5. To define and fix the powers, duties, and privileges of the episcopacy, to adopt a plan for the support of the bishops. ~~to provide a uniform rule for their retirement, and to provide for the discontinuance of a bishop because of inefficiency or unacceptability.~~

6. To provide and revise the ~~hymnal and~~ ritual of the Church ~~and to regulate all matters relating to the form and mode of worship~~, subject to the limitations of the first and second Restrictive Rules.

7. To provide a judicial system and a method of judicial procedure for the church, except as herein otherwise prescribed.

8. To initiate and to direct all global connectional enterprises of the Church and to provide boards for their promotion and administration.

9. To determine and provide for raising and distributing funds necessary to carry on the work of the Church.

10. To ~~fix a uniform basis upon which bishops shall be elected by the jurisdictional conferences and to determine the number of bishops that may be elected by central~~ regional conferences.

11. To select its presiding officers from the bishops, through a committee, provided that the bishops shall select from their own number the presiding officer of the opening session.

12. To change the number and the boundaries of ~~jurisdictional conferences~~ connectional conferences upon the consent of a majority of the annual conferences in each ~~jurisdictional~~ connectional conference involved.

13. To establish such commissions for the ~~general~~ global work of the Church as may be deemed advisable.

14. To secure the rights and privileges of membership in all global agencies, programs, and institutions in The United Methodist Church regardless of race, gender, or status.

15. To allow the annual conferences to utilize structures unique to their mission, other mandated structures notwithstanding.

16. To enact such other legislation as may be necessary, subject to the limitations and restrictions of the Constitution of the Church.

Budget Implications: estimated between US$300,000 and US$1,000,000.

There will probably be some additional costs related to connectional conferences, committees, etc., but these costs may be offset by a possible reduction in costs related to the meeting of the Global Connection. If the business of the North America connection is removed from the agenda of the Global Connectional Conference, the duration of that meeting will be less than the current General Conference, perhaps by three or four days, resulting in a reduction in costs for that meeting.

The most significant increase in costs will probably involve the meetings of the connectional conferences. This proposal would require each connectional conference to meet quadrennially, prior to the Global Connectional Conference. Depending upon when and where the connectional conferences meet, the incremental cost of these meetings is estimated to be between US$300,000 and US$1,000,000. GCFA will be asked to develop more accurate cost projections.

Any incremental cost increases will also need to be examined in the context of the overall budget for the 2016 General Conference budget of over US$10 million.

*Additional Budget Implications will be provided by the NEJ Structure Task Force.

Global Connectional Conference - Name and Composition

Amend ¶ 8 by revision as follows:

¶ 8. Article I.—There shall be a ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference for the entire Church with such powers, duties, and privileges as are hereinafter set forth...

Amend ¶ 13 by revision as follows:

Section II. ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference

¶ 13. Article I.—1. The ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference shall be composed of not less than 600 nor more than 1,000 delegates, one-half of whom shall be clergy and one half lay members, to be elected by the annual conferences. The missionary conferences shall be considered as annual conferences for the purpose of this article.

2. Delegates shall be elected in a fair and open process by the annual conferences. The same formula shall be used to determine the number of delegates of all annual conferences and missionary conferences, provided that no annual conference or missionary conference shall have fewer than two delegates.

3. Delegates may be elected by other autonomous Methodist churches if and when the ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference shall approve concordats with such other autonomous Methodist churches for the mutual election and seating of delegates in each other’s legislative conferences.

3. 4. In the case of The Methodist Church in Great Britain, mother church of Methodism, provision shall be made for The United Methodist Church to send two delegates annually to the British Methodist Conference, and The Methodist Church in Great Britain to send four delegates quadrennially to The United Methodist ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference, the delegates of both conferences having vote and being evenly divided between clergy and laity.

Amend ¶ 14 by revision as follows:

¶ 23 Article I.—The regional conferences shall be composed of as many representatives from the annual conferences and missionary conferences as shall be determined by a uniform basis established by the Global Connectional Conference, provided that no regional conference shall have fewer than 100 delegates. The delegates shall be clergy and lay in equal numbers.

¶ 24. Article II.—The regional conferences shall meet within the year succeeding the meeting of the Global Connectional Conference at such times and places as shall have been determined by the preceding respective regional conferences or by commissions appointed by them or by their respective College of Bishops.

¶ 25. Article III.—All regional conferences shall have the same status and same privileges of action within the limits fixed by the Constitution.

¶ 26. Article IV—The regional conferences shall have the following powers and duties and such others as may be conferred by the Global Connectional Conference:

1. To promote the evangelistic, educational, missionary, social-concern, and benevolent interests of the Church and to provide for interests and institutions within their boundaries.

2. To elect bishops for the respective regional conferences in number as may be determined from time to time, upon a basis fixed by the Global Connectional Conference, and to cooperate in carrying out such plans for their support as may be determined by the Global Connectional Conference.

3. To establish and constitute regional and conference boards as auxiliary to the global and connectional boards of the Church as the need may appear and to choose their representatives on the global and connectional boards in such manner as the Global Connectional Conference may determine.

4. To determine the boundaries of their annual conferences, provided that there shall be no annual conference with a membership of fewer than 50 clergy in full connection, except by the consent of the Global Connectional Conference.

5. To make rules and regulations for the administration of the work of the Church within the region, subject to such powers as have been or shall be vested in the Global Connectional Conference and connectional conferences.

6. To appoint a committee on appeals to hear and determine the appeal of a clergy person of that region from the decision of a trial court.

7. To appoint a committee on the episcopacy.

Rationale:

This is one piece of a larger legislative agenda to achieve amicable unity in The UMC through the "Organic Jurisdictional Solution." US UMC as Central Conference

Amend ¶¶ 10, 28, 30, and 31 as indicated following:

¶ 10. Article III.—There shall be central conferences for the church ~~outside the United States of America~~ as determined by the General Conference and, if necessary, provisional central conferences, all with such powers, duties, and privileges as are hereinafter set forth.

...

¶ 28. Article I.—There shall be central conferences ~~for the work of the Church outside the United States of America~~ with such duties, powers, and privileges as are hereinafter set forth. ~~The number and boundaries of the central conferences shall be determined by the Uniting Conference. Subsequently the General Conference shall have authority to change the number and boundaries of central conferences. The central conferences shall have the duties, powers, and privileges hereinafter set forth.~~

...

¶ 30. Article III.—The central conferences shall meet ~~within the year succeeding the meeting of the General Conference~~ at such times and places as shall have been determined by the preceding respective central conferences or by commissions appointed by them or by the General Conference. ~~The date and place of the first meeting succeeding the Uniting Conference shall be fixed by the bishops of the respective central conferences, or in such manner as shall be determined by the General Conference.~~

...

¶ 31. Article IV.—The central conferences outside the United States shall have the following powers and duties and such others as may be conferred by the General Conference:

Insert as follows a new paragraph immediately following existing ¶ 31.

NEW PARAGRAPH. The central conference that includes the United States shall have the power and duty to make such rules and regulations for the administration of the work within its boundaries, including such changes and adaptations of the General Discipline as the conditions in the central conference may require, subject to the powers that have been or shall be vested in the General Conference.

Immediately prior to ¶ 540, change Section III title to read as follows:

Section III. Central Conferences Outside the United States

Following existing ¶ 567, insert a new Section as follows:

Section NEW. Central Conference of the United States

Following the new Section title insert new paragraphs as follows:

NEW 1. There shall be a central conference whose boundaries shall include all the jurisdictional conferences, and it shall be called the Central Conference of the United States (CCUS), notwithstanding that it may include territory not included within the United States.

NEW 2. The active bishops in the jurisdictions, in consultation with the Interjurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy, shall appoint an Interim Committee on Organization (ICO) that shall be charged with the following duties:

NEW 2.1 The ICO shall choose the time and place for the convening of the initial gathering of the CCUS, and it is recommended that it gather immediately prior to and at the site of the General Conference of 2020.

NEW 2.2 The ICO shall recommend to the CCUS for action at its first gathering what committees and officers are required to ensure the functionality of the CCUS. The ICO shall work with the Business Manager of the General Conference in planning for the first gathering of the CCUS.

NEW 2.3 Delegates and reserve delegates to the CCUS shall be the most recently elected delegates and reserve delegates to the General Conference from any annual conference within the jurisdictions and shall represent those same annual conferences.

Rationale:

Creating a central conference for The UMC within the United States provides a forum for discussion of issues peculiar to the US and resolution of conflicts that would best be settled in such a setting. It need not be accompanied by the creation of additional structure or bureaucracy.

Representation to General Conference by Episcopal Area

Amend ¶¶ 15, 502, and 511 as indicated following:

¶ 15. Article III.—The General Conference shall ~~fix the ratio~~ establish the basis of representation in the General, jurisdictional, and central conferences from the ~~annual conferences, missionary conferences, and the provisional annual conferences~~ episcopal areas, computed on a two-factor basis: (1) the number of clergy members of the ~~annual conference and the missionary conference~~ episcopal area, and (2) the number of professing members in the ~~annual conference and the missionary conference~~ episcopal area, provided that each ~~annual conference, missionary conference, or provisional annual conference~~ episcopal area shall be entitled to at least one clergy and one lay delegate in the General Conference and also in the jurisdictional or central conference. An episcopal area consists of all the annual, missionary, and provisional annual conferences over which one bishop presides.

¶ 502.2. The number of delegates to which an episcopal area ~~annual conference~~ is entitled shall be computed on a two-factor basis: the number of clergy members of the episcopal area ~~annual conference~~, and the number of members of local churches in the episcopal area ~~annual conference~~.

~~3. Delegates to the General Conference shall be elected at the session of the annual conference held not more than two annual conference sessions before the calendar year preceding the session of the General Conference. At least thirty days prior to the beginning of that calendar year, the secretary of the General Conference shall notify the bishop and the secretary of each annual conference of the number of delegates to be elected by that annual conference.~~

~~4. The secretary of each annual conference, using the certificate of election form supplied by the secretary of the General Conference, shall report to the secretary of the General Conference the names, addresses, and such other information as may be required for delegates and reserves elected by the annual conference.~~

~~5. The secretary of the General Conference shall prepare and send to each annual conference secretary credentials to be signed and distributed to the delegates and reserves elected by the annual conference.~~

¶ 511.5. The secretary of the General Conference shall calculate the number of delegates to be elected by each episcopal area ~~annual conference~~, based on the factors specified above in ¶ 502.1, 2, as follows:

a) One clergy delegate for the first 375 clergy members of the episcopal area ~~annual conference~~ and one clergy delegate for each additional 375 clergy members or major fraction thereof, and

b) One clergy delegate for the first 26,000 members of local churches of the episcopal area ~~annual conference~~ and one clergy delegate for each additional 26,000 local church members or major fraction thereof, and

c) A number of lay delegates equal to the total number of clergy delegates authorized as above.

d) Every episcopal area ~~annual conference~~ shall be entitled to at least one clergy and one lay delegate. When the number of delegates allocated by the Secretary of the General Conference to any episcopal area is affected by this provision, the delegates are to be allocated among the conferences of an episcopal area by a committee of representatives of each conference of the area, in consultation with the presiding bishop. At least thirty days prior to the beginning of the earliest calendar year in which elections may be held, the bishop of any multiple conference episcopal area shall notify the Secretary of the General Conference and each conference within that episcopal area as to the number of delegates to be elected to General Conference and jurisdictional or central conference by each annual conference within the episcopal area.

e) This formula is designated to comply with the Constitution, Division Two, Section II, Article I (§ 13), which defines the minimum and maximum number of delegates to a General Conference. Should the computations provided in the paragraph result in a figure below the prescribed minimum or above the prescribed maximum for delegates, the Commission on the General Conference shall be authorized to remedy the situation by adjusting up or down the numbers of clergy members and members of local churches of the annual conference necessary to entitle an annual conference to elect delegates, any such adjustment to be proportionally the same for the two factors.

f) At least thirty days prior to the beginning of the earliest calendar year in which elections may be held, the secretary of the General Conference shall notify the bishop and the secretary of each annual conference of the number of delegates to be elected by that annual conference or in the episcopal area of which the annual conference is a part.

g) The secretary of each annual conference, using the certificate of election form supplied by the secretary of the General Conference, shall report to the secretary of the General Conference the names, addresses, and such other information as may be required for delegates and reserves elected by the annual conference. h) The secretary of the General Conference shall prepare and send to each annual conference secretary credentials to be signed and distributed to the delegates and reserves elected by the annual conference.

Rationale:

This change will correct abuses of the current system wherein delegates are apportioned on the basis of annual conference membership.

GC Membership

Amend ¶ 15 as follows:

¶ 15. Article III.—The General Conference shall fix the ratio of representation in the General, jurisdictional, and central conferences from the annual conferences, missionary conferences,¹⁹ and the provisional annual conferences, computed on a two-factor basis: (1) the number of clergy members of the annual conference and the missionary conference,²⁰ and (2) the number of professing²¹ members in the annual conference and the missionary conference,²² provided that each annual conference, missionary conference,²³ or provisional annual conference having at least 5,000 professing members shall be entitled to at least one clergy and one lay delegate in the General Conference and also in the jurisdictional or central conference.²⁴

Rationale:

It is unfair for an annual conference of as few as 500 members to have the same level of representation as one with 60,000 members. The present system encourages the proliferation of annual conferences, contributing to duplicate infrastructure costs. Setting a minimum will encourage consolidation of small conferences for better . . .

Authority of General Conference

Amend ¶¶ 16 and 47 as indicated following:

¶ 16. Article IV.—The General Conference shall have full legislative power over all matters distinctively connectional, and in the exercise of this power shall have authority as follows:

...

8. To initiate and to direct all connectional enterprises of the Church, ~~and~~ to provide ~~boards~~ subordinate entities for their promotion and administration, and to delegate to such entities specified and limited authority for oversight and execution of particular ministries. This is not a limitation of the general oversight responsibility and authority of the bishops prescribed elsewhere in this Constitution.

¶ 47. Article III.—There shall be a Council of Bishops composed of all the bishops of The United Methodist Church. The council shall meet at least once a year and plan for the general oversight and promotion of the temporal and spiritual interests of the entire Church and for carrying into effect the rules, regulations, and responsibilities prescribed and enjoined by the General Conference and in accord with the provisions set forth in this Plan of Union. The responsibility of the Council of Bishops to plan for the general oversight and promotion of the temporal and spiritual interests of the entire Church shall not be understood to preempt or supersede the authority of the General Conference to have full legislative power over all matters distinctively connectional, including authority to delegate oversight of particular functions or ministries in carrying out its responsibility to initiate and to direct all connectional enterprises of the Church and to provide entities for their promotion and administration.

Rationale:

The general oversight authority of the bishops was never intended to limit the authority of General Conference to create various bodies to oversee particular areas of ministry within the connectional life of the Church.

Uphold God's Word as Primary

A. Add a new sub-paragraph to Article IV after ¶ 16: 1. To uphold God's word as primary for salvation in faith and practice according to the Bible, our doctrinal standards, the restrictive rules, John Wesley's emphasis on the Bible, our candidacy requirements and the ordination vows. Therefore, any petition attempting to change our present stance on sexuality, homosexuality, or marriage is to be tabled indefinitely and the Council of Bishops is to determine the boundaries for all United Methodists to function accordingly.

B. Delete all the present numbers in ¶ 16 Article IV from 4 through 46 and increase their numerical value by one, so 4 becomes 5, 5 becomes 6, and so on until 46 becomes 47.

Rationale:

A. The U.S. Supreme Court recently expanded the definition of marriage to include homosexual couples based upon peoples' rights to liberty and the pursuit of happiness;

B. We United Methodists have been discerning, discussing, debating and deciding on issues of sexuality over the past thirty years at General Conference;

Organic Jurisdictional Solution – General Conference Powers

General Conference Override Judicial Council Declaration of Unconstitutionality

Amend ¶¶ 16.16 and 56 as indicated following:

¶ 16.16. To enact such other legislation as may be necessary, subject to the limitations and restrictions of the Constitution of the Church. In exercise of this authority the General Conference shall have the power to override declarations of the unconstitutionality of any of its acts as elsewhere provided in this Constitution.

¶ 56. Article II.—The Judicial Council shall have authority:

1. To determine the constitutionality of any act of the General Conference upon an appeal of a majority of the Council of Bishops or one-fifth of the members of the General Conference, provided that when an act of the General Conference has been declared by the Judicial Council to be unconstitutional, the General Conference may reverse such a decision by the Judicial Council by an affirmative vote of at least 67 percent (67%) of the delegates present and voting. ~~and to~~

2. To determine the constitutionality of any act of a jurisdictional or central conference upon an appeal of a majority of the bishops of that jurisdictional or central conference or upon the appeal of one-fifth of the members of that jurisdictional or central conference.

Amend ¶¶ 2609 and 2610 as indicated following:

¶ 2609. Jurisdiction and Powers—1. The Judicial Council shall determine the constitutionality of any act of the General Conference upon an appeal by a majority of the Council of Bishops or one-fifth of the members of the General Conference, provided that when an act of the General Conference has been declared by the Judicial Council to be unconstitutional the General Conference may reverse such a decision by the Judicial Council by an affirmative vote of at least 67 percent (67%) of the delegates present and voting.

¶ 2610. Declaratory Decisions—1. The Judicial Council, on petition as hereinafter provided, shall have jurisdiction to make a ruling in the nature of a declaratory decision as to the constitutionality, meaning, application, or effect of the Discipline or any portion thereof or of any act or legislation of a General Conference; ~~and the decision of the Judicial Council thereon shall be as binding and effectual as a decision made by it on appeal,~~ provided that when an act of the General Conference has been declared by the Judicial Council to be unconstitutional the General Conference may reverse such a decision by the Judicial Council by an affirmative vote of at least 67 percent (67%) of the delegates present and voting.

These implementing changes will be effective if and when the Council of Bishops certifies the enactment of the enabling change in the Constitution.

Rationale:

Six members of the Judicial Council have authority to declare any decision of General Conference to be unconstitutional. Unlike secular processes in which lower courts make constitutional decisions, there is no other body of the Church with such authority. Enacting this proposal would provide a check on such unlimited power.

Progressive Jurisdictional Solution – Equal Representation

Amend ¶ 24.

~~All jurisdictional conferences shall have the same status and the same privileges of action within the limits fixed by the Constitution.~~ The ratio of representation of the annual conferences and missionary conferences in the General Conference shall be the same for all the jurisdictional conferences.

Rationale:

Amicable Unity may be achieved in The UMC by creating a sixth Progressive Jurisdiction empowered to adapt our rules. This piece allows individualized privileges to one jurisdiction while insuring equal numbers of delegates at General Conference. See www.jurisdictional-solution.org.

Organic Jurisdictional Solution – Powers of Jurisdictional Conferences

Amend ¶ 27.4: 4. If any of the annual conferences of the jurisdiction falls below fifty clergy in full connection, except by the consent of General Conference, the jurisdiction shall dissolve the conference and ensure that an equitable plan to divide the clergy, churches, assets, and liabilities of the conference is implemented. To determine the boundaries of their annual conferences, provided that there shall be no annual conference with a membership of fewer than fifty clergy in full connection, except by the consent of the General Conference.

Add: ¶ 27.7-8: 7. To make such rules and regulations for the administration of the work of their jurisdiction including such changes and adaptations of the General Discipline as the conditions in the jurisdiction may require, subject to the powers that have been or shall be vested in the General Conference. These adaptations may include, upon two-thirds majority vote of a duly called jurisdictional conference, clergy standards and chargeable offenses for clergy that are distinct from those in the General Discipline within the limitations elsewhere set forth. Enactment of this provision shall be contingent upon the ratification of other constitutional measures that allow for any annual conferences in the United States to join any other jurisdiction with a mere two-thirds majority vote of that annual conference.

8. To appoint a judicial court to determine legal questions arising on any adaptations made by the jurisdiction to the General Discipline as allowed in this paragraph as amended.

Rationale:

This is one piece of a larger legislative agenda to achieve amicable unity in The UMC through the “Organic Jurisdictional Solution.” This item refines the constitutional powers of jurisdictions and imports language granting jurisdictions powers very similar to those already granted to central conferences. See jurisdictionalsolution.org.

Two-Jurisdiction Solution – Constitutional Powers of Jurisdictions

Amend: ¶ 27. Article V.—The jurisdictional conferences shall have the following powers and duties and such others as may be conferred by the General Conference:

5. To make rules and regulations for the administration of the work of the Church within the jurisdiction, including such changes and adaptations of the General Discipline as the jurisdiction chooses, subject to such powers that have been or shall be vested in the General Conference.

6. To appoint a judicial court to determine legal questions arising on the rules, regulations, and such revised, adapted, or new sections of the jurisdictional conference Discipline enacted by the jurisdictional conference.

7. To appoint a committee on appeals . . .

Rationale:

One way to achieve amicable unity in The UMC is through a two-jurisdiction solution. This piece of that solution expands the powers of jurisdictions to mirror those of central conferences. See jurisdictionalsolution.org.

Episcopal Support

1. To promote the evangelistic, educational, . . .

2. To elect bishops and to cooperate in carrying out such plans for their support as may be determined by the General Conference, each jurisdiction being solely responsible to bear all the financial costs of the bishops serving therein.

Rationale:

In the name of equity and fairness, each jurisdiction should be able to be self-supporting. This will also save the General Church Budget money by shifting the financial responsibility.

Equalization of Annual Conference Membership

Amend paragraphs 32 and 602.4:

. . . If the lay membership of the annual conference should number less than ~~the clergy members of the annual conference,~~ the average number of clergy members in attendance at the three previous annual conference sessions, the annual conference shall, by its own formula, provide for the election of additional lay members to equalize lay membership with the three year average clergy attendance at the annual conference.

Rationale:

The “equalization formula” is based on the assumption that all clergy members will be present for annual conference. However, significant numbers of clergy, mostly retirees, are not present, resulting in an imbalance between lay and clergy. This proposal would not disenfranchise retirees, but would provide for better “equalization.”

[The same change is necessary in ¶¶ 142, 370.1, and 602.1. Petitions are submitted for each of these changes.]

AC Membership of Retired Clergy

AMEND ¶ 32, Article I as follows:

¶ 32. Article I.—The annual conference shall be composed of clergy and lay members. The clergy membership shall consist of deacons and elders in full connection, provisional members, associate members, and local pastors under appointment. Clergy members in the retired relation who are not serving under episcopal appointment or not elected to a conference office or membership on a conference board or agency shall be members with voice but without vote, shall not be counted for the purposes of equalization with lay members, and shall not be counted toward determining the number of General and jurisdictional or central conference delegates the annual conference is entitled to (¶ 15). Implementing Legislation

Amend ¶ 602.1 as follows:

¶ 602. Composition and Character—1. The clergy membership of an annual conference (¶ 370) shall consist of deacons and elders in full connection (¶ 333), provisional members (¶ 327), associate members, affiliate members (¶¶ 344.4, 586.4), and local pastors under full-time and part-time appointment to a pastoral charge (¶ 317).²⁷ (See also ¶ 32.) Clergy members in the retired relation who are not serving under episcopal appointment or not elected to a conference office or membership on a conference board or agency shall be members with voice but without vote and shall not be counted for the purposes of equalization with lay members (¶ 602.4).

Amend ¶ 502.2 as follows:

¶ 502. Composition—1. The voting membership of the General Conference shall . . .

2. The number of delegates to which an annual conference is entitled shall be computed on a two-factor basis: the number of clergy members of the annual conference and the number of members of local churches in the annual conference.¹

The term clergy members as used in this paragraph shall refer to ~~both active and retired members of the annual conference~~ (those counted as clergy members of the annual conference under ¶ 32 and 602.1).

Rationale:

Retired clergy now outnumber active clergy in many annual conferences. Many retired clergy are not able to attend annual conference, yet they must be equalized with lay members, unnecessarily increasing the size and cost of annual conference. Counting retired clergy in the formula for General Conference delegates unfairly advantages those . . .

Elimination of Provisional Status for Clergy

The petition seeks to amend the Book of Discipline to eliminate provisional status for clergy by adding and deleting language as outlined below:

¶ 32. Article I.—The annual conference shall be composed of clergy and lay members. The clergy membership shall consist of deacons and elders in full connection, provisional members (if any), associate members, and local pastors under appointment.

35. Article IV.—The clergy delegates to the General Conference and to the jurisdictional or central conference shall be elected from the clergy members in full connection and shall be elected by the clergy members of the annual conference or provisional annual conference who are deacons and elders in full connection, associate members, and those provisional members (if any) who have completed all of their educational requirements and local pastors who have completed course of study or an M. Div. degree and have served a minimum of two consecutive years under appointment immediately preceding the election.

¶ 205. Definition of a Pastoral Charge –

3. A pastoral charge may be designated by the bishop and cabinet as a “teaching parish” when either a local church with a pastor or a cooperative parish with a director is available to serve as a counseling elder for a ~~provisional~~, local ; or student pastor appointed or assigned to the teaching parish. . . .

¶ 315. License for Pastoral Ministry—All persons not ordained as elders who are appointed to preach and conduct divine worship and perform the duties of a pastor shall have a license for pastoral ministry. The Board of Ordained Ministry (¶ 635.2h) may recommend to the executive session of the annual conference the licensing of those persons who are:

~~1. Provisional elders commissioned by the annual conference;~~ or

2. Local pastors who have completed the following:
...

5. Licensed or ordained clergy from other denominations who have training equivalent to the studies for license as a local pastor prescribed by the Division of Ordained Ministry, but do not meet the educational requirements for ~~provisional~~ full membership in the annual conference.

...

7. Local pastors seeking to change their licensing to that of local deacon, or local deacons seeking to change their licensing to that of local pastor shall:

a) Write to the district committee on ordained ministry and inform the committee and district superintendent of their intention.

b) Interview with the district committee on ordained ministry to articulate and clarify their call.

c) Upon satisfaction of any educational requirements, and upon approval of the district committee, they shall be available for licensing and appointment as a local pastor or local deacon.

¶ 316. Responsibilities and Duties of Those Licensed for Pastoral Ministry—

1. ~~Provisional elders approved annually by the Board of Ordained Ministry and~~ local pastors approved annually by the district committee on ordained ministry may be licensed by the bishop to perform all the duties of a pastor (¶ 340), ...

¶ 319. Continuance as a Local Pastor—1. Persons licensed as local pastors ~~who are not provisional members~~ shall continue in college, in a program of theological education at an approved seminary, or in the Course of Study.

2. Upon completing each year's education and other qualifications, a local pastor ~~who is not a provisional member~~ may be recommended for continuance by the district committee on ordained ministry ...

¶ 320. Exiting, Reinstatement, and Retirement of Local Pastors ~~Who Are Not Provisional Members~~—

...

¶ 321. Eligibility and Rights of Associate Members—Associate members of an annual conference are in the itinerant ministry of the Church and are available on a continuing basis for appointment by the bishop. They offer themselves without reserve to be appointed (and to serve as their superiors in office shall direct). They shall be amenable to the annual conference in the performance of their ministry and shall be granted the same security of appointment as ~~provisional~~ members in full connection.

¶ 322. Requirements for Election as Associate Members—

4. Associate members may be received as ~~provisional~~ full members in the annual conference under conditions as set forth in ¶ 324.6 upon receiving a three-fourths majority vote of the clergy members of the conference in full connection, present and voting.

~~Section VI. Provisional Membership~~

~~¶ 324. Qualifications for Election to Provisional Membership—A person shall be eligible for election to provisional membership in the annual conference by vote of the clergy session on recommendation~~

~~of its Board of Ordained Ministry after meeting the following qualifications:~~

~~1. Candidacy Requirement: Each candidate shall have been a certified candidate for provisional membership for at least one year and no more than twelve years.~~

~~2. Service Requirement: Each candidate shall have demonstrated his or her gifts for ministries of service and leadership to the satisfaction of the district committee on ordained ministry as a condition for provisional membership.~~

~~3. Undergraduate Requirement: A candidate for provisional membership shall have completed a bachelor's degree from a college or university recognized by the University Senate. Exceptions~~

~~to the undergraduate degree requirements may be made in consultation with the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry in some instances, for mission-al purposes, for persons who have a minimum of sixty semester hours of Bachelor of Arts credit and: a) have been prevented from pursuit of the normal course of baccalaureate education, b) are members of a group whose cultural practices and training enhance insight and skills for effective ministry not available through conventional formal education, or c) have graduated with a bachelor's degree or its equivalent from a college not recognized by the University Senate and have completed one half of the studies of the Master of Divinity or equivalent first professional degree in a school of theology listed by the University Senate.~~

~~4. Graduate Requirement:~~

~~a) Candidates for deacon or elder shall have completed one half of the basic graduate theological studies in the Christian faith. These courses may be included within or in addition to a seminary degree. These basic graduate theological studies must include courses in Old Testament; New Testament; theology; church history; mission of the church in the world; evangelism; worship/liturgy; and United Methodist doctrine, polity and history.~~

~~b) a candidate for ordination as an elder shall have completed one half of the studies toward a Master of Divinity degree or its equivalent, including one half of the basic graduate theological studies from a seminary listed by the University Senate.~~

c) a candidate for ordination as a deacon shall have: (1) completed one half of the studies of a master's degree from a United Methodist seminary or one listed by the University Senate, or (2) received a master's degree in the area of the specialized ministry in which the candidate will serve (3) completed one half of the basic graduate theological studies, in a context which will provide formation as a United Methodist deacon in full connection within a cohesive program developed by the seminary and approved by the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry, documented by a record of completion from that school.

5. In some instances a candidate who is pursuing ordination to serve as deacon in full connection may fulfill the academic requirements through the following professional certification alternate route:

a) shall have reached thirty-five years of age at the time to become a certified candidate;

b) completed a bachelor's degree, received professional certification or license in the area of ministry in which the candidate will serve, have completed a minimum of eight semester hours of graduate credit or equivalent quarter hours in the area of specialization, and have been recommended by the conference Board of Ordained Ministry;

c) have completed one half of the minimum of twenty-four semester hours of the basic graduate theological studies of the Christian faith including the areas of: Old Testament; New Testament; theology; church history; mission of the church in the world; evangelism; worship/liturgy; and United Methodist doctrine, polity, and history, in a context which will provide a cohesive program and formation as a United Methodist deacon in full connection within a cohesive program developed by the seminary and approved by the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry, documented by a record of completion from that school.

6. Local pastors may fulfill the requirements for provisional membership when they have:

a) reached forty years of age;

b) satisfied all requirements of Sections 1-3 and 7-14 of this paragraph.

c) completed the five-year Course of Study for ordained ministry, of which no more than one half may be taken by correspondence or Internet; up to one half of Course of Study may be online courses; and

d) an Advanced Course of Study consisting of thirty-two semester hours of graduate theological study offered by a seminary recognized by the University Senate or its equivalent as determined by the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry that shall include United Methodist history, doctrine, and polity.

7. The Board of Ordained Ministry shall require an official transcript of credits from each school before recognizing any of the applicant's educational claims. In case of doubt, the board may submit a transcript to the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry.

8. Each candidate shall present a satisfactory certificate of good health by a physician on the prescribed form. Disabilities are not to be construed as unfavorable health factors when a person with disability is capable of meeting the professional standards and is able to render effective service as a provisional member.

9. Each candidate shall respond to a written and oral doctrinal examination administered by the conference Board of Ordained Ministry. The examination shall cover the following:

a) Describe your personal experience of God and the understanding of God you derive from biblical, theological, and historical sources.

b) What is your understanding of evil as it exists in the world?

c) What is your understanding of humanity, and the human need for divine grace?

d) How do you interpret the statement Jesus Christ is Lord?

e) What is your conception of the activity of the Holy Spirit in personal faith, in the community of believers, and in responsible living in the world?

f) What is your understanding of the kingdom of God; the Resurrection; eternal life?

g) How do you intend to affirm, teach, and apply Part III of the Discipline (Doctrinal Standards and Our Theological Task) in your work in the ministry to which you have been called?

h) The United Methodist Church holds that the living core of the Christian faith was revealed in Scripture, illumined by tradition, vivified in personal experience, and confirmed by reason. What is your understanding of this theological position of the Church?

i) Describe the nature and mission of the Church. What are its primary tasks today?

j) Discuss your understanding of the primary characteristics of United Methodist polity.

k) How do you perceive yourself, your gifts, your motives, your role, and your commitment as a provisional member and commissioned minister in The United Methodist Church?

l) Describe your understanding of diakonia, the servant ministry of the church, and the servant ministry of the provisional member.

m) What is the meaning of ordination in the context of the general ministry of the Church?

n) Describe your understanding of an inclusive church and ministry.

o) You have agreed as a candidate for the sake of the mission of Jesus Christ in the world and the most effective witness of the gospel, and in consideration of their influence as ministers, to make a complete dedication of yourself to the highest ideals of the Christian life, and to this end agree to exercise responsible self-control by personal habits conducive to bodily health, mental and emotional maturity, integrity in all personal relationships, fidelity in marriage and celibacy in singleness, social responsibility, and growth in grace and the knowledge and love of God. What is your understanding of this agreement?

p) Explain the role and significance of the sacraments in the ministry to which you have been called.

10. Each candidate shall have been recommended in writing to the conference Board of Ordained Ministry, based on a three-fourths majority vote of the district committee on ordained ministry.

11. Each candidate shall have a personal interview with the conference Board of Ordained Ministry to complete his or her candidacy.

12. Each candidate shall submit on a form provided by the Board of Ordained Ministry a notarized statement detailing any convictions for felony, or misdemeanor, or written accusations and its disposition of sexual misconduct or child abuse; or certifying that this candidate has not been convicted of a felony or misdemeanor or accused in writing of sexual misconduct or child abuse. The candidate also shall release required psychological reports, criminal background, credit checks and reports of child abuse.

13. Each candidate shall file with the board a written, concise, autobiographical statement (in duplicate on a prescribed form) regarding age, health, family status, Christian experience, call to ministry, educational record, formative Christian experiences, and plans for service in the Church.

14. Each candidate shall have been recommended in writing to the clergy session based on at least a two-thirds majority vote of the conference Board of Ordained Ministry.

Section VI. License for the Ministry of a Deacon

¶ 324. License for the Ministry of a Deacon—A person shall be eligible to serve as a Local Deacon and receive a license for the ministry of a deacon after meeting the following qualifications.

1. Each candidate shall be a certified candidate, having completed the requirements in ¶ 310.1-2.

2. Each candidate shall have completed the Orientation to Ministry.

3. Each candidate shall have completed a bachelor's degree from a college or university recognized by the University Senate. Exceptions to the undergraduate degree requirements may be made in consultation with the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry in some instances, for missional purposes, for persons who have a minimum of sixty semester hours of Bachelor of Arts credit and:

a) have been prevented from pursuit of the normal course of baccalaureate education,

b) are members of a group whose cultural practices and training enhance insight and skills for effective ministry not available through conventional formal education,

or
c) have graduated with a bachelor's degree or its equivalent from a college not recognized by the University Senate and have completed one half of the studies of the Master of Divinity or equivalent first professional degree in a school of theology listed by the University Senate.

4. Each candidate shall provide a statement describing their understanding of diakonia, the servant ministry of the church, and the servant ministry of the local deacon.

5. Each candidate shall have been examined and recommended by the district committee on ordained ministry.

6. Each candidate shall have:

a) Released the required psychological reports, criminal background and credit checks, and reports of sexual misconduct and/or child abuse. They shall submit, on a form provided by the conference Board of Ordained Ministry:

(1) a notarized statement detailing any convictions for felony or misdemeanor or written accusations of sexual misconduct or child abuse; or

(2) a notarized statement certifying that the candidate has not been convicted of a felony or misdemeanor, or accused in writing of sexual misconduct or child abuse.

b) Provided the district committee with a satisfactory certificate of good health on a prescribed form from a physician approved by that board. Disabilities are not to be construed as unfavorable health factors when a person with disability is capable of meeting the professional standards and is able to render effective service as a local deacon.

c) Been approved by the Board of Ordained Ministry.

¶ 325. Commissioning—Commissioning is the act of the church that publicly acknowledges God's call and the response, talents, gifts and training of the candidate. The church invokes the Holy Spirit as the candidate is commissioned to be a faithful servant leader among the people, to lead the church in service, to proclaim the Word of God and to equip others for ministry. Through commissioning, the church sends persons in leadership and service in the name of Jesus Christ and marks their entrance into a time of provisional membership as they prepare for ordination. Commissioned ministers are provisional clergy members of the annual conference and are accountable to the bishop and the clergy session for the conduct of their ministry. During the residency program the clergy session discerns their fitness for ordination and their effectiveness in ministry. After fulfilling all candidacy requirements and upon recommendation of the conference Board of Ordained Ministry, the clergy session shall vote on the provisional membership and commissioning of the candidates. The bishop and secretary of the conference shall provide credentials as a provisional member and a commissioned minister in the annual conference. The period of commissioned ministry is concluded when the provisional members are received as full members of the annual conference and ordained as either deacon or elder, or a decision is made not to proceed toward ordination and provisional membership is ended.

¶325. Continuance as a Local Deacon –

1. Local deacons shall serve under the provisions of ¶ 331 “Appointment of Deacons to Various Ministries”.

2. Persons licensed as local deacons shall continue in an approved program of theological education.

3. Upon completing each year’s education and other qualifications, a local deacon may be recommended for continuance by the district committee on ordained ministry. The clergy members in full connection of the annual conference may approve continuance of a local deacon after reference to and recommendation by its Board of Ordained Ministry.

4. The provisions of ¶ 320 “Exiting, Reinstatement, and Retirement of Local Pastors” shall apply equally to local deacons.

¶ 326. Service of Provisional Members—All persons who are provisional members shall be appointed by a bishop (¶ 425) and serve as a provisional member of the annual conference for a minimum of two years following the completion of education requirements for full connection. During the provisional period, arrangements shall be offered by the Board of Ordained Ministry for all provisional members to be involved in a residency curriculum that extends theological education by using covenant groups and mentoring to support the practice and work of their ministry as servant leaders, to contemplate the grounding of ordained ministry, and to understand covenant ministry in the life of the conference.

Provisional members may be appointed to attend school, to extension ministry, or in appointments beyond the local church. Wherever they are appointed, the service of provisional members shall be evaluated by the district superintendent and the Board of Ordained Ministry in terms of the provisional member’s ability to express and give leadership in servant ministry.

1. Provisional members planning to give their lives as deacons in full connection shall be in ministries of Word, Service, Compassion, and Justice in the local church or in an approved appointment beyond the local church. A provisional member preparing for ordination as a deacon shall be licensed for the practice of ministry during provisional membership to perform the duties of the ministry of the deacon as stated in ¶ 328 and be granted support as stated in ¶ 331.10:

2. Provisional members planning to give their lives as elders in full connection shall be in ministries of Word, Sacrament, Order, and Service in the local church or in an approved extension ministry. A provisional member preparing for ordination as an elder shall be licensed for pastoral ministry (¶ 315):

3. Provisional members who are serving in extension ministries, enrolled in graduate degree programs, or appointments beyond the local church shall be accountable to the district superintendent and the Board of Ordained Ministry for the conduct of ministry, and for demonstrating their effectiveness in the ministry of the order to which they seek to be ordained. In all cases, they will also demonstrate their effectiveness in servant leadership in the local church to the satisfaction of the Board of Ordained Ministry:

4. Provisional members seeking to change their ordination track shall:

a) Write to the Board of Ordained Ministry and inform the district superintendent and bishop of their intention:

b) Interview with the Board of Ordained Ministry to articulate and clarify their call:

e) Fulfill academic and service requirements:

Upon the recommendation of the Board of Ordained Ministry and by vote of the clergy session the person may be received into full connection with the annual conference and be ordained into the order to which they are transitioning:

¶ 327. Eligibility and Rights of Provisional Membership—Provisional members are on trial in preparation for membership in full connection in the annual conference as deacons or elders. They are on probation as to character, servant leadership, and effectiveness in ministry. The annual conference, through the clergy session, has jurisdiction over provisional members. Annually, the Board of Ordained Ministry shall review and evaluate their relationship and make recommendation to the clergy members in full connection regarding their continuance. No member shall be continued on provisional membership beyond the eighth regular session following their admission to provisional membership:

1. Provisional members who are preparing for deacon's or elder's orders may be ordained deacons or elders when they qualify for membership in full connection in the annual conference.

2. Provisional members shall have the right to vote in the annual conference on all matters except the following: a) constitutional amendments; b) election of delegates to the general and jurisdictional or central conferences c) all matters of ordination, character, and conference relations of clergy.

3. Provisional members may serve on any board, commission, or committee of the annual conference except the Board of Ordained Ministry (§ 635.1). They shall not be eligible for election as delegates to the General, central, or jurisdictional conferences. 4. Provisional members shall be amenable to the annual conference in the performance of their ministry and are subject to the provisions of the Book of Discipline in the performance of their duties. They shall be supervised by the district superintendent under whom they are appointed. They shall also be assigned a deacon or elder as mentor by the Board of Ordained Ministry. Provisional members preparing to become elders shall be eligible for appointment by meeting disciplinary provisions (§ 315).

5. Provisional members in appointments beyond the local church shall relate themselves to the district superintendent in the area where their work is done. The district superintendent shall give them supervision and report annually to their Board of Ordained Ministry.

6. ~~Discontinuance from Provisional Membership~~—Provisional members may request discontinuance of this relationship or may be discontinued by the clergy session upon recommendation of the Board of Ordained Ministry. ~~When provisional members in good standing withdraw to unite with another denomination or to terminate their membership in The United Methodist Church, their action shall be considered a request for discontinuance of their relationship and their credentials shall be surrendered to a district superintendent. In the case of discontinuation without consent, prior to any final recommendation, a provisional member will be advised of the right to a fair process hearing before the committee on conference relations of the Board of Ordained Ministry. A report of the action will be made to the full board for final action. The provisions of fair process (§ 362.2) shall be observed and there shall be a review by the administrative review committee under § 636 prior to hearing by the annual conference. When this relationship is discontinued, they shall no longer be permitted to exercise ministerial functions and~~

~~shall return their credentials to the district superintendent for deposit with the secretary of the conference, and their membership shall be transferred by the district superintendent to the local church they designate after consultation with the pastor. The Board of Ordained Ministry shall file with the resident bishop and the secretary of the conference a permanent record of the circumstances relating to discontinuance as a provisional member as required in § 635.3d.~~

~~After discontinuance, provisional members may be classified and approved as local pastors in accordance with the provision of § 316.~~

~~7. Provisional members may not be retired under the provisions of § 358. Provisional members who have reached the mandatory retirement age shall be automatically discontinued. Provisional elders may be classified as retired local pastors under the provisions of § 320.5.~~

§ 330. Requirements for Ordination as Deacon and Admission to Full Connection—Provisional members Local deacons who are applying for admission into full connection and who have been provisional members full-time local deacons for at least three two years, and who have completed following the completion of the educational requirements for ordination as a deacon specified in .3 below may be admitted into membership in full connection in an annual conference by two-thirds vote of the clergy members in full connection of the annual conference, upon recommendation by two-thirds vote of the Board of Ordained Ministry, after they have qualified as follows:

1. They shall have served under episcopal appointment in a ministry of service for at least ~~two~~ three full annual conference years. Upon recommendation of the Board of Ordained Ministry, the annual conference may equate less than fulltime or non-salaried service as meeting this qualification. Such equivalence is to be determined in light of the years of service involved, the quality of that service, the maturity of the applicant, and other relevant factors determined by the board. Supervision is to be: (a) by the district superintendent, and (b) by the Board of Ordained Ministry. The applicant's service must be evaluated by the Board of Ordained Ministry as effective according to written guidelines developed by the board and adopted by the clergy members in full connection. Laypersons directly involved in the applicant's servant ministry shall be involved by the board in the annual evaluation.

2. They shall have been previously elected as a provisional member.

2. They shall have completed a two-year residency program offered by the Board of Ordained Ministry that extends theological education by using covenant groups and mentoring to support the practice and work of their ministry as servant leaders, to contemplate the grounding of ordained ministry, and to understand covenant ministry in the life of the conference.

3. They shall have met the following educational requirements: (a) graduation with a Bachelor of Arts or equivalent degree from a college or university listed by the University Senate or its equivalent as determined by the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry; and (b) graduation with a Master of Divinity degree or a master's degree from a graduate theological school recognized by the University Senate, or a master's degree in an area of specialized ministry; or (c) ~~or~~ are candidates over the age of 35 with professional certification or license in their area of ministry including a minimum of eight semester hours of graduate academic credit. Educational requirements in every case shall include the basic graduate theological studies of the Christian faith, which must include courses in Old Testament; New Testament; theology; church history; mission of the church in the world; evangelism; worship/liturgy; and United Methodist doctrine, polity, and history, offered in a context that will provide formation as a United Methodist deacon in full connection within a cohesive program developed by the seminary and approved by the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry, documented by a record of completion from that school.

4. In some instances a candidate who is pursuing ordination to serve as deacon in full connection may fulfill the academic requirements through the following professional certification alternate route:

a) shall have reached thirty-five years of age at the time to become a certified candidate;

b) completed a bachelor's degree, received professional certification or license in the area of ministry in which the candidate will serve, have completed a minimum of eight semester hours of graduate credit or equivalent quarter hours in the area of specialization, and have been recommended by the district Committee on Ordained Ministry;

c) have completed the minimum of twenty-four semester hours of the basic graduate theological studies of the Christian faith including the areas of: Old Testament; New Testament; theology; church history; mission of the church in the world; evangelism; worship/liturgy; and United Methodist doctrine, polity, and history, in a context which will provide a cohesive program and formation as a United Methodist deacon in full connection within a cohesive program developed by the seminary and approved by the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry, documented by a record of completion from that school.

5. The Board of Ordained Ministry shall require an official transcript of credits from each school before recognizing any of the applicant's educational claims. In case of doubt, the board may submit a transcript to the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry.

6. Each candidate shall present a satisfactory certificate of good health by a physician on the prescribed form. Disabilities are not to be construed as unfavorable health factors when a person with disability is capable of meeting the professional standards and is able to render effective service as a provisional member.

...

8. The following questions are guidelines for the preparation of the examination:

...

9. ~~A candidate provisional member of the annual conference~~ who has completed the requirements for deacon's orders and admission into full membership shall be eligible for election to full membership and ordination as deacon by a bishop. Following election, the bishop and secretary of the conference shall provide a certificate of full membership in the annual conference, and following ordination, a certificate of ordination.

...

11. Each candidate shall have been recommended in writing to the conference Board of Ordained Ministry, based on a three-fourths majority vote of the district committee on ordained ministry.

11. Each candidate shall have a personal interview with the conference Board of Ordained Ministry to complete his or her candidacy.

12. Each candidate shall submit on a form provided by the Board of Ordained Ministry a notarized statement detailing any convictions for felony, or misdemeanor, or written accusations and its disposition of sexual misconduct or child abuse; or certifying that this candidate has not been convicted of a felony or misdemeanor or accused in writing of sexual misconduct or child abuse. The candidate also shall release required psychological reports, criminal background, credit checks, and reports of child abuse.

13. Each candidate shall file with the board a written, concise, autobiographical statement (in duplicate on a prescribed form) regarding age, health, family status, Christian experience, call to ministry, educational record, formative Christian experiences, and plans for service in the Church.

14. Each candidate shall have been recommended in writing to the clergy session based on at least a two-thirds majority vote of the conference Board of Ordained Ministry.

Section VIII. Appointments of ~~Full~~ Deacons and ~~Provisional~~ Local Deacons to Various Ministries

¶ 331. Appointment of Deacons and Provisional Deacons to Various Ministries—1. Full deacons and lo~~cal provisional~~ deacons may be appointed to serve in the following settings: a) Agencies and settings beyond the local church, including ecumenical agencies, that extend the witness and service of Christ's love and justice in the world and connect the church with the most needy, neglected, and marginalized; b) United Methodist Church-related agencies, schools, colleges, theological schools, and within the connectional structures of The United Methodist Church; c) A local congregation, charge, or cooperative parish, leading in the congregation's mission to the world and equipping all Christians to fulfill their own calls to Christian service.

2. Full deacons and ~~local provisional~~ deacons may be appointed to attend school.

3. Full deacons and ~~local provisional~~ deacons shall be appointed to settings that allow fulfillment of their call and where supervision is provided with goals, evaluation, and accountability acceptable to the bishop, the cabinet and the Board of Ordained Ministry.

4. Full Deacons and Local Provisional Deacons Appointed Beyond the Local Church.

a) Full deacons and ~~local provisional~~ deacons may be appointed to settings not connected to either The United Methodist Church or ecumenical agencies when the appointment is approved by the bishop and the Board of Ordained Ministry as a ministry beyond the local church that is a witness and service of Christ's love and justice in the world. Those seeking such an appointment shall submit a written statement to the bishop and the Board of Ordained Ministry, describing in detail the proposed setting for their ministry, sharing a sense of calling to that ministry and their gifts and evidence of God's grace for it, and expressing how the proposed ministry is an intentional fulfillment of their ordination vows. This statement shall also include a detailed description of the accountability structures related to the proposed ministry setting.

b) Full deacons and ~~local provisional~~ deacons are amenable to the annual conference of which they are members and insofar as possible should maintain close working relationship with and effective participation in the work of their annual conference, assuming whatever responsibilities they are qualified and requested to assume. When full deacons or ~~local provisional~~ deacons are appointed to a setting beyond the local church outside of the conference where they hold membership, the appointment shall be made by the bishop of the conference where membership is held in consultation with the bishop of the area in which the appointment is located.

c) Full deacons and ~~local provisional~~ deacons appointed to settings beyond the local church shall submit annually to the bishop, the district superintendent, and the Board of Ordained Ministry, a written report on the official form developed for the Church by the General Council on Finance and Administration for use by the annual conference. Full deacons and ~~local provisional~~ deacons appointed to settings outside the annual conference in which they hold membership shall also furnish a copy of their report to the bishop of the area in which the appointment is located.

d) The General Board of Higher Education and Ministry, Division of Ordained Ministry, in order to assist the Boards of Ordained Ministry and cabinets, will provide guidelines for validating the appropriateness of appointment settings beyond the local church and will be available for consultation with bishops, cabinets, and Boards of Ordained Ministry.

5. When full deacons and ~~local provisional~~ deacons serve in an agency or setting beyond the local church, the bishop, after consultation with the full deacon or ~~local provisional~~ deacon and the pastor in charge, shall appoint the full deacon or ~~provisional local~~ deacon to a local congregation where they will take missional responsibility for leading other Christians into ministries of service. In this ministry the full deacons and ~~provisional local~~ deacons shall be accountable to the pastor in charge, the charge conference, and other bodies that coordinate the ministry of the local church. In those instances where the appointment is in another episcopal area, the appointment to a local church shall be made in consultation with the bishop of that area.

6. The appointment of full deacons and ~~provisional local~~ deacons shall be made by the bishop.

a) It may be initiated by the bishop or the district superintendent, the individual full deacon or ~~provisional local~~ deacon, or the agency requesting the service of the full deacon or ~~provisional local~~ deacon.

b) It shall be clarified by a written statement of intentionality of servant leadership in order to establish a clear distinction between the work to which all Christians are called and the work for which full deacons and ~~provisional local~~ deacons are appropriately prepared and authorized.

c) If the bishop and cabinet consider an appointment not to be in the best interest of the Church, the bishop may choose not to make the appointment. In such event, the bishop shall consult with the full deacon or ~~provisional local~~ deacon and the Board of Ordained Ministry. The full deacon or ~~provisional local~~ deacon shall then seek another appointment, request a leave of absence or transitional leave, or relinquish his or her certificate of conference membership for deposit with the conference secretary, or be terminated by disciplinary procedures. The procedures for fair process in administrative hearings (§ 362.2) shall be followed in any involuntary termination procedure.

d) Full deacons and provisional local deacons at their own request or with their consent may be appointed to a non-salaried position. Such missional appointments will serve to express the Church's concern for social holiness, for ministry among the poor, and for advancing emerging needs of the future. In such cases, the bishop will carefully review plans for expressing this appointed ministry and will consult with the full deacon or provisional local deacon about the well-being and financial security of his or her family.

7. At the request of the full deacon or provisional local deacon and with the consent of the bishop and cabinet where conference membership is held, the full deacon or provisional local deacon may receive a less than full-time appointment under the following conditions:

a) The full deacon or provisional local deacon shall present a written request to the bishop, district superintendent, and the conference Board of Ordained Ministry, giving a rationale for the request at least ninety days prior to the annual conference at which the appointment is to be made.

b) Reappointment to less than full-time service shall be requested annually of the bishop by the full deacon or provisional local deacon.

c) The bishop may make an interim appointment to less than full-time service upon request of a full deacon or provisional local deacon, with the recommendation of the executive committee of the conference Board of Ordained Ministry.

8. Full deacons and provisional local deacons, with the approval of their bishop and the judicatory authorities of the other denomination may receive an appointment to another denomination while retaining their home conference membership. The appointment may be made in response to exceptional missional needs.

9. Charge Conference Membership of Full ~~Provisional~~ Local ~~Deacons~~.

a) Full deacons and provisional local deacons who are appointed to a local congregation, charge, or cooperative parish, shall be members of that charge conference.

b) Full deacons and provisional local deacons who are appointed to settings beyond the local church shall, after consultation and with the written consent of the pastor in charge, and the district superintendent designate a charge conference within the bounds of the annual conference in which they shall hold membership and to which they shall submit an annual report. Full deacons and provisional local deacons serving in appointments outside the conference in which they hold membership shall, after consultation and with the written consent of the pastor in charge, also establish an affiliate relationship with a charge conference in the annual conference in which the appointment is located.

10. Support for Full ~~Deacons~~ and provisional Local ~~Deacons~~ ~~Appointed by a~~ ~~Bishop~~.

a) Full deacons and provisional local deacons shall receive their support under the policies and agreements of the setting to which they are appointed.

b) Full deacons who are appointed to a local congregation, charge, or cooperative parish, shall receive a salary from the local church, charge, or cooperative parish (§ 625.2) not less than the minimum established by the equitable compensation policy of the annual conference for elders. Provisional Local deacons who are appointed to a local congregation, charge, or cooperative parish shall receive a salary from the local church, charge, or cooperative parish (§ 625.2, .4) not less than the minimum established for local pastors ~~provisional elders~~. When full deacons or provisional deacons are appointed to less than full-time ministry in a local congregation, charge or cooperative parish they shall receive a salary that is no less than the minimum salary for elders or ~~provisional elders~~, prorated in one-quarter time increments (see § 331.6d).

c) Full deacons and provisional local deacons shall participate in the denominational pension and benefit plans and programs to the same extent and under the same provisions as full elders and local pastors. They shall participate in the health benefit and supplemental programs of the annual conference subject to the provisions and standards of those programs as established by the annual conference when health benefit coverage is not provided from another source.

d) The above (§ 10 [a-c]) does not apply to a full deacon or provisional local deacon appointed by a bishop to a non-salaried position (§ 6 [d]).

e) Since full deacons and ~~provisional deacons~~ are not guaranteed a place of employment in the Church, special attention shall be given to termination procedures that allow time for seeking another service appointment. Notification of dismissal shall provide for a ninety-day period prior to final termination of the appointment except for causes as listed in § 2702. Full deacons or ~~provisional deacons~~ shall not be dismissed from a local church appointment without prior consultation between the full deacon or ~~provisional deacon~~ and the Staff-Parish Relations Committee, nor without the full knowledge of the overseeing district superintendent and the presiding bishop.

Section IX. The Ordained Elder in Full Connection

§ 332. Ministry of an Elder—Elders are ordained ministers who, by God's grace, have completed their formal preparation and ~~have been commissioned and served as a provisional member~~, have been found by the Church to be of sound learning, of Christian character, possessing the necessary gifts and evidence of God's grace, and whose call by God to ordination has been confirmed by the Church . . .

¶ 333. Elders in Full Connection—1. . . .

2. A local pastor ~~provisional member~~ of the annual conference who has completed the requirements for Elder's Orders and admission into full membership shall be eligible for election to full membership and ordination as elder by a bishop. Following election, the bishop and secretary of the conference shall provide a certificate of full membership in the annual conference, and following ordination, a certificate of ordination.

¶ 335. Requirements for Admission to Full Connection and Ordination as Elder—~~Provisional members~~ Local pastors who are candidates for full connection and ordination as elders and have been serving under full-time appointment for at least three years ~~provisional members for at least two years~~ may be admitted into membership in full connection in an annual conference and approved for elder's ordination by two-thirds vote of the clergy members in full connection of the annual conference, upon recommendation by two-thirds vote of the Board of Ordained Ministry, after they have qualified as follows. They shall have:

(1) served full-time under episcopal appointment for at least three ~~two~~ full annual conference years ~~following the completion of~~ and shall have completed the educational requirements specified in (3)(b) below. Years of service in any ministry setting requiring the regular proclamation of the word, the administration of the sacraments, and the short or long-term ordering of the life of the community of faith may count toward the fulfillment of this requirement. Such ministry settings may include campus ministry, college and university chaplaincy, hospital and prison chaplaincy, military chaplaincy, overseas/mission work and other ministries so recognized by the Division of Ordained Ministry of the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry. Upon recommendation of the Board of Ordained Ministry, an annual conference may equate less than full-time to the requirement of full-time service. Such equivalence is to be determined in light of the years of service involved, the quality of that service, the maturity of the applicant, and other relevant factors. Supervision is to be (a) personally assumed or delegated by the district superintendent, and (b) assumed by a mentor assigned by the district committee on Board of Ordained Ministry. Their service shall be evaluated by the Board of Ordained Ministry as effective according to written guidelines developed by the board and adopted by the clergy members in full connection. In rare cases, the Board of Ordained Ministry may, by a two-thirds vote, approve years of service in an autonomous Methodist church as meeting this requirement if adequate supervision has been provided;

(2) completed a two year residency program offered by the Board of Ordained Ministry that extends theological education by using covenant groups and mentoring to support the practice and work of their ministry as servant leaders, to contemplate the grounding of ordained ministry, and to understand covenant ministry in the life of the conference. ~~been previously elected as provisional members;~~

(3) met the following educational requirements: (a) graduation with a Bachelor of Arts or equivalent degree from a college or university listed by the University Senate, or demonstrated competency equivalence through a process designed in consultation with the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry; and (b) graduation with a Master of Divinity degree from a school of theology listed by the University Senate, or its equivalent as determined by the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry; or (c) 1) reached thirty-five years of age; 2) completed the five-year Course of Study for ordained ministry, of which no more than one-half may be taken by correspondence or Internet; up to one-half of Course of Study may be online courses; and 3) completed an Advanced Course of Study consisting of thirty two semester hours of graduate theological study offered by a seminary recognized by the University Senate or its equivalent as determined by the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry that shall include United Methodist history, doctrine, and polity. ⇨ Educational requirements in every case shall include basic graduate theological studies including courses in Old Testament; New Testament; theology; church history; mission of the church in the world; evangelism; worship/liturgy; and United Methodist doctrine, polity, and history, a minimum of two semester or three quarter hours in each of the fields of United Methodist history, doctrine, and polity; provided that a candidate may meet the requirements for United Methodist history, doctrine, and polity by undertaking an independent study program provided and administered by the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry (see ¶ 1421.3d);

(4) provided an official transcript of credits from each school prior to any of the applicant's educational claims being recognized. In case of doubt, the board may submit a transcript to the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry;

(5) presented a satisfactory certificate of good health by a physician on the prescribed form. Disabilities are not to be construed as unfavorable health factors when a person with disability is capable of meeting the professional standards and is able to render effective service as a provisional member:

(6) satisfied the board regarding physical, mental, and emotional health;

...

(11) Each candidate shall have been recommended in writing to the conference Board of Ordained Ministry, based on a three-fourths majority vote of the district committee on ordained ministry.

(12) Each candidate shall have a personal interview with the conference Board of Ordained Ministry to complete his or her candidacy.

(13) Each candidate shall submit on a form provided by the Board of Ordained Ministry a notarized statement detailing any convictions for felony, or misdemeanor, or written accusations and its disposition of sexual misconduct or child abuse; or certifying that this candidate has not been convicted of a felony or misdemeanor or accused in writing of sexual misconduct or child abuse. The candidate also shall release required psychological reports, criminal background, credit checks and reports of child abuse.

(14) Each candidate shall file with the board a written, concise, autobiographical statement (in duplicate on a prescribed form) regarding age, health, family status, Christian experience, call to ministry, educational record, formative Christian experiences, and plans for service in the Church.

(15) Each candidate shall have been recommended in writing to the clergy session based on at least a two-thirds majority vote of the district committee on ordained ministry and the conference Board of Ordained Ministry.

(16) After fulfilling all candidacy requirements and upon recommendation of the conference Board of Ordained Ministry, the clergy session shall vote on the full membership and ordaining of the candidates. The bishop and secretary of the conference shall provide credentials as a full elder member and an ordained minister in the annual conference.

¶ 337. General Provisions—1. All elders in full connection who are in good standing in an annual conference shall be continued under appointment by the bishop unless they are granted a sabbatical leave, a medical leave (¶ 357), family leave, a leave of absence, retirement, or have failed to meet the requirements for continued eligibility (¶ 334.2, .3), provided that if the elder is appointed to serve in an affiliated relationship in a missionary conference (¶ 586.4b) and that appointment is terminated by the bishop who presides in the missionary conference, then the responsibility for meeting this obligation rests with the bishop of the conference of which the elder is a member.

3. Elders and deacons, associate members, ~~provisional members~~, and persons licensed for pastoral ministry may be appointed to ministry settings that extend the ministry of The United Methodist Church and the witness and service of Christ's love and justice in the world.

a) Full connection and ~~provisional member~~ elders, associate members, and persons licensed for pastoral ministry may be appointed to Extension Ministries serving in ministries of pastoral care in specialized settings. See ¶¶ 326, 343-344 for specific information about Extension Ministries.

b) ~~Full deacons and local deacons~~ ~~Deacons in provisional membership and full connection~~ may be appointed to appointments beyond the local church that extend the witness and service of Christ's love and justice in a ministry to both the community and the church . . .

¶ 338. The Itinerant System—The itinerant system is the accepted method of The United Methodist Church by which ordained elders, ~~provisional elders~~, and associate members are appointed by the bishop to fields of labor. All ordained elders, ~~provisional elders~~, and associate members shall accept and abide by these appointments. . . .

1. Full-time service shall be the norm for ordained elders, ~~provisional elders~~, and associate members in the annual conference. . . .

2. At the initiative of the bishop and cabinet or at his or her request, an elder, ~~provisional elder~~, or associate member may receive a less than full-time appointment under the conditions stipulated in this paragraph. . . .

a) The ordained elder, ~~provisional elder~~, or associate member seeking less than full-time service should present a written request to the bishop and the chairperson of the Board of Ordained Ministry at least 90 days prior to the annual conference session at which the appointment is made

b) The bishop may appoint an ordained elder, ~~provisional member elder~~, or an associate member to less than full-time service. . . .

d) Reappointment to less than full-time service shall be requested by the ordained elder, ~~provisional elder~~, or associate member and approved annually by the bishop and cabinet and shall not be granted for more than a total of eight years, except by a three-fourths vote of the clergy members in full connection of the annual conference.

e) Ordained elders, ~~provisional elders~~, and associate members who receive appointment at less than full-time service remain within the itineracy and, as such, remain available, upon consultation with the bishop and cabinet, for appointment to fulltime service. . . .

f) The bishop may make ad interim appointments at less than full-time service upon request of the ordained elder, ~~provisional elder~~, or associate member following consultation as specified in ¶¶ 424-428 and upon recommendation of the cabinet and executive committee of the Board of Ordained Ministry, the same to be acted upon by the next regular session of the annual conference.

4. Associate members, ~~provisional members~~, or full members may be appointed to attend any school, college, or theological seminary listed by the University Senate or participate in a program of clinical pastoral education in a setting accredited by the Association for Clinical Pastoral Education or another accrediting agency approved by GBHEM.

¶339. Definition of a Pastor—A pastor is an ordained elder, ~~provisional deacon~~, or licensed person approved by vote of the clergy members in full connection and may be appointed by the bishop to be in charge of a station, circuit, cooperative parish, extension ministry, ecumenical shared ministry, or to a church of another denomination, or on the staff of one such appointment.

¶ 346. Provisions for Clergy from Outside the Annual Conference—Ordained clergy ~~or provisional members~~ from other annual conferences and ordained clergy or provisional members from other Christian denominations may receive an appointment in the annual conference in the following manner:

1. Ordained Clergy ~~or Provisional Members from Other Annual Conferences and Ordained Clergy or Provisional Members from Other Methodist Denominations~~—With approval and consent of the bishops or other judicatory authorities involved, ordained clergy ~~or provisional members~~ of other annual conferences or other Methodist churches may receive appointments in the annual or missionary conference while retaining their home conference membership or denominational affiliation.

¶ 347. Transfers—1. From Other Annual Conferences—Ordained clergy ~~or provisional members~~ from other annual conferences of The United Methodist Church may be received by transfer into ~~provisional~~ or full membership with the consent of the bishops involved . . .

2. From Other Methodist Denominations—a) Ordained elders or ordained clergy from other Methodist churches may be received by transfer into ~~provisional~~ or full conference membership or as local pastors, with the consent of the bishops or other authorities involved, without going through the process required for ministers from other denominations . . .

3. From Other Denominations—a) On recommendation of the Board of Ordained Ministry, the clergy members in full connection may recognize the orders of ordained clergy from other denominations and receive them as ~~provisional members~~ or local pastors . . .

b) Ordained elders or ordained clergy from other Christian denominations shall serve as local pastors ~~provisional members~~ for at least two years and complete all the requirements of ¶ 335, including courses in United Methodist history, doctrine, and polity, before being admitted into full conference membership.

c) Following the local pastor's ~~provisional member's~~ election to full conference membership as a deacon or elder as provided in ¶ 326, the bishop and secretary of the conference shall provide a certificate of full membership in the annual conference.

Section XIII. Mentoring and Mentors

¶ 349. Mentors—1. . . .

b) Clergy mentors are clergy in full connection, associate members, or full-time local pastors who have completed the Course of Study trained to provide ongoing oversight and counsel with local pastors ~~and with provisional members pursuing ordained ministry~~. Local pastors will be assigned a clergy mentor by the district committee on ordained ministry in consultation with the district superintendent. ~~Provisional members will be assigned a clergy mentor in full connection by the conference Board of Ordained Ministry in consultation with the district superintendent.~~ A candidacy mentor may continue with the same person if trained to serve as a clergy mentor.

2. Mentoring occurs within a relationship where the mentor takes responsibility for creating a safe place for reflection and growth. An effective mentor has a mature faith, models effective ministry, and possesses the necessary skill to help individuals discern their call in ministry. Mentoring is a part of the preparation and growth for inquirers and candidates for ordained ministry and local pastors ~~and provisional members~~ of an annual conference . . .

3. The conference Board of Ordained Ministry may assign one mentor to work either with one individual or with a group of local pastors ~~and/or provisional members~~. Persons transferring from other denominations will also be assigned a clergy mentor (¶ 347.3.b).

4. Clergy mentoring begins when a person receives an appointment as a local pastor ~~or as a commissioned minister entering provisional service~~.

¶ 353. Provision for Change in Conference Relationship—When a change in conference relationship is deemed necessary or desirable by a ~~provisional~~ or an associate member, clergy in full connection, or district superintendent ~~or bishop~~, whether for a short or long term, the person(s) requesting the change shall make written request to their Board of Ordained Ministry stating the reasons for the requested change of relationship. In addition, the Board of Ordained Ministry may request personal interviews with the ~~provisional~~ or associate members and members in full connection named in the requested change, except where personal appearance results in undue hardship . . .

¶ 354. Voluntary Leave of Absence— 1. ~~Provisional~~ ~~at~~ Associate members; or members in full connection of the annual conference who for sufficient reason choose to temporarily take leave from their ministerial appointment may request in writing with a copy to the bishop and their district superintendent a voluntary leave through the Board of Ordained Ministry. . .

2. . . .

c) Transitional Leave—A leave granted for up to twelve months with approval of the bishop and the Board of Ordained Ministry Executive Committee to ~~provisional~~ ~~and~~ associate members and full clergy members in good standing who are temporarily between appointments.

A transitional leave of absence may be granted for the following reasons:

(1) A ~~provisional~~ or full member deacon needs to seek and secure an appointable primary position—compensated or non-salaried.

(2) A ~~provisional member~~, An associate member, or full member elder needs to transition from an extension ministry to another appointment.

3. Written request for a voluntary leave of absence should be made at least ninety days prior to the annual conference session giving specific reasons for the request. Representatives of the annual conference Board of Ordained Ministry may interview the clergy member to determine sufficient cause. This relationship shall be approved annually upon written request of the clergy member and personal or family leave shall not be granted for more than five years in succession, except by a two-thirds vote of the clergy members in full connection. ~~The leave shall be counted as a part of the eight-year limit for provisional members (¶ 327).~~

¶ 355. Involuntary Leave of Absence—

1. The bishop and the district superintendents may request an involuntary leave of absence without the consent of the ~~provisional~~, associate or full member . . .

¶ 356. Maternity or Paternity Leave—Maternity or paternity leave, not to exceed one fourth of a year, will be available and shall be granted by the bishop and the cabinet, and the executive committee of the Board of Ordained Ministry to any local pastor, ~~provisional member~~, associate member, or clergy member in full connection who so requests it at the birth or arrival of a child into the home for purposes of adoption . . .

¶ 362. 1. Conference Relations Committee—Each annual conference Board of Ordained Ministry shall establish a conference relations committee of at least three persons to hear requests for ~~discontinuance of provisional members~~; involuntary leave of absence, administrative location, involuntary retirement, or other such matters as may be referred to them by the Board of Ordained Ministry (¶ 635) . . .

2. Fair Process Hearings—As a part of the holy covenant that exists within the membership and organization of The United Methodist Church, the following procedures are presented for the protection of the rights of individuals and for the protection of the Church in administrative hearings. The process set forth in this paragraph shall be followed whenever there is a request for ~~discontinuance of provisional membership (upon appeal by the provisional member)~~; involuntary leave of absence, administrative location, or involuntary retirement . . .

¶ 363. Complaint Procedures—1. Ordination and membership in an annual conference in The United Methodist Church is a sacred trust. The qualifications and duties of local pastors, associate members, ~~provisional members~~, and full members are set forth in The Book of Discipline of The United Methodist Church, and we believe they flow from the gospel as taught by Jesus the Christ and proclaimed by his apostles.

¶ 365. Readmission to Provisional Membership—~~Persons who have been discontinued as provisional members under the provisions of ¶ 327.6 from an annual conference of The United Methodist Church or one of its legal predecessors may be readmitted by the annual conference in which they held previously such membership and from which they requested discontinuance or were discontinued, or its legal successor, or the annual conference of which the major portion of their former conference is a part, upon their request and recommendation by the district committee on ordained ministry, the Board of Ordained Ministry, and the cabinet after review of their qualifications, as required in ¶ 324, and the circumstances relating to their discontinuance. When reinstated by vote of the clergy members in full connection, their provisional membership in the conference shall be restored, they shall serve a minimum of two years of provisional membership according to ¶ 326 prior to ordination, and they shall be authorized by licensing and/or commissioning to perform those ministerial functions for which they are qualified.~~

¶ 368. Readmission After Termination by Action of the Annual Conference—Persons who have been terminated by an annual conference of The United Methodist Church or one of its legal predecessors may seek full membership in the annual conference in which they previously held membership and from which they were terminated, or its legal successor, or the annual conference of which the major portion of their former conference is a part, upon recommendation of the cabinet and completion of all requirements for full membership, ~~including all requirements for election to candidacy and provisional membership~~. The provisions of this paragraph shall apply to all persons terminated or involuntarily located prior to General Conference of 1976.

¶ 416. Working with Ordained, Licensed, Consecrated, and Commissioned Personnel—

...

6. To appoint associate members, ~~provisional members~~, or full members to attend any school, college, or theological seminary listed by the University Senate, or to participate in a program of clinical pastoral education in a setting accredited by the Association for Clinical Pastoral Education or another accrediting agency approved by GBHEM. Such appointments are not to be considered as extension ministry appointments.

¶ 586. Organization—

...

4. a) Membership—

...

g) In a missionary conference that has not established the right of full ministerial membership (§4.a), if the missionary conference is part of an episcopal area consisting of two or more annual and missionary conferences, then for purposes of candidacy for ordination (¶¶ 310-314), ~~provisional membership (¶¶ 324-327)~~, and election to full conference membership (¶¶ 328-336), the missionary conference may function as a district of an annual conference in the same episcopal area, with and only with the approval of the presiding bishop, the Board of Ordained Ministry of the annual conference, and the committee on ordained ministry of the missionary conference....

...

¶ 591. Establishment and Administration of a Mission—

...

6. The annual meeting of the mission shall have the power to certify candidates for the ordained ministry, to pass on the character of clergy who are not members of an annual conference, to receive mission pastors and local elders in mission., and to recommend to an annual conference proper persons for ~~provisional membership and~~ ordination. The examination of mission pastors and candidates for the local elder in mission shall be held by the mission and certified to an annual conference. The mission shall have the power to recommend to the correspondent annual conference proper persons for ~~provisional or~~ full membership and ordination as deacons or elders.

¶ 602. Composition and Character—1. The clergy membership of an annual conference (¶ 370) shall consist of deacons and elders in full connection (¶ 333), ~~provisional members (¶ 327)~~, associate members, affiliate members (¶¶ 344.4, 586.4), and local pastors under full-time and part-time appointment to a pastoral charge (¶ 317).²⁷ (See also ¶ 32.)

...

b) ~~Provisional clergy members shall have the right to vote in the annual conference on all matters except constitutional amendments, election of clergy delegates to the general and jurisdictional or central conferences and matters of ordination, character, and conference relations of clergy.~~

...

8. It is the duty of every member ~~and all provisional members~~ and local pastors of the annual conference to attend its sessions and furnish such reports in such form as the Discipline may require . . .

¶ 604. Powers and Duties—

...

5. The status of a clergy member ~~and of a provisional member~~ and the manner and conditions of a transfer of a clergy member from one annual conference to another are governed by the section on the ordained ministry (Chapter Two).

...

7. Whenever clergy members, ~~whether provisional members or~~ in full connection are transferred to another annual conference, either in connection with a transfer of the pastoral charge to which they are appointed or by reason of the dissolution or merger of the annual conference, they shall have the same rights and obligations as the other members of the conference to which they are transferred.

...

¶ 635. Conference Board of Ordained Ministry—

1. . . .

d) Each annual conference Board of Ordained Ministry shall establish a Conference Relations Committee of at least three persons to hear requests for ~~discontinuance of provisional members~~, involuntary leave of absence, administrative location, involuntary retirement, or other such matters as may be referred to them by the board of ordained ministry. District superintendents shall not serve on the Conference Relations Committee.

...

2. The duties of the annual conference Board of Ordained Ministry shall be:

...

c) To seek from a school of theology information about the personal and professional qualities of an applicant for full membership ~~provisional membership~~ or of a ~~provisional member~~; provided, however, that the applicant or member consent to the provision of such information.

...

h) To examine all applicants as to their fitness for the ordained ministry and make full inquiry as to the fitness of the candidate for: (1) annual election as local pastor; (2) election to associate membership; and (3) ~~election to provisional membership~~; and (4) election to full conference membership.

i) To provide all candidates for ordained ministry a written statement on the disciplinary and annual conference requirements for the local pastor, ~~provisional~~, and full membership.

l) To interview applicants and make recommendation concerning: (1) changes from the effective relation to a leave of absence or retirement; (2) return to the effective relation from other relations; (3) honorable location; (4) readmission of located persons ~~and persons discontinued from provisional membership~~; (5) sabbatical leave; (6) incapacity leave; (7) appointment as a student; (8) termination; and (9) changes to or from less than full-time ministry.

...

...

b) Pertinent information and recommendations concerning each candidate shall be certified to the annual conference in duplicate; one copy of this record shall be kept by the registrar and one copy shall be mailed after each conference session to the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry. The registrar shall forward an acknowledgment of transfer to the pastor of the local church where each newly appointed local pastor or local deacon ~~elected provisional and associate member~~ held membership.

d) The registrar shall file in the bishop's office for permanent record a copy of circumstances involving the ~~discontinuance of provisional membership~~ or termination of the local pastor status.

¶ 636. Conference Administrative Review Committee—There will be an administrative review committee composed of three clergy in full connection and two alternates who are not members of the cabinet, the Board of Ordained Ministry or immediate family members of the above. The committee shall be nominated by the bishop and elected quadrennially by the clergy session of members in full connection with the annual conference.

Its only purpose shall be to ensure that the disciplinary procedures for ~~discontinuance of provisional membership~~ (¶ 327.6); involuntary leave of absence (¶ 355), involuntary retirement (¶ 358.3), or administrative location (¶ 360) are properly followed . . .

¶ 666. There shall be a district committee on ordained ministry.

7. The committee shall maintain a service record and file on every local pastor and candidate for the ordained ministry until the individual becomes an associate or full provisional member of the annual conference, at which time a copy of the files shall be forwarded to the registrar of the Board of Ordained Ministry . . .

8. The committee shall recommend to the Board of Ordained Ministry those persons who qualify for associate and full provisional membership, for license or continuance as local pastors, and for restoration of credentials . . .

¶ 1504. Authorizations—

7. To compile and maintain complete service records of clergy members in full connection, associate members, ~~and provisional members~~, and of local pastors whose service may be related to potential annuity claims of the annual conferences of The United Methodist Church situated within the boundaries of the United States and Puerto Rico . . .

¶ 1506. Powers, Duties, and Responsibilities of Annual Conferences—

3. . . .

c) Upon recommendation of the conference board of pensions and by a three-fourths vote of those present and voting in the annual conference, pension credit may be granted to a clergy member in full connection, ~~provisional member~~, or associate member of the conference on account of full-time service previously rendered as an approved local pastor or approved supply pastor to an institution, organization, or agency, which in the judgment of the annual conference rendered to it some form of service sufficient to warrant pension credit; provided, however, that such institution, organization, or agency shall accept and pay such apportionment as the conference may require.

12. Clergy members in full connection, ~~provisional members~~, and associate members in an annual conference who voluntarily withdraw from the ministry of The United Methodist Church to enter the ministry of another church or denomination, on the attainment of age sixty-two and on recommendation of the conference board of pensions and a three-fourths vote of those present and voting in any annual conference in which approved service was rendered prior to January 1, 1982, or the legal successor, may be recognized and granted approved pension service rendered in that conference.

Insert a new ¶ 371 under General Provisions:

¶ 371.—Transitional Provisions—All provisional members, and all persons having been recommended for provisional membership by their district committee on ordained ministry prior to January 1, 2018, will be allowed to proceed under the provisions of the 2012 Book of Discipline, both in the procedures by which they seek full member status, and in the rules under which they serve within the annual conference as provisional members. The provisions of this paragraph will expire on January 1, 2025.

Rationale:

This legislation will 1) simplify the path to Full Elder status; 2) retain qualification requirements while eliminating Provisional Membership; 3) stop granting semi-permanent (provisional) clergy status before seeing new pastors actually lead; 4) increase collegiality by having all pastors begin as local pastors; 5) increase access to deacon ministry by creating “Local Deacon” status.

Global Church Structure

Amend ¶ 33 as follows:

¶ 33. Article II.—The annual conference is the basic body in the Church and as such shall have reserved to it the right to vote on all constitutional amendments, on the election of clergy and lay delegates to the ~~General and the jurisdictional or central conferences~~ Global, connectional, and regional conferences, on all matters relating to the character and conference relations of its clergy members,

AND

Amend ¶ 34 as follows:

¶ 34. Article III.—The annual conference shall elect clergy and lay delegates to the ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference and to its ~~jurisdictional or central conference~~ connectional conference and regional conference in the manner provided in this section, Articles IV and V. The persons first elected up to the number determined by the ratio for representation in the ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference and connectional conference shall be representatives in ~~that body those bodies~~. Additional delegates shall be elected to complete the number determined by the ratio for representation in the ~~jurisdictional or central conference~~ regional conference, who, together with those first elected as above, shall be delegates in the ~~jurisdictional or central conference~~ regional conference. The additional delegates to the ~~jurisdictional or central conference~~ regional conference shall in the order of their election be the reserve delegates to the ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference and connectional conference. The annual conference shall also elect reserve clergy and lay delegates to the ~~jurisdictional or central conference~~ regional conferences as it may deem desirable. These reserve clergy and lay delegates to the ~~jurisdictional or central conferences~~ regional conferences may act as reserve delegates to the ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference and connectional conference when it is evident that not enough reserve delegates are in attendance at the ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference or connectional conference.

AND

Amend ¶ 35 as follows:

¶ 35. Article V—The clergy delegates to the ~~General Conference~~ Global Connectional Conference and to the ~~jurisdictional or central conference~~ connectional conference and regional conference shall be elected from . . .

AND

Amend ¶ 36 as follows:

¶ 36. Article V.—The lay delegates to ~~General and jurisdictional or central conferences~~ Global Connectional, connectional, and regional conferences shall be elected by . . . and are members thereof within the annual conference electing them at the time of holding ~~General and jurisdictional or central conferences~~ the Global Connectional, connectional, and regional conferences.

Budget Implications: estimated between US$300,000 and US$1,000,000.

There will probably be some additional costs related to connectional conferences, committees, etc., but these costs may be offset by a possible reduction in costs related to the meeting of the Global Connection. If the business of the North America connection is removed from the agenda of the Global Connectional Conference, the duration of that meeting will be less than the current General Conference, perhaps by three or four days, resulting in a reduction in costs for that meeting.

The most significant increase in costs will probably involve the meetings of the connectional conferences. This proposal would require each connectional conference to meet quadrennially, prior to the Global Connectional Conference. Depending upon when and where the connectional conferences meet, the incremental cost of these meetings is estimated to be between US$300,000 and US$1,000,000. GCFA will be asked to develop more accurate cost projections.

Any incremental cost increases will also need to be examined in the context of the overall budget for the 2016 General Conference budget of over US$10 million.

*Additional Budget Implications will be provided by the NEJ Structure Task Force.

Rationale:

These amendments clean up language as pertains to the various proposed, global, connectional and regional conferences and the former General, central and jurisdictional conferences.

Annual Conference Structure

Amend ¶ 33 as indicated.

¶ 33. Article II.—The annual conference is the basic body in the Church and as such shall have reserved to it the right to vote on all constitutional amendments, on the election of clergy and lay delegates to the General and the jurisdictional or central conferences, on all matters relating to the character and conference relations of its clergy members, and on the ordination of clergy and such other rights as have not been delegated to the General Conference under the Constitution, with the exception that the lay members may not vote on matters of ordination, character, and conference relations of clergy except that the lay members of the conference board of ordained ministry and the committee on investigation may vote on matters of ordination, character, and conference relations of clergy, with the further exception that lay members of the district committee on ordained ministry be full participating members of the district committee on ordained ministry with vote. It shall discharge such duties and exercise such powers as the General Conference under the Constitution may determine. Except when the General Conference shall prescribe specific features of its organization and structure, each annual conference, as the basic body of the Church, shall have authority to organize and structure itself as it shall determine.

Rationale:

Within the limits established by General Conference, annual conferences ought to be able to organize themselves as they choose, without undue limitations imposed on them through interpretation of parallelism with other parts of the connection.

Global Connectional Conference - Annual Conferences Provisions

Revise ¶ 33 as follows:

FINANCIAL IMPLICATIONS:

The actual incremental costs of this proposal will be dependent upon the global structure finally adopted by General Conference.

There will probably be some additional costs related to connectional conferences, committees, etc., but these costs may be offset by a possible reduction in costs related to the meeting of the Global Connection. If the business of the North America connection is removed from the agenda of the Global Connectional Conference, the duration of that meeting will be less than the current General Conference, perhaps by three or four days, resulting in a reduction in costs for that meeting.

The most significant increase in costs will probably involve the meetings of the connectional conferences. GCFA will be asked to develop more accurate cost projections.

Any incremental cost increases will also need to be examined in the context of the overall budget for the 2016 General Conference budget of over US$10 million.

Rationale:

These constitutional amendments are a component of the The Proposal to Restructure the Global UMC. The amendments in this petition clean up language as pertains to the various proposed, global, connectional and regional conferences and the former general, central and jurisdictional conferences.

Rationale:

The provision in ¶¶ 13. Article I.- 2. “Delegates shall be elected in a fair and open process by the annual conferences.” is unduly vague in some cultures without a democratic tradition. Eliminate Conflict of Interest

Amend Discipline ¶ 34 by adding the following sentence at the end the current final sentence:

Individuals employed full-time by any board, agency, committee, commission, council, or table of the general church shall be ineligible for election or service as voting delegates to General or jurisdictional conferences.

Rationale:

General agencies are charged with fulfilling the agendas set by General Conference, where they can testify to give information. But going beyond this to allow staffers full votes in writing their own job descriptions, and deciding who the jurisdictions elect to their boards, presents clear conflicts of interest.

Local Pastor - Voting Rights and Election to Delegation

Amend the following paragraphs in the Book of Discipline:

¶ 35. Article IV. The clergy delegates to the General

Conference and to the jurisdictional or central conference shall be elected from the clergy members in full connection, provisional clergy members, associate and affiliate clergy members, and full-time and part-time local pastors who have completed their educational requirements and have served at least two years prior to election appointed by the bishop, and shall be elected by the clergy members of the annual conference or provisional annual conference who are deacons and elders in full connection, associate members, and those provisional members who have completed all of their educational requirements and local pastors who have completed course of study or an M. Div. degree and have served a minimum of two consecutive years under appointment immediately preceding the election.

¶ 602.1.b Provisional clergy members shall have the right to vote in the annual conference on all matters ~~except~~ including constitutional amendments, election of clergy delegates to the general and jurisdictional or central conferences ~~and except~~ for matters of ordination, character, and conference relations of clergy.

¶ 602.1.c Associate and affiliate clergy members shall have the right to vote in the annual conference on all matters ~~except~~ including constitutional amendments, election of clergy delegates to the general and jurisdictional or central conferences, ~~and except~~ matters of ordination, character, and conference relations of clergy . . .

¶ 602.1.d Full-time and part-time local pastors under appointment to a pastoral charge shall have the right to vote in the annual conference on all matters ~~except~~ including constitutional amendments; election of delegates to the general and jurisdictional or central conferences ~~and except~~ in matters of ordination, character, and conference relations of clergy as long as the local pastors have met two criteria: they have, by either of two options as determined by the annual conference, completed the constitutionally specified level of education; and they have been appointed by the bishop and served for two consecutive years, immediately preceding the election, during which time no withdrawal of the appointed status has occurred. When local pastors are members of the Conference Board of Ordained Ministry, they have the right to vote at clergy session on matters of ordination, character, and conference relations of clergy (¶ 634.1)

Rationale:

Lay Delegate Residency

Amend ¶¶ 36 and 710.9.a) as follows:

¶ 36. Article V.—The lay delegates to the General and jurisdictional or central conferences shall be elected by the lay members of the annual conference or provisional annual conference without regard to age, provided such delegates shall have been professing members of The United Methodist Church for at least two years next preceding their election, and shall have been active participants in The United Methodist Church for at least four years next preceding their election, and are members thereof and resident within the annual conference electing them at the time of holding the General and jurisdictional or central conferences. Persons who are not resident within the electing annual conference by reason of diplomatic or military service or because of being full-time resident students at an educational institution outside the boundaries of the annual conference do not lose their eligibility for election by virtue of such nonresident status. Being resident within the annual conference means to be physically present for at least half of each calendar year or to maintain a permanent dwelling place as a principal place of residence in which one is physically present for at least half of each calendar year.

¶ 710.9. a) If any clergy member of a general or jurisdictional agency who was elected to represent a certain annual conference ceases to be a member of that annual conference, or if any lay member so elected changes permanent residence to a place outside the bounds of that annual conference, that member’s place shall automatically become vacant, where residence is as specified in ¶ 36.

Rationale:

¶ 236 encourages UMs to hold church membership in their area of residence. This change makes eligibility for service in the connection of lay members consistent with that theology and practice. This will also reverse Judicial Council decision 905 which held that lay residence is solely determined by local church membership.

~~Southeastern—Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia.~~

~~South Central—Arkansas, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas.~~

~~Western—Alaska, Arizona, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming and the territory of the United States in the Pacific region.~~⁸⁰

¶ 39. Article III.—Changes in the number, names, and boundaries of the jurisdictional conferences may be effected by the General Conference to take effect at whatever date the General Conference may determine. ~~upon the consent of a majority of the annual conferences of each of the jurisdictional conferences involved.~~⁸²

Rationale:

Given the changing nature of the US mission field, the UMC needs flexibility in setting the number of Jurisdictions and boundaries to enhance our missional effectiveness. Another petition will suggest the formation of a study committee to examine the best configuration of jurisdictions if the constitution is amended.

Jurisdictional Realignment and Name Change

Amend Section VII, ¶ 37, Article I of the Constitution:

~~The United Methodist Church shall have jurisdictional conferences made up as follows:~~

~~—Western—Alaska, Arizona, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming and the territory of the United States in the Pacific region.~~

Substitute the following:

The United Methodist Church in the United States shall have regional (jurisdictional) conferences made up as follows:

Northeast--Bermuda, Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, the Virgin Islands, West Virginia

Northwest—Alaska, Colorado, Illinois, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington, Wisconsin, Wyoming

Southeast--Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia

Southwest-- Arizona, Arkansas, California, Hawaii, Louisiana, New Mexico, Nevada, Oklahoma, Texas, and the territory of the United States in the Pacific region

The General Conference shall have the authority to alter the number and makeup of the regional conferences in the United States.

Rationale:

Change Jurisdictional Boundaries

Amend ¶ 37 as follows:

Section VII. Boundaries

¶ 37. Article I.-The United Methodist Church...

Northeastern . . .

Southeastern . . .

North Central-Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, ~~North Dakota~~, Ohio, ~~South Dakota~~, Wisconsin.

South Central-Arkansas, ~~Kansas~~, Louisiana, Missouri, ~~Nebraska~~, ~~New Mexico~~, Oklahoma, Texas.

Western-Alaska, Arizona, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Idaho, ~~Kansas~~, Montana, ~~Nebraska~~, Nevada, ~~New Mexico~~, ~~North Dakota~~, Oregon, ~~South Dakota~~, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming and the territory of the United States in the Pacific region . . .

Rationale:

The Western Jurisdiction now comprises only 5% of the United Methodist churches within the bounds of the United States. Adding the states/Annual Conferences specified would double the number of churches in the Western Jurisdiction bringing it into better balance with the other Jurisdictions.

Additionally, the culture and lifestyles of the . . .

British Columbia in Western Jurisdiction

Amend ¶ 37 as indicated following:

¶ 37. Article I.—The United Methodist Church shall have jurisdictional conferences made up as follows:

Western-Alaska, Arizona, British Columbia, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming and the territory of the United States in the Pacific region.

Rationale:

The status of the United Methodist church(es) of British Columbia ought to be made regular by including them within an annual conference, which can happen if the proximate jurisdiction is expanded to include the province.

Global Connectional Conference - Boundaries

Replace ¶ 37 (the North American Connectional Conference will have authority to maintain these boundaries as regional conferences, but they won't be listed in the Constitution) with the following:

¶ 37. Article I.—The United Methodist Church shall organize its work into connectional conferences. There shall be one connectional conference each for Africa, Asia, Europe, and North America.

Replace ¶ 38 as follows:

¶ 38. Article II.—The connectional conferences shall determine the number and boundaries of their regions, upon the consent of a majority of the annual conferences within the regional conferences. The initial number and boundaries of the regions shall coincide with the previously existing jurisdictional and central conferences.

Delete ¶ 39.

Renumber ¶ 40 and revise as follows:

~~¶ 40. Article IV. ¶ 39. Article III.~~—Changes in the number, names, and boundaries of the annual conferences and episcopal areas may be effected by the ~~jurisdictional conferences in the United States of America and by the central conferences outside the United States of America~~ regional conferences according to the provisions under the respective powers and pursuant to the respective structures of the ~~jurisdictional and the central conferences~~ regional conferences.

FINANCIAL IMPLICATIONS:

The actual incremental costs of this proposal will be dependent upon the global structure finally adopted by General Conference.

There will probably be some additional costs related to connectional conferences, committees, etc., but these costs may be offset by a possible reduction in costs related to the meeting of the Global Connection. If the business of the North America connection is removed from the agenda of the Global Connectional Conference, the duration of that meeting will be less than the current General Conference, perhaps by three or four days, resulting in a reduction in costs for that meeting.

The most significant increase in costs will probably involve the meetings of the connectional conferences. This proposal would require each connectional conference to meet quadrennially, prior to the Global Connectional Conference. Depending upon when and where the connectional conferences meet, the incremental cost of these meetings is estimated to be between US$300,000 and US$1,000,000. GCFA will be asked to develop more accurate cost projections.

Any incremental cost increases will also need to be examined in the context of the overall budget for the 2016 General Conference budget of over US$10 million.

Rationale:

These constitutional amendments are a component of the Proposal to Restructure the Global UMC. The amendments in this petition establish the number and location of the Connectional Conferences, assign the responsibility to establish Regional Conferences to Connectional Conferences, and assign the responsibility to establish Annual Conferences to Regional Conferences.

Organic Jurisdictional Solution – Flexible Boundaries

Amend ¶ 37: The United Methodist Church was originally organized with five ~~shall have~~ jurisdictional conferences made up as follows:

Northeastern—Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, the Virgin Islands, West Virginia.

Southeastern—Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia.

North Central—Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota, Wisconsin.

South Central—Arkansas, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas.

Western—Alaska, Arizona, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming and the territory of the United States in the Pacific region.

1. Annual conferences in the United States and its territories may join, by two-thirds majority vote of a duly called annual conference, any jurisdictional conference, provided that these votes shall be made and announced at least eighteen months prior to the next regularly scheduled jurisdictional conference and that this decision shall be binding upon the annual conference for a time no less than the duration of the following four years.

2. Each jurisdiction is hereby empowered to select a new name as desired that shall automatically replace the names used in this paragraph. Enabling legislation passed by General Conference to implement this amendment shall become effective and begin to be implemented when the Council of Bishops shall certify the amendment’s ratification.

3. Notwithstanding other constitutional provisions, each jurisdiction shall be responsible for funding its own programs and episcopal expenses.

4. Other historically Methodist denominations in the United States may join The United Methodist Church as an additional jurisdiction upon approval of the General Conference of The United Methodist Church.

Rationale:

This is one piece of a larger legislative agenda to achieve amicable unity in The UMC through the “Organic Jurisdictional Solution.” This item allows for flexible jurisdictional boundaries. Any U.S. conference could join any jurisdiction and jurisdictions may rename themselves as deemed appropriate. See jurisdictionalsolution.org.

Two-Jurisdiction Solution – Jurisdictional Boundaries

Amend: ¶37 “The United Methodist Church shall have two primary jurisdictional conferences ~~made up as follows:~~

~~Southeastern—Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia.~~

~~South Central—Arkansas, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas.~~

~~Western—Alaska, Arizona, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming and the territory of the United States in the Pacific region.~~

that each cover the entire area of The United States of America and its territories. Given divergent convictions among United Methodists in the United States of America, the two jurisdictions shall be formed based on two broad approaches to the application of Scripture to ministry.

1. The progressive jurisdiction shall be formed for those annual conferences whose majority supports a flexible interpretation of the doctrinal standards and a progressive understanding of marriage and human sexuality.

2. The traditional jurisdiction shall be formed for those annual conferences whose majority supports a relatively strict interpretation of the doctrinal standards and a traditional understanding of marriage and human sexuality.

3. Each jurisdiction is hereby empowered to select a new name (if desired) at its first conference, which shall automatically replace the names used in this paragraph. Enabling legislation passed by General Conference to implement this amendment shall become effective and begin to be implemented when the Council of Bishops shall certify the amendment's ratification.

4. The jurisdictional realignments needed to implement this paragraph shall not be subject to the consent of the annual conferences required in the provisions of ¶¶ 16.12 and 39. Notwithstanding other constitutional provisions, each jurisdiction shall be responsible for funding its own programs and episcopal expenses.

5. Other historically Methodist denominations in the United States may join The United Methodist Church as an additional jurisdiction upon majority vote of the General Conference of The United Methodist Church.

Rationale:

One way to achieve amicable unity in The UMC is through a two-jurisdiction solution. This piece of that solution creates a constitutional basis for two new jurisdictions that would replace the five existing ones. See jurisdictionalsolution.org.

Progressive Jurisdictional Solution – Creating a Sixth Jurisdiction

Amend ¶ 37: “The United Methodist Church shall have jurisdictional conferences made up as follows:

Northeastern—Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, the Virgin Islands, West Virginia.

Southeastern—Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia.

North Central—Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota, Wisconsin.

South Central—Arkansas, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas.

Western—Alaska, Arizona, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming and the territory of the United States in the Pacific region.

There shall also be a Progressive Jurisdiction composed of those annual conferences that choose to adopt standards and practices different from the standards and practices of the Book of Discipline. Annual conferences in the United States may enter the Progressive Jurisdiction by the process elsewhere determined by General Conference.

This Progressive Jurisdiction shall be empowered to make such changes and adaptations of the General Discipline as the jurisdiction chooses, subject to such powers that have been or shall be vested in the General Conference. The Progressive Jurisdiction may appoint a judicial court to determine legal questions arising on the rules, regulations, and such revised, adapted, or new sections of the jurisdictional conference Discipline enacted by the Progressive Jurisdiction. The Progressive Jurisdiction shall be entitled to the same ratio of representation at General Conferences as other jurisdictions, but delegates from the Progressive Jurisdiction shall not have vote on matters otherwise adaptable by their jurisdiction. Enabling legislation passed by General Conference to implement this amendment shall become effective and begin to be implemented when the Council of Bishops shall certify the amendment's ratification. The jurisdictional realignments needed to implement this paragraph shall not be subject to the consent of the annual conferences required in the provisions of ¶¶ 16.12 and 39. Notwithstanding other constitutional provisions, the Progressive Jurisdiction shall be responsible for funding its own programs and episcopal expenses.

Notwithstanding any other provision of the Constitution, in the event that all annual conferences of a geographic jurisdiction vote to join the Progressive Jurisdiction, that geographic jurisdiction is dissolved and its territory shall be divided between contiguous geographic jurisdictions in a plan to be drawn, approved, and implemented by the Council of Bishops.

Rationale:

Amicable Unity may be achieved in The UMC by creating a sixth Progressive Jurisdiction empowered to adapt our rules. This piece of the legislative program is the constitutional amendment that would create the new jurisdiction. See www.jurisdictionalsolution.org.

Organic Jurisdictional Solution – Minimum Jurisdictional Membership may be effected by the General Conference. ~~There shall be no jurisdiction with membership of less than 300,000 upon the consent of a majority of the annual conferences of each of the jurisdictional conferences involved.~~

Rationale:

AC Names

Add this sentence at the end of ¶ 40:

For non-missionary annual conferences in the United States of America, the name of an annual conference essentially within a single state shall include the name of that state, and the name of an annual conference encompassing multiple states shall be such as to indicate its location within both national and global contexts.

Rationale:

In the reconfiguration of annual conferences, any new names should clearly identify the location of the conference in a national and global context. Several past conference names (e.g. Neosho, Deep River, Trinity) may have had local significance but failed to adequately identify the conference to a broader audience.

~~structures of the jurisdiction and the central conferences, under the respective powers and pursuant to the respective structures of the central conferences.~~

Rationale:

Organic Jurisdictional Solution- Transfer of Local Churches

Amend ¶41: Article V. Transfer of Local Churches—1. A local church may be transferred from one annual conference to another ~~in which is it is geographically located~~ upon approval by a two-thirds vote of those present and voting at each of the following:

- a) ~~The charge conference.~~ A church conference requested by the church council or equivalent structure convening during the times and conditions established by General Conference for consideration of local church transfers,
- b) ~~The congregational meeting of the local church;~~
- e) ~~Each of the two annual conferences involved.~~ b) A duly called meeting of the cabinet of the receiving annual conference.

~~The vote shall be certified by the secretaries of the specified conferences or meeting to the bishops having supervision of the annual conference involved, and upon their announcement of the required majorities the transfer shall immediately be effective.~~

2. ~~The vote on approval of transfer shall be taken by each annual conference at its first session after that matter is submitted to it. The request for a church conference by a church council of a congregation seeking possible transfer to another conference shall not be refused by the district superintendent if made in keeping with the process for this as elsewhere set forth.~~

3. ~~Transfer under the provisions of this article shall not be governed or restricted by other provisions of this Constitution relating to changes of boundaries of conferences.~~

Global Church Structure - Legislative Committee on U.S. Matters

New Paragraph to follow ¶ 511:

Legislative Committee on US Matters - The General Conference exists as the overriding authority structuring the work of the church in The United States. So that authority is exercised with deep knowledge of the US context, all General Conference delegates representing annual conferences in the United States shall meet in a legislative session to consider proposed changes to select petitions and make a recommendation for General Conference action.

1. Purpose - The Legislative Committee on US Matters makes recommendations to the General Conference (in a manner similar to the Standing Committee on Central Conference Matters) on legislative matters that impact the work of the church specific to the US.

2. Membership- The membership of the committee shall be all General Conference delegates elected by annual conferences in The United States.

3. Organization- The committee shall convene and complete their work prior to the scheduled start of legislative committees at the General Conference session. A bishop assigned by the Council of Bishops shall convene the group solely for the purpose of electing its leadership.

4. Authority- The Commission on the General Conference, in accordance with their authority under Paragraph 511.4 f), shall assign to the committee all resolutions, petitions, and legislative materials that are both highly relevant to the work of the ministry in The United States and nominally relevant to the work of the ministry outside The United States. The committee shall report its recommendations to the General Conference and its legislative committees.

Rationale:

Central Conference can adapt the Discipline but there is no venue for the US to adapt the Discipline to the US context. This Legislative Committee provides an opportunity for US delegates to General Conference, who may be in the minority by 2020, to discuss proposed changes to the pension program...

Missions - Membership

Add New ¶ 592 to the Book of Discipline as follows:

¶ 592. Membership—1. A mission shall be made up of all regularly appointed missionaries, both lay and clergy, local elders in mission, mission pastors, and other lay members. The mission shall determine the number of lay members and the method of their selection. In so doing, it shall ensure that all aspects of the mission’s work are represented. (See Judicial Council Decision 341.)

2. In territories outside the boundaries of central or annual conferences, the bishop assigned to the mission and the General Board of Global Ministries recommend the educational requirements for local elders in mission, and mission pastors. Such recommendations and requirements shall be approved by the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry.

a) Local elders in mission are ordained members of the mission and are not members of an annual conference. Local elders in mission are limited in their itineration and sacramental authority to the bounds of the mission and as such are not eligible to transfer their credentials to another annual conference.

b) Mission pastors are members of the mission without being members of an annual conference. The mission shall determine the requirements for a mission pastor in order to most effectively utilize the indigenous leadership. Mission pastors are limited in their itineration to the bounds of the mission.

Rationale:

¶ 590-593 is a set of petitions on Missions, revised in the same structure as the set of petitions on Provisional Annual Conferences, ¶¶ 580-583. New ¶ 592 is a statement on Membership, and takes up content from the former ¶ 591.

Missions - Annual Meeting

Add New ¶ 593 to the Book of Discipline as follows:

¶ 593. Missions—Annual Meeting—1. A mission shall meet annually at the time and place designated by the bishop in charge, who shall preside. In the absence of the bishop, a superintendent of the mission shall preside. The presiding officer shall bring forward the regular business of the meeting and arrange the work.

2. The assigned bishop, in consultation with the entity or entities establishing a mission, may appoint one or more superintendents of the mission.

3. At the annual meeting, the bishop shall assign the missionaries, local elders in mission, and mission pastors to the several charges for the ensuing year; provided that transfer of missionaries related to the General Board of Global Ministries shall be completed only after consultation with the board.

4. A mission related to a central conference is authorized to elect and send one lay and one clergy to the central conference as its representative, with voice but not vote.

Rationale:

¶ 590-593 is a set of petitions on Missions, revised in the same structure as the set of petitions on Provisional Annual Conferences, ¶¶ 580-583. New ¶ 593 is a statement on the Annual Meeting, and takes up content from the former ¶ 591.

Organic Jurisdictional Solution – Conferences Transferring Jurisdictions

Add New Paragraph:

¶538. Annual Conferences Changing Jurisdictional Membership—The following process is enacted to implement the constitutional amendments to ¶¶ 37 and 39 in which annual conferences are empowered to join a new jurisdictional conference.

1. Following each regularly scheduled jurisdictional conference, the jurisdictional delegation of each annual conference may meet to bring recommendation to their annual conference session concerning the conference's future jurisdictional conference membership, as well as an alternate choice of jurisdiction should the jurisdiction of first choice dissolve under the provisions of this paragraph.

2. A change in jurisdictional affiliation may be enacted by two-thirds majority vote of a duly called annual conference session. Votes on jurisdictional affiliation must be made at least 18 months prior to the next regularly scheduled jurisdictional conference.

3. Annual conference secretaries shall report the result of votes on jurisdictional membership to the college of bishops of all jurisdictions and to the General Council on Finance and Administration within 30 days of the vote.

4. Annual conferences shall participate in the jurisdictional conference session of the jurisdiction they are entering but shall otherwise participate in the conference of previous membership and remain under the supervisory plan of that college of bishops until September 1 of the year of jurisdictional conference when bishops assume office.

5. Any jurisdictional conference that falls below 300,000 members, as certified by the General Council on Finance and Administration, is dissolved effective September 1 of the year of the next regularly scheduled jurisdictional conference. There shall be no jurisdictional conference session for those jurisdictions that are dissolving. Annual conferences that otherwise would have participated in a dissolving jurisdiction shall attend the jurisdictional conference of their alternate choice. The colleges of bishops of the receiving jurisdiction(s) shall meet as necessary to develop an equitable plan for the division of any jurisdictional properties, assets, and liabilities.

6. Bishops displaced from their jurisdiction by the provisions of this paragraph may be transferred to another jurisdiction for episcopal service under the provisions of amended ¶ 49 or may be assigned to other duties in a plan approved by the Council of Bishops. These duties may include, but are not limited to, staff responsibilities in a general Church agency, bishop in residence at a seminary or other church-related educational institution, or appointment within an annual conference as assistant to a bishop, district superintendent, or local church pastor. In all cases bishops shall retain their title, salary, and benefits, although their salaries and benefits from the Episcopal Fund may be adjusted under the provisions of ¶ 408.

7. Bishops not serving in a College of Bishops shall nevertheless choose a jurisdictional conference to which to be henceforth accountable under the provisions of ¶¶ 412, 413, and 523.

This is one piece of a larger legislative agenda to achieve amicable unity in The UMC through the "Organic Jurisdictional Solution." This item defines the processes involved with a conference changing to a new jurisdiction. See jurisdictionalsolution.org.

Two-Jurisdiction Solution – Forming New Jurisdictions

Add: ¶ 538 “Forming the New Jurisdictions” The following process is enacted to implement the constitutional amendments to ¶¶ 9, 27, and 37 creating two new jurisdictions in the United States. The secretary of the General Conference shall work with the bishops to ensure that voting on the ratification of these constitutional amendments begins with the regularly scheduled annual conference sessions after September 1, 2016, and is completed by August 31, 2017.

1. The two new jurisdictions shall replace the five former geographic jurisdictions. The Council of Bishops shall oversee the implementation of the new jurisdictions and serve as a clearing house of information for clergy and congregations desiring to affiliate with a jurisdiction different from the one chosen by their annual conference.

2. In anticipation of the approval of the relevant constitutional amendments, the 2016 General Conference shall (subsequent to approving the amendments by the required two-thirds vote) elect a seven-person team for each of the new jurisdictions, consisting of three laypersons, three clergypersons, and one bishop. Nominations shall be taken from the floor of General Conference at least 24 hours prior to the election being held. Each nominee shall certify his/her commitment to the general principles contained in the description of each jurisdiction in amended ¶ 37 for the jurisdictional team for which they are nominated.

3. In the ten months following General Conference, each team shall write and approve a vision and mission description for its particular jurisdiction, including a one-page summary. These documents shall be the initial guide for decision-making by bishops, annual conferences, clergy, congregations, and church institutions about the jurisdiction with which they will affiliate. The descriptive documents shall be publicly released at the time when the Council of Bishops certifies that the relevant constitutional amendments have been ratified.

4. *Episcopal Affiliation—*a) No more than 60 days following the certification of the constitutional amendments enabling two new U.S. jurisdictions, each active and retired United Methodist bishop serving the United States of America shall elect to relate to either the Progressive or Traditional Jurisdiction described in ¶ 37 and in the descriptive documents (¶ 538). These selections shall be canvassed by the Council of Bishops and made public at the conclusion of the 60 days. Bishops shall relate to both the new jurisdiction and their former geographical jurisdiction until the transition is completed.

b) Following the 60 days, the College of Bishops for each jurisdiction may convene and begin ordering the work of their respective new jurisdictions.

5. *Annual Conference Affiliation—*a) Within eight months of the certification of constitutional amendments, votes shall be held by secret ballot in each annual conference in the U.S. as to which jurisdiction that annual conference will hereafter belong. A simple majority vote shall suffice. The vote of each annual conference shall be canvassed by the Council of Bishops and be final.

b) Each annual conference shall also elect a jurisdictional delegation to the organizing conference of their selected jurisdiction, consisting of the same number of delegates who were elected to the previous jurisdictional conference. If clergy are elected who later indicate their desire to affiliate with the other jurisdiction, these clergy become ineligible to serve. Lay members elected become ineligible to serve if the local church to which they belong votes to affiliate with the other jurisdiction. Annual conferences shall elect sufficient numbers of reserve delegates to ensure a full delegation. Legislation may be proposed by each annual conference for the organizational conference of their new jurisdiction.

6. *Congregational Affiliation—*a) Congregations will automatically continue to belong to the annual conference to which they previously belonged unless the congregation takes action to change affiliations. Congregations who dissent from the jurisdictional affiliation of their annual conference will have until December 31, 2018 to indicate, by majority secret ballot vote of a duly called special church conference, their decision to be placed in an annual conference of the other jurisdiction. These congregations shall remain part of their former annual conference until the conclusion of the organizing conference of the new jurisdiction.

b) Churches wishing to change jurisdictional affiliation after the process described may do so under the provisions of ¶ 41 of the Constitution.

7. *Clergy Affiliation—*a) Clergy shall have until December 31, 2018, to notify their bishop of their desire to serve in the other jurisdiction. Their bishop shall forward the names of these clergy to the college of bishops of the receiving jurisdiction. Conference membership will continue in the former conference until a transfer to another annual conference is complete.

b) Subsequent to their original affiliation, clergy may elect to transfer from an annual conference in one jurisdiction to an annual conference in another jurisdiction under the provisions of ¶ 347.1. However, such transfer shall require the additional approval of the Board of Ordained Ministry and the clergy session of the receiving annual conference.

8. Organizing Jurisdictional Conferences—a) The colleges of bishops of the respective jurisdictions shall call a special organizing jurisdictional conference for each of the new jurisdictions. The conferences shall take place during February 2019.

b) At the organizing conference for each jurisdiction, the annual conference maps of each jurisdiction shall be redrawn so as to provide coverage for the entire United States of America. Where possible, coverage shall be attained by widening the boundaries of existing conferences. Provisional annual conferences and missionary conferences may be formed as needed. Bishops shall be assigned to their respective episcopal areas as elsewhere set forth. New bishops shall be elected as needed under the provisions of ¶ 404. For the purposes of this transition, bishops shall begin their new residential assignment on April 1, 2019.

c) Each jurisdictional conference shall create a system for assisting clergy desiring to change annual conference affiliation in obtaining membership status in a new annual conference, in obtaining an appointment in the new annual conference, and/or in obtaining a transitional appointment. Clergy may continue to serve in a conference other than the one where their membership is held until a suitable appointment is found in their new annual conference.

d) Following the remapping of annual conferences in each jurisdiction, each annual conference shall draw or adjust its districts to serve all the territory within its boundaries.

9. Institutional Affiliation—Any church-related institution that is affiliated with, but not owned by, an annual or jurisdictional conference may choose to change their affiliation and relationship to the Church following the organizing of the new jurisdictions and the redrawing of annual conference boundaries. The institution, by its own internal processes, may choose to continue affiliation with the successor annual or jurisdictional conference with which it was previously affiliated, change its affiliation to the annual or jurisdictional conference representing the other jurisdiction from the one in which it was previously affiliated, seek affiliation in both jurisdictions at the same time, or remove its church affiliation entirely. An institution's request to affiliate with a different annual or jurisdictional conference is contingent upon approval by that conference.

10. Congregational Property—The trust clause of each local congregation's property shall be held and administered by the annual conference with which the local church chooses to affiliate (¶2501, 2503). All assets and liabilities previously incurred by a local congregation shall remain with that congregation, regardless of affiliation.

11. Annual Conference Property—Assets and liabilities held by an annual conferences shall remain with that conference. Local churches and clergy transferring from an annual conference under the provisions of ¶ 538 are relinquished of any share of the assets or liabilities of that conference.

12. Jurisdictional Property—Assets and liabilities held by former jurisdictions of The United Methodist Church shall be assumed by the jurisdiction chosen by majority vote of the aggregate number of members in the several annual conferences of that former jurisdiction.

13. Arbitration—Disputes over the division of assets and liabilities shall be settled in binding arbitration by the Judicial Council. Each annual or jurisdictional conference shall present its case in written and oral form, and the Council shall make the final determination of an equitable division of assets and liabilities. The expenses of any special meetings or travel incurred by the council for such purposes shall be borne by the conferences engaging in arbitration.

Rationale:

One way to achieve amicable unity in The UMC is through a Two-Jurisdiction solution. This piece of that solution defines the detailed process whereby two new jurisdictions will be formed. Like Major League Baseball, we would have two leagues in American United Methodism, each with slightly different rules. See jurisdictional-solution.org.

Progressive Jurisdictional Solution – Customized Participation

Add ¶ 538. The Progressive Jurisdiction—There shall be an Progressive Jurisdiction for those annual conferences in The United States that decide on a principled dissent from standards and practices related to marriage, human sexuality, gender, and related issues. Other provisions notwithstanding, the Progressive Jurisdiction shall function as other jurisdictions of The United Methodist Church except for the following provisions:

1. The jurisdiction shall be empowered to make such changes and adaptations of the Book of Discipline as the mission of the jurisdiction require, especially concerning the organization and administration of the work on local church, district, annual conference, and jurisdictional levels, provided that no action shall be take that is contrary to the Constitution (§§ 1-61), General Rules, Doctrinal Standards and Our Theological Task (§§ 101-104), The Ministry of All Christians (§§ 120-142), and The Preface and Preamble to the Social Principles. Subject to these restrictions, the jurisdiction may delegate to a constituent annual conference the power to make one or other of the changes and adaptations referred to in this paragraph, upon request of such annual conference.

2. The jurisdiction shall be free to adapt the ordination standards in ¶ 304.3 that prohibit self-avowed practicing homosexuals from being certified as candidates for ministry, ordained as ministers, or appointed to serve in The United Methodist Church. Bishops elected by the jurisdiction shall meet the qualifications expected of all other United Methodist bishops, including compliance with ¶ 304.3. The jurisdiction shall also be free to adapt ¶ 613.19 to allow the expenditure of annual conference funds to promote the acceptance of homosexuality.

3. The jurisdiction shall be free to permit clergy and churches of its annual conference to perform whatever marriage ceremonies it chooses to permit, and such clergy shall not be subject to charges under ¶ 2702.1(b).

4. The jurisdiction may appoint a judicial court to determine legal questions arising on the rules, regulations, and such revised, adapted, or new sections of the Progressive Jurisdictional Conference Discipline enacted by the jurisdiction.

5. The jurisdiction shall develop its own logo which may be an adaptation of The United Methodist Cross and Flame, pending approval by the General Council on Finance and Administration. Churches and annual conferences of the jurisdiction shall use the logo of the jurisdiction and indicate their jurisdictional affiliation on signage and letterhead.

6. While annual conferences of the jurisdiction shall be entitled to the same ratio of General Conference delegates as those in other jurisdictions, these delegates shall be restricted from voting on changes to parts of the Discipline that the jurisdiction is empowered to adapt.

7. The jurisdiction shall have the following representation on general church agencies:

a. The jurisdiction is entitled to proportional representation on the General Council on Finance and Administration, the General Board of Pension and Health Benefits, the General Board of Global Ministries, the General Commission on Religion and Race, the General Commission on the Status and Role of Women, the General Commission on United Methodist Men, the General Commission on Archives and History, the General Commission on Communications, the Standing Committee on Central Conference Matters, The United Methodist Publishing House, and United Methodist Women.

b. jurisdiction is not entitled to representation on the General Board of Church and Society, the General Board of Discipleship, the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry, or affiliate bodies of these general agencies.

c. The jurisdiction shall be entitled to one representative on the Connectional Table.

8. Assessment of general Church apportionments to the annual conferences of the jurisdiction shall take the following factors into consideration:

a. The jurisdiction shall be responsible for fully funding its own programs and episcopal expenses.

b. The jurisdiction shall share in general church support of Central Conference bishops through The Episcopal Fund.

c. The jurisdiction shall not participate in the budgets of those agencies to which it is not entitled representation except as negotiated with the General Council on Finance and Administration and in keeping with the provisions of ¶ 806.9. The jurisdiction is encouraged to participate in The Advance.

d. As the jurisdiction is not bound by the body of the Social Principles, it does not participate in the budget of the General Board of Church and Society. The jurisdiction may enter into agreements with the board for shared services and develop funding agreements as negotiated with the General Council on Finance and Administration.

e. As the jurisdiction bears the weight of determining its own standards for ministry and ministerial education it shall not be required to fund the Ministerial Education Fund or the work of the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry. The jurisdiction may enter into agreements with these agencies for shared services and develop shared funding agreements as negotiated with the General Council on Finance and Administration. The jurisdiction is also encouraged to develop alternative means of supporting ministerial students who are candidates from its annual conferences.

f. The jurisdiction may enter into agreements with the General Board of Discipleship for shared services and develop funding agreements as negotiated with the General Council on Finance and Administration.

g. The jurisdiction shall participate in Africa University Fund, the Black College Fund, the General Administration Fund, and the Interdenominational Cooperation Fund.

h. In any funding agreement with the jurisdiction entered into by an agency of the general Church shall adhere to the provisions of ¶ 806.9.

Rationale:

Amicable Unity may be achieved in The UMC by creating a sixth Progressive Jurisdiction empowered to adapt our rules. This piece of the legislative program defines the customized participation of the new jurisdiction in the general church. See www.jurisdictionalsolution.org.

Progressive Jurisdictional Solution – Forming the New Jurisdiction

Add ¶ 539: The following process is enacted to implement amended ¶ 37 creating a Progressive Jurisdiction in the United States. The secretary of the General Conference shall work with the bishops to ensure that voting on the ratification of these constitutional amendments begins with the regularly scheduled annual conference sessions after September 1, 2016, and is completed by August 31, 2017, with the Council of Bishops certifying the outcome of the amendment ballots by December 31, 2017.

1. The Progressive Jurisdiction shall encompass the entire United States of America and overlap geographically the five standard jurisdictions.

2. In anticipation of the approval of the relevant constitutional amendments, the 2016 General Conference shall (subsequent to approving the amendments by the required two-thirds vote) elect a seven-person team to represent the vision of the Progressive Jurisdiction, consisting of three laypersons, three clergypersons, and one bishop. Nominations shall be taken from the floor of General Conference at least 24 hours prior to the election being held. Each nominee shall certify his/her commitment to the general principles contained in the description of the Progressive Jurisdiction in amended ¶ 37.

3. In the ten months following General Conference, the team shall write and approve a vision and mission description for the Progressive Jurisdiction, including a one-page summary. These documents shall be the initial guide for decision-making by bishops, annual conferences, clergy, congregations, and church institutions about a decision whether or not to affiliate with the new jurisdiction. The descriptive documents shall be publicly released at the time when the Council of Bishops certifies that the relevant constitutional amendments have been ratified.

4. Episcopal Affiliation—a) No more than 60 days following the certification of the constitutional amendments the Progressive Jurisdiction, each active and retired United Methodist bishop serving The United States of America may elect to relate to the new jurisdiction described in ¶ 37 and in the descriptive documents (¶ 538.9(b)). These jurisdictional choices shall be canvassed by the Council of Bishops and made public at the conclusion of the 60 days. Bishops shall relate to both the new jurisdiction and their former geographical jurisdiction until the transition is completed. b) Following the 60 days, the College of Bishops for the new jurisdiction may convene and begin ordering the work of their new jurisdiction. The College of Bishops for the Progressive Jurisdiction shall oversee the implementation of the new jurisdiction and serve as a clearinghouse of information for annual conferences, clergy and congregations desiring to affiliate with the jurisdiction.

5. Annual Conference Affiliation—a) Within eight months of the certification of constitutional amendments, votes shall be held by secret ballot in each annual conference in the U.S. as to whether or not to join the Progressive Jurisdiction. A simple majority vote of annual conference members shall suffice. The vote of each annual conference shall be announced before the adjournment of that conference. b) Annual conferences voting to affiliate with the Progressive Jurisdiction shall elect a jurisdictional delegation, consisting of the same number of delegates who were elected to the previous jurisdictional conference. If clergy are elected who later dissent from the jurisdictional affiliation of their annual conference, these clergy become ineligible to serve. Lay members elected become ineligible to serve if the local church to which they belong votes to dissent from the jurisdictional affiliate of the annual conference. Annual conferences shall elect sufficient numbers of reserve delegates to ensure a full delegation. Jurisdictional legislation may also be proposed by annual conferences.

6. Congregational Affiliation—a) Congregations will automatically continue to belong to the annual conference to which they previously belonged unless the congregation takes action to change affiliation. Congregations who dissent from the jurisdictional affiliation of their annual conference under this paragraph will have until December 31, 2018, to indicate, by majority secret ballot vote of a duly called special church conference, their decision to be placed in an annual conference of either the Progressive Jurisdiction or the geographical jurisdiction to which they previously belonged. Congregations voting to leave their annual conference shall remain part of their former annual conference until the conclusion of the organizing/reorganizing conference of the new annual conference. b) Churches wishing to change jurisdictional affiliation after the process described may do so under the provisions of ¶ 41 of the Constitution.

7. Clergy Affiliation—a) Clergy shall have until December 31, 2018, to notify their bishop of their desire to serve in a jurisdiction other than the one selected by their annual conference. Their bishop shall forward the names of these clergy to the college of bishops of the receiving jurisdiction. Conference membership will continue in the former conference until a transfer to another annual conference is complete. b) Subsequent to their original affiliation, clergy may elect to transfer from an annual conference in one jurisdiction to an annual conference in another jurisdiction under the provisions of ¶ 347.1.

8. Organizing Jurisdictional Conferences—a) The colleges of bishops of the respective jurisdictions shall call a special organizing or reorganizing jurisdictional conference for each jurisdiction. The conferences shall take place during February 2019. In the event that no annual conference in a particular jurisdiction votes to join the Progressive Jurisdiction, and further that no annual conferences from geographically contiguous jurisdictions are added to that jurisdiction through processes elsewhere described, and further that no bishops of that jurisdiction exit to join the Progressive Jurisdiction, the college of bishops in that jurisdiction may forgo holding a special session of that jurisdictional conference. b) At the organizing/reorganizing conference for each jurisdiction, the annual conference maps of each jurisdiction shall be redrawn so as to provide coverage for the entire geographical area assigned to the jurisdiction. The Progressive Jurisdiction shall create a map of annual conferences that covers the entire United States. Such annual conferences shall encompass any and all churches seeking to transfer to an annual conference in the Progressive Jurisdiction. Where possible, coverage shall be attained by widening the boundaries of existing conferences. Provisional annual conferences and missionary conferences may be formed as needed. Bishops shall be assigned to their respective episcopal areas as elsewhere set forth. New bishops shall be elected as needed under the provisions of ¶ 404. For the purposes of this transition, bishops shall begin their new residential assignment on April 1, 2019. c) Each jurisdictional conference shall create a system for assisting clergy desiring to change annual conference affiliation in obtaining membership status in a new annual conference, in obtaining an appointment in the new annual conference, and/or in obtaining a transitional appointment. Clergy may continue to serve in a conference other than the one where their membership is held until a suitable appointment is found in their new annual conference. d) Following the remapping of annual conferences in each jurisdiction, each annual conference shall draw or adjust its districts to serve all the territory within its boundaries.

9. Institutional Affiliation—Any church-related institution that is affiliated with, but not owned by, an annual or jurisdictional conference may choose to change their affiliation and relationship to the church following the organizing of the new jurisdictions and the redrawing of annual conference boundaries. The institution, by its own internal processes, may choose to continue affiliation with the successor annual or jurisdictional conference with which it was previously affiliated, change its affiliation, seek affiliation in both jurisdictions at the same time, or remove its church affiliation entirely. An institution's request to affiliate with a different annual or jurisdictional conference is contingent upon approval by that conference.

10. Congregational Property—The trust clause of each local congregation's property shall be held and administered by the annual conference with which the local church chooses to affiliate (¶¶ 2501, 2503). All assets and liabilities previously incurred by a local congregation shall remain with that congregation, regardless of affiliation.

11. Annual Conference Assets and Non-Pension Liabilities—Annual conferences that vote to enter the Progressive Jurisdiction by a margin of at least 75 percent will do so with their conference properties, assets and liabilities intact. Those who opt into the Progressive Jurisdiction by a margin less than 75 percent shall divide conference assets and liabilities proportionately with annual conferences receiving the exiting congregations. Assets shall be divided based on the amount of annual conference apportionments paid by the exiting congregations over the previous five full years. Liabilities shall be divided based on the percentage of annual conference apportionments assessed to each congregation, averaged over the previous five full years.

12. Annual Conference Pension Liability—Each annual conference with at least one exiting congregation and unfunded pension liability shall elect representatives to a joint distributing committee who will allocate the pension liability with any receiving annual conference(s) under the provisions of ¶ 1509.

13. Jurisdictional Property—If over 50 percent of the aggregate number of professing members in a jurisdiction leaves to join the Progressive Jurisdiction, properties held by the jurisdiction shall be divided with the Progressive Jurisdiction proportionate to the number of professing members.

14. Arbitration—Disputes over the division of assets and liabilities shall be settled in binding arbitration by the Judicial Council. Each annual or jurisdictional conference shall present its case in written and oral form, and the Council shall make the final determination of an equitable division of assets and liabilities. The expenses of any special meetings or travel incurred by the Council for such purposes shall be borne by the bodies engaging in arbitration.

15. General Conference 2020 is encouraged to review the effect of the reorganization enabled by this paragraph and consider remapping the geographic jurisdictions in accordance with the constitutional provisions of ¶ 15.12.

Rationale:

Amicable Unity may be achieved in The UMC by creating a sixth Progressive Jurisdiction empowered to adapt our rules. This piece of the legislative program describes the process whereby the new jurisdiction would be formed. See www.jurisdictionalsolution.org.

¶502.1.

Petition Number: 60172-CO-¶502.1-G; Chumley, Madeline L. - Dallas, TX, USA for UM Young People’s Legislative Assembly.

Young People’s Representation

Add the following to ¶ 502.1:

c) In order to ensure representation across all age groups, whenever possible, one (1) of every three (3) lay delegates should be a youth or a young adult in every conference’s delegation.

Rationale:

Young People are often under represented at General Conference, for this reason this petition seeks to ensure that young people have a voice in our church’s largest governing body. As we fight the problem of remaining relevant, these young leaders will be essential parts of conversations that occur there.

¶507.

Petition Number: 60035-CO-¶507-G; Kenaston, Judi M. - Charleston, WV, USA for Commission on the General Conference.

Petition Submission

Amend ¶ 507 as follows:

¶ 507. Petitions to General Conference –Any organization, clergy member, or lay member Local Church Council or Alternative Structures of the Local Church; Charge/Church Conference; Missions; Annual Conference, Provisional Annual Conference, Missionary Conference, Jurisdictional Conference, Jurisdictional Committees, Central Conference, Provisional Central Conference, General Agency, General Conference Study Committee, General Commission, General Board, General Church Council or The Connectional Table of The United Methodist Church, any groups that are officially related to a general agency of The United Methodist Church; and official racial and ethnic caucuses, including Black Methodists for Church Renewal, Methodists Associated to Represent Hispanic Americans, Native American International Caucus, National Federation of Asian American United Methodists and Pacific Islanders National Caucus United Methodist, may petition the General Conference in the following manner: . . .

3. Each petition must be signed by the person in charge of submitting it, accompanied by appropriate identification, such as ~~address, local church, or United Methodist board or agency relationship~~ the name of the submitting body and contact information.

4. All petitions submitted to the General Conference, ~~except those submitted by individual members of The United Methodist Church and local church groups~~, which call for . . .

7. Petitions adopted and properly submitted ~~by annual conferences, jurisdictional and central conferences, the United Methodist Youth Organization, or general agencies or councils of the Church and petitions properly submitted by individual members (either clergy or lay) of The United Methodist Church and local church groups~~, provided that they have been received by the petitions secretary . . .

Rationale:

Each petition to General Conference will have been discussed and supported by a smaller unit of United Methodists. Limiting the number of petitions will strengthen the deliberative process regarding individual petitions and possibly result in a reduction in the overall volume of petitions submitted to the General Conference.

¶507.

Petition Number: 60226-CO-¶507-G; Johnson, Carolyn E. - West Lafayette, IN, USA for Indiana Annual Conference.

Mandatory Vote

Amend ¶ 507 of The Book of Discipline by adding a new point 10 as follows:

¶ 507. Petitions to General Conference—Any organization, clergy member, or lay member of The United Methodist Church may petition the General Conference in the following manner: . . .

10. All petitions that have been approved by a legislative committee shall receive a vote by the plenary session at that year's General Conference.

Rationale:

It is unfair and inefficient for legislative committees to perfect legislation, only to see that legislation denied the opportunity for a vote by the plenary session. This rule would discourage filibustering and delay tactics, as well as encourage effective time management of the legislative process.

¶507.

Petition Number: 60571-CO-¶507-G; Womack, W. Michael - Greenwood, IN, USA.

Limits for Submission

Amend Discipline ¶ 507, Petitions to General Conference, by adding a new sub-section #10 at the very end of the current ¶ 507:

10. No single entity may submit more than a total of eighty separate petitions to any General Conference. Any petitions received by the Secretary of the General Conference or by the Petitions Secretary shall be considered invalid if the submitter has already submitted eighty distinct petitions to this same General Conference.

Rationale:

This generous limit should be more than enough for any annual conference, general agency or other entity to submit its highest priorities, without allowing any one entity to be so dominant as to crowd out other voices.

¶507.

Petition Number: 60879-CO-¶507-G; Galvan, Elias - USA for Methodists Associated Representing the Cause of Hispanic Latino Americans.

Petitions to General Conference

¶ 507. Petitions to General Conference—Any organization, clergy member, or lay member of The United Methodist Church may petition the General Conference. The appropriate bodies of concordat churches may also petition the General Conference given that they have delegates with voice and vote. Petitions shall be submitted in the following manner . . .

Rationale:

The United Methodist Church has concordats with four autonomous churches. These churches participate in General Conference with delegates with voice and vote. This petition seeks to enable concordat churches to send petitions to General Conference in matters related to them instead of having to go through a second party.

¶507.2.

Petition Number: 60996-CO-¶507.2-G; Carlsen, Jonathan - Arcadia, FL, USA.

Validity of Petitions

Amend ¶ 507.2:

2. Each petition must agree with the established standards of doctrine of The United Methodist Church and must address one issue if . . . separated into pieces. Petitions in conflict with the established standards of doctrine are also invalid. No petition shall receive substantial editing without the permission of the maker.

Rationale:

The original author of ¶ 507.2 submits this. Twice, in 2008 and 2012, he has had a petition shortened and rewritten to the point of being unintelligible. Processing petitions conflicting with our doctrinal standards wastes church resources.

¶507.9.

Petition Number: 60721-CO-¶507.9-$-G; Smith, Jeremy - Portland, OR, USA.

Electronic Accessibility of the Book of Discipline

Amend ¶ 507.9 as follows:

Petitions to General Conference

9. The secretary of the General Conference shall arrange for electronic access to all petitions, including General Conference action and the resulting impact on The Book of Discipline of The United Methodist Church, throughout the General Conference session. This access shall be available until the publication of the new edition of The Book of Discipline of The United Methodist Church. Implementation shall be according to guidelines established by the Committee on Plan of Organization and Rules of Order. At the beginning of the third year of each quadrennium, the secretary shall arrange to make The Book of Discipline of The United Methodist Church available, free of charge in a keyword-searchable full-text digital format, on the official website of The United Methodist Church.

Rationale:

“To access information is a basic human right” (Resolution 8011). The Book of Discipline’s publication costs are offset by book sales. By offering the Discipline online for free at a later date, we more properly balance recouping production costs with accessibility needs for quadrennial changes and local church guidance.

¶510.2.

Petition Number: 60570-CO-¶510.2-!-G; Stephens, Daryl W. - Lancaster, PA, USA.

Resolutions Do Not Expire Automatically

Amend Discipline ¶ 510 as follows:

...

2. A Book of Resolutions ~~to~~shall be edited and published (electronically and in hardcopy) by The United Methodist Publishing House. The book shall contain all valid resolutions of the most recent General Conference, a complete subject index and index of Scripture passages to all resolutions printed therein, and. ~~The Preface of the Book of Resolutions shall include the guidelines for writing resolutions. The Book of Resolutions shall be made available on the official website of The United Methodist Church.~~

a) ~~All valid resolutions of the General Conference of The United Methodist Church shall be published in each edition of the Book of Resolutions. There shall be a complete subject index and index of Scripture passages to all valid resolutions of the General Conference of The United Methodist Church in each edition of the Book of Resolutions. Resolutions are official expressions of The United Methodist Church and do not expire unless the resolution includes its own expiration date or unless superseded by a subsequent resolution calling for its expiration. ~~for eight years following their adoption, after which time they shall be deemed to have expired unless readopted. Those that have expired shall not be printed in subsequent editions of the Book of Resolutions. The Book of Resolutions shall be made available on the official website of The United Methodist Church.~~~~

b) The program boards and agencies shall review all valid resolutions and ~~recommend to~~petition the General Conference for the expiration~~removal of time-outdated~~ material.

c) Valid Resolutions of General Conference ~~to be an official part of the Book of Resolutions will~~shall require a 60 percent affirmative vote at General Conference.

...

Rationale:

This petition: 1) reduces the legislative burden of future general conferences by alleviating the need to renew resolutions that are due to expire; and 2) reduces the printing burden of the UMPH by requiring only the most recently legislated General Conference resolutions be published in the Book of Resolutions

¶510.2a.

Petition Number: 60539-CO-¶510.2a-G; Hodge, Jeff - Syracuse, NY, USA for Upper New York Annual Conference.

Cross Referencing The BOD with The BOR

Amend ¶ 510.2a of the UM Book of Discipline as follows:

All valid resolutions of the General Conference of The United Methodist Church shall be published in each edition of the Book of Resolutions. There shall be a complete subject index and index of Scripture passages to all valid resolutions of the General Conference of The United Methodist Church in each edition of the Book of Resolutions. Every resolution that corresponds to a paragraph in the Book of Discipline shall be listed by number and title at the end of the corresponding Disciplinary subsection to which it relates. In the case of electronic publications, such as, but not limited to, e-books and online versions, the references to resolutions within the Book of Discipline should act as hyperlinks to the text of those resolutions. Resolutions are official . . .

Rationale:

This petition is to help make both The Book of Discipline and The Book of Resolutions easier to use by readers and researchers; and, will help United Methodists better understand the interconnectedness of these two important books of our United Methodist polity and faith.

The Book of Discipline “is the . . .

Electronic Accessibility of the Book of Resolutions

Amend ¶ 510.2(a) as follows:

a) All valid resolutions of the General Conference of The United Methodist Church shall be published in each edition of The Book of Resolutions. There shall be a complete subject index and index of Scripture passages to all valid resolutions of the “General Conference of The United Methodist Church in each edition of The Book of

Those that have expired shall not be printed in subsequent editions of The Book of Resolutions. The Book of Resolutions shall be made available, free of charge in a keyword-searchable full-text digital format, on the official website of The United Methodist Church.

Rationale:

Only General Conference speaks for the Church. Resolutions should be publicly accessible to speak with authority to the world. The United Methodist Church is not “effectively reaching youth and young adults” (Four Areas of Focus) who more readily access information online. The Book of Resolutions’ purpose isn’t to make money for The United Methodist Publishing House.

Discontinue Commission on General Conference and Transfer to Connectional Table

Delete ¶ 511 in its entirety.

Amend ¶ 504 as follows:

¶ 504.2. Assumption of Office—The secretary-designate shall assume the responsibilities of the office of secretary as soon after the adjournment of the General Conference as all work in connection with the session has been completed, including the corrections to the Daily Christian Advocate, which serves as the official journal of the General Conference. Upon publication, all translations of the Daily Christian Advocate shall be made available as a daily downloadable file, free of charge, on the denominational website. The exact date of the transfer of responsibility to the secretary-designate shall be determined by the ~~Commission on the General Conference~~ Connectional Table, but shall not be later than December 31, following the adjournment of the General Conference.

3. Assigned Duties—The secretary, in cooperation with the ~~General Commission on the General Conference~~ Connectional Table, shall initiate procedures to prepare delegates from central conferences for full participation in the General Conference by providing information concerning both the operation of the General Conference and materials it will consider. As far as possible, the materials should be provided in the languages of the delegates. After consultation with the Council of Bishops, the secretary shall issue invitations to ecumenical representatives.

Amend ¶ 807.24 as follows:

¶ 807.24. To designate a staff member who, in cooperation with the general secretary, will fulfill such responsibilities as may be needed to assist the ~~Commission on the General Conference~~ Connectional Table with preparation for sessions of the General Conference. In fulfilling this role, the staff member will function as the ~~commission’s~~ Business mManager of the General Conference and shall be related operationally to the ~~Commission~~ Committee on the General Conference as provided in ¶ 907.1.

Add a new ¶ 905.8 as follows:

¶ 905.8 To plan and provide organizational leadership for the General Conference.

Replace the existing text of ¶ 907 as follows:

~~¶ 907 Effective Date—The organizational plan for the Connectional Table shall be effective January 1, 2005.~~

1. The Connectional Table (CT) shall form a committee called the Committee on the General Conference. In addition to members selected by the CT from among its membership the following shall serve with the committee: The Secretary of the General Conference, the Treasurer of the General Council on Finance and Administration, the Business Manager of the General Conference, the chairperson of the host committee of the immediately upcoming General Conference, and a bishop named by the Council of Bishops, all of whom shall have the right to the floor without the privilege of voting. The Business Manager of the General Conference shall be the chief administrative officer of the Committee.

2. Responsibilities of the Committee on the General Conference—a) The committee shall select the site and set the dates of the General Conference up to four quadrennia in advance and shall send an official notice to all elected delegates announcing specifically the opening day and hour of the General Conference and anticipated time of adjournment.

b) The committee shall plan the schedule for the opening day of the Conference and shall further advise the delegates in advance of all such special events and orders of the day, the dates and times of which have been determined prior to the opening of the General Conference, in order that the delegates may have an overview of the General Conference program.

c) The committee, in cooperation with The United Methodist Publishing House, shall make all necessary arrangements for the publication of the Advance Edition of the Daily Christian Advocate and quadrennial reports of the Connectional Table and the general agencies of the church in English, French, Portuguese, and Kiswahili, and for all delegates to have timely (60-day period) and convenient access to the most linguistically appropriate translation of these documents. This paragraph shall not apply to daily publication of the Daily Christian Advocate at General Conference.

d) The committee shall take necessary measures to assure full participation of all General Conference delegates including but not limited to providing accommodation for languages and physical challenges of the delegates, and access to approved licensed childcare during the session at or near the site of the General Conference for children of General Conference delegates.

e) The committee shall recommend to the General Conference the per diem allowance to be paid to the elected delegates for housing and meals.

f) The committee shall set the number of legislative committees and the assignment of legislative materials to those committees in consultation with the Secretary of the General Conference and the Business Manager of the General Conference.

3. The Secretary of the General Conference shall calculate the number of delegates to be elected by each annual conference, based on the factors specified above in ¶ 502.1, 2 , as follows:

a) One clergy delegate for the first 375 clergy members of the annual conference and one clergy delegate for each additional 375 clergy members or major fraction thereof,3 and

b) One clergy delegate for the first 26,000 members of local churches of the annual conference and one clergy delegate for each additional 26,000 local church members or major fraction thereof, and

c) A number of lay delegates equal to the total number of clergy delegates authorized as above.

d) Every annual conference shall be entitled to at least one clergy and one lay delegate.

e) This formula is designated to comply with the Constitution, Division Two, Section II, Article I (¶ 13), which defines the minimum and maximum number of delegates to a General Conference. Should the computations provided in the paragraph result in a figure below the prescribed minimum or above the prescribed maximum for delegates, the Connectional Table shall be authorized to remedy the situation by adjusting up or down the numbers of clergy members and members of local churches of the annual conference necessary to entitle an annual conference to elect delegates, any such adjustment to be proportionally the same for the two factors.

4. The Connectional Table shall form a committee called the Committee on the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order. The membership of the committee shall be drawn from the membership of the CT in a manner determined by the CT. The committee shall study and consider any proposed amendments to the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order and make needed changes and adaptations to be presented to the entire CT for approval and submission to the General Conference. Any other matters relating to parliamentary order or procedure in the business of the General Conference may be referred to this committee.

Rationale:

The Commission on the General Conference is an administrative body established by the General Conference for the specified and limited purposes set forth in ¶511.4 of the 2012 Book of Discipline. To ensure it remains so it should be required to report to the Connectional Table, not to General Conference.

¶511.4.

Petition Number: 60131-CO-¶511.4; Kumar, A. Moses Rathan - Nashville, TN, USA for General Council on Finance and Administration.

Report Translation

Amend the last sentence of ¶ 511.4c as follows:

This paragraph shall not apply to (1) daily publication of the Daily Christian Advocate at General Conference or (2) the reports from the General Council on Finance and Administration printed in the Advance Edition of the Daily Christian Advocate.

Rationale:

Because GCFA's reports cannot be completed until the end of the calendar year preceding General Conference, they cannot be translated by the 60-day deadline. This change makes it clear the deadline does not apply to these reports, while still requiring their timely translation.

¶511.4c.

Petition Number: 60723-CO-¶511.4c-$-G; Lomperis, Ekaterina Nikitina - Valparaiso, IN, USA.

Translation of DCA

Amend the Discipline ¶ 511.4c as follows:

¶ 511. . . .

c) The commission, in cooperation with The United Methodist Publishing House, shall make all necessary arrangements for the publication of the Advanced Edition of the Daily Christian Advocate and quadrennial reports of the Connectional Table and the general agencies of the church in English, French, Portuguese, and Kiswahili, and for all delegates to have timely (90-day period) and convenient access to the most linguistically appropriate translation of these documents. ~~This paragraph shall not apply to daily publication of the Daily Christian Advocate at General Conference. The commission shall also make arrangements for editions of the Daily Christian Advocate published at General Conference to be made available in each of these languages in a timely and convenient way.~~

Rationale:

The Daily Christian Advocate includes very important information that helps delegates navigate complex legislative decisions. But having this key publication only available in English puts many non-US delegates at a major disadvantage. If we are serious about being a global church, then let us fully include non-American United Methodists.

Calculation of Delegates

Amend ¶ 511.5 as follows:

The secretary of the General Conference shall calculate the number of delegates to be elected by each annual conference, based on the factors specified in ¶ 502.1, 2, using the most recent clergy and professing lay membership figures reported by the annual conferences to the General Council on Finance and Administration through their conference journals, as follows...

Rationale:

This change defines the source of the figures used to make the required calculations.

5. The secretary of the General Conference ...

e) This formula is designated to comply with the Constitution, Division Two, Section II, Article I (¶ 13), which defines the minimum and maximum number of delegates to a General Conference. ~~Should the computations provided in the paragraph this formula result in a figure delegate number below the prescribed minimum or above the prescribed maximum for delegates, the Commission on the General Conference shall be authorized to remedy the situation bring the computed number as closely within the parameters as possible by adjusting up or down the numbers of clergy members and members of local churches of the annual conference necessary to entitle an annual conference to elect delegates, any such adjustment to be proportionally the same for the two factors.~~

Rationale:

The Commission should be authorized to bring the number of delegates barely within the parameters required, but should not be authorized to arbitrarily decide how many delegates the General Conference. General Conference should make this determination by adjusting the formula in 511.5a and b.

Revision of Episcopal Complaint Process

Make the following revisions to ¶ 512:

¶ 512. Interjurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy—1. There shall be an Interjurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy elected by the General Conference consisting of one of the persons nominated by their annual conference delegations to serve on the several jurisdictional or central conference committees on episcopacy.⁵ The committee shall meet not later than the fifth day of the conference session and at the time and place set for their convening by the president of the Council of Bishops and shall elect from their number a chairperson, vice chairperson, and secretary. The functions of this joint committee shall be to discuss the possibility of transfers of bishops across jurisdictional or central conference lines at the forthcoming jurisdictional or central conferences for residential and presidential responsibilities in the ensuing quadrennium; to administer by its executive committee the supervisory response to any complaints filed against bishops (¶ 413.3); and to review on the basis of missional needs an application from a jurisdiction which, by number of its church members as provided in ¶ 404, would experience a reduction in the number of its bishops, and recommend the number of bishops to which that jurisdiction should be entitled to the General Conference for determination by the General Conference. This provision regarding mis-sional needs is enabling, and it is not constraining on the power of General Conference to act in the absence of a recommendation from the committee.

It shall elect an executive committee consisting of the officers named above and ~~two clergy and two lay persons from the nominees to each jurisdictional committee, elected by that committee to conduct consultations with bishops and others interested in possible episcopal transfers. One of the persons elected from each jurisdiction shall~~ be the chairperson, or the chairperson's designee, of the each jurisdictional or central conference committee. The executive committee shall meet at the call of the chairperson, and it shall have plenary power for the full committee between full committee sessions. It shall be responsible to the interjurisdictional committee, and in fulfillment of that responsibility and in the interest of continuity of the work of the committee, the outgoing chairperson, or the chairperson's designee, shall present a report to the newly seated committee on the previous quadrennium's work as well as recommendations on what the coming quadrennium's work might include.

The interjurisdictional committee or its executive committee may meet for any of its functions via video or phone conference or other electronic means.

A record of the proceedings of the committee . . .

2. A bishop may be transferred across jurisdictional or central conference lines only when that bishop has consented to such transfer and has served at least one quadrennium in or under assignment by the jurisdiction or central conference in which the bishop was elected. Such a transfer shall be concluded when the committee on episcopacy of each jurisdiction or central conference involved has approved the transfer(s) by a majority vote of those present and voting, insofar as the transfer(s) affects those jurisdictions or central conferences. (See ¶ 49, Article V.)⁶

3. The Interjurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy shall be recognized as the official body through which cross-jurisdictional and cross-central conference transfers shall be arranged. Should a bishop request transfer, the bishop has the option to identify the receiving jurisdiction or central conference. A jurisdiction or central conference may request that a specific bishop be transferred or may indicate a willingness to accept a bishop transferring from another jurisdiction or central conference. Request for transfer from either a bishop or jurisdictional or central conference committees on episcopacy shall be received by the Interjurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy by April 1 of the year preceding the year of jurisdictional or central conferences. The Interjurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy will arrange consultation between bishop(s) requesting transfer and the appropriate jurisdictional or central conference committee(s) on episcopacy by January 1 of the year of jurisdictional or central conference(s). Once the jurisdictional or central conference committee(s) on episcopacy has taken action, jurisdictional or central conference secretaries shall inform the Interjurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy not later than August 1 following jurisdictional or central conferences.⁷

4. The Interjurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy will . . .

Rationale:

These changes enhance the accountability of bishops and increase consistency by lodging the accountability function in the global Church. They lodge all responsibility for handling complaints to clergy and laity who are not bishops, removing any conflicts of interest involved. The changes also add clarity and definition to the process.

Progressive Jurisdictional Solution – Jurisdictions and Race

~~Amend ¶ 513. Equal Status—All jurisdictional conferences shall have the same status and the same privileges of action within the limits fixed by the Constitution. Jurisdictions and Race—In The United Methodist Church there shall be no jurisdictional conference organized on the basis of race or ethnicity.~~

Rationale:

Amicable Unity may be achieved in The UMC by creating a sixth Progressive Jurisdiction empowered to adapt our rules. This piece of the legislative program allows jurisdictions with different status without allowing them to be based on race or ethnicity. See www.jurisdictionalsolution.org.

Conflict of Interest on Committee on Episcopacy

Amend ¶ 524 by addition of new language as indicated following:

¶ 524. Jurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy—

1. There shall be a jurisdictional committee on epis-copacy consisting of one clergy and one lay delegate to the jurisdictional conference from each annual conference elected by the jurisdictional conference upon nomination of their respective annual conference delegations, provided that no person shall be eligible for election to or service on a jurisdictional committee on episcopacy who in his or her position of gainful employment is in a direct reporting relationship to an active United Methodist bishop. This shall include any member of any bishop's cabinet and any member of any active bishop's staff, but it shall not include clerics who are under appointment by a bishop but are not in a direct, day to day reporting relationship to the bishop, such as, but not limited to, those clerics appointed to local churches, campus ministries, and chaplaincies.

Rationale:

Having members of a bishop's staff serve on a jurisdictional committee on episcopacy constitutes what ought to be considered to be an irresolvable conflict of interest for the member and the bishop and should not be tolerated by the Church.

Organic Jurisdictional Solution – New Duties of Jurisdictions

Add new subparagraphs after: ¶ 525

Powers and Duties of Jurisdictional Conference—The jurisdictional conference shall have powers and duties as described in the Constitution. It shall have such other powers and duties as may be conferred by the General Conference. It shall act in all respects in harmony with the policy of The United Methodist Church with respect to elimination of discrimination based on race.

1. A jurisdictional conference shall have power to make such changes and adaptations of the Book of Discipline as the special conditions and the mission of the church in the area require, especially concerning the organization and administration of the work on local church, district, and annual conference levels, provided that no action shall be taken that is contrary to the Constitution and the General Rules of The United Methodist Church, and provided that the spirit of connectional relationship is kept between the local and the general church. Subject to this restriction, a jurisdictional conference may delegate to an annual conference of the jurisdiction the power to make one or the other of the changes and adaptations referred to in this paragraph, upon request of such annual conference.

2. The jurisdictional conference shall have the power, upon two-thirds majority vote, to make such changes and adaptations to ¶ 304.3, ¶ 341.6, ¶ 2702.(a-b) of the Book of Discipline as the special conditions and the mission of the church of that jurisdiction require, as long as measures are elsewhere in place that allow annual conferences to freely affiliate with another jurisdiction by a mere two-thirds majority vote of the annual conference, and further provided that measures are elsewhere in place that allow circumstances under which individual congregations and clergy may affiliate with an annual conference of another jurisdiction without consent of their conference or supervising bishop. The secretary of the General Conference shall work with the bishops to ensure that voting on the ratification of these constitutional amendments begins with the regularly scheduled annual conference sessions after September 1, 2016, and is completed by August 31, 2017. Jurisdictional conferences convening in 2016 may vote on adaptations to the to the Discipline described in amended ¶ 525 and these adaptations would become effective upon the announcement of the ratification of ¶ 27.7 by the Council of Bishops.

3. Annual conferences and local congregations of jurisdictions that have made adaptations to ¶ 304.3, ¶ 341.6, ¶ 2702.(a-b) of the Discipline are encouraged to indicate their jurisdictional affiliation on signage and letterhead so as to distinguish them from other conferences and congregations.

Rationale:

This is one piece of a larger legislative agenda to achieve amicable unity in The UMC through the “Organic Jurisdictional Solution.” This item grants jurisdictions the specific right to adapt our clergy standards by two-thirds majority vote. Rights currently enjoyed by central conferences are also extended to jurisdictions. See jurisdictionalsolution.org.

Two-Jurisdiction Solution – Powers and Duties of Jurisdictions

Amend: ¶525 Powers and Duties of Jurisdictional Conference—The jurisdictional conference shall have powers and duties as described in the Constitution. It shall have such other powers and duties as may be conferred by the General Conference. It shall act in all respects in harmony with the policy of The United Methodist Church with respect to elimination of discrimination based on race. A jurisdictional conference shall have the power to make such changes and adaptations to the Book of Discipline as the special conditions and the mission of the church in that jurisdiction require, especially concerning the organization and administration of the work on local church, district, annual conference, and jurisdictional levels, provided that no action shall be taken that is contrary to the Constitution and the General Rules of The United Methodist Church, and provided that the spirit of connective relationship is kept with the general church. Subject to this restriction, a jurisdictional conference may delegate to a constituent annual conference the power to make one or other of the changes and adaptations referred to in this paragraph, upon the request of such annual conference.

Rationale:

One way to achieve amicable unity in The UMC is through a two-jurisdiction solution. This piece of that solution grants the two new jurisdictions the same authority as central conferences to adapt our rules. The new language is based on ¶ 543.7, Central Conference Powers and Duties. See jurisdictionalsolution.org.

Provisional Annual Conferences

Amend the Book of Discipline as follows:

¶ 580. Definition-Purpose—A provisional annual conference shares the same purpose as an annual conference, but is a conference that, because of its limited membership, does not qualify for annual conference status. The creation of a provisional annual conference is part of a missional development, which should lead to an annual conference within twelve years.

Rationale:

“Provisional” was intended to be a transitional status in a missional development towards an annual conference, but it has often become a permanent status. To remain provisional permanently would require specific reasons, e.g. as in Europe, where excellent mission work is divided up/ split up in many countries and different languages . . .

Powers and Duties of Provisional Annual Conferences

Amend the Book of Discipline as follows:

¶ 581. Provisions Powers and Duties— 1. Any missionary conference or mission established under the provisions of the Discipline and/or any geographical part of an annual conference may be constituted as a provisional annual conference by the General Conference, in consultation with upon recommendation by the central conference, provisional central conference, or jurisdictional conference within which it is located, and in consultation with the General Board of Global Ministries and the Standing Committee on Central Conference Matters, provisional central conference, or jurisdictional conference within which the missionary conference or mission it is located; provided that:

a) ~~4.~~ No provisional annual conference shall be organized with fewer than ten elderly Elders in provisional or full connection, and or Local Elders in Mission (members) nor be continued after completion of the initial quadrennium with fewer than six Elders in full connection elderly members.

2. ~~The total financial support from the General Board of Global Ministries, including the Advance, shall not exceed an appropriate percentage as determined in consultation with the board.~~

b) ~~3.~~ The membership, worship attendance, leadership development, and financial contributions of the conference have shown a reasonable progress increase during the previous quadrennium and are indicative of give evidence of an aggressive program for continued progress in both areas growth towards becoming an annual conference.

¶582. Organization—2. A provisional annual conference shall be organized in the same manner and have the same powers and functions as an annual conference, subject to the approval of the presiding bishop in charge; and its members shall share pro rata in the proceeds of The United Methodist Publishing House with members of the annual conferences, with the following exceptions:

3. If a provisional annual conference, after three quadrennia, does not show progress towards becoming an annual conference, the following session of the central conference shall consult with the Standing Committee on Central Conference matters and recommend to the following General Conference continuation or discontinuation as a provisional annual conference. It shall only be continued with sufficient missional, geographical, and contextual reasons.

Rationale:

The revised ¶ 581 is a statement on Powers and Duties, replacing in part the existing ¶¶ 581-582. Revised line 581.1 establishes a process for moving from a Mission without authority for membership and ordination of clergy, to a Provisional Annual Conference which has such authority. Missions - Purpose

Amend the Book of Discipline as follows:

Section VIII. Missions

¶ 590. ~~Definition—A mission is an administrative body for a field of work inside or outside the structures of any annual conference, provisional annual conference, or missionary conference that is under the care of the General Board of Global Ministries and exercises in a general way the functions of a district conference.~~

Purpose - The purpose of a mission is to provide and develop ministry with a particular group or region whose potential and needs cannot be fully met within the existing structures and resources of the annual or district conference(s). ~~A mission~~ may also be the initial stage in moving toward the formation of a provisional or missionary annual conference.

~~The establishment of a mission may involve special considerations in areas of leadership, language resources, and/or property.~~

In accordance with the Wesleyan ecumenical spirit, in all phases of mission development, the initiating United Methodist entities will consult with, and where possible create cooperative relationships with, Wesleyan communions and other denominations serving in the area, as well as with appropriate interdenominational, ecumenical and interfaith agencies and organizations.

Rationale:

Missions - Powers and Duties

Amend the Book of Discipline as follows:

¶ 591. Establishment and Administration of a Mission—1. ~~The General Board of Global Ministries, in consultation with the presiding bishop or bishops (¶ 414.6) of an annual conference(s), shall determine the need and set the boundaries for the mission established within an annual conference, across conference lines, or for another extended region or constituency.~~

Powers and Duties—1. A mission is an organizational body for a field of work inside, or outside, or across the structures of annual conferences, or provisional annual conferences.

2. ~~In accordance with the Wesleyan ecumenical spirit, the a mission will shall seek to establish and maintain cordial and cooperative relationships with other denominations serving in the area as well as with appropriate interdenominational, ecumenical and interfaith agencies and organizations. A mission may be established by the General Board of Global Ministries, or by a central or annual conference in cooperation with the General Board of Global Ministries.~~

3. ~~A mission shall be made up of all regularly appointed missionaries, both lay and clergy, local elders in mission, mission pastors, and other lay members. The mission shall determine the number of lay members and the method of their selection. In so doing, it shall ensure that all aspects of the mission's work are represented.²⁶The boundaries for a mission established by a central or annual conference in cooperation with the General Board of Global Ministries are to be determined by the central or annual conference and the General Board of Global Ministries. If a mission is established 26. See Judicial Council Decision 341. by the General Board of Global Ministries outside territories of central conferences, the General Board of Global Ministries will establish the boundaries.~~

4. (a) When the mission lies within the bounds of one episcopal area, the resident bishop shall preside over the mission. (b) When the mission crosses the boundaries of one or more episcopal areas, jurisdictions, or central conferences, the College(s) of Bishops, in consultation with the general secretary of the General Board of Global Ministries, shall assign a bishop to the mission. (c) When the mission lies outside the bounds of an established episcopal area in jurisdictions or central conferences, the Council of Bishops, in consultation with the general secretary of the General Board of Global Ministries, will assign a bishop to be its presiding officer. ~~The assigned bishop, in collaboration with the General Board of Global Ministries, and in consultation with an annual conference, will seek a cooperative agreement with an annual conference which will serve as the correspondent annual conference to the mission for the purposes of ordination and conference membership as well as for local pastor licensing.~~ (d) ~~The bishop assigned to a mission, in consultation with the general secretary of the General Board of Global Ministries, may appoint one or more superintendents of the mission as may be determined and for whom support has been provided. The bishop shall decide which groups or charges the respective superintendents shall supervise.~~

5. ~~A mission shall meet annually at the time and place designated by the bishop in charge, who shall preside. The bishop will work with the General Board of Global Ministries and with mission officials to make sure that the mission sets up, organizes and implements the necessary mechanisms and processes to fulfill the functions of the mission. Where appropriate, these mechanisms and processes will conform to the directions given in The Book of Discipline of The United Methodist Church with due attention and care given to necessary adaptation of those provisions as already permitted in the Central Conferences. In the absence of the bishop, a superintendent of the mission shall preside. The presiding officer shall bring forward the regular business of the meeting and arrange the work. The entity or entities establishing a mission, in collaboration with the assigned bishop, will seek a cooperative agreement with an annual conference which will serve as the correspondent annual conference to the mission for the purposes of ordination and conference membership as well as for local pastor licensing.~~

6. ~~The annual meeting of the mission shall have the power to certify candidates for the ordained ministry, to pass on the character of clergy who are not members of an annual conference, to receive and to examine mission pastors and local elders in mission, and to recommend to an annual conference proper persons for provisional or full membership and ordination. The examination of mission pastors and candidates for the local elder in mission shall be held by the mission and certified to an annual confer-~~ ence. The mission shall have the power to recommend to the correspondent annual conference proper persons for provisional or full membership and ordination as deacons or elders.

a) Mission pastors are members of the mission without being members of an annual conference. The mission shall determine the requirements for a mission pastor in order to most effectively utilize the indigenous leadership. Mission pastors are limited in their itineration to the bounds of the mission.

b) Local elders in mission are ordained members of the mission and are not members of an annual conference. The mission shall, in consultation with the bishop assigned to the mission and the General Board of Global Ministries, recommend the requirements for a local elder in mission. Such recommendations for requirements shall be approved by the Division of Ordained Ministry of the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry. Local elders in mission are limited in their itineration and sacramental authority to the bounds of the mission and as such are not eligible to transfer their credentials to another annual conference.

7. The bishop shall, at the annual meeting, assign the missionaries and mission pastors to the several charges for the ensuing year; provided that transfer of missionaries related to the General Board of Global Ministries shall be completed only after consultation with the board. The entity or entities initiating a mission shall be responsible for its administration and development and for making sure that the mission sets up, organizes and implements the necessary mechanisms and processes to fulfill the functions of the mission.

8. Administration, initiation, and coordination of a mission shall be in the General Board of Global Ministries. The board, in consultation with the bishop and mission officials, will coordinate the development and approval of the mission's work plan and budget. Neither the mission nor its officers shall assume financial obligations nor make financial commitments on behalf of the General Board of Global Ministries without the Board's explicit, written authorization.

9. Recommendations for a change of status of a mission shall be made by the entity or entities that established the mission, the General Board of Global Ministries following the procedures established in The Book of Discipline of The United Methodist Church.

Rationale:

Revised ¶ 591 takes into account the new reality that missions are created also by annual conferences in central conferences and establishes their relationship to the General Board of Global Ministries. ¶ 590-593 is a set of

Local Deacons in Mission

Amend ¶ 591.3, 6, 6b), and 7, as follows:

Insert "local deacons in mission" into ¶ 591.3:

3. A mission shall be made up of all regularly appointed missionaries, both lay and clergy, local elders in mission, local deacons in mission, mission pastors, and other lay members.

Insert "local deacons in mission" into ¶ 591.6:

6. The annual meeting of the mission shall have the power to certify candidates for the ordained ministry, to pass on the character of clergy who are not members of an annual conference, to receive mission pastors, and local elders in mission, and local deacons in mission, and to recommend to an annual conference proper persons for provisional membership and ordination. The examination of mission pastors and candidates for the local elder in mission and local deacon in mission shall be held by the mission and certified to an annual conference.

Insert into ¶ 591.6b)

b) Local elders in mission and local deacons in mission are ordained members of the mission and are not members of an annual conference. The mission shall, in consultation with the bishop assigned to the mission and the General Board of Global Ministries, recommend the requirements for a local elder in mission and a local deacon in mission. Such recommendations for requirements shall be approved by the Division of Ordained Ministry of the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry. Local elders in mission and local deacons in mission are limited in their itineration and sacramental authority to the bounds of the mission and as such are not eligible to transfer their credentials to another annual conference.

Insert into ¶ 591.7:

7. The bishop shall, at the annual meeting, assign the missionaries, local elders in mission, local deacons in mission, and mission pastors to the several charges for the ensuing year; provided that transfer of missionaries related to the General Board of Global Ministries shall be completed only after consultation with the board.

Rationale:

The inclusion of local deacons in mission as a category of service within the Missions provides an additional alternative for service. This category, like local elders in mission, is restricted to the Mission. Global Ministries endorses other changes to ¶ 591 submitted by the Standing Committee on Central Conference Matters...

Remove Under Appointment from Local Pastors Description

Amend ¶ 602.1

¶ 602. Composition and Character—1. The clergy membership of an annual conference (¶ 370) shall consist of deacons and elders in full connection (¶ 333), provisional members (¶ 327), associate members, affiliate members (¶¶ 344.4, 586.4), and local pastors ~~under full-time and part-time appointment to a pastoral charge~~ (¶ 317). . .

d) Full-time and part-time local pastors ~~under appointment to a pastoral charge~~ shall have the right to vote in the annual conference . . .

[The same change is necessary in ¶¶ 32, 142, and 370.1. Petitions are submitted for each of these changes.]

Rationale:

“under appointment” is redundant because one must be under appointment in order to be categorized as a local pastor.

Rationale:

This phrase no longer has relevance. Per ¶ 306.1 of the 1992 Book of Discipline (the last edition to have requirements for diaconal ministers), diaconal ministry candidacy shall last no more than 8 years. This maximum expired in 2005.

AC Additional Lay Members

Amend ¶ 602.4: . . . To ensure diversity in the selection of At-Large Delegates, inclusiveness for all shall include but not be limited to—race, gender, age, economic conditions, education levels, veteran status, marital status, sexual orientation, and people with disabilities. At-Large Delegates shall not be selected based solely on age, race, or gender.

Rationale:

The purpose of the proposed change to the Book of Discipline, ¶ 602.4, is to ensure that At-Large Delegates that are chosen for membership in the Annual Conference are a diverse set of delegates based on racial, gender, age, economic conditions, education levels, veteran status, people with disabilities, marital status . . .

The following shall be seated in the annual conference and shall be given the privilege of the floor without vote: official representatives from other denominations; ~~especially from member churches of Churches Uniting in Christ~~, invited by the annual conference; missionaries . . .

This change removes the specific reference to inviting members of Churches Uniting in Christ and in so doing gives this paragraph a more worldwide perspective.

If there are no archives of the annual conference, the secretary shall keep the bound copy or copies or a digital version to be handed on to the succeeding secretary. The conference shall send to its jurisdictional conference or central conference copies of the minutes of the quadrennium for examination.

2. Each annual conference shall send without charge to the General Council on Finance and Administration, the General Board of Pension and Health Benefits, the General Commission on Archives and History, the Central Conference or Jurisdictional Commission on Archives and History, and the Annual Conference Commission on Archives and History two printed copies or a digital version of its annual journal. In addition, the annual conference shall send one printed copy or a digital version of its annual journal to the Connectional Table and one printed copy or a digital version to United Methodist Communications. If available, one copy of a digital version of the journal shall be sent to the General Commission on Archives and History and one copy to United Methodist Communications.

AC Lay Leader in Appointment Making

Amend paragraph ¶ 607.6 as indicated following:

¶ 607.6. The conference lay leader shall be given the opportunity to meet with the cabinet when matters relating to clergy appointments or the coordination, implementation, or administration of the conference program, or other matters as the cabinet may determine are on the agenda.

Rationale:

¶ 33 prohibits most lay members of the conference from voting on conference relations of clergy, but it does not say anything about appointments or the appointment process. It is time to empower a lay voice in appointment making of the annual conference at the level of the cabinet.

Director of Connectional Ministries

Add new sub-paragraph after ¶ 608.6 (b) and move the current ¶ 608.6 (c) to become ¶ 608.6 (d).

c) The director of connectional ministries may also serve as assistant to the bishop.

⇒ d) In partnership with the bishop . . .

Rationale:

The Director of Connectional Ministries usually ends up assisting the bishop in enhancing the connectional ministries through the development and embodiment of the vision of the conference. Several annual conferences are already combining the duties of the Assistant to the Bishop and the Director of Connectional Ministries.

Permissiveness in AC Structure - DCM

For the purpose of empowering the annual conferences to determine their own agenda and structure amend as follows:

Amend ¶ 608 as follows:

¶ 608.6. providing for advocacy and monitoring functions to ensure that the church is consistent with its stated values.

It is recommended that each annual conference have a director of connectional ministries or designated person to focus and guide the mission and ministry of The United Methodist Church within the annual conference.

a) The director may be lay or clergy.

b) The director, if such a position is created and filled, shall serve as an officer of the annual conference and shall sit with the cabinet when the cabinet considers matters relating to coordination, implementation, or administration of the conference program, and other matters as the cabinet and director may determine. Whether appointed or elected to this position, the director, if such a position is created and filled, shall be amenable to the bishop, in consultation with the appropriate annual conference personnel body.

c) In partnership with the bishop and cabinet and the elected leadership of the conference, the director of connectional ministries, if such a position is created and filled, shall have the following primary responsibilities:

Mother-Child Resource List

Amend ¶ 608.6.c.2 of the Book of Discipline as follows:

Add new sub-paragraph after 608.6.c.2: a) Because we affirm the sacred worth of all people and because this affirmation is tied directly to our continual transformation and renewal, we strongly recommend that the conference staffer known as director of connectional ministries or another individual specified by the annual conference compile a list of crisis pregnancy centers and pregnancy resources centers, within the boundaries of the annual conference, that compassionately help women facing unplanned pregnancies find feasible alternatives to abortion. Such lists should be compiled on at least a quadrennial basis, in consultation with such other appropriate leaders of the annual conference as the conference council on young adult ministries. This list would be made available, in conjunction with the conference staffer known as the director of communications or another applicable individual as specified by the annual conference, to district committees, charges, and pastors.

Rationale:

Allows the Discipline to pragmatically care for women facing unplanned pregnancies while still maintaining that unborn human life is of equal sacred worth. This would also give individuals at the local and district level the tools to, in practice, maintain all aspects of our Disciplinary language.

Meeting Accessibility

Amend ¶ 610.4 as follows:

. . . The annual conference is responsible for structuring its ministries and administrative procedures in order to accomplish its purpose . . . It will monitor to insure inclusiveness—racial, gender, age, and people with disabilities—in the annual conference.

4. ~~Whenever possible,~~ Every effort shall be made to ensure that all meetings scheduled by the annual conference and its districts, boards, or committees ~~should~~ will be held in places that are accessible to persons with disabilities even if this means scheduling meetings outside church-related facilities.

Rationale:

The Discipline specifies that there shall be no discrimination based on disabilities, yet ¶ 610.4 is not sufficiently strong to ensure that people with disabilities can participate in meetings of the annual conference, its districts, boards, and committees. Adopting this petition ensures that the intent of the paragraph is met.

Schedules of Young People

Add the following after current ¶ 610 .7:

8. Whenever possible, meetings scheduled by the annual conference and its districts, boards, or committees shall be held at a time and place that accommodates young people's schooling schedules.

Rationale:

Often times when young people are placed on a committee, these committees hold meetings during school hours. This makes it impossible for the voice of young people to be heard. This petition asks the church to try to work around the schooling schedules of the young people on their committees.

Permissiveness in AC Structure - Connectional Parallels

For the purpose of empowering the annual conferences to determine their own agenda and structure amend ¶ 610 as follows:

¶ 610. The annual conference is responsible for structuring its ministries and administrative procedures in order to accomplish its purpose (¶ 601), with the exception of the mandated provisions of ¶¶ 611, 635, 636, 637, 639, 640, 647, 648. In so doing it ~~shall~~ should provide for the connectional relationship of the local church, district, and conference with the general agencies. . . .

1. Annual conferences are permitted the flexibility to design conference and district structures in ways that best support the mission of making disciples of Jesus Christ in an increasingly diverse global community and that place secondary any prescribed structure, except for the mandated entities in ¶ 610 above. In doing so, an annual conference ~~shall~~ should provide for the functions and General Conference connections with all general agencies provided by the Discipline as follows: a) There ~~shall~~ should be clear connections between the General Conference agencies, annual conference program and administrative entities, and the local congregations. These connections ~~shall~~ may be identified in the business questions of the annual conference each year. b) There shall be clear checks and balances regarding program functions and financial/administration functions within the annual conference. These structural matters will be defined and approved by the annual conference session.

6. Members of general agencies (¶ 701) shall serve as ex officio members of the corresponding annual conference agency or its equivalent structure where such agencies or structures are created (see ¶ 710.4, .5).

Update of Terminology

Amend Discipline ¶ 653.2.e

It shall be the responsibility of this committee:

e) To foster cooperation among ministries within the annual conference that focus on specific disabilities (D/deaf, deafened, hard of hearing, ~~development~~ developmental disabilities, ~~mental-retardation~~ intellectual disabilities, mental illness, visual impairment, physical disabilities, etc.).

Rationale:

This amendment proposes to correct an incorrect term and replace an outdated term. It also changes “deaf” to “D/deaf” to include both those who are part of the Deaf culture and those who are not.

Jurisdictional Study Committee

If paragraphs 37 and 39 are amended by Petition 60058, then following the certification of these changes, the Council of Bishops shall appoint a Jurisdictional Study Committee to examine the best number of jurisdictions and their boundaries. It shall report its recommendation to the 2020 General Conference. If paragraphs 37 and 39 are not changed, no committee shall be appointed. The voting membership of the committee shall be composed as follows:

- Bishops: the president, president-elect and secretary of the Council of Bishops or their designees
- 9 clergy and 9 lay persons, chosen from the five jurisdictions in proportion to their delegate representation in the 2016 General Conference.

The ethnic balance in the committee's membership should reflect the ethnic make-up of the UMC's US lay membership as much as possible. The committee's membership should be as balanced between men and women as possible.

Funding for the meeting expenses of the episcopal members will come from the Episcopal Fund, and funding for the other members will come from the General Administration Fund.

Rationale:

If constitutional amendments to paragraphs 37 and 39 pass, The Council of Bishops should appoint a study committee to examine the best number and boundaries of jurisdictions for consideration at the 2020 General Conference.

Limitation on Resolutions

All future Resolutions being considered for adoption to be included in the Book of Resolutions shall be limited to 650 words, or 2 pages, whichever is less. Any existing (previously approved) resolutions that are being considered for re-adoption, or renewal, shall be condensed, as necessary, to conform to the same standard.

Rationale:

The current Book of Resolutions is almost 1,100 pages and has become too large and redundant to be an effective ministry tool. It is no longer a useful reference because of its size, the length of many Resolutions, and the duplication that exists among many of the Resolutions. This petition . . .

General Book of Discipline - Draft

General Book of Discipline – draft of Part VI, chapters 1-4+6

Following the mandate given in the Book of Discipline 2012, ¶ 101, the Standing Committee on Central Conference Matters presents to the 2016 General Conference the draft of a General Book of Discipline, Part VI, chapters 1-4+6, based on the Book of Discipline 2012. The draft comes in partial fulfillment of the mandate and will be completed with Part VI, chapters 5+7, during the quadrennium 2017-2020.

The 2016 General Conference celebrates the progress achieved in clarifying what is “distinctively connective” in a worldwide United Methodist Church. It approves the direction taken by the Standing Committee as the draft gives a sample of an upcoming “General Book of Discipline” which will be submitted to the 2020 General Conference for legislative action. It invites The United Methodist Church to live into our worldwide covenant and to confer on a Book of Discipline that truly enables mission and ministry in diverse, worldwide contexts. General Conference asks for a churchwide consultation process on the draft of a “General Book of Discipline, Part VI, Chapters 1–4+6,” presented to the 2016 General Conference, in all annual conferences of The United Methodist Church. Consultations shall be done according to the outline given by the Standing Committee and with feedback to the Standing Committee until the end of 2017.

The feedback shall inform the Standing Committee in preparing a revised draft of these chapters, based on the Book of Discipline 2016, as part of a “General Book of Discipline” to be submitted to the 2020 General Conference.

Financial Implications

The financial implications are linked to the collaboration with the Committee on Faith and Order and pay the costs for the Standing Committee members participating in these collaboration meetings with USD 26,000 for the quadrennium. The increase is being requested from the General Administration Fund Contingency, from which the initial work was funded.

Text of Draft

The Draft of the General Book of Discipline is available in Volume 2, Section 4 of the Advance Daily Christian Advocate.

Rationale:

Living into the future as a worldwide church needs a deliberate process of consultation and conferencing for moving forward together. The petition affirms the direction of the draft for a General Book of Discipline and asks for a consultation process in annual conferences. Such a consultation process will be essential...

Petition Number: 60816-CO-NonDis-!-G; Barker, Amy Valdez - Chicago, IL, USA for Connectional Table.

Jurisdictional Process

The General Conference shall direct each U.S. jurisdiction, as part of the 2016 jurisdictional conference meetings, to select a committee made up of one representative from each annual conference in the jurisdiction to discuss and formulate recommendations to the Connectional Table and the Standing Committee on Central Conference Matters regarding how United Methodist conferences in the United States should deliberate on matters that only pertain to conferences and churches in the United States. Each committee shall select a chair to ensure the scheduling and facilitation of meetings, recording and distribution of meeting minutes, and communication with the Connectional Table. The jurisdictional conference is encouraged to strive for diversity on the committee with regard to clergy/laity status, gender, ability, age, and race/ethnicity.

Each of the five jurisdictional committees shall elect two persons to participate on a steering committee. The steering committee will work to ensure consistent conversation topics and decisions among the jurisdictions, set a basic meeting schedule and timeline. It is recommended that the steering committee consider consistent methodologies for data collection and surveying of leaders throughout annual conferences in the U.S. The steering committee shall include three central conference Connectional Table members to be selected by the central conference

College of Bishops.

The makeup of the Steering Committee on the Jurisdictional Process would be:

10 jurisdictional representatives: 2—Northeast Jurisdiction, 2—Southeast Jurisdiction, 2—North Central Jurisdiction, 2—South Central Jurisdiction, 2—Western Jurisdiction

3 central conference members from the Connectional Table membership: 1 from the Philippines, 1 from Africa, and 1 from Europe.

The Connectional Table (CT) will convene the steering committee to ensure the flow of information and communication and serve as a liaison to the general Church in support of the jurisdictional committees. The expenses of elected jurisdictional steering committee members to attend meetings would be borne by the jurisdictions. The CT would be responsible for expenses related to the central conference members participating in the steering committee.

The steering committee shall send a final report to the CT at the end of 2018 in order for the Standing Committee on Central Conference Matters to know how the U.S. proposes to deliberate on issues only relevant within the U.S. If necessary, the CT may convene a meeting of the full jurisdictional committees mid-quadrennium for further discussion among the jurisdictions.

Covenant Guiding Steering Committee's Work

The work of each jurisdictional committee and the steering committee shall be guided by the covenant found in ¶ 125 of the 2012 Book of Discipline. It begins: "United Methodists throughout the world are bound together in a connectional covenant in which we support and hold each other accountable for faithful discipleship and mission. Integrally holding connectional unity and local freedom, we seek to proclaim and embody the gospel in ways responsible to our specific cultural and social context while maintaining 'a vital web of interactive relationships'" . . . and also states: "For our connectionalism to become a living practice, we need to carry the worldwide nature of The United Methodist Church deep into the life and mission of our local congregations. Only when we commit ourselves to interdependent worldwide partnerships in prayer, mission, and worship can connectionalism, as a Wesleyan ecclesial vision, be fully embodied" (¶ 125).

As we strive to live into the covenant—into the vision set before United Methodist churches in the U.S.—we are guided and grounded by three core values articulated in ¶ 125 through our worldwide covenant, which are: 1) greater alignment of the connection for the mission of making disciples of Jesus Christ; 2) deeper connections throughout the Church; and 3) more equitable sharing of our God-given gifts.

Rationale:

The 2012 report of the UMC Worldwide Nature Study Committee recommended changes toward becoming a worldwide church, including creating a U.S. central conference. The CT engaged questions about how/where the U.S. church makes decisions, but needs jurisdictional leaders to engage more deeply toward recommendations for a General Book of Discipline.

Petition Number: 60900-CO-NonDis-G; Whittaker, Michelle C. - Silver Spring, MD, USA.

Ranked Choice Voting

Annual conferences shall use ranked choice voting when there are more than two nominees for a conference board or delegation being elected.

Ranked choice voting is a process of ranking nominees in order of preference (first choice, second choice, third choice, and so on). All first choices are counted, and nominees with the fewest votes are eliminated. If a voter's first choice is eliminated, their vote instantly goes to the voter's next choice. Receiving a majority of votes elects nominees for a single position and nominees for multiple positions (like a conference board or delegation) are elected in proportion to the number of votes they receive.

Rationale:

The Constitution of The United Methodist Church calls for a "fair and open process" for electing delegates to General Conference (§ 13. Article 1.2) and to elect members to serve on annual conference boards and commissions, but does not specify the method of election. Many elections at the annual conference . . .

Defer Reduction in US Episcopal Areas

The 2016 General Conference of The United Methodist Church at Portland, Oregon, will defer all decisions to reduce the number of episcopal areas and the number of bishops in all five U.S. Jurisdictional Conferences (being proposed for 2016) to the 2020 General Conference. This means the reduction of the number of episcopal areas and number of bishops' reduction in the United States will be put on hold for a quadrennium, until 2020.

The leadership of our Council of Bishops or the five Colleges of Bishops, the Connectional Table and the Inter-Jurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy would use the 2016-2019 quadrennium to create and present a detailed report on missional priority and strategy to the 2020 General Conference. The report is to include, but not limited to the analysis of: historical perspectives, current reality, demographic changing trends, emerging missional reasons/values, financial implications, changes to the jurisdictional conferences' boundaries, and the number of jurisdictions in the U.S., and also include specific recommendations, and a strategic implementation plan.

Rationale:

In light of the current reality and changing demographic trends in the U.S., it's time to make missional values a priority and a criterion for the future health, growth, and vitality of our annual conferences in the U.S., within the framework of the jurisdictional conferences.

Global Connectional Conference - Concept Proposal

Be it resolved that:

1. This concept proposal be adopted by the General Conference.

2. The General Conference shall establish an inclusive task force (hereinafter "Task Force") to write detailed legislation, consistent with concept proposal adopted by the GC2016, for submission to the 2020 General Conference.

3. The Task Force shall consist of a total of 15 members, named by the Connectional Table, and convened as an independent body before December 1, 2016. The 15-member Task Force shall include one member from each jurisdiction and central conference who are not already members of the Connectional Table; one bishop identified by the Council of Bishops; one member of the Connectional Table; and one member of the Standing Committee on Central Conference Matters. The Connectional Table shall identify one of these 15 individuals to chair the task force. The Connectional Table may name up to four additional members with voice but not vote: a general secretary of a general agency; a member of the NEJ Global Structure Task Force, a person with skills in writing the needed legislation, and a person with marketing skills. Although the task force may need some face-to-face meetings, it will meet primarily via electronic means.

4. The Task Force shall seek feedback from the Connectional Table, the Standing Committee on Central Conference Matters, the Council of Bishops, and The United Methodist Church and shall provide annual updates. The Task Force shall also develop and implement a plan to actively inform the denomination about its progress and the legislation needed to implement the concept proposal adopted by General Conference 2016. The Connectional Table shall review the final legislation and submit it directly to the 2020 General Conference.

5. $300,000 shall be added to the Connectional Table's 2016-2020 quadrennial budget specifically for the work of this task force.

Background

The 2012 NEJ Conference authorized the creation of the Task Force to develop recommendations regarding the global structure of The United Methodist Church. The Task Force was appointed by the College of Bishops in mid-2013 . . .

The core values discerned by the Task Force guided its work:

- Be Christ Focused—The denominational structure should reflect the teachings of and empower the mission of Jesus Christ.

- Embody Structural Fairness—The denominational structure should provide for greater global equality in the church around access to services, participation in structures, and shaping the agenda of The United Methodist Church. Any plan should provide for an equitable global resourcing and distribution of apportioned funds.

- Extend Community—Everyone, everywhere must be welcome and safe in The United Methodist Church. Any new structure must honor non-essential differences and defend the essential dignity and worth of all God's children.

The Task Force worked with other groups across the denomination that were also addressing aspects of the global structure: the Connectional Table, the Standing Committee on Central Conference Matters, and jurisdictional groups in the Western and North Central Jurisdictions. The Task Force distributed two preliminary proposals to these groups and to each of the annual conferences within the NEJ, seeking their consideration and feedback. Revisions were made based on input received.

In summary, this proposal recommends that:

- The General Conference be renamed The Global Connectional Conference, which will be similar to General Conference, except that it will ONLY deal with global issues and will be responsible for a Global Book of Discipline.

- The UMC will be organized into four continent-wide “connections”: Africa, Asia, Europe, and North America.

- Each of the four connections will have the option of organizing into regions. Each connection will be responsible for its own, connection-wide Book of Discipline, relevant to matters that are not global.

- Annual conferences will remain the same.

United Methodist Church Global Structure Concept Proposal

The NEJ Global Structure Task Force has developed this proposal for the 2016 General Conference to consider and to designate a representative task force or committee to write the legislation needed to implement its provisions.

An Equitable Global Structure:

A. United Methodist Global Connection

1. The United Methodist Global Connection shall be responsible for global matters pertaining to The United Methodist Church and will not address non-global matters relating to individual connections in Africa, Asia, Europe, or North America.

2. The Global Connection shall be responsible for:

a. Constitution of The United Methodist Church

b. Global Book of Discipline

c. Global Social Principles

d. Global Connectional budget

e. Global responsibilities of the current General Conference as defined in the 2012 Book of Discipline and in actions of previous general conferences, except for those matters delegated elsewhere

f. Hearing reports about ministry successes and challenges from each connection and providing opportunities for the discussion of global issues

g. Number and boundaries of United Methodist connections

h. Definition of the powers and roles of connectional, regional, annual, missionary, district, and charge conferences

i. Number of episcopal areas within each of the United Methodist connections

j. Definition of the powers, duties, and privileges of episcopal leaders

k. Decisions regarding the funding of connectional and regional conferences

l. Global agency statements of purpose, accountability to statements of purpose, and sizes and makeup of global agency boards of directors.

m. Definition of the powers and duties of elders, deacons, supply pastors, local pastors, deaconesses, and home missionaries

n. Definition of the conditions, privileges, and duties of church membership

o. Standards for the election of delegates to the Global Connectional Conference

3. The Global Connectional Conference shall replace the General Conference, which currently “has full legislative power over all matters distinctively connectional. . . . It has no executive or administrative power.” (§ 501)

a. The Global Connectional Conference shall focus on global matters during its quadrennial meeting, which shall last less than two weeks.

b. The Global Connectional Conference shall be constituted in the same way as the current General Conference, shall be assigned responsibilities that are similar to the current General Conference, shall be subjected to the same Restrictive Rules as the current General Conference, and shall function in ways that are similar to the current General Conference. (§§ 13-16 and §§ 501-511).

c. The Global Connectional Conference shall consist of 600-1000 delegates with an equal number of lay and clergy delegates elected by annual conferences and missionary conferences. The formula for determining the number of delegates from each annual conference shall be the same for all annual conferences and missionary conferences, with the provision that each annual conference and missionary conference shall elect at least one lay and one clergy delegate.

d. Concordat churches, affiliated autonomous Methodist churches, and affiliated united churches may elect delegates to the Global Connectional Conference:

—The Methodist Church in Great Britain may elect four delegates with voice and vote. The United Methodist Church may send two delegates each year to the British Methodist Conference.

—Other concordat churches may elect two delegates with voice and vote.

—Affiliated autonomous Methodist churches and affiliated united churches may elect two delegates with voice and without vote. If such a church has more than 70,000 full members it is entitled to send three delegates with voice but not vote.

4. The Council of Bishops, the Global Judicial Council, and the global agencies shall serve the entire United Methodist Global Connection.

a. The Council of Bishops shall continue to have similar responsibilities and shall function in ways that are similar to the current Council of Bishops (§§ 47-54 and §§ 401-442).

b. The Global Judicial Council shall continue to have similar responsibilities and shall function in ways that are similar to the current Judicial Council (§§ 55-58 and §§ 2601-2612). In addition, it shall have the option to review all decisions by connection judicial committees and regional committees on appeal. It shall also handle matters that reference both the Global Book of Discipline and one or more connectional books of discipline.

c. The agencies which the Global Connection defines as global shall be structured to fully serve all of the connections and shall establish boards of directors with members equitably distributed across all regions of the Global Connection.

B. United Methodist Connections (Africa, Asia, Europe, and North America)

1. A United Methodist Connection shall be established in each of the following: Africa, Asia, Europe, and North America. Each connection shall focus on the church’s mission from the perspectives of the regions within the connection by understanding and addressing the contextual implications of nations, cultures, languages, and other important realities.

2. Each connection shall be responsible for:

a. A connectional Book of Discipline

b. Authorizing provisions within its connectional Book of Discipline to accommodate the specific needs of the regions within its purview

c. Defining needs for the presence and roles of agencies within the connection

d. Connectional-specific agencies: agency statements of purpose, accountability to agency statements of purpose, and sizes and make-up of connectional-specific agency boards of directors

e. Number and boundaries of regions within the connection

f. Episcopal matters: tenure, process of election, methods of assignment, retirement plans, itineracy, and standards of conduct

g. Clergy standards: process for ordination, conference relationship, and clergy membership

h. Financial matters: connection’s budget, pensions, distribution of funds to support regional conferences

i. Legislation to the Global Connectional Conference regarding the Global Book of Discipline

3. If a connection is organized without regions, the roles and responsibilities of the region shall be added to the roles and responsibilities of that connection.

4. The connectional conferences shall meet quadrennially prior to the Global Connectional Conference.

a. Each connectional conference shall consist of the delegates to the Global Connectional Conference from the connection with the provision that no connection conference shall have less than 100 delegates. Additional delegates where needed shall be elected according to the same process, and may be the delegates that were elected to the regional conferences within the connection.

b. Connectional conferences shall be organized in ways similar to the Global Connectional Conference and shall function in similar ways.

5. The connectional College of Bishops, connectional judicial committee, connectional-specific agencies, and global agencies with a presence in a connection shall serve that connection.

a. The connectional College of Bishops shall be responsible for leading the connection and shall function in ways similar to the current colleges of bishops. (§§ 48, 51, and 52).

b. The connectional judicial committee will deal with questions of law relating to its connection's books of discipline

c. The connectional-specific agencies shall be accountable to the connectional conference and their boards of directors shall be elected by the regional conferences in the connection.

d. Any global agencies with a presence within a connection shall be organized to be responsive to the needs of the connection and shall be accountable to the connectional conference and the global agency's board of directors..

C. Regions

1. Regions shall be established geographically and all regional conferences shall have the same authority and responsibilities.

2. Current jurisdictional conferences and central conferences shall become 12 regions:

a. United Methodist Connection in Africa—three regions:

African Region, Congo Region, and West Africa Region

b. United Methodist Connection in Asia—one region: Philippines Region

c. United Methodist Connection in Europe—three regions:

Central/Southern Europe Region, German Region, and Northern Europe and Eurasia Region

d. United Methodist Connection in the North America—five regions:

North Central Region, Northeastern Region, South Central Region, Southeastern Region, and Western Region

3. Regions will be responsible for:

a. Promotion of the evangelistic, educational, missionary, and benevolent interests of the Church and to provide for interests and institutions within its boundaries

b. Number and boundaries of annual conferences

c. Boundaries of episcopal areas

d. Election and assignment of bishops

e. Election of members to global and connectional agency boards and regional committees

f. Legislation to the Global Connectional Conference regarding the Global Book of Discipline

g. Legislation to its connectional conference regarding the connectional Book of Discipline

h. Regional budget

i. Organizing as needed to accomplish its work

4. Regional conference meetings will be conducted quadrennially within one year following the meeting of the Global Connectional Conference.

a. The number of delegates and composition guidelines of regional conferences will be determined by the Global Connectional Conference. Regional conference membership will consist of equal numbers of laity and clergy and no regional conference shall have less than 100 members.

b. The delegates to the Global Connectional Conference shall be considered the first delegates from an annual conference elected to a regional conference.

5. The regional college of bishops and the regional committees will serve the Church within the region.

a. The regional college of bishops will continue to have the same roles as defined in the 2012 Book of Discipline. (§§ 48, 51, and 52).

b. The region will establish at least the following committees to support its work:

—Regional committee on appeals to hear and decide the appeal of a clergy person or a bishop following the decision of a trial committee, and —Regional committee on the episcopacy to fulfill the provisions in § 524.3 of the 2012 Book of Discipline.

D. Annual Conferences

1. The current configuration of annual conferences across each connection will be retained, unless altered by the region or connection.

2. Annual conferences will be responsible for electing delegates to the Global Connectional Conference, the connectional conference, and the regional conference.

3. The annual conference purpose, composition, organization, responsibilities, and agencies will remain unchanged, unless adapted by its connectional conference. (§§ 32-36 and §§ 601-657).

FINANCIAL IMPLICATIONS:

The actual incremental costs of this proposal will be dependent upon the structure finally adopted by General Conference.

There will probably be some additional costs related to connectional conferences, committees, etc., but these costs may be offset by a possible reduction in costs related to the meeting of the Global Connection. If the business of the North America connection is removed from the agenda of the Global Connectional Conference, the duration of that meeting will be less than the current General Conference, perhaps by three or four days, resulting in a reduction in costs for that meeting.

The most significant increase in costs will probably involve the meetings of the connectional conferences. This proposal would require each connectional conference to meet quadrennially, prior to the Global Connectional Conference. Depending upon when and where the connectional conferences meet, the incremental cost of these meetings is estimated to be between US$300,000 and US$1,000,000. GCFA will be asked to develop more accurate cost projections.

Any incremental cost increases will also need to be examined in the context of the overall budget for the 2016 General Conference budget of over US$10 million.

Rationale:

The Proposal to Restructure the Global UMC—concept proposal offers General Conference 2016 an opportunity to reshape the proposal before detailed legislation is developed. The proposed structure is Christ focused, extends community, and provides greater global equality around access to services, participation in structures, and shaping the UMC's agenda.

Plan of Separation

WHEREAS, The United Methodist Church is embroiled in an irresolvable conflict over issues of theology and moral teaching, and

WHEREAS, this conflict is causing harm to individuals and groups within the church, in contravention of our General Rule to “do no harm,” and

WHEREAS, it would be better for the cause of Christ and the mission and health of the church if this conflict were resolved, allowing attention and resources that are currently employed in the conflict to be redirected to the church's mission, and

WHEREAS, we believe that the only lasting way to resolve this conflict is through an amicable parting of the church into two or more different entities,

Therefore, be it resolved, that the 2016 General Conference enacts the following plan of separation, pleading for all members to conduct themselves with the utmost of Christlike grace, charity, and generosity toward one another.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT (requires 2/3 vote)

All conflicting provisions of the Constitution and Book of Discipline are hereby suspended for the purpose of implementing a plan of separation. The separation shall make available at least two new entities, one providing full inclusion for LGBTQ persons in marriage and ordination, and another maintaining the church's current teaching and provisions regarding marriage and ordination for LGBTQ persons. Additional entities may be proposed by groups during the initial implementation. Provisions that do not conflict with implementation of the plan shall continue in force until the termination of The United Methodist Church is declared. At the conclusion of the implementation process, all assets and liabilities of The United Methodist Church shall have been equitably divided among the two or more entities, which shall become the successor denominations, and The United Methodist Church shall cease to exist.

IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION (requires majority vote)

The following process is enacted to implement the constitutional amendment permitting a plan of separation. The secretary of the General Conference shall work with the bishops to ensure that voting on the ratification of this constitutional amendment begins with the regularly scheduled annual conference sessions after September 1, 2016, and is completed by August 31, 2017. The Council of Bishops shall certify whether or not this amendment has been adopted at its meeting in fall 2017.

1. The Council of Bishops shall oversee the implementation of the plan and serve as a clearing house of information for clergy and congregations desiring to affiliate with an entity different from the one chosen by their annual conference.

2. Founding Teams—In anticipation of the approval of the constitutional amendment, the 2016 General Conference shall (subsequent to approving the amendment by the required two-thirds vote) elect a ten-person team for each new entity that desires to form, consisting of four laypersons who are General Conference delegates, four clergypersons who are General Conference delegates, and two bishops. Nominations shall be taken in writing to the General Conference secretary as a slate of ten for each entity, beginning after the adoption of the amendment and concluding in time for the slates to be published at least 24 hours prior to the election being held. Accompanying each slate shall be a brief statement of the distinctive formative principles of the entity proposed to be formed by that slate. Each new entity group is responsible to ensure that its slate consists of persons who agree to the formative principles of that proposed entity. The plenary session of General Conference shall determine by majority vote whether or not to certify each slate and proposed entity as put forward without change.

3. Descriptive Documents—In the 16 months following General Conference, each team shall write and approve a vision and mission description for its particular entity, including a one-page summary. These documents shall be the initial guide for decision making by bishops, annual conferences, clergy, congregations, and church institutions about the entity with which they will affiliate. The descriptive documents shall be publicly released at the time when the Council of Bishops certifies that the constitutional amendment has been ratified.

4. Episcopal Affiliation—a) No more than 60 days following the certification of the constitutional amendment enabling the plan to go forward, each active and retired United Methodist bishop shall elect to relate to one of the entities described in the descriptive documents (Part 3). These selections shall be compiled by the Council of Bishops and made public at the conclusion of the 60 days. Bishops shall relate to both the new entity and their former geographical jurisdiction until the transition is completed.

b) Following the 60 days, the College of Bishops for each new entity may convene and begin working with the corresponding Founding Team to plan for the new entity.

5. Annual Conference Affiliation—a) By December 31, 2018, votes shall be held by secret ballot in each annual conference as to which new entity that annual conference will hereafter belong. A simple majority vote shall suffice. The vote of each annual conference shall be confirmed by the Council of Bishops and be final. If the annual conference does not cast a majority vote for joining any of the new entities, the annual conference shall affiliate with the entity that receives the plurality of votes, and the assets and liabilities of the conference shall be divided among the relevant entities under Part 11.

b) Each annual conference shall also elect a delegation to the organizing conference of their selected entity, consisting of the same number of delegates who were elected to the previous General Conference. If clergy are elected who later indicate their desire to affiliate with another entity, these clergy become ineligible to serve. Lay members elected become ineligible to serve if the local church to which they belong votes to affiliate with another entity. Annual conferences shall elect sufficient numbers of reserve delegates to ensure a full delegation. Legislation may be proposed by each annual conference for the organizational conference of their new entity.

6. Congregational Affiliation—a) Congregations will automatically continue to belong to the annual conference to which they previously belonged unless the congregation takes action to change affiliations. Congregations who dissent from the affiliation of their annual conference will have until August 31, 2019 to indicate, by majority secret ballot vote of a duly called church conference (§ 248), their decision to be placed in an annual conference of another entity. If the congregation does not cast a majority vote for joining any of the new entities, the congregation shall affiliate with the entity that receives the plurality of votes. Any minority group within a congregation may organize a new congregation affiliating with a different entity. All dissenting congregations shall remain part of their former annual conference until the conclusion of the organizing conference of the new entity.

b) Churches wishing to change affiliation to another entity after August 31, 2019, may do so only under the provisions of the entity to which they belong at the time and the entity with which they desire to affiliate.

c) The dissenting churches in each annual conference shall convene a conference for their entity, consisting of the lay members of the original annual conference from those congregations or their elected substitutes, along with those clergy who have indicated their desire to affiliate with that entity. This special conference shall take place between October 1 and December 31, 2019. This special conference shall elect one clergy and one lay delegate and alternates to serve at the entity's organizing conference.

7. Clergy Affiliation—a) Clergy shall have until September 30, 2019 to notify their bishop of their desire to serve in another entity. Their bishop shall forward the names of these clergy to the College of Bishops of the receiving entity. Conference membership will continue in the former conference until a transfer to another annual conference is complete.

b) Subsequent to their original affiliation, but at least 30 days prior to the organizing conference of the new entity, clergy may elect to switch affiliation, but it shall require the approval of a majority of the Founding Team and college of bishops of the new entity (voting as one body). After that 30-day deadline or after the new entity has formed, clergy may elect to withdraw from their original entity to unite with another one under the provisions of their original entity and conditioned upon the provisions of the new entity they wish to join.

c) All pension benefits earned by clergy persons in The United Methodist Church shall remain intact in whatever successor entity they affiliate with, backed by the assets of the General Board of Pensions and Health Benefits or its successor organization(s) and the successor(s) of the clergy person's former annual conference.

8. Organizing Conferences—a) The colleges of bishops of the respective new entities shall call a special organizing conference for each of the new entities. The conferences shall take place during May 2020.

b) At the organizing conference for each entity, the constitution and bylaws (Book of Discipline) of the entity shall be adopted. The entity shall determine whether to continue with bishops and annual conferences, and if so, how they shall be configured. Each entity shall provide for supervision, connection, and pastoral assignment over the area of countries in which the entity has congregations.

c) Each entity shall create a system for assisting clergy desiring to change affiliation in obtaining membership status in the new entity, in obtaining an appointment in the new entity, and/or in obtaining a transitional appointment. Clergy may continue to serve in an entity other than the new one with which they desire to affiliate until a suitable appointment is found in their new entity. During the time of this transitional appointment, they shall abide by the provisions of the entity in which they are appointed.

9. Institutional Affiliation—Any church-related institution that is affiliated with, but not owned by, an annual or jurisdictional conference must choose their affiliation and relationship to the church following the organizing of the new entities and the possible redrawing of annual conference boundaries. The institution, by its own internal processes, may choose to continue affiliation with the successor annual, jurisdictional, or central conference with which it was previously affiliated, change its affiliation to a new entity, seek affiliation in multiple entities at the same time, or remove its church affiliation entirely. An institution's request to affiliate with a different entity or annual, jurisdictional, or central conference other than the successor to its original conference is contingent upon approval by that entity or conference.

10. Congregational Property—The trust clause of each local congregation's property shall be held and administered by the entity with which the local church chooses to affiliate (§§ 2501, 2503). Any of the new entities may choose to modify or dispense with the trust clause entirely. All assets and liabilities previously incurred by a local congregation shall remain with that congregation in its new affiliation, based on the majority or plurality vote of the church conference. This provision shall not, however, preclude a voluntary negotiation dividing some or all of the congregation's assets and liabilities among separating portions of the congregation.

11. Annual Conference Property—Assets and liabilities held by an annual conference shall remain with that conference. Local churches and clergy withdrawing from an annual conference to join a new entity are relinquishing any individual share of the assets or liabilities of that conference, except for pension liabilities owed to clergy. Where the conference's affiliation vote under Part 5(a) is less than 75 percent, the conference's assets and liabilities shall be divided proportionally between the en-ties involved, based on the number of original professing members who are members of each new entity as of May 30, 2020. The assets so divided shall be no less than, and the liabilities so divided no greater than, the amounts on the books at the time the new entities are organized (May 30, 2020).

12. Jurisdictional or Central Conference Property—Assets and liabilities held by former jurisdictions and central conferences of The United Methodist Church shall be assumed by the entity chosen by plurality vote of the aggregate number of members in the several annual conferences of that former jurisdiction or central conference. Where the aggregate affiliation vote is less than 75 percent, the conference's assets and liabilities shall be divided proportionally between the entities involved, based on the number of original professing members who are members of each new entity as of May 30, 2020. The assets so divided shall be no less than, and the liabilities so divided no greater than, the amounts on the books at the time the new entities are organized (May 30, 2020).

13. General Church Property—a) Assets and liabilities held by agencies of The United Methodist Church shall be recorded as of May 30, 2020. These assets and liabilities shall be divided among the various new entities based on the number of original professing members joining each new entity as of May 30, 2020.

b) The General Board of Pension and Health Benefits, Publishing House, and/or United Methodist Committee on Relief may choose to become independent non-profit corporations that serve more than one of the new entities that are formed. Such a decision shall require a two-thirds (2/3) vote of its board of directors and a majority vote of the organizing conference of each new entity to be served. Assets and liabilities held by these agencies (serving at least two of the new entities) shall not be divided between the entities that are being served by them, but held by the agency in order to continue serving. If all the new entities are not being served by a given agency, its assets and liabilities shall be divided between the agency itself and the new entities it is not serving, based on the number of original professing members who are members of each new entity as of May 30, 2020.

14. Arbitration—a) At all levels (annual conference up through general church), division of assets and liabilities shall be accomplished through negotiation among the parties involved, taking care to honor the restrictions imposed upon designated funds and trusts. Accounting firms and/or mediators may be employed in this process, with the costs thereof shared by the entities involved at whatever level.

b) Disputes over the division of assets and liabilities shall be settled in binding arbitration by the Judicial Council. Each annual, jurisdictional, or central conference or new entity shall present its case in written form, and the Council shall make the final determination of an equitable division of assets and liabilities. The expenses of any special meetings or travel incurred by the Council for such purposes shall be borne by the conferences engaging in arbitration. The decision of the Council is final and shall not be appealed to the secular courts. The Judicial Council shall complete its arbitration decisions by December 31, 2022.

c) Disputes over proper implementation of this plan may be appealed to the Jurisdictional Committee on Appeals and then to the Judicial Council by the parties involved. Costs of such appeals are to be shared by the parties. The decision of the Judicial Council is final and shall not be appealed to the secular courts.

c) Distribution of assets and liabilities shall take place as soon as practicable, based upon the terms negotiated by the parties involved. Negotiated agreements shall be in place in all instances by December 31, 2021. If an agreement cannot be reached by December 31, 2021, it shall automatically enter the binding arbitration process with the Judicial Council. Parties may submit to binding arbitration before that date upon mutual consent.

d) The various corporations or property-holding organizations of The United Methodist Church shall dissolve their corporation or organization when all assets and liabilities have been distributed to the new entities. The General Conference and all other unincorporated, non-property-holding organizations of The United Methodist Church shall cease as of May 30, 2020.

e) The Jurisdictional Committees on Appeals and the Judicial Council members and alternates in place as of December 31, 2019, shall continue to serve until December 31, 2022, regardless of which entity they affiliate with, for the purpose of hearing appeals and resolving property disputes relating to the implementation of this plan (Parts 14b-d).

15. Implementation Dates—The following deadlines shall be observed:

September 1, 2016—Ratification votes begin in annual conferences

August 31, 2017—Ratification votes in annual conferences are completed

October 1, 2017—Deadline for Founding Teams to submit their descriptive documents to the Council of Bishops

Fall 2017—Council of Bishops, at its regular fall meeting, certifies the results of the ratification vote; public release of the descriptive documents for each entity

Sixty days after Council of Bishops meeting adjourns

(approximately January 15, 2018)—bishops must indicate publicly which entity they will affiliate with; College of Bishops of each new entity begins working with corresponding Founding Team to plan for the new entity

December 31, 2018—deadline for annual conferences to vote on which entity to affiliate with; election of delegates to organizing conferences

August 31, 2019—deadline for local congregations to vote to join a different entity from the one approved by their annual conference

September 30, 2019—deadline for clergy to indicate to their bishop which entity they wish to affiliate with

December 31, 2019—deadline for dissenting congregations as an annual conference group to elect delegates to the entity with which they are affiliating

May 2020—organizing conferences are held for the new entities

May 30, 2020—recording of all assets and liabilities subject to division; General Conference and all other non-property-holding organizations of The United Methodist Church cease; number of professing members of The United Methodist Church who have joined each congregation in the new entity is to be reported to that entity's governing body; negotiations begin on dividing annual conference, jurisdictional, central conference, and general church assets and liabilities where needed

December 31, 2021—deadline for negotiated agreements to be in place on division of assets and liabilities

December 31, 2022—deadline for arbitration decisions to be completed by Judicial Council

Rationale:

There is a principled and conscientious disagreement over the church's position on same-sex marriage and ordination of active homosexuals as clergy that is not able to be resolved through compromise. Separation would free the church from this controversy, allowing all branches of the church to move forward in ministry as

Plan of Separation - Commission on Separation

By enacting this legislation, the General Conference hereby establishes a Commission on Separation.

Purpose—This commission shall bring to a special called session of the General Conference in 2018 a plan of separation that would ultimately end The United Methodist Church and replace it with either two or three new entities. These entities would include:

1) An entity that preserves the church's current teaching on marriage and sexuality, defining marriage as the union of one man and one woman, and declining to perform same-sex weddings or ordaining persons engaging in same-sex or non-marital sexual relations.

2) An entity that changes the church's current teaching on marriage and sexuality to broaden the definition of marriage and remove the prohibitions on same-sex weddings and the ordination of persons engaging in same-sex relations, promoting the affirmation and equal regard for same-sex relationships.

3) An entity that allows for clergy, congregations, and annual conferences to determine for themselves what their positions and standards will be regarding marriage, sexuality, and ordination, believing that this issue is a non-essential matter about which United Methodists can practice differently and still be part of the same denomination.

The inclusion of the first entity in the plan of separation is required. Entities 2 and 3 may be combined or redefined to accommodate the best wisdom of the commission.

Membership—the commission shall consist of twenty-four (24) members nominated and elected by the General Conference at the 2016 session. Eight members shall be elected to represent each of the three viewpoints above, and in accepting nomination for their particular category shall certify that they agree with the viewpoint expressed. Of the eight in each category, one shall be a U.S. bishop, two shall be U.S. clergy, two shall be U.S. laity, one shall be a bishop from a central conference, one shall be clergy from a central conference, and one shall be laity from a central conference. Nominations shall be made by written submission to the secretary for each category during the 24 hours immediately following the adoption of this legislation and balloting shall take place at a subsequent session, after the nominees have been published in the Daily Christian Advocate. The whole conference shall vote for all members of the commission, and balloting shall continue until the requisite persons have received a majority vote (50 percent plus one, excluding abstentions).

The commission shall consult with all the general boards and agencies in developing the plan of separation, working particularly closely with the General Council on Finance and Administration and the General Board of Pensions and Health Benefits. The commission may engage other expert legal and financial advisors to assist in their task.

Principles—the following principles shall guide the commission in its work:

1. Annual conference and local church decisions about which new entity to affiliate with shall be made by majority vote after a period of discernment, but with a deadline for action. If three or more new entities are given as options for affiliation, a plurality vote shall be sufficient. Annual conferences or local churches who want to switch affiliation after the deadline shall require a 2/3 vote for such action.

2. The process of separation shall revolve around annual conferences making the initial decision on which entity to affiliate with, followed by decisions made by local churches who dissent from their annual conference's decision or who are closely divided on the question.

3. Annual conferences whose affiliation vote is less than 75 percent for the chosen affiliation shall be required to divide their assets and liabilities proportionally with those who affiliate with a different entity, based on the number of formerly United Methodist professing members affiliating with each entity, after time is given for such affiliation to take place.

4. Jurisdictional and General Church assets and liabilities shall be allocated among the new entities based on the number of formerly United Methodist professing members affiliating with each entity, after time is given for such affiliation to take place.

5. Allocation of assets and liabilities at all levels shall be accomplished through negotiation, including mediation if necessary, with the parties involved paying the mediation costs.

6. All disputes over implementation of the plan, including irresolvable allocation issues, shall be decided by the Judicial Council as final arbiter. As long as the plan's implementation follows the processes outlined in the plan, disputes over implementation shall not be appealed to a secular court.

7. The commission shall consider the possibility that the functions of the General Board of Pensions and Health Benefits, the Publishing House, and the United Methodist Committee on Relief could be constituted as independent agencies serving some or all of the new entities.

8. The existing structure and processes of The United Methodist Church would continue to function while affiliation decisions are being made, until a set implementation date that would signal the changeover to the structures and processes of the new entities.

9. All parties and levels in the church structure shall conduct themselves with Christian love and respect toward those with whom they disagree, seeking an amicable and generous parting where that parting is necessary.

Rationale:

There is a principled and conscientious disagreement over the church's position on same-sex marriage and ordination of active homosexuals as clergy that is not able to be resolved through compromise. Separation would free the church from this controversy, allowing all branches of the church to move forward in ministry as . . .

Discipleship

Volume 2

Nashville, Tennessee

Report of the General Board of Discipleship (d/b/a Discipleship Ministries) 2013-2016

“To challenge and support local church and annual conference leaders for their task of making disciples of Jesus Christ for the transformation of the world.”

– Discipleship Ministries mission statement

Introduction

Discipleship Ministries equips world-changing disciples of Jesus Christ.

Established by the 1972 General Conference to serve local churches and annual conferences, the General Board of Discipleship, now called Discipleship Ministries, consists of twenty-three (23) elected members in accordance with ¶ 1105 of The Book of Discipline, 2012, and ¶ 705.3 of the General Provisions.

Discipleship Ministries is responsible for the equipping and spiritual care of church leaders. The agency leads the second area of focus, Create New Places for New People and Transform Existing Congregations, in full partnership with other boards and agencies, the Council of Bishops, the network of congregational developers, and the national plans. The agency also has a portion of its work aligned with the first focus area, “Developing Principled Christian Leaders.”

To carry out Discipleship Ministries’ vision and to fulfill the goals of the focus area it leads, six specific strategies guide the agency’s work:

1. Equip leaders to start new churches and faith communities.
2. Transform existing churches into vital congregations.
3. Equip leaders to build life-sustaining networks with youth and young adults and those who work with them.
4. Foster spiritual practices in local churches.

5. Create sustainable resourcing systems in central conferences and the United States.
6. Deliver excellent teaching and learning resources.

Based on these strategies, Discipleship Ministries:

- Equips church planters who are starting new churches through an innovative series of resources, events, and initiatives.
- Resources entrepreneurial clergy and lay leadership in existing local congregations to become vital, vibrant, and transformed.
- Works with young people and their adult workers to bring them closer to the church and to God.
- Publishes the world’s most widely read daily devotional (The Upper Room daily devotional guide).
- Provides essential Christian resources to congregations in North America, Africa, the Philippines, and Europe.
- Offers widely acclaimed online worship resources to millions of United Methodist worship leaders worldwide.
- Leads, co-leads, and sponsors some of the most mission-critical training events in the denomination, such as the School of Congregational Development, Youth 2015, and the Children’s Ministry Forum.
- Provides theological guidance to the denomination’s Sunday school and other types of official United Methodist curricula.
- . . . and offers HOPE and leadership resources in thousands of other ways to equip world-changing leaders.

Discipleship Ministries believes that for The United Methodist Church to witness successfully and to transform the world, the church needs leaders who are deeply rooted in personal Christian formation, accountable for the fruit they bear, and committed to making disciples of Jesus Christ.

Rev. Karen Greenwaldt was the General Secretary of Discipleship Ministries as the quadrennium began, and Dr. Timothy Bias became the General Secretary on January 15, 2014.

Discipleship Ministries and Vital Congregations

Discipleship Ministries believes that faith communities are the best vehicle to produce vital congregations and disciples of Jesus Christ to change the world. Its work is grounded in ¶ 122 of The Book of Discipline of The United Methodist Church, which is the core process of making disciples. We are cultivating people to experience and share the hope Jesus offers in all aspects of life. For Discipleship Ministries, the core process of making disciples can be expressed in how we offer H.O.P.E.:

Hospitality: Proclaiming the gospel, seek, welcome, and gather persons into the body of Christ;

Offer Christ: Leading people to commit their lives to God through baptism and profession of faith in Jesus Christ;

Purpose: Nurturing people in Christian living through worship, sacraments, and other means of grace;

Engagement: Sending people into the world to live lovingly and justly as servants of Christ.

Discipleship Ministries and the Four Areas of Focus

Discipleship Ministries understands the Four Areas of Focus as ways to address the adaptive challenge of increasing the number of vital congregations. While the Four Areas interact and inform one another to support this challenge, the goals of Discipleship Ministries most directly support two of the Focus Areas:

1. Developing principled Christian leaders for the church and world, and;
2. Creating new places for new people and revitalizing existing congregations.

The agency's organizational structure is closely aligned to the six broad goals through four programmatic units and one initiative, those being the Division on Ministries with Young People, New Church Starts, Leadership Ministries, Upper Room Ministries, and the Central Conference Sustainable Resourcing Initiative.

Highlights: 2013-2016

Among the hundreds of strategic initiatives offered, the following are especially critical for this time in the life of the denomination:

New Church Starts

New Church Starts (Path 1) provides collaborative leadership that plants new congregations so that The United Methodist Church reaches more people, younger people, and more diverse people. New Church Starts consists of key partners who work together to lead this important work—the Council of Bishops, conference developers, other general agencies, and all of the U.S. National Plans. It began work in 2008 with a specific measurable goal to train and equip 1,000 church planters and start 650 congregations in partnership with annual conferences within the United States.

New Church Plants have exceeded goals. As of spring 2015, at least 2,300 church leaders have been trained and equipped and 325 churches have been planted since 2013.

The Lay Missionary Planting Network. With a focus on planting Hispanic/Latino and other racial-ethnic congregations, Discipleship Ministries has helped lay people plant new congregations and work with clergy to start new congregations by serving on launch teams.

Summer Planting “Road Trip.” In the summer of 2013, hundreds of new church plants were visited across the U.S. by Discipleship Ministries staff and a network of new church planters. The road trip helped increase the pool of knowledge of what's needed for continued success in planting new United Methodist congregations.

The Large Impact Church Planting Residency Program. Encouraging and supporting the next generation of church planters, the residency program targets young people who will carry on the church's mission to plant new churches. The program is for entrepreneurial and future-focused leaders under age 35 who want to share the gospel in relevant and new ways.

Young People's Ministries

Young People's Ministries is a multifaceted and global effort to train and expand networks with a new generation of youth and young adult leaders. With a central and regional staff presence in the United States, and indigenous staff also in the Philippines, Europe, and Africa, Young People's Ministries has experienced a wave of success in reaching young leaders, creating new networks, and strengthening existing connections between young leaders globally.

Global Young People's Convocation and Legislative Assembly. Nearly 400 United Methodist youth, young adults, and adult leaders from 34 countries gathered in the Philippines in the summer of 2014 to worship, pray together, and discuss the future of the church. Young people at the event also crafted petitions for presentation to the 2016 General Conference.

Young Leaders Summits. Leader Summits have been held in South Africa and the Philippines to help young leaders learn about their region's historical and indigenous leadership principles and how to apply them in The United Methodist Church. With the assistance of the European Methodist Youth and Children's Council in Europe, Young People's Ministries plans to hold additional summits in Europe and the U.S.

Human Sexuality Resource. Developed as a cutting-edge resource to help youth struggling with their sexual identity and statistically more prone to suicide, Discipleship Ministries produced SEX: A Christian Perspective on Our Bodies, Decisions and Relationships. In 2015, a new module entitled "Hope and Self-Acceptance" joined a growing list of resources that are aimed at helping middle school teens in the church grow in their understanding of sexuality as a gift from God.

Field Guide Network. This essential online networking tool helps adult leaders of youth and young adult ministries to form short-term mentoring relationships that meet specific ministry needs.

Youth 2015. One of the largest general-church-sponsored events, Youth 2015 held in Orlando, FL in the summer of 2015 delivered four days of life-changing worship, learning, discipleship, and outreach for nearly 4,500 United Methodist young people. The quadrennial event will also provide youth ministry video resources for years to come.

Leadership Ministries

Leadership Ministries is transforming existing churches into vital congregations by resourcing essential ministries, including attracting people to the Christian faith, providing vital and vibrant worship, nurturing people in Christian spiritual formation, and enabling generosity and Christian service. Constant work for a church transforming lives and communities through Jesus Christ is evidenced through research of best practices, digital and print resource production, and leadership training events. Staff works directly with leadership networks in congregational transformation, stewardship, small groups, evangelism, worship, and Christian education and formation for identification of bright spots in ministry, renewal efforts, and resource sharing.

Africana Hymnal Project. A multiyear effort to provide music and worship resources from African-American traditions and to identify and preserve the rich history of music forms born out of slavery, was completed in 2015 and is now available for future generations of musicians and worship leaders. The project, a joint effort of Discipleship Ministries and The United Methodist Publishing House (UMPH) consists of a USB drive with 150 songs, an award-winning documentary film chronicling the history of traditional music forms that are quickly disappearing from existence, and a small-group study guide for exploring these music forms.

Safe Sanctuaries in a Virtual World. Safe Sanctuaries, a vital and hugely successful program to ensure churches are safe for children, produced a new resource. Safe Sanctuaries in a Virtual World, the latest addition to the Safe Sanctuaries series, addresses the challenges of ministry that have arisen in the face of rapidly changing technology, sometimes referred to as the digital age.

More than 200 Webinars each year. Webinars now are a normal method for delivering important information and resources, especially in the Leadership Ministries unit. Webinars are available, and most are free, on nearly any discipleship-related topic.

Children's Ministries Growth. Children throughout the United Methodist connection are learning about the history of the Methodist movement and practicing intentional discipleship with the help of drawings of John and Charles Wesley called "Flat Wesleys." Hundreds of congregations are participating in teaching children the importance of the contribution of John and Charles Wesley.

School of Congregational Development. Each year of the quadrennium, The School of Congregational Development, a mission-critical annual event, features best practices for revitalizing congregations and starting new churches. More than 1,800 participants have increased their congregational development skills because of this on-going event of Discipleship Ministries.

International Ministries

Central conference resourcing in Africa, the Philippines, and in Europe is the centerpiece of assisting central conferences in building sustainable systems for resource development and delivery wherever The United Methodist Church has churches. Highlighted by Africa Upper Room Ministries, Discipleship Ministries offers sustained access to resources considered central to the United Methodist way of ministry and Christian formation. Generations of disciples are demanding new forms of content delivery. Content for building Christian spiritual practices, developing spiritual leaders, and ministry with young people is delivered through leading-edge, appropriate media. Discipleship Resources International (DRI) developed and now maintains a United Methodist electronic resource portal by which leaders in the central conferences can access digital files for hundreds of basic ministry-related resources for churches and leaders.

E-Reader Project. The E-Reader Project is a groundbreaking endeavor to deliver essential Christian resources on electronic e-reader devices to theological students in central conference seminaries. The project increases central conference seminaries' abilities to grow their capacity for quality pastoral education by increasing access to essential texts and collections for faculty and students. Each e-reader library is available in English, French, and Portuguese.

Indigenous Publishing Teams. Discipleship Resources International, a unit of Discipleship Ministries, is helping the episcopal areas within central conferences grow their capacity to create and deliver hundreds of contextual resources relevant to the ministries in their local churches and pastors, in an ongoing and self-sustaining way.

Writing Conferences in Africa. Discipleship Ministries conducts writing conferences in Africa, which help expand the African voice, provide locally needed resources, and enter into the worldwide United Methodist dialogue on discipleship.

Upper Room Ministries

Upper Room Ministries offers world-renowned spiritual formation resources, books, magazines, and programs (both media-based and experiential) that help individuals and congregations grow in their relationship with God. Upper Room Ministries is also the home of Walk to Emmaus®, Chrysalis®, Upper Room Prayer Ministry, and The Academy for Spiritual Formation®. Although Upper Room is not funded through apportionment dollars, its ministry is growing, especially in Africa.

The Upper Room magazine available now in Cuba.

Leaders from the Methodist Church of Cuba printed the first Cuban edition of El Aposento Alto (EAA), the Spanish language edition of The Upper Room, in January 2015. In addition, the first Five-Day Spiritual Academy was held in Cuba in December 2014.

SOULfeast reaches thousands. Held annually over the quadrennium, SOULfeast is an Upper Room spiritual formation event that nurtures and renews participants' hearts, minds, and spirits through thoughtful plenary sessions, classes, workshops, and worship. Hundreds of people have attended the event over the quadrennium.

eLearning. Upper Room eLearning has brought small groups together from around the world to read, reflect, and pray together. Through online learning programs, hundreds of participants have increased their biblical knowledge, prayer, and spiritual lives.

Chuck Knows Church

Chuck Knows Church is two online video series produced by Discipleship Ministries that help interpret complex discipleship-related subjects in a fun, yet informative, way. Each series features "Chuck" who helps viewers learn about their church and encourages the audience to deepen their relationship with their pastor.

The "Original Series" and now "The Committee" are the denomination's most watched online video series and the program's Facebook page is one of the most visited. The series has received more than 1 million views on YouTube and the videos average nearly 100,000 viewers on Facebook each month. Thousands of congregations utilize the "Original Series" in worship and as part of their confirmation programs. "The Committee," the latest series, launched in January 2015, is used by congregations to dialogue openly about the difficult subjects addressed in the videos.

Teaching and Learning Resources

Discipleship Ministries works closely with The United Methodist Publishing House (UMPH) to provide local congregations with resources for Sunday school, small groups, and short-term and long-term programs for all age levels. The Curriculum Resources Committee (CRC), organized and administered by Discipleship Ministries with the support of UMPH, exercises oversight of this work. The CRC reviews plans and proposals with staff; critiques, advises, and acts on the plans for official United Methodist resources; and engages with staff about the curriculum and learning/study needs of the church.

The Future

Discipleship Ministries is committed to increasing the denomination's ability to make disciples of Christ for the transformation of the world. This will require aligning the agency to have an increased emphasis on evangelism and the core process of making disciples as outlined in the Book of Discipline.

In 2017-2020, Discipleship Ministries will partner with bishops and annual conference leaders to engage 60 percent of U.S. congregations (19,200 churches) to develop a disciple-making culture and system.

In the 19,200 partner congregations, we will help them:

- Eliminate the zeros in professions of faith and baptisms.
- Double the number of professions of faith and baptisms in congregations with less than 5 professions of faith.
- Train disciples in U.S. congregations to share their faith with others.
- Assist 1,000 congregations to transform their communities.

We look forward to a United Methodist Church with 500,000 new disciples who profess their faith through renewed and new faith communities as a result of these efforts.

Administratively Linked Ministries

Strengthening the Black Church for the 21st Century

The Office of African American Ministries provides primary leadership for Discipleship Ministries' response to the General Conference initiative on Strengthening the Black Church for the 21st Century (SBC21). The SBC21 offices are located at Discipleship Ministries. Specific partnerships to support the transformation, renewal, and growth of Black churches provide learning through Congregation Resource Centers and personal coaching to Partner Congregations, including provisions of needed materials. Both entities (SBC21 and Discipleship Ministries) are working extensively in a covenantal spirit to strengthen and enhance the vitality of Black churches and ultimately all United Methodist churches throughout the connection.

National Plan for Hispanic/Latino Ministry

Discipleship Ministries works with the National Plan for Hispanic/Latino Ministry (NPHLM) and coordinates a comprehensive effort to focus on the development and strengthening of Hispanic/Latino ministries through the creation of new faith communities and new churches. Through the National Plan, some of the ministries The United Methodist Church seeks to do are:

- Develop new leaders who are able to start new Hispanic/Latino churches and faith communities
- Develop lay missionary planting leaders who start new congregations and strengthen existing ones as part of the Path 1 initiative
- Prepare and distribute Spanish language resources needed for new church starts and renewal of existing churches

Native American Comprehensive Plan

Housed at Discipleship Ministries, the Native American Comprehensive Plan (NACP) enriches United Methodist Native American ministries by Partnering with New Church Starts (Path 1) to:

1. Develop and support existing and new United Methodist Native American congregations' ministries and fellowships, enabling them to become a vital part of The United Methodist Church
2. Develop Native American Leadership for service to The United Methodist Church
3. Affirm the value and strengthen the role of traditional, cultural, and spiritual contributions of Native American people for the expression of Christian faith and faith development among the membership of The United Methodist Church

Korean American National Plan, Asian American Language Ministry Plan, and the Pacific Islander Ministries National Plan.

The Korean American, Asian American, and Pacific Islander Ministries office offers training, resources, and networking for a growing number of Korean and Asian American clergy and lay people, as well as Pacific Islanders.

The office at Discipleship Ministries touches or trains nearly all these constituency groups each year, works closely with leadership across the denomination, and works with three of the national plans that provide ministry support to Korean Americans, Pacific Islanders, and other Asian Americans.

Strengthening the Black Church for the 21st Century

2013-2016 Quadrennial Report

The Black church is aware of growing tensions due to racial ills, oppression, violence, greed, injustice, and a lack of effective leadership within our society. Despite the struggles, the Black church has survived and is determined to remain resilient and faithful to God. As we all evolve as disciples of Jesus Christ ministering in a hurting world, together we are a visible presence of the strength and diversity of our United Methodist Church. Together, we are evidence in these times of God's amazing love and grace.

VISION

To partner strategically with Congregation Resource Centers, the Council of Bishops, the Connectional Table, Annual Conference Cabinets and Connectional Ministries, General Agencies, Councils, and Commissions to succeed in undergirding Partner Congregations with the Wesleyan spirit including a biblical and theological application; and to equip them with practical tools and skills needed for vibrant worship, evangelism, discipleship, stewardship, mission, outreach, and effective administration.

MISSION

To transform and sustain vital Black congregations and Black pastors in cross-racial appointments for making disciples of Jesus Christ who are sent to serve in a hurting world.

PURPOSE

To offer The United Methodist Church the gift of transformational learning models that enable annual conferences or local congregations to partner and share their gifts of vitality with other congregations and other annual conferences that are seeking church growth. To offer effective models: to increase our gifts in mission and ministry; to develop our lay and clergy leaders with new skills; to engage in ministry with the poor and incarcerated; to effectively identify, support, and mentor young adult Black clergy; and to ultimately transform and strengthen The United Methodist Church.

Goal 1: Developing Principled Christian Leaders (General Church Focus)

Leadership Development: Academy of Interns ("AOI")

The goal is to expand the Academy of Interns (AOI) to develop the next generation of Black clergy leadership in The United Methodist Church. This SBC21 program provides an infrastructure designed to select, deploy, and expose eight (8) potential rising clergy to a full complement of experiences that will provide each of them with the skills and competencies needed to transform, establish, or maintain a vital congregation. The program develops principled young clergy leaders for two years that will prepare them for assignment to a church within the Path 1 initiative or other churches in need.

Program Deliverables:

1. In October of 2012 SBC21 launched a pilot AOI project in partnership with the Cal-Pac Annual Conference, deploying the first AOI intern. The receiving mentoring congregation was Holman UMC located in Los Angeles, CA. Currently, four annual conferences (Cal-Pac, Tennessee, Northern Illinois, and North Texas), in collaboration with their bishops/cabinets, and boards of ordained ministries, have confirmed the selection, assignment, and deployment of AOI interns into a two-year internship matriculation.

2. A full launch was implemented July 2015, deploying more interns. Sixteen (16) of the most effective senior pastors, with their staff and congregations, have agreed to accept responsibility for nurturing, mentoring, and coaching deployed interns. One graduate intern has successfully completed the entire two-year program. A class of three more interns is currently participating in AOI with more interns making application for selection. The following UM churches are presently mentoring interns: Holman, Los Angeles, CA; St. Mark, Chicago, IL; St. Paul, Dallas, TX; and Gordon Memorial, Nashville, TN.

Program Outcomes:

1. In collaboration with Garrett-Evangelical Theological Seminary, The Center for Leadership Development at Perkins School of Theology, and Wesley Theological Seminary, SBC21 has begun developing and piloting colloquies, modules, and curriculum for participants in the Academy of Interns that would assist SBC21 in achieving its goals.

2. These institutions have provided the learning settings for six two-day sessions over the two-year mentorship to offer group and individualized training in effective church leadership to build and sharpen skills in organizational church management and strategic planning for church revitalization, personnel management, evangelism, new church development, cross-cultural appointments, diverse congregations, volunteer management, race relations and conflict resolution. Mentoring, reflection, and coaching support in spiritual/emotional/fiscal and physical self-care provide a unique learning environment for establishing mutual peer-support networks.

3. A comprehensive approach to providing practical leadership experiences in a local church setting while exposed to the latest academic research has made AOI a blossoming state-of-the-art New Clergy Development Program.

Goal 2: Growing Vital Churches (General Church Focus)

Strengthening & Renewing Existing Congregations

This SBC21 goal is to sustain twelve (12) Congregation Resource Centers and sixteen (16) Annual Conference PC Training Events providing more direct services to meet specific needs addressed by bishops and annual conferences who are seeking to revitalize their most struggling congregations, merging congregations, or churches whose demographics have demanded immediate change.

Program Deliverables:

1. Sustain up to 12 Congregation Resource Centers (CRCs) by annual training and evaluation of their program.
2. Assist with and/or co-sponsor 10 Annual Conference PC Training Events.
3. Cultivate 2 Partner Congregations into Congregation Resource Centers.

Engage in ongoing nurturing of relationships with 10 annual conferences including their bishops, cabinets, and connectional ministries. During this quadrennium, SBC21 partnered with the following annual conferences in training and strategic planning: Alabama-West Florida, North Alabama, North Carolina, South Carolina, New York, Arkansas, North Texas, Northern Illinois, Western Pennsylvania, East Ohio, Florida, Tennessee, South Georgia, Rio Texas, Cal-Pac, Peninsula-Delaware, and Mississippi.

4. Implement ongoing training of trainers (CRCs) for program initiative.

5. Establish liaison and linkages between SBC21 and annual conference constituencies and provide counsel and feedback about programs and projects to the national office.

6. Develop more effective new program paradigms and structures for implementing SBC21 training events within jurisdictions, annual conferences, and districts.

7. Sponsor 15 PC teams per training event. Eight Annual Conference Training Events and 3 Congregation Resource Center Training Conferences have occurred with average number of participants each numbering from 150 to 250. Continue to expand the SBC21 Coaching Network, which deploys trained coaches to local congregations and pastors who have SMART goals and action plans.

Goal 3: Ministry with the Poor (General Church Focus)

The goal of SBC21 is to help The United Methodist Church engage in ministry with the poor, incarcerated, and families and communities impacted by both.

Rationale: There is a direct correlation to poverty, mis-education, and mass incarceration of black people. The high rate of detained and incarcerated black people, especially black men, in the prison system in America poses a serious social injustice problem. According to the Congressional Research Service, the rate of incarceration in the United States federal prison system alone has become an epidemic, with the United States leading the world in prison populations. As a result of injustices in our social systems, American prison overcrowding is like nowhere else in the world. There are too many people, mostly poor people of color, locked up too long at a great expense to the public. This severe problem has political, judicial, social, mental, physical, economical, generational, emotional, and spiritual consequences for us all. The Pew Report shows more than 1 in 28 poor children have a parent behind bars. Poor children lag behind their peers in many ways beyond income. In many studies, they are found to be less healthy or have less access to health care than their more economically stable peers. They trail in emotional development, lag behind in literacy and academic achievement, suffer from hunger, and face more crime than other children. Educational research reports that poor children who read below grade level by third grade are at risk to catch up academically; and therefore are counted as “most likely to remain poor or at risk socially.” Profiting prison systems use these factors to decide how many future prison beds to build. How can the church build ministry with the poor and incarcerated? Together, how can we decrease poverty and prison recidivism in the neighborhoods where United Methodist churches exist? What should we do differently?

Program Deliverables:

1. SBC21 will intentionally bring professional experts, victims, social scientists, lay and clergy, incarcerated persons, and community leaders together at the problem solving/learning/praying table. This strong network of partners will help us redefine how we can assist in the smooth re-entry of people from prisons into communities as productive citizens, ensuring public safety, and well-being in families and congregations. This is a complex and severe problem that has political, judicial, social, mental, physical, economical, generational, emotional, and spiritual consequences for us all. Poor children and incarcerated persons are mission fields we must tend.

2. These think tanks will produce radical innovative strategies for where new churches should plant: possibly inside prison institutions, within the most poverty-stricken homes and shelters, or become mission outposts for transition and transformation back into the community. These goals are simply a beginning, but a very radical and bold beginning; to unravel the complexities of this correlation between poverty, justice, mass incarceration, and the mission of the church.

3. Through a four-pronged approach (Networking, Education, Consolidation, and Transformation), SBC21 will connect The United Methodist Church to 25 families affected by incarceration and 25 families with at least four children in poverty, working with social service providers, employers, housing, volunteers, social scientists, professional experts, health care professionals, victims of crime, and the legal community. Together, they will work to alleviate and explore the complexities of mass incarceration and surviving below the poverty level.

4. This focus will equip churches with innovative tools to build effective prison ministries and school ministries that serve poor children. This may include ministry inside the prison walls, or ministries for those transitioning back into society, or ministries to assist victims affected by crime or violence. This may include ministries with poor children with incarcerated parents to offer support, love, and encouragement.

5. This focus will include the exploration of increasing blacks in prison chaplaincy and advocating for reform of criminal justice legislation, and for the rights of those incarcerated and the rights of victims of crime.

Program Outcomes:

1. In collaboration with the Exodus Foundation, our mentoring/training partner, SBC21 met with leaders of the North Alabama Conference to provide training on mass incarceration. Over 50 leaders from the conference came to Huntsville for the training. A four-point model for reversing the path to prison was provided.

2. SBC21 sponsored two (2) National Prison Summits with a focus on Mass Incarceration and Re-Entry. More than 600 lay and clergy members participated from across the country. Continuing a national dialogue, community forums, think tanks, and the networking of experts, SBC21 is mobilizing its efforts to encourage more training opportunities and to deploy coaches to annual conferences that want to explore and become more equipped for church-based transformative programs for juvenile ex-offenders, church-based initiatives for productive re-entry into society, and innovative ways churches can help schools who serve poor children.

3. SBC21 will deploy coaches, trainers, and consultants with proven expertise to strengthen Church leadership empowerment for sustainable and long-term participation in strategic initiatives for the decline of incarceration of black men, women, and youth, helping to facilitate systemic change initiatives to reduce poverty that directly affects children in the communities, cities, and rural areas where United Methodists churches are located.

Goal 4: Improving Global Health (General Church Focus)

Building Relations to Improve the Health Disparity within the Africa/Diaspora

The goal of SBC21 is to build global relationships with the central conferences in Africa as well as with congregations of African descent (Latin, Caribbean) in the United States to specifically improve global health in local communities; so that The UMC can be more informed, unified, and strategically organized to address health disparities and become more intentional in local churches and communities working together to prevent disease.

Rationale: Since the evil African slave trade moved across the world, it created an African Diaspora population displaced from Africa to the Western Hemisphere. Research has indicated there is a direct correlation between African Americans being more susceptible to a series of diseases and conditions including poor nutrition, low birth rate, infant mortality, HIV-AIDS, obesity, diabetes, cardiovascular disease, hypertension stroke, renal failure, breast cancer, prostate cancer, and lead poisoning. There is also a social justice issue correlation that the current medical industry does not always understand or take into consideration the unique differences in ethnic cultures in their research, funding, diagnosis, and treatment of diseases in direct health care and insurance availability among black people.

Program Deliverables:

1. Consult/collaborate with African College of Bishops for planning and prioritizing programs. (Bishop Earl Bledsoe, chair of SBC21, and the late Bishop Martin Mc-Lee, then vice chair, engaged in conversation with their African episcopal colleagues about this initiative. The Reverend Dr. Fred Allen, National Director of SBC21, was invited to meet with the Ebony Bishops for further discussion during the May 4-8, 2014, Council of Bishops meeting.)

2. Research demographics in the United States to determine the location, needs, and ministries of congregations of African descent (Latin, Caribbean) in the United States to build networks to address the nature of dietary practices and lack of education conditioned by the poverty and marginalization of this populace, resulting in higher risks for preventive diseases.

3. Ascertain perceptions, stereotypes, etc., that might be distinct cultural differences and obstacles that hinder the development and nurturing of strong and sustained relationships within the African Diaspora family, identifying its specific health issues that can be prevented or treated, significantly reducing mortality and increasing quality of life for all.

4. Identify/Research what is needed, but not offered, that specifically speaks to the unique health needs of African Americans to close the disparities in current health systems. Suggest the most appropriate UMC enterprise that should sponsor/champion such a ministry.

5. Identify the most prominent UMC clergy and lay African leaders (including college and seminary students) to be invited to subsequent strategy meetings to forward this initiative. Identify practices and conditions that compromise the justice and integrity of United Methodist congregations, general agency staff, etc., so to establish a stronger advocacy for equity in health care for all.

Goal 5: Creating New and Renewed Congregations, New People, New Places:

Proven Hospitality Extended to Youth and Young Adults

The goal is to assist annual conferences, train and coach clergy and lay leaders to become more effective in reaching, connecting, inviting, and engaging young adults into the fold of active church life. SBC21 will offer a new and radical 4-step approach (Proven Hospitality) to lay and clergy leaders in various diverse congregations and faith communities.

Rationale: SBC21 understands the specific dynamics affecting our churches in urban settings whose demographics and technologies are rapidly changing. Many congregations are lacking young adults embraced in the full life of the church while our older members are living longer and their needs are also changing. We understand the need to stretch our imagination to launch ministry sites with new people who seek a different approach than the traditional church setting, or equipping congregations to embrace a blending of the traditional and contemporary.

Program Deliverables:

1. SBC21 will offer a new and radical 4-step approach (Proven Hospitality) to lay and clergy leaders in various diverse congregations and faith communities. This process will guide The UMC in discovering the barriers that may estrange the church from youth and young adults and coach its leadership in specific ways to break these barriers and replace them with bridges that build relationships that identify, invite, engage, and empower young adults to become active in the local church or new faith communities by offering radical hospitality.

2. Young adults will be trained to help facilitate this process beside SBC21 coaches and clergy leaders. The goal is to help congregations assess their readiness and willingness to create learning environments within their church culture that help young adults recognize and live out their call from God. The outcome is to be genuinely inviting to young adults using new strategies of radical hospitality, replacing those strategies that are clearly not working now.

3. SBC21 Young Adult Leadership Teams within conferences, Wesley Foundation campus ministries, and within local churches will be identified, trained, and deployed to facilitate, train, encourage, and assist clergy and lay leaders in understanding pop culture and ways to communicate radical hospitality more effectively with young adult populations; especially targeting young adults in our communities who do not have a history of growing up in the church. The focus is to empower young adults to make new spaces in new places where new people can find a deep relationship with God.

Native American Comprehensive Plan

Quadrennial Comprehensive Plan 2017-2020

Mission, Purpose, and Description

The Native American Comprehensive Plan (NACP) is one of the six racial-ethnic plans of The United Methodist Church.

The mission of NACP is to make Native American disciples of Jesus Christ, to work toward the transformation of the world with emphasis on the indigenous nations of the U.S., and to offer the gifts of Native Americans to the global United Methodist Church.

The purpose of NACP is to be a vehicle through which the gospel is offered to Native Americans in culturally appropriate ways and contexts, to serve as a resourcing entity for these efforts, and to serve as a crossroads where Native American and non-Native American disciples may find the Creator's gifts in one another.

The work of the NACP is carried out through two staff positions: the executive director and administrative assistant. NACP Task Force members guide the work of the Plan and also assist in carrying out the mission of NACP.

The Native American Comprehensive Plan Task Force is made up of the following representatives:

- One bishop assigned by the Council of Bishops,
- Two Native American representatives from each of the five U.S. jurisdictions, chosen by each College of Bishops,

- Two Native American representatives from the Native American International Caucus,
- Two Native American representatives from the Oklahoma Indian Missionary Conference,
- One Native American representative from the Alaska Conference,
- One Native American youth, and
- One Native American young adult.
- One representative from each of the general boards and agencies attend Task Force meetings as non-voting liaisons.

Within the framework of honoring both Native American culture and identity, and our Christian Wesleyan faith heritage, the following are core values for NACP:

- Living out of both our Native American and Christian identities.
- Cooperation, collaboration, and partnership with conferences, general agencies, and other UM structures, and with Native nations, tribes, and communities.
- Respect for the peoples we have been sent to serve.
- Truth-telling, even when that truth is difficult to hear.
- Integrity in our programmatic and fiscal endeavors.
- Honesty in our relationships.

Native American Comprehensive Plan

Executive Summary

NACP seeks to be an entity of the Church that serves as a means of connection with two specific populations of persons in the U.S. The first is Native Americans and the second is persons from the world of poverty. Those we serve have unique needs embedded within their racial, cultural, socioeconomic, and historical identities. Examples of these unique needs include the continued emphasis on oral tradition and face-to-face interaction, and the lack of resources to engage in information technology such as the Internet and remote access to learning opportunities. In order to reach beyond the boundaries of the dominant culture of The UMC in the United States, offer Christ in a meaningful way to Native Americans, and receive the amazing, God-given gifts that Native peoples have to offer, a special means is needed. The Native American Comprehensive Plan strives to serve as this means of ministry for The UMC.

The following narrative describes NACP's objectives and the outcomes/impacts for annual conferences and local churches as they seek to live out their ministries in the four areas of focus and within disciplinary mandates.

Within the focus of Leadership Development, six objectives are planned.

- (1) The first objective is the provision of consultant/support services to persons in leadership (both clergy and lay) within Native American churches, fellowships, ministries, and faith communities in order to develop, improve, and enhance leadership skills. This objective is essential because of the unique needs and cultural context of Native American churches. NACP will achieve this objective by providing consultation on any matter related to the development and enactment of leadership: provision of information/training resources and referrals, and support through encouragement, advocacy, and facilitation of connections with others in leadership. Consultation and support services may be offered online, by phone, via written and printed resources, and/or in-person/on-site. Persons in leadership will receive consultation and support services that enable them to function in an enhanced manner as leaders within their Native American churches and The UMC.
- (2) Next is the sponsorship of a Leadership Training Conference for clergy and lay pastoral leadership from Native American churches, fellowships, and ministries. Leadership skills will be enhanced for participants who will represent a cross section of Native American churches; networks of communication and support will be established and enhanced; and Native American local churches, fellowships, and ministries will be strengthened.
- (3) The third objective is sponsorship of a Native American Lay Servant School for Native laypersons. The majority of participants will successfully complete a lay servant/lay speaking course and will follow through with their local church and conference to become certified lay servants/lay speakers; participants will represent a cross section of Native American churches; networks of communication and support will be established and enhanced; and Native American local churches, fellowships, and ministries will be strengthened via the ministries of these persons called forth by the Creator.
- (4) Next is the sponsorship of a training event for Native American adult workers with children and youth. Training these Native American clergy and lay persons will not only impact their abilities as leaders, but will allow their talents to be shared with the children and youth they will mentor. This objective empowers and enables adults and young persons in the local church to serve as more effective leaders.
- (5) The fifth objective that contributes to leadership development is the sponsorship of a Native American clergywomen's gathering. Native American clergy, particularly clergywomen, serve in far-flung appointments across the U.S. It is a rare occurrence for these clergy sisters to have the opportunity to gather together, learn, share, and experience their calling within the context of their Native identity. This objective strengthens Native American clergywomen to serve as effective leaders and therefore strengthens their churches and appointments.
- (6) Next is a Native American United Methodist Men's project to be cosponsored with the General Commission on United Methodist Men (GCUMM). As a result of the evaluation process conducted in 2014 by the Connectional Table, the recommendation was made that the GCUMM engage with the national racial-ethnic plans and general agencies in a coordinated effort. While the details of this objective have not yet been decided, it will be a unique and first-time partnership aimed at bringing forth new Native American men into leadership and enhancing the leadership skills of current Native American male leaders.

Within the focus of Church Growth, five objectives are planned.

- (1) The first objective is the provision of consultation/support services to annual conferences and persons engaged with new and prospective church plants, new fellowships, new ministries, and existing churches/ministries in need of revitalization. NACP will partner with annual conferences/CONAM's (Committees on Native American Ministries) in efforts to establish new Native American fellowships/churches/ ministries and to revitalize existing Native churches/ministries.
- (2) The second objective is the sponsoring of a School of Discipleship and Evangelism for Native American clergy and laity. Participants' skills will be enhanced and information imparted related to Native American discipleship and evangelism; participants will represent a cross section of Native American churches; networks of communication and support will be established and enhanced; and Native American local churches, fellowships, and ministries will be strengthened
- (3) The next objective for NACP is sponsorship of a Native American New Church Starts Summit for clergy and lay leadership from new church starts, fellowships, and ministries in the Native American community, and representatives from annual conferences desiring to begin new Native American churches/ministries. Due to unique cultural and historical factors, starting new Native American churches, fellowships, and ministries requires specialized skills, education, and training. Skills related to growing new Native American churches will be developed and enhanced for the majority of participants who will represent a cross section of Native churches; networks of communication and support will be established and enhanced; and new Native American local churches, fellowships, and ministries will be started and strengthened.

(4) Next is the publication and distribution of a new small group study resource, written by NACP staff in 2016. This small group study resource will focus on discipleship and evangelism through sharing one's faith as both a Native American and a Christian. This objective will impact the confidence and skill of Native American clergy and lay persons who can contribute to the evangelism and outreach of their local churches.

(5) The fifth objective is the hosting of an annual Native American Writers Gathering in order to produce culturally appropriate written materials for Native American local churches. Clergy and lay persons with a call to write out of their experiences as Native American Christians will create original worship and evangelistic resources. NACP will make these written resources available to local churches and ministries.

Ministry with the Poor is the third focus area. Due to extensive poverty impacting Native Americans, all the NACP goals and objectives are considered to be ministry with the poor.

The fourth focus area is Global Health and includes one objective.

- (1) NACP will sponsor a Native American Health Summit that shall educate and empower Native American local churches to engage in preventive and/or rehabilitative health activities within their local community. Native Americans in the U.S. are widely recognized to be at-risk in many major health categories such as substance abuse/dependence, suicide (especially youth and young adults), domestic violence, diabetes, and many others. Education and information will be imparted related to these health issues and ways to positively impact them; representatives from local churches will take the information and materials back to share with their churches in order that a plan for sharing this information within their communities can be developed and carried out; participants will represent a cross section of Native American churches; and networks of communication and support will be established/enhanced.

The fifth category of objectives is Disciplinary Mandates and includes two objectives.

(1) In this objective, NACP will provide consultation and support services to annual conferences in the development and effective use of annual conference Committees on Native American Ministries (CONAM); and to CONAMs in the effective implementation of ¶ 654 of the Book of Discipline (describes ministries of CONAM). This objective is essential because CONAM is the singular structure within annual conferences, as defined by the Book of Discipline, that deals exclusively with Native American churches and ministries. NACP will achieve this objective by providing consultation on any matter related to the development and ministry of CONAM including provision of information/training resources and referrals; and support through encouragement, advocacy, and facilitation of connections with others engaged in CONAM ministry. Consultation and support services may be offered online, by phone, via written and printed resources, and/or in-person/on-site. Persons from annual conferences/CONAMs will receive consultation and support services that enable them to function in an enhanced manner in fulfilling the Disciplinary mandate.

(2) The final objective is sponsorship of a CONAM Training Conference. NACP will achieve this objective by holding this event early in the first year of the new quadrennium when most CONAMs have new membership appointed to their committees. The knowledge and skills needed to effectively serve on a conference CONAM will be enhanced for participants who will represent a cross section of Native American nations; networks of communication and support will be established and enhanced; and Native American ministries through the annual conference will be strengthened.

The Native American Comprehensive Plan is excited and thankful for the upcoming ministry of the 2017-2020 quadrennium and looks forward to this ongoing journey as part of The UMC.

This edition of Services for the Ordering of Ministry in The United Methodist Church marks a significant evolution in the development of our ordinal.

The 2013-2016 Ministry Study Commission will ask the 2016 General Conference of The United Methodist Church to move the timing of ordination to deacon and elder to the point of the completion of educational requirements beginning in 2017. This proposal calls for two other changes. The practice of commissioning will be ended within the next few years, and a new service marking entrance into full membership is needed. This version of the ordinal continues to include a ritual of commissioning for those who may still need it, and adds a service of recognition of full members, which may begin to be used during the coming quadrennium.

This time of proposed change also seemed an opportune moment to propose an alternative service with more contemporary language and a more interactive format that may express more fully our Church's growing appreciation for the baptismal vocation of all Christians and the work of the Holy Spirit in baptism and Christian discipleship. In designing services of ordination for annual conferences, bishops are invited to use either form of service in its entirety or choose equivalent elements from either as may seem most appropriate for their settings.

In anticipation of the approval of these changes, Discipleship Ministries convened an ad hoc working group to help develop and test both the revised (or traditional) and new (or alternative) service and to present these to the Ministry Study Commission and the Ordinal Revision Task Force for further guidance. These services and directions for preparing and leading them now come to General Conference from the board of directors of the General Board of Discipleship with support from the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry, the Council of Bishops, and the Office of Christian Unity and Interreligious Relationships.

Theological and Liturgical Introduction

In ordination, the Holy Spirit acts to maintain the priority of the gospel by setting apart men and women called to apostolic leadership.

The pattern for this response to the call is provided in the development of the early church. The apostles led in prayer, teaching, and preaching, ordered the spiritual and temporal life of the community, established leadership for the ministry of service, and provided for the proclamation of the gospel to new persons and in new places. The early church, through the laying on of hands, set apart persons with responsibility to preach, to teach, to administer the sacraments, to nurture, to heal, to gather the community in worship, and to send them forth in witness. The church also set apart other persons to care for the physical needs of others, reflecting the concerns for the people of the world. These functions, though set apart, were never separate from the ministry of the whole people of God. Paul states (Ephesians 4:1-12) that different gifts and ministries are given to all persons. The Wesleyan tradition has, from the beginning, encouraged a culture of call and a community of discernment, which affirms and supports the ministry of all Christians and identifies and authorizes persons into ministries of the ordained.

Ordination to this ministry is a gift from God to the church. In ordination, the church affirms and continues the apostolic ministry through persons empowered by the Holy Spirit.

In using these services for the ordering of ministry we welcome God's gift and the empowering of the Holy Spirit, who continues this apostolic ministry among us. The services herein provide basic liturgical resources for ordaining, commissioning, receiving full members, recognizing and consecrating persons for ministry in The United Methodist Church in accordance with the 2016 Book of Discipline.

211 Policies and Guidelines for the Service of Ordination in the United 212 Methodist Church

213 A. Ordination, Commissioning, and Reception of Full Members

214 Ministry in the Christian church is derived from the ministry of Christ, who calls all 215 persons to receive God’s gift of salvation and follow in the way of love and service. All 216 Christian ministry is grounded in the covenant of baptism by which we are initiated into 217 the body of Christ and called into a life of discipleship. The sacraments of Baptism and 218 Lord’s Supper ground the ministry of the whole church. They are celebrated in the 219 Christian community as means of grace. Thus, the whole church receives and accepts 220 God’s grace and call, and all Christians participate in this continuing ministry of God in 221 creation (see ¶¶ 120-140).

222 Book of Discipline—2016 (proposed), ¶ 301.1

223 Acts of ordination, commissioning, reception, consecration, and recognition of ministries 224 are anchored in the sacrament of baptism and the ministry of the baptized. These sign-
225 acts are based on what is already implicit in baptism and rest upon the essential ministry
226 given to all Christians in baptism. “By Water and the Spirit: A United Methodist 227 Understanding of Baptism” (The Book of Resolutions—2012, #8031) states, “Through 228 baptism, God calls and commissions persons to the general ministry of all Christian 229 believers.” The statement continues, “The vocation of those in representative [certified, 230 commissioned, consecrated, and ordained] ministry includes focusing, modeling, 231 supervising, shepherding, enabling, and empowering the general ministry of the church . . .
232 [and] is grounded in the same baptism that commissions the general priesthood of all 233 believers.”

234 1. Ordination of Elders and Deacons

235 Anchored in the baptismal call to lives of love, justice, and service, there are some 236 Christians whose “gifts, evidence of God’s grace, and promise of future usefulness are 237 affirmed by the community, and who respond to God’s call by offering themselves in 238 leadership as set-apart ministers” (Discipline—2012, ¶ 301.2; see also ¶¶ 133 and 138).

240 Ordination is chiefly understood as the act of the Holy Spirit. As a liturgical act, ordination 241 is also understood as the public prayer of the church confirming the Spirit’s call to 242 individuals and asking for gifts and power for these persons in the ministry of elder or 243 deacon.

245 The rite of ordination is a significant “high moment” in the process by which the faith
246 community discerns and validates the call, the gifts, and effectiveness for apostolic 247 ministry by agency of the Holy Spirit. The sign of ordination, however, like baptism, 248 should be understood not as a graduation, but as an initiation into the way of life of the 249 order into which the candidates are being ordained. That way of life is governed by the 250 vows attending each ordained office. These vows, in turn, specify how these set-apart 251 ministers, together with sisters and brothers in their order, are called and held 252 accountable to live out their baptismal vocation within the life of the church for the sake of 253 the world.

255 Because the vows of ordination are specifications of our common baptismal covenant, 256 both the processes leading to ordination and full conference membership and the ritual of 257 ordination include the active participation of all of the baptized. The processes of 258 ordination typically begin with a local congregation’s discernment of God’s call to 259 individuals for service as ordained leaders, continue with support and scrutiny as they

260 prepare for this work, and are ratified by the clergy session in electing them to the office 261 and work of an elder or deacon. The service of ordination celebrates and seeks the 262 Spirit's power to enact what we have together discerned as the baptized.

263
 264 Ordination of elders and deacons is both to an office and, when the ordained are later 265 elected into full membership, for a lifetime of service. Ordination confers a new role in the 266 life of the church as well as authority for leadership in specific forms of ministry. The new 267 role of the ordained in the life of the church is claimed in relation to Christ and his call to 268 leadership and service among the baptized for the life of the world. The authority given is 269 exercised in stewardship of the mysteries of the gospel and of the church's mission in the 270 world. Ordination itself is ultimately the work of the Holy Spirit.

 272 Upon ordination, ordained elders and deacons become accountable to the whole church, 273 to the community of the ordained, and to the order of elders or deacons of which they are 274 a part. In the rite of ordination, candidates express loyalty to The United Methodist 275 Church, vowing to "accept and uphold" its order, liturgy, doctrine, and discipline. They 276 also accept the responsibility of accountability to the bishop and to the annual 277 conference. Finally, they are charged with authority for leadership in the places of service 278 to which they may be appointed.

279 2. Commissioning of Provisional Members

280 By the prompting of the Spirit, the church has always sent persons into various forms of 281 ministry and mission, including specific service as missionaries, work team members, 282 and certified workers in specialized ministries.

283
 284 Commissioning may be compared to the experience of the early church in Antioch when 285 the Holy Spirit instructed the community to "set apart for me Barnabas and Saul for the 286 work to which I have called them" (Acts 13:2). The provisional period and the mentoring 287 relationship that characterize it can also be seen in light of the relationship between Paul 288 and Ananias (Acts 9) when the newly called evangelist was guided toward the fullness of 289 his calling by the more seasoned leader.

290
 291 The act of commissioning provisional members

- 292
- 293 • acknowledges and affirms God's call and the candidates' response, gifts, abilities, and
 - 294 training for servant leadership;
 - 295
 - 296 • invokes God's grace for true service;
 - 297
 - 298 • credentials candidates to lead the church and equip others for ministry;
 - 299
 - 300 • calls candidates to enter a time of evaluation of their effectiveness for lifelong service
 - 301 as ordained ministers, and
 - 302
 - 303 • offers candidates the support of the annual conference.

304
 305 Commissioning provisional members has been a way to relate these persons to the 306 annual conference and to the ministry of the provisional members within the annual 307 conference. Commissioning has implied that the person is being sent for service and the 308 church invokes the Holy Spirit to empower commissioned ministers during their time of 309 provisional membership.

310
 311 After the 2016 General Conference, ordination rather than commissioning will come to 312 mark the beginnings of the provisional membership period. During provisional 313 membership, the newly ordained will join those who may have been commissioned to 314 engage a process of formation intended to complete and test their readiness for full 315 membership in the annual conference.

316
 317 During the coming quadrennium, some provisional members may still be commissioned 318 and still be preparing for ordination as elder or deacon and full membership, while others
 319 may be ordained as elder or deacon and preparing for full membership. A provisional 320 member who is preparing for ordination as an elder (§ 326.2) and serving a local 321 congregation will be licensed for pastoral ministry (§§ 315 and 316). This license 322 authorizes the provisional member to preside in celebrations of the sacrament and to 323 carry out other duties of a local pastor within the limits of their appointment. A provisional 324 member who is preparing for ordination as a deacon will be licensed (§ 326.1) for the 325 ministry of a deacon as described in § 328. The bishop may authorize a provisional 326 member preparing for ordination as a deacon to preside at the sacraments where 327 the bishop determines the ministry setting requires it (§ 328).

328
 329 Beginning in 2017, the period of provisional membership under ordained or 330 commissioned ministry is concluded when the person has successfully completed the 331 requirements of the conference's residency program (§ 325) and is elected into a full 332 membership by the full members of the annual conference, or a decision is made not to 333 proceed toward full membership.

334
 335

B. The Prayer of Ordination

336 In the traditional version of the Ordinal provided here (page 16), the bishop, as the 337 presiding minister in the annual conference and as a general superintendent of the whole 338 church, speaks the words and the people make the prayer their own by audibly saying, 339 "Amen." In the alternative version (page 36), the voice of the whole people is more
 340 actively involved, while it remains clear the bishop functions as the presider who prompts 341 the response and action of the people.

342
 343 Both versions continue the historic practice of two manual actions for ordination. In the 344 first, which is ordination proper, the bishop lays hands upon the head of the candidate 345 and asks for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit for the office and work to which the 346 candidate is being ordained. In the second, which comprises the act of authorization for 347 ministry, the bishop lays hands upon or holds the hands of the candidate as the bishop 348 and/or the assembly speak words authorizing the newly ordained to carry out their work 349 among the people.

C. The Laying On of Hands

1. The Role of the Resident Bishop

353 The laying on of hands with prayer by the bishop is an ancient and essential part of the 354 Christian ordering of ministry. The Second Epistle to Timothy 1:6 ("... rekindle the gift of 355 God that is within you through the laying on of my hands") reminds us of both the 356 antiquity of this tactile prayer and the bestowal of gift in its exercise.

357
 358
 359 360
 361

While the act of laying on of hands occurs in several rites of the church (baptism, healing services, acts of blessing and commissioning), the meaning of the laying on of hands in ordination and the commissioning of provisional members is carried and communicated by the form of this ritual action and the context and 362 words that accompany it. In commissioning, a bishop lays hands on the shoulders

363 of the candidates as a sign of sending into ministry for a specified period of time.
364 In ordination, a bishop lays hands on the head of the candidate as a sign of the 365 impartation of the gifts of the Holy Spirit for what is intended to be a lifetime of 366 ministry.

367
368 The laying on of hands is an essential part of the act of prayer in ordination. The laying 369 on of hands with prayer invokes the Spirit to empower those being ordained for the work 370 of the office to which they are called by God through the Church.

372

2. The Roles of Other Clergy and Lay Leaders

373 One or more representatives of the laity and one or more ecumenical representatives
374 may also be invited by the presiding bishop to assist in the laying on of hands for elders
375 and deacons. Laity and ecumenical representatives who are laity or clergy in the same 376 order as the ordinand may join others in the same order by laying hands on the back or 377 shoulders of the ordinand. Ecumenical representatives who are bishops or have an 378 equivalent role in ordination in their own denominations may be invited by the presiding 379 bishop to lay hands on the head of the ordinand (if permitted in their own polity) or on the 380 back or shoulders of the presiding bishop.

381

382 Care should be taken to enable members of the congregation to see the laying on of 383 hands by the bishop and others. The bishop may limit the number of people participating 384 in the laying on of hands to ensure that candidates are not hidden from the view of the 385 congregation.

387 Non-ordained spouses and family members of candidates for ordination or 388 commissioning should not participate in the laying on of hands. Family members and 389 friends may be invited to stand where they are for silent prayer during the laying on of 390 hands for a candidate.

391

D. Instruments and Sign-Acts for the Ordering of Ministry

392 Ordinations and consecrations ritualize the distinctiveness of the different orders. Thus, 393 not only what is said but what is done and the signs and instruments employed are 394 significant. Bishops and all being ordained, commissioned, received, recognized, or 395 consecrated are strongly encouraged to wear an alb, the simple, ancient garment linked 396 to baptism. Albs are available in several colors. White or off-white is recommended to 397 symbolize the tie to ancient baptismal practice. (Alb comes from the Latin, alba, meaning 398 “white.”) The alb is the foundational garment upon which are placed the distinguishing 399 signs of office.

400

401 These are the distinguishing signs and instruments to be used in these services and in 402 the course of the ministries of those who receive them:

403

For commissioned ministers and persons elected to Associate Membership

404 Stole—none. The stole is a sign of ordained office. Non-ordained persons are not 405 to be presented with nor to wear the stole in their ministerial practice.

406 Instruments—none. A pendant cross may be presented. A pendant cross is not an 407 instrument of office, but a designation of devotion to Christ.

408
409

For elder

410 Stole—yoked at the back of the neck, hanging straight down from the shoulders

411 Instruments—chalice and paten.
412

413

414

For deacon

415

Stole—draped over the left shoulder and fastened under the right arm

416

Instruments—towel, pitcher, and basin. A plumb line may also be presented.

417

418

For bishop

419

Yoked stole—to be worn from the beginning of the service

420

Instrument—crozier (pastoral or shepherd's staff)

421

422

The Bible is an instrument common to all the orders of Christ's ministry. A Bible presented to those being consecrated, commissioned, or ordained should be either a gift or one belonging to the candidate so that there is continuity between presentation and use. It is recommended that the Bible received by those being commissioned be presented again at the time of ordination.

427

Additional books may also be presented at this time. These services commend presenting elders with the current editions of The Book of Discipline and The United Methodist Book of Worship, and deacons with The United Methodist Book of Worship.

429

431

432

Certificates of credentials (two documents, conference membership and ministry status) may be presented at this time.

433

434

435

436

437

438

439

441

Holy Communion should normally be celebrated at services where candidates are to be ordained. Newly ordained elders, assisted by newly ordained deacons, may serve the people, involving other elders, deacons, local pastors, diaconal ministers, commissioned ministers, and laity as needed. Newly ordained deacons may assist the bishop in preparing the table, serving, setting the table in order, leading the intercessions, putting the table in order after Communion, and sending the people forth.

442

E. Reception as Full Members

443

444

445

446

447

448

449

451

Receiving ordained elders and deacons into full membership is a solemn and joyous occasion. These persons have shown themselves to be ready for a lifetime of commitment to and effectiveness in ministry in The United Methodist Church through several years of supervised learning and reflection on the practice of ministry as an elder or deacon. As ordination rather than commissioning will increasingly become connected with provisional membership, it is important that the acts of receiving full members be experienced as the strong validation of ministry and the ministry covenants they are intended to be.

452

A Guide to Planning Services for the Ordering of Ministry

453

455

456

457

458

459

460

462

There is no more complex annual liturgical task for most United Methodist annual conferences than planning the services of ordination, commissioning, reception, and recognition. The numbers of people involved, the time available in annual conference sessions, and the limitations of the available worship space can make planning a logistical and liturgical challenge. At the same time, these moments of worship can and should be deeply formative and moving for the candidates and the conference as a whole. The opportunity to celebrate Christ's ministry through all of the baptized and to set apart women and men as ordained leaders calls all Christians to the deep roots of our faith and life in the church universal.

463

A. General Guidelines

464

These guidelines highlight some of the critical concerns that planners must consider.

465

These matters must be thought through within the context of an annual conference's worship style, the place it meets, and the numbers of candidates. There are some basic principles to keep in mind:

466

467

468

469

1. The bishop is in charge. The resident bishop is responsible for the services. See Discipline—2012, ¶ 415.6.

470

472

2. Teamwork is essential. The bishop consults with the conference board of ordained ministry, the annual conference worship committee, and other annual conference committees for the coordination and execution of these services.

473

475

3. Long-range planning is critical. Scheduling rehearsals, printing, graphic design, assigning liturgical leadership, and a host of other matters may require months of preparation.

476

477

4. Authorized texts and rubrics must be used as provided in this resource. Because ordinations “are acts of the whole Church, text and rubrics [of these orders] shall be used in the form approved by the General Conference” (Book of Discipline—2012, ¶ 415.6, emphasis added). The texts and rubrics allow for some flexibility, including musical choices, the ability to substitute equivalent elements between the traditional and alternative texts, and the possibility of ordering the actions of commissioning and ordination in a variety of ways, as modeled in the two versions. However, the services herein are the only ones approved by General Conference for these purposes. Prior ordinals or practices are superseded. There are profound denominational and ecumenical issues at stake in the way annual conferences celebrate these services of The United Methodist Church.

5. Plan specific time allotments for the various parts of these services to ensure everything flows well and the service does not drag or take too long. Ensure that the sermon, acts of worship, and movement of the people are well rehearsed and kept within allowable time frames. While the sermon is an important part of this service, it is only one part of the proclamation of the gospel within it. The actions of ordination, commissioning, reception, and recognition, as well as reaffirmations of the baptismal covenant and the celebration of Holy Communion, also proclaim the gospel and invite response. Remember: Worship is primarily action with words attached as needed.

6. Rehearsal is essential. Due to the complexity of these ritual acts and the number of people involved, thorough rehearsal will ensure that each leader and participant knows what he or she is to do and that adjustments can be made prior to the service. Some annual conferences train and employ marshals or vergers who guide the bishop, candidates, and other participants as they move through the service.

504

505

506

507

508

Rehearsal should include, at a minimum, the movement into and out of the worship space, the introductions of candidates, the readings, the ordination or commissioning sequence, the ushers seating people and taking the offering, the positioning of servers, and the sequence for celebrating and serving Holy Communion. In most situations, technical aspects such as sound, light, and digital equipment need to be checked and the sequences rehearsed.

7. Anthems and other musical offerings may be used throughout these services.

517

Choral calls to worship, responses to Scripture, offertory anthems, and choral benedictions are appropriate. The annual conference music leader should be involved in planning and rehearsing these services. All music should support the movement of the rites and not distract from or impede them.

518

520

522

8. Rubrics that invite fuller participation or greater clarity about the ritual action of the services should be printed in the order of service. The ordination service is complex.

523

524

For the congregation and other participants to follow the actions and participate appropriately, they will need the road map a printed program can provide. Relying on a screen alone to guide these services is likely to lead to confusion rather than greater participation.

525

527

528

529

While some of the rubrics in these services are primarily for the leaders and planners of the services, many should be printed in the actual service folder to encourage understanding of what and who is addressed and to invite fuller participation. For example, “All audibly affirm the action, saying, Amen” helps all to know that they join the prayer by their active and audible response. “The bishop, facing the ordinands, calls the people to prayer, using these or similar words” helps the congregation know that they are being addressed.

B. Logistics Questions

537

The following are fundamental decisions that need to be made as you design services for the ordering of ministry:

538

540

1. How many services? Many annual conferences in the United States have significantly reduced the amount of time they meet over the past few quadrennia, in most case by at least a full day. This makes it difficult for most annual conferences to schedule multiple separate services of ordination and commissioning. For this reason, this ordinal includes a single service combining all necessary elements for ordination, commissioning, the Reception of Full Members, the Recognition of Orders, and the Recognition of Associate Members. If bishops wish to separate these elements into separate services following the same pattern of worship (Entrance with reaffirmation of baptism, presentation of candidates, ministry of the word, examination of candidates, laying on of hands, Holy Communion, sending), they are free to do so.

541

543

544

545

546

547

548

549

550

551

2. How will you orchestrate movement of bishop, assistants, and candidates in the laying on of hands? The guiding principle must be good order and visibility. Plan a pattern of

552

554

555

556

557

558

559

560

561

562

563

3. How will Holy Communion be celebrated? Services of ordination take place within a Service of Word and Table, with Holy Communion served to the entire congregation. Holy Communion is at the heart of our identity as Christians and our understanding of the work

564

566 of ordained elders and deacons. When the annual conference ordains persons within a 567 Service of Word and Table, the newly ordained immediately take their place to enact 568 liturgically the ministries to which they have been ordained.

569
570 The celebration of Holy Communion should be in keeping with our ritual in The 571 United Methodist Book of Worship. The bishop and worship planners are encouraged to 572 avail themselves of the guidance and options outlined in pages 16-32 in The Book of 573 Worship and in the texts and rubrics below. Several different complete forms of the Great 574 Thanksgiving are included in these services. See pages 519, 537, and 549 of this document.

575
576 Continuous serving of the people at multiple stations will allow more of the newly 577 ordained, commissioned, received, or recognized to serve and will enable all to be served 578 in a manner that is gracious but not overly long. Depending on the layout of the space, 579 the number of stations may be calculated by dividing the total number of persons present 580 by 50 and providing at least as many stations as the result. For example, an estimated 581 attendance of 2,000 would require at least 40 stations.

583

584 C. General Rubrics

585

586 1. The resident bishop shall preside at the service. The resident bishop in these services 587 is critical in our polity, ritual, and ecumenical relationships. Except in cases of physical 588 necessity, the resident bishop may not delegate the leadership of elements of this service 589 designated “Bishop” to other persons. If the resident bishop should be physically unable 590 to perform some of these elements, the resident bishop may seek assistance from 591 another active or retired bishop in her or his college of bishops. The resident bishop may 592 choose another bishop or person of similar authority from another Christian denomination 593 to preach.

594

595 2. The service(s) of ordination should regularly include representatives of other Christian 596 communions, and particularly bishops or persons who are authorized to ordain within 597 these denominations. Bishops or equivalent officials from one or more of the 598 denominations with which The United Methodist Church is in full communion, other 599 member bodies in Churches Uniting in Christ, and member Churches of the World 600 Methodist Federation should always be invited to take part in these services. Bishops and 601 officials authorized to ordain may be invited by the resident bishop to participate in the 602 laying on of hands as their denominations may allow.

603

604 3. The services should normally take place during a session of annual conference. While 605 exceptions may be made in extraordinary circumstances, holding services of ordination, 606 commissioning, and recognition within the gathering of the annual conference best 607 represents the nature of our polity. Persons are ordained, commissioned, received, or 608 recognized through the collaborative actions of the annual conference’s Board of 609 Ordained Ministry and resident bishop, and are most likely to exercise their set-apart 610 ministry primarily within the bounds of the annual conference in which these services take 611 place.

613 4. The color for paraments, stoles worn or presented to ordinands, and cinctures should 614 be red. Red has long use in the church as a sign as of the action of the Holy Spirit in 615 general, as well as in the acts of setting persons apart for specialized ministry.

616

617 5. The sermon should be addressed to the whole assembly, including the candidates.
 618 Ordination, commissioning, and acts of recognition involve the whole church, laity, and 619 clergy in all orders and statuses. While the sermon may include some address to the 620 candidates, it should clearly remind everyone present of their role in what the Holy Spirit 621 is doing, is about to do, and will do in their midst through their prayers and the laying on 622 of hands, and the continuing responsibility of all present to ensure what the Spirit has 623 begun can grow and bear much fruit for all.

Numbered pages without abbreviations preceding them refer to pages in this document.

635

636

An asterisk (*) indicates an act of worship for which the congregation may be invited to stand.

637

639

Items in plain brackets [] are optional and may be omitted, adapted, or relocated.

640

641

Items in parentheses () within the texts of the services indicate a choice of word use is offered. Printed orders of the service should include only the words that will be used.

642

644

Items in italicized print in the body of plain text prayers or other acts of worship indicate that adaptation or adjustments in the language may need to be made.

645

647

Following the style of The Book of Discipline of The United Methodist Church—2012, “Church” indicates The United Methodist Church, and “church” indicates the church universal.

692

693 We come together to praise God,
694 to hear the Holy Word,
695 and to seek for ourselves and others
696 the power, presence, and direction of the Holy Spirit.
697

698 Let us pray.
699

700 Eternal God, by Jesus Christ and the Holy Spirit
 701 you gave to your apostles many excellent gifts.
 702 Give your grace
 703 to all servants of your church,
 704 that we may with diligence and faithfulness
 705 fulfill our various ministries.
 706 Grant that we your people may follow where you lead,
 707 perfect our ministries,
 708 and live in joyful obedience to your will,
 709 through Jesus Christ, our Savior. Amen.

710
 711
 712 RECOGNITION OF COMMON MINISTRY
 713 AND REAFFIRMATION OF BAPTISM
 714

715 The bishop, standing near a baptismal font, shell, or vessel of water, begins:
 716

717 Ministry is the work of God,
 718 done by the people of God.
 719 Through baptism
 720 all Christians are made part of the priesthood of all believers, 721 the church, Christ's body, made visible in the world.
 722 We all share in Christ's ministry of love and service
 723 for the redemption of the human family and the whole of creation.
 724

725 Therefore, in celebration of our common ministry,
 726 I call upon all God's people gathered here:
 727

728 The bishop may scoop and pour water from the font, shell, or vessel and say:
 729

730 Remember you are baptized, and be thankful.
 731

732 We reaffirm our baptism
 733 and our common call to ministry.
 734 Thanks be to God!
 735

736 All people are seated.
 737

738 PRESENTATION OF PERSONS TO BE ORDAINED, COMMISSIONED, 739 RECEIVED, OR RECOGNIZED
 740

741
 742 All but the bishop, candidates, and their assistants may be seated.
 743 The bishop remains by the font, facing the people.
 744

745
 746 747 Bishop:
 748

749 Who presents these candidates to be ordained, commissioned, received, or 750 recognized?
 751

752 All Laity:
753
754 We have recommended them in our local congregations.
755 We present them with our prayers and support.
756
757 Members of the Board of Ordained Ministry:
758
759 We have examined these candidates according to the standards of our Discipline
760 and this annual conference of The United Methodist Church.
761 We present them with our prayers and support.
762
763 All Deacons in Full Connection:
764
765 We present (Names) for ordination as deacon
766 and (Names) for reception into full membership.
767 We present them with our prayers and support.
768
769 All Elders in Full Connection:
770
771 We present (Names) for ordination as elder
772 and (Names) for reception into full membership.
773 We present them with our prayers and support.
774
775 Board of Ordained Ministry:

776 We present (Full Names) for commissioning as provisional members
777 preparing for ordained ministry as elders
778 and (Full Names) preparing for ordained ministry as deacons.
779 We present them with our prayers and support.
780
781 We also present (Names) for Recognition of Orders in The United Methodist 782 Church and (Names) for Recognition as Associate Members.
783 We present them with our prayers and support.
784
785 After all the candidates have been presented, they remain standing, and the bishop says:
786
787 These persons are by God's grace
788 to be ordained, commissioned, received, or recognized for set-apart ministry in Christ's 789 holy church.
790 Those authorized by the Church to inquire about them
791 have discerned that they are persons
792 of sound learning and of Christian character,
793 possess the necessary signs of God's grace,
794 and have demonstrated a profound commitment to serve Jesus Christ.
795 Therefore, they believe them to be duly called to serve God.
796
797 We ask you, people of God,
798 to declare your assent
799 to the ordination, commissioning, reception, or recognition of these persons.
800
801 Do you trust that they are worthy, by God's grace, 802 to be ordained, commissioned, received, or recognized?
803

804 We do! Thanks be to God!

805

806 Will you uphold them in their ministry?

807

808 With God's help, we will.

809

810

811 THE GENERAL EXAMINATION

812

813 All remain seated except the candidates and the bishop, who stand facing one another.

814 The bishop examines the candidates for commissioning, ordination, and recognition:

815

816 My sisters and brothers in Christ,

817 you have been called

818 to an ordained, commissioned, full membership, or recognized status in set-apart

819 ministry.

820 The Church now confirms your calling.

821

822 As ordained or commissioned ministers, full members, and associate members,

823 you are to be coworkers with all the people of God:

824 With laity, bishops, elders, deacons, local pastors,

825 provisional members, diaconal ministers,

826 deaconesses, home missionaries, supply pastors,

827 with all who serve God in the Church.

828

829 Remember you are called

830 to serve rather than to be served,

831 to proclaim the faith of the church and no other,

832 to look after the concerns of God above all.

833

834 So we may know you believe yourselves

835 to be called by God

836 and that you profess the Christian faith,

837 we ask you:

838

839 Do you believe that God has called you

840 to the life and work of ordained ministry?

841

842 I do so believe.

843

844 Do you believe in the Triune God, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit

845 and confess Jesus Christ as your Lord and Savior?

846

847 I do so believe and confess.

848

849 Are you persuaded

850 that the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments

851 contain all things necessary for salvation

852 through faith in Jesus Christ

853 and are the unique and authoritative standard

854 for the church's faith and life?

855

856 I am so persuaded, by God's grace.

857

858 Will you be faithful in prayer,
859 in the study of the Holy Scriptures,
860 and with the help of the Holy Spirit
861 continually rekindle the gift of God that is in you?

862

863 I will, with the help of God.

864

865 Will you do your best to pattern your life
866 in accordance with the teachings of Christ?

867

868 I will, with the help of God.

869

870 Will you, in the exercise of your ministry,
871 lead the people of God
872 to faith in Jesus Christ,
873 to participate in the life and work of the community, and 874 to seek peace, justice, and freedom for all people?

875

876 I will, with the help of God.

877

878 Will you be loyal to The United Methodist Church, 879 accepting and upholding its order, liturgy, doctrine, and discipline,
880 defending it against all doctrines contrary to God's Holy Word, 881 and committing yourself to be accountable with those serving with you, 882 and to the bishop and those who are appointed to supervise your ministry?

883

884 I will, with the help of God.

885

886 Will you, for the sake of the church's life and mission, 887 covenant to participate in the life of the order, [fellowship, or membership]
888 into which you are ordained, commissioned, received, or recognized?
889 Will you give yourself to God through the order [or fellowship]
890 in order to sustain and build each other up
891 in prayer, study, worship, and service
892 under the rule of life set forth in the vows you take this day?

893

894 I will, with the help of God.

895

896 May God,
897 who has given you the will to do these things,
898 give you grace to perform them,
899 that the work begun in you may be brought to perfection.

900

THE FIRST READING (Selection from OT or Epistle readings, page 554)

The gospel may be read by an ordained deacon while all stand.

THE GOSPEL *

Before the reading:

Deacon: The gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, according to _____.

After the reading:

Deacon: The gospel of our Lord!

People: Praise to you, Lord Jesus Christ!

SERMON

APOSTLES' CREED* (said or sung)

Do you believe in God?

I believe in God, the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth.

Do you believe in Jesus Christ?

I believe in Jesus Christ,
God's only Son, our Lord,
Who was conceived by the Holy Spirit, born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, died, and was buried.
He descended to the dead.
On the third day he rose again;
he ascended into heaven,
is seated at the right hand of the Father, and will come again to judge the living and the dead.

Do you believe in the Holy Spirit?

I believe in the Holy Spirit,
the holy catholic church,
the communion of saints,
the forgiveness of sins,
the resurrection of the body,
and the life everlasting.

The congregation may be seated. An anthem, song, or instrumental work may be performed, or the service may continue.

COMMISSIONING OF PROVISIONAL MEMBERS

If there are still candidates for commissioning after 2016, they may rise and face the congregation. See page 35. The bishop addresses the congregation.

By affirming the covenant of baptism,
all members of Christ's holy church pledge

960 to serve as Christ's representatives in the world.
961
962 Christ gave all of us this command:
963 "Ask the Lord of the harvest to send out laborers into his harvest."
964 We have asked, and the Lord has answered.
965 These sisters and brothers know our Savior's concern for God's people, 966 see the plentiful harvest,
967 and are ready to respond generously to the Lord
968 in the words of the prophet: "Here I am; send me!"
969
970 Urged on by the love of Christ and strengthened by the Holy Spirit, 971 they now come to declare in public
972 their desire to live out the covenant made at their baptism
973 by binding themselves to the service of God
974 under the supervision of the bishop
975 and the guidance of colleagues in full connection
976 and by being appointed to share as servant leaders
977 in the body of Christ.
978
979 Today we commission them to service
980 as they continue to prepare for ordained ministry among us.

982
983
984 The candidates kneel, facing the congregation.

985
986 The bishop, facing the congregation and extending arms over all of the candidates, 987 prays:

988
989 God of the apostles and prophets, of the martyrs and teachers, 990 you raise up men and women to be apostolic leaders in your church.
991 By your Holy Spirit
992 help these, your servants,
993 to understand and live the mystery of your love with boldness and joy.
994 Deepen their sense of purpose
995 as they exercise commissioned ministry.
996 Empower them, and those who will walk with them to guide their ministry, 997 together with all of your people,
998 to heal the sick,
999 love the outcast,
1000 resist evil,
1001 preach the Word,
1002 and give themselves freely for your name's sake.

1003 1004 The bishop, standing behind and laying both hands upon the shoulders of each 1005 candidate, prays:

1006
1007 Pour out your Holy Spirit upon Full Name.
1008 Send him/her now to proclaim the good news of Jesus Christ,
1009 to announce the reign of God,
1010 and to equip the church for ministry,

*All audibly affirm the action, saying, Amen.

No instruments or stoles are given to commissioned ministers. A pendant cross or Book of Worship may be presented to each as they return to their seats. The certificate of provisional membership and the appropriate license for ministry may be presented to each at this time.

EXAMINATION OF DEACONS

*The deacon candidates stand and move toward the bishop as directed.
 The bishop examines the deacon candidates:*

A deacon
 is called to share in Christ's ministry of servanthood, to relate the life of the community to its service in the world, to lead others into Christian discipleship, to nurture disciples for witness and service,

Here a large Bible may be lifted by an assistant.

to lead in worship,
 to teach and proclaim God's Word, to assist elders and appointed local pastors at Holy Baptism and Holy Communion,

Here a towel and basin with pitcher may be lifted by an assistant.

to interpret to the church the world's hurts and hopes, to serve all people, particularly the poor, the sick, and the oppressed, and to lead Christ's people in ministries of compassion and justice, liberation and reconciliation, especially in the face of hardship and personal sacrifice.

This is the rule of life and work of a deacon.

Do you believe that God has called you to the life and work of a deacon?

I do so believe.

LAYING ON OF HANDS AND PRAYER FOR DEACONS

The bishop calls the people to prayer using these or similar words:

As these persons are recognized or ordained by God and the church for the ministry of deacons to which we believe they have been called by the Holy Spirit,
 let us pray for them.

If the setting allows, the candidates may kneel.

1064
1065 The people pray for them in silence.
1066
1067 The hymn “O Holy Spirit” (UMBOW 223) or “Come, Holy Ghost, Our Souls Inspire”
1068 (UMH 651) may be sung.
1069
1070 The bishop, with hands extended over those being ordained, prays:
1071
1072 We thank you, Living God,
1073 that in your great love
1074 you sent Jesus Christ
1075 to take the form of a servant,
1076 becoming obedient even to death on the cross,
1077 and now resurrected and exalted in the heavens.
1078 You have taught us, by his word and example,
1079 that whoever would be great among us must be servant of all.
1080
1081 Give these servants grace to be faithful to their promises, 1082 constant in their discipleship,
1083 and always ready for works of loving service.
1084 Make them modest and humble, gentle and strong,
1085 rooted and grounded in love.
1086 Give them a share in the ministry of Jesus Christ, 1087 who came not to be served but to serve.
1088
1089 Candidates for ordination as deacon may be invited to kneel before the bishop one at a 1090 time as directed. Those whose orders are to be recognized may remain standing where 1091 they are during the ordinations.
1092 1093 Representatives from the laity, the ecumenical church, and the order of deacons who are 1094 to join in the laying on of hands stand with the bishop. When the bishop lays hands on 1095 the head of the candidate, others may lay hands on the candidate’s back or shoulders.
1096
1097 Family members and friends may be invited to stand where they are for silent prayer
1098 during the laying on of hands for each ordinand.
1099
1100 The bishop lays both hands on the head of each ordinand, praying:
1101
1102 Father Almighty (Almighty God), pour upon Name the Holy Spirit
1103 for the office and work of a deacon in Christ’s holy church.
1104
1105 All audibly affirm the action, saying, Amen.
1106
1107 Immediately the candidate places hands on a Bible as the bishop lays hands on the 1108 hands of the candidate and says:
1109
1110 Full Name, take authority as a deacon
1111 to proclaim the Word of God
1112 and to lead God’s people
1113 in ministries of compassion and justice;
1114 in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit.
1115

1116 *All audibly affirm the action, saying, Amen.

1117

1118 Each deacon is immediately clothed with the shoulder stole. As instruments of office they 1119 may receive a Bible, a Book of Worship, and bowl and pitcher and a plumb line.

1120 Certificates of ordination as deacon and provisional membership (if not previously 1121 commissioned) may be presented at this time.

1122

1123 Those who have been received into provisional membership may return to their places.

1124 Those whose orders will be recognized will stand.

1125

1126 RECOGNITION OF ORDERS

1127

1128 The bishop addresses those whose orders as deacons are to be recognized:

1129

1130 After due examination

1131 of your call and ministry in another part of Christ's holy church, 1132 we now welcome you to this communion.

1133

1134 You have given assurance of your faith and Christian experience.

1135

1136 You have renewed the vows of your ordination

1137 and embraced our own,

1138 committing yourself/ves to accept and uphold faithfully

1139 the doctrine, liturgy, and discipline of The United Methodist Church.

1141 We rejoice that you have been called to serve among us,

1142 and pray that God may guide your ministry.

1143

1144 As each candidate comes forward, the bishop greets each one:

1145

1146 Full Name, we now recognize you as a deacon

1147 in The United Methodist Church.

1148

1149 As each one is named and received, each is given a certificate of recognition as deacon, 1150 a certificate of full membership, and a Book of Worship.

1151

1152 The congregation may sing a hymn (pages 68 ff.), or an anthem or other music may be 1153 offered. Or the service may continue.

1156

1157 EXAMINATION OF ELDERS

1158

1159 Candidates for ordination as elders rise and face the bishop.

1160 The bishop examines the candidates for ordination or recognition as elder:

1161

1162 An elder

1163 is called to share in the ministry of Christ

1164 and of the whole church:

1165 to preach and teach the Word of God

1166

1167 Here a large Bible may be lifted by an assistant.

1168
 1169 and faithfully administer
 1170 the sacraments of Holy Baptism and Holy Communion;
 1171
 1172 Here a paten and chalice may be lifted.
 1173
 1174 to lead the people of God in worship and prayer;
 1175 to lead persons to faith in Jesus Christ;
 1176 to exercise pastoral supervision,
 1177 to order the life of the congregation and the connection, 1178 to counsel the troubled,
 1179 and declare the forgiveness of sin;
 1180 to lead the people of God
 1181 in obedience to Christ's mission in the world;
 1182 to seek justice, peace, and freedom for all people;
 1183 and to take a responsible place in the government of the Church 1184 and in service in and to the community.
 1185
 1186 This is the rule of life and work of an elder.
 1187
 1188 Do you believe that God has called you
 1189 to the life and work of an elder?
 1190
 1191 I do so believe.

LAYING ON OF HANDS AND PRAYER FOR ELDERS

1192
 1193
 1194
 1195
 1196 The bishop, facing the ordinands, calls the people to prayer, using these or similar words:
 1197
 1198 As these persons are ordained or recognized by the church
 1199 for the office and work of elders
 1200 to which we believe they have been called by the Holy Spirit, 1201 let us pray for them.
 1202
 1203 If the setting allows, the candidates kneel.
 1204
 1205 The people pray for them in silence.
 1206
 1207 If the hymn "O Holy Spirit" (UMBOW 223) or "Come, Holy Ghost, Our Souls Inspire"
 1208 (UMH 651) was not sung earlier, it may be sung here.
 1209
 1210 The bishop, with hands extended over those being ordained, prays:
 1211
 1212 We praise you, eternal God,
 1213 because you have called us to be a priestly people,
 1214 offering to you acceptable worship through Jesus Christ, our Lord, 1215 Apostle and High Priest, Shepherd and Bishop of our souls.
 1216 We thank you that, by dying, Christ has overcome death
 1217 and, having ascended into heaven,
 1218 has poured forth gifts abundantly on your people,
 1219 making some apostles, some prophets,

1220 some evangelists, some pastors and teachers,
 1221 to equip the saints for the work of ministry,
 1222 to build up Christ's body,
 1223 and to fulfill your gracious purpose in the world.

1224
 1225 Give to these your servants the grace and power they need 1226 to serve you in this ministry.
 1227 Make them faithful pastors, patient teachers, and wise counselors.
 1228 Enable them to serve without reproach,
 1229 to proclaim the gospel of salvation,
 1230 to administer the sacraments of the new covenant,
 1231 and to offer with all your people
 1232 spiritual sacrifices acceptable to you;
 1233 through Jesus Christ our Lord,
 1234 who lives and reigns with you,
 1235 in the unity of the Holy Spirit,
 1236 one God, now and forever.

1237
 1238 Candidates for ordination as elder are invited to kneel before the bishop one at a time as 1239 directed. Those whose orders are to be recognized may remain standing where they are 1240 during the ordinations.

 1242 Representatives from the laity, the ecumenical church, and the order of elders who are to 1243 join in the laying on of hands stand with the bishop. When the bishop lays hands on the 1244 head of the candidate, others may lay hands on the candidate's back or shoulders.

1245
 1246 Family members and friends may be invited to stand where they are for silent prayer
 1247 during the laying on of hands for each ordinand.

1248
 1249 The bishop lays both hands on the head of each ordinand, praying:

1250
 1251 Father Almighty (Almighty God), pour upon Name the Holy Spirit, 1252 for the office and work of an elder in Christ's holy church.

1253
 1254 *All audibly affirm the action, saying, Amen.

1255
 1256 Immediately the candidate places hands on a Bible as the bishop lays hands on the 1257 hands of the ordinand and says:

1258
 1259 Full Name, take authority as an elder 1260 to preach the Word of God,
 1261 to administer the Holy Sacraments
 1262 and to order the life of the Church;
 1263 in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit.

1264
 1265 *All audibly affirm the action, saying, Amen.

1266
 1267 Each newly ordained elder is immediately clothed with the yoked stole. As instruments of 1268 office they may receive a Bible, a chalice and paten, a Book of Worship, and a Book 1269 of Discipline. A certificate of ordination as elder and a certificate of provisional 1270 membership (if not previously commissioned) may be presented at this time.

1271

1272 Those who have been received into provisional membership may return to their places.
1273 Those whose orders are to be recognized may stand.
1274
1275 The congregation may sing a hymn, or an anthem or other music may be offered. Or the 1276 service may continue.

1279
1281

The bishop addresses those whose orders as elders are to be recognized.

1282
1284
1285
1286

After due examination
of your call and ministry in another part of Christ's holy church, we now welcome you to this communion.

1288

You have given assurance of your faith and Christian experience.

1289
1291
1292
1293

You have renewed the vows of your ordination
and embraced our own,
committing yourself/ves to accept and uphold faithfully
the doctrine, liturgy, and discipline of The United Methodist Church.

1294
1295
1296

We rejoice that you have been called to serve among us,
and pray that God may guide your ministry.

1297

As each candidate comes forward, the bishop greets each one:

1299
1300
1301

Full Name, we now recognize you as an elder in full connection in The United Methodist Church.

1303
1304

1311 1312
1313
1314

After careful examination of your ministry among us during the time of your provisional membership, your colleagues in the order of elders and deacons, and those who have supervised your formation and ministry in the conference and in your places of appointment are convinced you are called, gifted, and prepared for a lifetime of service among us as an elder or deacon.

1315
1316
1317
1318

The bishop continues.

1319
1320 1321
1322
1323

You have faithfully accepted and upheld the vows of your ordination and demonstrated your commitment to your sisters and brothers in the Order of Elders or Order of Deacons, 1324 to the people of our congregations and ministries,

 1325 and to the doctrine, liturgy, and discipline of The United Methodist Church.

1326
 1327 May God continue to guide your ministry among us
 1328 as elders or deacons in full connection.

1329
 1330 As each candidate comes forward, the bishop clasps the hands of each one, saying:

1331
 1332 Full Name, we receive you as an [elder or deacon] in full connection
 1333 in The United Methodist Church.

1334 Take authority as [an elder/a deacon] to serve 1335 in Christ's name and the Spirit's power
 1336 throughout our worldwide Church.

 1338
 1339 As each one is named and received, the certificate of full membership is given.

1340

1342 RECOGNITION OF ASSOCIATE MEMBERS

1343

1344 Persons to be recognized as associate members may now stand and present themselves 1345 before the bishop and the congregation.

1346

1347 The bishop addresses them:

1348

1349 You have served among us faithfully as (a) local pastor(s), 1350 demonstrating your commitment to accept and uphold
 1351 the doctrine, liturgy, and discipline of The United Methodist Church, 1352 under the appointment of the bishop.

1354 You have now fulfilled the requirements
 1355 and been elected by the clergy session of this annual conference 1356 as (an) associate member(s).

1358 We rejoice that you have been called to serve among us,
 1359 and pray that God may guide your ministry.

1360

1361 As each candidate comes forward, the bishop greets each one:

1362

1363 Full Name, we now recognize you as an associate member 1364 in the name of the annual conference.

1365

1366 No instruments or stoles are given to associate members. The newly recognized 1367 associate members are given a certificate of associate membership and return to their

Christ our Lord invites to his table all who love him, and all who seek to be at peace with God and one another.

1388

1390

The peace of the Lord be always with you!

1391

And also with you!

1392

Signs of reconciliation and love may be exchanged.

THE GREAT THANKSGIVING *

1399

This text is used by the bishop, while the congregation uses "A Service of Word and Table III" (UMH 15-16) or one of the musical settings (UMH 17-25). For a fuller text of the Great Thanksgiving for ordination, see the Great Thanksgiving beginning on page 58 of UMBOW.

1400

1402

1403

1404

The bishop stands behind the Lord's Table and, facing the people from this time through Breaking the Bread, begins the prayer:

1405

The Lord be with you.

1407

And also with you.

1409

Lift up your hearts.

1411

1413

The bishop may lift and extend hands and keep them raised.

1414

We lift them up to the Lord.

1415

1416

Let us give thanks to the Lord our God.

1417

1418

It is right to give our thanks and praise.

1419

1420

It is right, and a good and joyful thing, always and everywhere to give thanks to you, almighty God, Creator of heaven and earth.

1421

1422

1423

1424

You built your church on the foundation of the prophets and apostles, and instituted a holy ministry

1425

1427

1428 so that your prophetic and apostolic Word
1429 might be heard until the end of time.

1430
1431 And so,
1432 with your people on earth
1433 and all the company of heaven
1434 we praise your name and join their unending hymn:

1435
1436 The bishop may lower and join hands.

1437
1438 Holy, holy, holy Lord, God of power and might,
1439 heaven and earth are full of your glory.
1440 Hosanna in the highest.
1441 Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord.
1442 Hosanna in the highest.

1443
1444 The bishop may raise and extend hands.

1445
1446 Holy are you, and blessed is your Son Jesus Christ.
1447 He called disciples and empowered them for ministry.
1448 By the baptism of his suffering, death, and resurrection
1449 you gave birth to your church
1450 and made with us a new covenant by water and the Spirit.

1451
1452 The bishop touches or lifts the bread and prays:

1453
1454 On the night in which Jesus gave himself up for us, 1455 he took bread, gave thanks to you, broke the bread,
1456 gave it to his disciples, and said:
1457 “Take, eat; this is my body which is given for you.
1458 Do this in remembrance of me.”

1459
1460 The bishop touches or lifts the cup and says:

1461
1462 When the supper was over, Jesus took the cup, 1463 gave thanks to you, gave it to his disciples, and said:
1464 “Drink from this, all of you;
1465 this is my blood of the new covenant, 1466 poured out for you and for many 1467 for the forgiveness of sins.
1468 Do this, as often as you drink it,
1469 in remembrance of me.”

1470
1471 The bishop may raise and extend hands.

1472
1473 When Jesus, the great Shepherd of your flock, ascended, 1474 he sent forth the apostles
1475 to preach the gospel and make disciples of all nations.
1476 He promised to be with them always 1477 and sent the Holy Spirit to lead them.

1478
1479 And so,

1480 in remembrance of these your mighty acts in Jesus Christ,
1481 we offer ourselves in praise and thanksgiving
1482 as a holy and living sacrifice,
1483 in union with Christ's offering for us,
1484 as we proclaim the mystery of faith.

1485

1486 Christ has died; Christ is risen; Christ will come again.

1487

1488 The bishop may hold hands over the bread and cup.

1489

1490 Pour out your Holy Spirit on us gathered here, 1491 and on these gifts of bread and wine.

1492 Make them be for us the body and blood of Christ,
1493 that we may be for the world the body of Christ,
1494 redeemed by his blood.

1495

1496 The bishop may raise and extend hands.

1497

1498 By your Spirit make us one with Christ,
1499 one with one another,
1500 and one in ministry to all the world,
1501 until Christ comes in final victory
1502 and we feast at his heavenly banquet.

1503

1504 Through your Son Jesus Christ,
1505 with the Holy Spirit in your holy church,
1506 all honor and glory is yours, almighty God,
1507 now and for ever. Amen.

1513 BREAKING THE BREAD

1515 The bishop, still standing behind the Lord's Table facing the people, breaks the bread in 1516 silence or while saying these or similar words:

1517

1518 Because there is one loaf,
1519 we, who are many, are one body,
1520 because we all partake of the one loaf.
1521 The bread which we break is a sharing in the body of Christ.

1522
